THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the Ohio valley Thursday night has moved rapidly eastward being central tonight south of Sable Island, and the far western disturbance has moved slowly eastward over California and the southern plateau region. The disturbance over the ocean northeast of the Bahamas still is only of moderate intensity. Pressure is high over most of North America. It is abnormally high from Ontario and western Quebec southward to the Ohio valley and the middle Atlantic states.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Saturday in the Washington forecast district, but the eastward advance of the western disturbance will cause much cloudiness during Sunday and precipitation is probable by Sunday afternoon or night over virtually all sections east of the Mississippi river except the Florida peninsula. The temperature will be lower in the middle Atlantic Saturday, and it will rise slowly Sunday in the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook, and Sandy Hook to Hatteras—Strong north or northeast winds diminishing and fair weather Saturday.

Forecast

For southern New England—Fair with somewhat colder in extreme south portion Saturday; Sunday increasing cloudiness with slowly rising temperature, probably snow or rain Sunday night.

GREENEVILLE

LARGE AUDIENCE WITNESSES "SALT WATER TAFFY"

The Taftville Dramatic club presented "Salt Water Taffy" a comedy in three acts Friday evening in the assembly hall of the Greeneville Congregational church before an audience that taxed the seating capacity of the hall. The show was well received by the audience who roundly applauded each actor and actress.

The proceeds of this successful affair will be divided between the Congregational church and the Dramatic club. The cast of characters follows:

Charlotte Bancroft, "Sugar", Miss Mary Martin; Irma Hastings, her best friend, Miss Helen Thoma; Charles Dudley, "Chickie", Richard Oat; Edwin Rowley, a bashful beau, Ronald Smith; Anita Thoandike, the cause of Ed's worry, Miss Jean Copeland; Jane Oxford, chilly and much the high-brow, Miss Mildred Dunlop; Jack Belmont, Ripley Brooks, two-thirds of an irrepressible trio, Charles Helmbold, Reginald Monty; Betty Brooks, Ripley's sister, Miss Gladys Thoma.

The play was under the direction of Miss Flossie M. Meyer.

Act I—The Bancroft living room in Boston. Evening of a summer's day.

Act II—Interior of a summer camp on the sand dunes near Provincetown. About ten days later.

Act 111—Same setting as Act II. A few minutes later.

ANNUAL PARISH MEETING AT ST. ANDREW'S MONDAY

On Wednesday evening the annual parish meeting will be held in the guild room of St. Andrew's Episcopal church at 7:30 o'clock. Reports will be presented from the various societies giving accounts of the progress made during the year, after which election of church officers will take place. The remainder of the evening will be devoted to a social entertainment when light refreshments will be served.

When the Girl's club of St. Mary's Memorial church met in the assembly hall Monday evening with a large attendance, regular business was transacted. Plans were made for a card party to be held in the near future. After the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed, refreshments being served by the entertainment committee.

The Community Workers held their annual Christmas party at the home of the president, Mrs. Fred C. Sears of Prospect street. There was a large attendance and the special guest of the evening was Mrs. Richard Stephenson of New Jersey, a former member of the Community Workers. A roast turkey dinner was served and very much enjoyed by all. The center-piece on the table was a small Christmas tree, very prettily decorated by the president's granddaughter, Marjory Sears. There were favors to represent Christmas dolls. After the dinner a social hour was enjoyed, at which time there was an exchange of gifts.

A business meeting of the Community Workers was held Thursday evening. The reports were read by Mrs. McNeely, showing a very successful year. Seven quilts were made and sold and over forty dollars was made on the Christmas sale. Five dollars was donated to the Salvation Army Christmas fund.

Miss Mary Mallon has returned to her duties at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, after spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Mallon of Convent avenue.

Charles Ogden has returned to his home on Fourteenth street after spending a few days at New York city, where he attended the automobile show.

At a pinochle party held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Mallon on Convent avenue, Mrs. James Ryan was awarded first ladies prize. Second prize went to Miss Eleanor Seward while William Mallon won first gents' prize and James Johnstone was second. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mallon, assisted by Miss Seward. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion.

Miss Catherine Brennan, a student at Willimantic State Normal school, is spending the week end recess with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brennan of Prospect street.

Miss Elizabeth Mallon has resumed her studies at New Rochelle college after spending the holiday recess with her parents on Convent avenue.

Maurice Goldblatt has returned to his studies at William and Mary college at Virginia after spending the holiday recess at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Goldblatt on North Main street.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Turner on Central avenue Wednesday afternoon in honor of their daughter, Phyllis, on her sixth birthday, many of little Miss Turner's friends being present. During the afternoon many games were played and enjoyed. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion. In the center of the dining room table was placed a large birthday cake with six lighted candles. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Turner, assisted by Mrs. Oliver Buddington.

John Ryan has returned to Providence, after spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Ryan, of Golden street.

A surprise birthday party was held Saturday evening in honor of Otto Bolz at his home, 102 Golden street, with many of his friends present. During the evening, games were played and dancing and singing enjoyed. Mr. Bolz was presented a beautiful smoking stand and a birthday cake.

Guests were present from Hartford, East Hartford, Manchester and New London, among those present being Misses Rose Lauria, Mary McCarthy, Virginia Vicino, Mildred Lauria, Mr. and Mrs. John McCarthy, Miss Catherine White, Mrs. Wenisch, Miss Mary White, John Lauria, Anthony Vicino, Valentine Savoy, Irving August, Miss Florence Wright, Happy Heap, Mr. and Mrs. Raoul Gauthier and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bolz.

FARM HAND IN PRESTON WAS FOUND DEAD IN BED AT THE CLARK PLACE

John Heule, about 50, a farm hand, employed by Samuel Clark of Preston, was found dead in bed about 4 o'clock Wednesday morning in a small building on the Clark farm where he lived. Death was caused from ulcers of the abdomen aggravated by chronic use of alcohol, according to Dr. N. B. Lewis, medical examiner for Preston, who investigated the death. Secreted in the bed was a bottle filled with so-called moonshine whiskey. The man's body was found early Wednesday morning by Mr. Clark when he went to the building for Mr. Heule.

It is understood that Mr. Heule leaves a number of brothers, one of them living in Stafford Springs.

Burial took place Thursday in Preston City cemetery, the committal service being read by Rev. George W. Clark of the Preston City Baptist church. Funeral arrangements were by Undertakers Church and Allen.

PRES. HOOVER ACKNOWLEDGES JEWISH COUNCIL'S LETTER

In response to a communication sent to President Hoover by Mrs. Nathan Gilman, chairman of the Bozrahville section of the National Council of Jewish Women, congratulating him upon authorizing the signing of the world court protocol, she has received acknowledgment from President Hoover, through his secretary.

Mrs. Gilman's letter was as follows:

January 1, 1930.

Honorable President of the United States,

Mr. Herbert Hoover,

White House, Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

It is indeed a privilege to those of us who live in this era to be able to dedicate ourselves to help in this great moral crusade, the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy among nations, the great task of setting up and developing "machinery for peace."

Your authorization of the signing of the world court protocol at Geneva, Dec. 9th, is hailed as a great achievement. It is another step towards the completion of this fundamental international institution which will make possible the substitution of law for war.

This not only is praiseworthy but also calls for heartiest congratulations. It is an occasion for thanksgiving for the progress made and for the good fortune in having so valiant an advocate of peace at the head of our nation.

May I take this occasion to wish you Godspeed when the time arrives for you to present the world court protocol to the senate for their ratification; assuring you that a vast army of peace-loving people stand ready to back you up and to help make a reality of that ancient dream and prophetic vision "that they shall beat their swords into ploughshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation shall not lift up sword against nation or learn war any more."

There is much to be done yet which will require vision, wisdom and courage before we can reach that great goal.

With my sincere best wishes that the New Year may bring you the joy of more progress for universal peace, I am

Cordially and faithfully yours,
MRS. NATHAN GILMAN.

Acknowledgment of the receipt of Mrs. Gilman's letter was made as follows:

THE WHITE HOUSE
Washington, D. C.
Jan. 3, 1930.

My dear Mrs. Gilman:

Your letter of January first, on behalf of the Bozrahville section of the National Council of Jewish Women has been received.

The president wishes me to thank you and the members of your council for your generous words of commendation. He is most happy to have this evidence of your approval and co-operation.

Sincerely yours,
LAWRENCE RICHEY,
Secretary to the President.

HOLDS CHARGE TO JURY INADEQUATE IN AUTO CASE

The supreme court of errors has found that the charge of Judge Christopher L. Avery to a jury in the superior court on the right of an unlicensed person to operate a motor vehicle when accompanied by a licensed driver as instructor is inadequate and as a consequence has sent back the three automobile negligence suits of Peter, Domenic and Morris Morosini against Manuel G. Davis to the superior court for a new trial.

Davis, defendant in each case, appealed from the jury's verdict for the plaintiffs. Morris Morosini was the owner of a car driven at the time of the accident by his father, Domenic, with Peter riding with him. Domenic was unlicensed and the plaintiffs claimed that he was receiving instruction from his son who was in control of the car. The defendants attempted to show that Domenic had driven several hundred miles and therefore was an experienced driver and could not have been considered under instruction.

Judge Avery failed to advise the jury completely enough on the meaning of "instruction," the court holds. The opinion quotes an earlier Connecticut decision as follows:

"They should have been told that the purpose by which one could learn to drive, and that the permission to operate without a license was confined to those persons who were actually receiving instruction for the purpose of acquiring sufficient skill to qualify as licensed operators."

Justice Frank D. Haines wrote the opinion.

JANUARY ROUND TABLE BY WOMAN'S CITY CLUB

The January round table and the civics department of the Woman's City club was held in the club rooms at the Wauregan hotel at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon, Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, presiding. The topic, What Is a City, was most interestingly brought out by Mrs. Gilman, starting back in earliest civilization, when groups were formed for mutual protection, through the agricultural era, when the market-place became the center of the village, then came the walled cities which were the bases for warfare and the people gathered behind the walls in times of stress. Then came the city-state, as in Rome and Athens and here great devotion was paid to one city and to be exiled outside the city was the greatest punishment that could be bestowed and so to our day, when the city has two main bases, a residence club and an economic unit, really an incorporated municipality, self-governed.

HARLEY M. TAYLOR'S SON DROWNED AT BRIDGEPORT

Bridgeport papers have devoted much space to the heroic deed of Alfred M. Taylor, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harley M. Taylor, of 506 Thorme street, a Central high school senior. The boy was drowned when the ice broke under him while he was trying to rescue a friend, Victor Zaveruha, 13, who broke through in Island Brook reservoir, Bridgeport, while the two boys and Zaveruha's 12-year old brother were fishing, the day before New Year's.

Young Taylor was the only son, his father being a railway mail clerk. Firemen recovered his body. His father is remembered in Norwich as having been employed about 1902 with Vincent, on Jail Hill, in the popcorn business. Mr. Taylor was owner of a small motor boat which he used on the Thames river while residing here.

4-H POULTRY JUDGES BOUND FOR NEW YORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 10.—The Connecticut 4-H poultry judging team will leave Storrs on Friday, January 17, for New York where the members will participate in the National 4-H Poultry Judging contest in competition with ten other states. The contest will be held at Madison Square Garden in conjunction with the world's foremost poultry show, on January 18.

The Connecticut team is comprised of Edward Sladsky of Easton; Robert Whitehead, of Washington Depot; Hollis Cummings, of Lebanon, and Frank Neiderwerfer, of Rockville, alternate. Edward S. Walford, assistant extension poultry specialist at the state college, is coach and will have charge of the trip.

Cummings is the first club member in the state to make two national judging teams in the same season. He also placed on the dairy judging team and made the trip to St. Louis last fall.

DIVORCES GIVEN IN TWO UNCONTESTED CASES

Two uncontested divorces were granted by Judge Christopher L. Avery at the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday morning.

Antoinette H. Braun of Stonington, was given a divorce and custody of a minor chid from August Braun of New Jersey. They were married in February, 1914, and desertion was alleged for three years past.

Edward Fred Summerton of New London was given a divorce from Alice Marie Summerton. They were married Jan. 24, 1925 and the decree was granted on the grounds of desertion.

NORWICH TOWN

When Social Corner Club No. 1, of Willimantic held its January meeting and dinner Wednesday in Chamber of Commerce hall, in the large gathering were sevreal Corner members from Norwich Town—Mrs. William Bell, Mrs. William H. Whiteman, who had as automobile guests, Mrs. Andrew Gardner and Mrs. Edwin Lathrop, also Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb. Dr. Lamb led the company in singing the Doxology, prior to the tempting dinner of baked beans, escalloped potatoes, macaroni, potato and cabbage salads, pickles, relish, rolls, cake, cookies, pie, coffee and fruit. Following the dinner Dr. Lamb opened the programme by entertaining with a group of songs, "Far Away", If I Was Young as I Used to Be" and "Memories," playing his own piano accompaniments. Others who added humorous readings included, Mrs. Fred Race of Lebanon, Mrs. Webster and Mrs. Russ, of Willimantic, all members of Willimantic S. C. club.

MOOSEHEART LEGION

Women of Mooseheart legion, No. 134, held their regular meeting Thursday evening with Senior Regent Emma Beaver presiding. Legionnaire Tomanio was reported ill and all legionnaires were requested to call on her. After the short business meeting, there was installation of officers, with His Honor Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and Dictator Bernard Wunderlich as guests of honor. Past Regent Teresa Watters who was grand installing officer, on behalf of Norwich chapter, presented a past regent's pin and certificate to Deputy District Grand Recorder Ethel M. Hoelck for her many years of faithful service as recorder of Norwich chapter. This is the first time since the chapter was instituted that any legionnaire received a past regent's pin, without filling the office of senior regent. After the installation of officers, the legionnaires enjoyed a delicious supper at a Broadway restaurant. The menu was as follows: Fruit cups, bisque, celery, olives, mashed turnips and potatoes, creamed onions, roast turkey and dressing, pie and coffee. Legionnaire Nora Willett was chairman of the supper which was very well cooked. Chaplain Irene Burns asked the blessing. Plans are under way to make this the most successful year in the history of Norwich chapter.

COMPANIONS OF THE FOREST

Nevins-Carver circle, No. 1235, held its regular meeting Monday evening with Chief Companion Marion Bjirk presiding. It was voted to hold open installation of officers at the next regular meeting. It was voted to have the installation supper at Mrs. Silva's on Broadway. Companion Nellie Dorr was appointed chairman.

HIBERNIANS

Daniel O'Connell branch of the A. O. H. had a visit from Joseph Nevins of Taftville, county president, at its last regular meeting, hearing from him a very interesting report on the progress of the order in this county, with an outline of its prospects this year. At the present time, he told them, it is receiving a large number of new members.

County Vice President Edward J. Sullivan followed in his able manner with instructive remarks that brought much applause as he is an advocate of a new home for the order, which he expects to see under construction in the near future.

President John McKenna, who was re-elected, appointed the various standing committees, the officers made their reports, which showed a prosperous year with a net balance of over $1,000 and a building fund of over $5,000.

Recording Secretary Michael O'Connor made his 17th consecutive report which was received among much applause.

Patrick Barry gave an interesting talk on Irish history and told of the progress that has been made throughout the order during the past year.

The committee on their annual St. Patrick's ball made a report of progress. Two applications for membership were received.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Norwich grange, No. 172, held its regular meeting Wednesday evening in Grange hall with an attendance of 178 grangers. The meeting was preceded by a supper served by Division D., Mrs. Eva Higgins chairman. Baked ham, mashed potatoes, carrots, peas, pickles, rolls, pies and coffee made a most appetizing menu. The meeting was called to order by Worthy Master Albert W. Lillibridge and later turned over to State Deputy John P. Hollowell who with his assistants installed the officers of Norwich grange for the year 1930. Bro. Holland's address to the new officers and members was interspersed with words of wisdom which if lived up to would make a model grange. His work being memorised made a very impressive ceremony. His assistants were Elizabeth Main, emblem bearer, Arline Bennett, regalia bearer, Mrs. Louise Woodmansee. The officers installed were: Worthy Master, Albert W. Lillibridge; overseer, Leonard W. Staubley, Sr., lecturer, Elizabeth W. Murray; steward, Albert E. Birdsey; assistant steward, Frederick Leffingwell; chaplain, Rev. George W. Potter; treasurer, John H. Rathbone; secretary, Ida E. Richardson; gate keeper, Adele Spaulding; Ceres, Rose Breckenridge; Pomona, Beulah Rogers; Flora, Edith Woodmansee; lady assistant steward, Amy Coles; executive committee, Ralph Marsh, Telley Babcock, Lee Coles.

Gifts were presented to the installing officer and his assistants, also a gift to Brother Telley Babcock in appreciation of all he has done for the new Grange hall. A large class is to go to Hartford Tuesday, Jan. 14, to receive the sixth degree and those desiring to go should call Bro. Ralph Marsh. A gift of $75 was given to the grange from the auxiliary, making a total of $374 for the year of 1929. At the next meeting the annual word will be given to all entitled to it, by having dues paid up to date. The secretary will be at her desk at 7:30 o'clock to receive dues. A fair is to be held by the grange some time in September and all granges are expected to co-operate to make this a success. Start now.

The next meeting will be Jan. 22nd with a lecturer's programme during the evening comprising a play under the direction of Mrs. Susie Lillibridge, also other numbers as time permits.

MODERN WOODMEN

Installation of officers of Ionic camp, No. 7694, Modern Woodmen of America, was held Tuesday evening in A. O. H. hall with a gathering of about 100 present, including visitors from Montville and Hartford. The officers were impressively installed by State Deputy J. R. NEED MORE MONEY AND MEN TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and Dr. E. L. Crawford Call for Provision by Legislature of Whatever Money and Men Might Be Necessary to Enforce the Dry Law—In Their Judgment the Government Has Not Asked for Sufficient Money for the Various Enforcement Agencies.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A broad legislative program, including provision of whatever legislation, money or men might be necessary to enforce prohibition, was laid down today in a statement of policy of the Board of Temperance and Social Service of the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

The statement, issued jointly by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman, and Dr. E. L. Crawford, secretary of the board, advocated administration of the law by its friends; enactment of the Sheppard bill to make the purchaser of liquor equally guilty with the seller; passage of such legislation as may be recommended by the law enforcement commission, and the extensive development of an educational policy in support of the 18th amendment.

Coming on the eve of the submission to the house by its appropriations committee of the treasury-postoffice supply bill, which carries funds for prohibition enforcement, the statement called for money to "meet the need for adequate enforcement, whatever the amount may be."

"We positively insist that when men openly flaunt their determination to violate any law of our country, the government must suppress anarchy and compel obedience to the law, absolutely regardless of cost," it said.

Outlining the program, the statement called upon congress "to vote for whatever measures, money and men may be necessary to secure effective enforcement of the prohibition law, by strengthening and improving the personnel and working equipment of all governmental prohibition agencies, including the federal courts and their officers, the customs officials, the coast guard, and the officers and field force of the prohibition department.

"It is not a question of dollars and cents—$25,000,000, $50,000,000, $100,000,000 or $200,000,000," it continued. "From the financial standpoint alone, the cost of enforcement is small compared with the great economic benefits which have come from prohibition, even at its worst. . . . .

"We regret that in our judgment the government has not in the past asked for sufficient money to secure adequate force and equipment for the various enforcement agencies. We believe that congress should insist upon such estimates from all the arms of the prohibition service as will be amply sufficient in the judgment of congress itself to meet the need for adequate enforcement, whatever the amount may be.

"The determination of the government to enforce the law must be evidenced by the unmistakable demand by the prohibition department for whatever money is required to secure adequate enforcement.

"In the name of the general conference, we petition that the law shall be administered by its friends. It is a well known fact that many officials, high and low, connected with the administration of the prohibition law have not simply been indifferent, but frequently openly hostile, and that many officials have been appointed for purely political purposes, with full knowledge of their hostility to the prohibition law. This has necessarily resulted in the lack of confidence by the people in the sincerity of the appointing power. We insist that officials be appointed who are known to be as determined to enforce the prohibition law as any other law."

Urging the passage of the Sheppard bill, the statement said that "nothing would have as great psychological, as well as actual value, as to put the brand of criminal upon the so-called high society people, even though men of prominence and influence, when they deliberately strike hands with the lowest criminals, often-times murder, in violating the constitution to gratify a purely sensual appetite."

Asking for cooperation by congress in enacting into law the recommendations of the president's law enforcement commission, it suggested that in addition to general legislation there be written into the statute books laws "to make the capital city of the nation the 'model city' in respect to enforcemen of law."

It asked an "adequate appropriation" for the distribution of educational posters, leaflets and press articles "emphasizing the evil physical, intellectual, social and moral effects of the use of intoxicants."

The statement praised the "efficiency shown by Dr. J. M. Doran, the commissioner of prohibition."

The board contended that the issue no longer was the enforcement of the prohibition law, but was the maintenance of constitutional government.

"Rebels against the constitutional government must be treated as rebels and be made to understand that even though they do not like the prohibition law, they cannot defy the government of the United States," it added.

The statement said that "the recently declared determination of the president and of 'dry' leaders in congress that the law shall be enforced as are other laws and the gradual, steady tightening up of enforcement agencies have caused the liquor traffic and its slaves to rise up in murderous rebellion, even to hold mass meetings, proclaiming liquor smugglers as martyrs, government officials as murderers, and openly declaring that the prohibition law shall not be enforced."

"These threats of rebellion and anarchy have been broadcast throughout the nation by speeches of certain blatant congressmen," it continued, "but especially by certain metropolitan newspapers, which have from the beginning led in the circulation of defeatist propaganda, not only denouncing the law (which they have the legal right to do), but attacking government officials because they were trying to enforce the law, with, however, not only no word of condemnation for bootleggers, rum runners or hi-jackers, or for that social element which inconsistently and foolishly flaunts its defiance of that particular law, but, on the contrary, with clearly indicated sympathy for such lawless activity in both news and editorial columns.

"Many of these papers have not simply fought the prohibition law, but they have been traitors to the fundamental elements of constitutional government, criticizing government officials, from the president down, for their efforts to comply with their oaths of office."

Recalling the use of troops in the past to suppress the whiskey rebellion, the statement said that if "there should be a whiskey rebellion in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, or anywhere else, it is the duty of the government to suppress such a rebellion."

PROHIBITION REQUIRES FURTHER LEGISLATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—President Hoover will submit to congress tomorrow the first preliminary report of the law enforcement commission dealing with prohibition and house leaders said prompt steps would be prepared and that these would be taken to deal promptly with the recommendations for legislation.

Republican Leader Tilson said two or three separate bills would be necessary to cover all of the recommendations which the commission had given early consideration by several committees of the house.

With the senate engaged in the tariff controversy, the expectation was that the house would act first on whatever measures may be deemed necessary in the light of the commission's report. Consideration and perhaps hearings before senate committees would follow in the usual course.

Anticipating the report of the commission, Senator King, democrat, Utah, a member of the senate judiciary committee, has prepared a bill proposing transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit from the treasury to the justice department.

The senator's bill, which will be considered by the judiciary committee, proposes the transfer of all powers and duties of the prohibition enforcement unit to the department of justice except those relating to permits for industrial alcohol, which would remain with the treasury.

Representative Andrew, republican, Massachusetts, announced in a formal statement today that he would introduce a bill tomorrow to increase the scope and powers of the law enforcement commission, authorizing and directing the commission to inquire into and report to congress what changes, if any, are necessary or desirable in the system of dealing with intoxicating liquors or in the laws relating thereto.

The bill would authorize an expenditure of $1,000,000 and would allow a period of two years for the commission to conduct the inquiry. The commission would have ample authority to employ experts and assistants, to examine witnesses under oath and to carry on its investigation wherever it saw fit, whether in the United States or abroad.

In transmitting the commission's first report to congress, President Hoover planned to accompany the voluminous document with a comparatively brief message embodying his views on the recommendations which were drafted several months ago.

Submission of the report was delayed awaiting final determination by congressional leaders as to whether there should be a special joint committee to handle the subject or the recommendations should go to regular committees of the two houses.

SAYS COUNTRY HAS LOST FAITH IN BISHOP CANNON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—On the eve of a report to congress by President Hoover's law enforcement commission, Representative Britten, republican, Illinois, today denominated prohibition's "present control by fanatics, intolerants and simple minded followers" as its greatest enemy.

"The country generally is disgusted with the fanatical leadership of the present prohibition," he declared. "It has lost confidence in Bishop Cannon since his bucket-shop gambling was disclosed. The public is appreciably distressed over the activities of government snoopers and worried over the killings by federal snoopers.

"Prohibition enforcement by the federal government is degrading into mattress frisking and bottle smelling by irresponsible and unintelligent self-styled detectives whose gun plays make poor old Jesse James look like a school boy."

21-YEAR-OLD YOUTH AND TWO BOYS SUFFOCATED

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—A 21-year-old youth and two small boys died of suffocation tonight in a fire in a house in Richmond Hill, Queens borough.

The youth was William Schultz, son of Mrs. Martha Schultz, who occupied the second floor of the house where the fire occurred.

The boys, John Herold, 5, and Charles Mulzey, 6, had been left in the care of Mrs. Schultz by the New York Foundling association. Mrs. Schultz was overcome and was attended by ambulance surgeons.

Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze which was said to have caused little damage but all efforts to revive the three failed.

NEW YORK NIGHT CLUBS RAIDED; 17 ARRESTS MADE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—With warrants based on evidence obtained in previous visits, federal prohibition agents and city detectives swooped down on ten night clubs and cafes in the theatrical district early today and arrested 17 waiters and clerks.

Among the places raided was the Toto club, in West 56th street. Most of the other places were the alleged "speakeasy" type of resort.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

AOKYO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Dispatches from Harbin reported that railway traffic between Harbin and Moscow will be reopened Jan. 22.

BERLIN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—New cases of psittacosis or parrots disease have been reported in different parts of Germany where at least half a dozen persons have died in recent weeks.

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 12.—(AP)—More than 40 persons are now held in prison here as a consequence of investigation of the theft three weeks ago of an American consulate official stamp which was used to visa forged passports for entrance into the United States.

BRUSSELS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Belgian newspapers are engaged in a controversy as to whether the recently reported plot against the lives of the Belgian royal family was really the work of a fascist sent provocateur or was a genuine conspiracy by extremists.

WARSAW, Poland, Jan. 12—(AP)—All formalities for establishment of the American embassy in Warsaw and the Polish embassy in Washington, both recently raised from the status of legations, have been completed and the Polish ambassador probably will deliver his credentials about March 1.

OFFICERS POLISH-AMERICAN STATE ORGANIZATION

HARTFORD, Jan. 12.—(AP)—By a margin of six votes, Stanley Karpinski, former New Britain alderman, was elected president of the Polish-American state organization, this afternoon, defeating J. S. Bielak of Hartford, rival candidate. Approximately 300 attended the annual meeting of the organization, held in the rooms of the Hartford Polish-American Republican club.

Mayor Batterson officially welcomed the visiting delegates to Hartford, praising the spirit of the organization and declaring that only in unity can political success be gained by any single group.

Seventy-six voting delegates expressed their choice for president with the vote, after considerable debate, being 41 for Mr. Karpinski and 35 for the Hartford man. Other officers elected were: W. V. Sadlak, Rockville, first vice-president; Miss Nellie Chmura, New Haven, second vice-president; Attorney B. J. Monkiewicz, New Britain, financial secretary; A. N. Pastick, Hartford, secretary; Henry R. Sheimbob, Hartford, treasurer; Alfred Wolszczuk, Glastonbury, and A. Graybowski, Hartford, trustees; Matthew Papciak, New Britain, marshal.

The election of Mr. Karpinski as president marks the beginning of his fifth annual term in this office. Choice of Miss Chmura as a vice-president witnessed the naming of the first woman officer of the organization.

The next meeting of the organization will be in Bristol, in April, it was voted.

CLUE TO WHEREABOUTS OF MISSING AIR MAIL PILOT

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—(AP)—P. O. Lee, agent for the Western Air Express in Salt Lake City, telephoned officials of the company here this afternoon that he believed he had obtained a clue to the whereabouts of Maurice Graham, mail pilot who disappeared Friday night between Las Vegas, Nevada, and Salt Lake City.

Lee said he had been called by W. H. Snyder, assistant superintendent of the Bristol mine at Pioche, Nev. Snyder told him that at 8 a. m. yesterday he and men working the mine saw a plane circle the vicinity four times apparently looking for a landing place.

The miners began clearing a space for the plane but the pilot evidently did not see them, as he headed west. To the west of the mine there is a large valley almost inaccessible except by airplane but a good place to land. The valley is 50 miles off the regular air line.

D. H. Buehler, superintendent of the mine, organized a party to attempt to get into the valley on snowshoes. Planes were ordered to leave St. George, Utah, immediately and circle the valley, officials here said.

During the World war Graham, who is 35 years old, attained fame as the leader of the airplane squadron that located the Lost Battalion.

FIREMEN HURT; FIFTEEN FRAME HOUSES DESTROYED

SHENANDOAH, Pa., Jan. 12.—(AP)—A fireman was killed, 15 others were hurt and a factory and 15 frame houses were destroyed in a fire which early today threatened the entire northeast section of this city. Fire company officials said the lass would reach $200,000.

The factory destroyed was operated by the Spoont Manufacturing Co., makers of shirts.

A high wind fanned the flames and blew burning embers from the factory to the houses nearby.

Frank Kurskimnski, 23, was the fireman killed. As he was battling the fire near the roof of the shirt factory, he lost his hold on an ice-coated rope, and fell 40 feet.

SATISFIED FIRE WAS WORK OF INCENDIARY

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Police and firemen agreed tonight that the fire that early today did damage of $50,000 to Fay's theater in Main street was the work of an incendiary.

Edward Harding, night watchman, sent here two weeks ago by Edward Fay to take the job, is held by the police preliminary to a searching investigation.

Edward Fay, lessee of the house, telephoned from Providence, R. I., vouching for his employe and said he would furnish an attorney.

Firemen had narrow escapes fighting the blaze. In the cupola above the dome of the auditorium they say they found gasoline-soaked waste.

It was the third fire in the theater in five years.

STORM NEAR NASSAU IS MOVING TOWARD FLORIDA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The weather bureau toned issued the following warning:

"Advisory storm warning: Disturbance now of slight intensity, with center near and west of Nassau, moving toward Florida straits. No strong winds indicated."

DEATH OF JUGOSLAV MINISTER OF LABOR

VIENNA, Jan. 12—(AP)—Stephan Sivkohmec, Jugoslav minister of labor, died here today in a nursing home. He had been ill for a fortnight.

Floods In Vermont Are Causing Alarm

Flood Waters Have Reached a Higher Level Than in 192[redacted] —Streets of Swanton Flooded

SWANTON, Vt., Jan. 12.—[redacted] spectre of a destructive flood rose with the temperature, here today, as the Missisquoi river, backed up by an ice jam seven miles long and already flooding streets, and buildings beside its banks, threatened to tear loose upon this town of 1600 souls.

The flood waters had reached a level higher than in 1927, when the state was swept by destructive floods, but yesterday the temperature dropped to below zero and last night the water level receded somewhat. Today, however, unseasonably warm weather accompanied the southeast storm and residents who had placed their hope in the dropping mercury, now watched its rise with apprehension.

Already some damage has been wrought. The Vermont Marble company mill was flooded on its ground floor to a depth of five feet and the ice jam was packed to its windows. The enforced idleness of its machines and those of two smaller mills in the center of the town threw several hundred men out of work.

Outside the town farmers were forced to abandon their homes and barns were flooded.

Plans had been made to call upon a plane from Plattsburg, N. Y., or Fort Ethan Allen to bomb the ice jam, but yesterday's cold snap eased the situation so that solution was not at once resorted to. Today's warm spell, however, made it likely that a plane would be sent.

The jam extended from Swanton to the mouth of the Missisquoi at Lake Champlain.

LEVEES IN MISSISSIPPI AND TENNESSSEE ARE WASHED OUT

MEMPHIS Tenn., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Rain continued to fall in the lower Mississippi valley tonight while all rivers rose, as did the worries of a flood-harrassed people.

There was enough water in sight on the Mississippi and its tributaries to remove the general rise from the classification of a freshet.

Minor levees in Mississippi and Tennessee have been washed out, low lands in those states as well as Kentucky and Arkansas have been inundated, and there are homeless persons in all four states. River observers agree that worst is yet to come.

There is no suffering but several hundred families have been greatly inconvenienced.

ICE DISRUPTS WIRE AND TRANSPORTATION SERVICE

CHICAGO Jan. 12.—(AP)—Freezing temperatures which followed mid day thaws tonight had sheathed most of the middlewest with a treacherous coating of ice, seriously disrupting wire and transportation service and making travel dangerous.

Numerous accidents to motorists and pedestrians were reported despite efforts of extra details of workers engaged in restoring traffic lanes.

Rail officials reported they were able to maintain schedules over most of the region but bus travel was seriously affected. A majority of the airlines expected to curtail flights tomorrow due to reports of dangerous conditions at landing fields.

Thaws of the past few days added to flood hazzard in several of the affected districts of Illinois, Missouri and Indiana. Rivers and numerous smaller streams were reported out of their banks inundating bottom lands.

Although wire traffic was virtually restored to normal during the day a recurrence of the trouble that paralyzed many of the main arteries of communication yesterday was reported tonight.

TWO ARKANSAS VILLAGES HAVE BEEN PLEDGED

TRUMAN, Ark., Jan. 12.—(AP)—The villages of Bay and Lunsford, near here, have been flooded by the rapidly rising St. Francis river, and the larger town of Lake City, is threatened. Several business houses in Bay have ceased operation and many families have left their homes.

TO STUDY COST OF LIVING IN RELATION TO WAGES

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Keifur Magnusson, United States representative of the International Labor office, announced tonight that a study of the cost of living in relation to wages, sponsored by the labor office at Geneva, had begun in Detroit.

Mr. Magnusson said agents of the United States bureau of labor statistics and J. W. Nixon, chief statistician of the International Labor office, last week began a "first hand survey of the purchasing power" of Ford Motor company employes wages. This survey, he said, will be used as the basis for the the entire investigation.

The object of the investigators is to formulate a "commodity budget" which will represent, in terms of food, clothing, housing, light, heat and other essentials, the yearly purchases of the average automobile worker who earns $7 a day, the minimum wage recently established at the Ford plant in Detroit.

DECISION ON CUBAN SUGAR TARIFF LIKELY THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A decision which is expected to have some influence on the final vote on the tariff bill in the senate will be reached early this week when that body determines whether there shall be a higher duty on Cuban sugar or the rate left as in existing law.

Three days of debate on the proposal of the finance committee majority to raise the levy from 1.76 to 2.20 cents a pound as against 2.40 cents in the house measure have developed four different viewpoints and the general feeling of observers tonight was that the votes of eastern republicans would decide the issue.

A BOMB WAS FOUND IN ITALIAN CONSULATE

CORDOBA, Argentina, Jan. 12—(AP)—A bomb was found today in the Italian consulate here. Police removed it but it exploded on the way to the station, injuring a policeman and a bystander. The perpetrators were not discovered.

Fear For Fate Of Two Flie[redacted]s Bent On Altitude

[redacted]peared Last Friday—[redacted]earch Made Over Four States and Out to Sea—Fog Halts Search

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A dense fog and lowering rain clouds that made any sort of flight almost suicidal today brought to a practical standstill the widespread search for two fliers who soared aloft on an altitude flight Friday and disappeared.

At half a dozen fields in the metropolitan area airmen glanced despairingly up at the lowering "ceiling" and chafed at the restraining elements which kept them from the hunt for Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, the two lost aviators.

Hope was rapidly waning for the pair, who took off from Farmingdale, N. Y., to determine the altitude capacity of a six-place cabin monoplane owned by the Fairchild Aiaplane Manufacturing corporation, a unit of the Aviation coporation. It was believed that a treacherous cross-wind and poor visibility caused them to lose their bearings.

Yesterday a systematic search was begun over four state and out to sea, with more than three dozen planes and many vessels co-operating. Portions of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New York were scanned from the air and ships along the coast kept a vigilant watch.

From widely scattered points along the coast line came reports that persons had seen or heard a heavy plane passing, but all of the reports were vague. A boy said he heard a plane land in the water near Rocky Point, Long Island, word was received that a plane had passed over Bethany, Conn., and many other "tips" were received.

Rewards totalling $1,600 were posted for the finding of the plane. The Fairchild company offered $1,000 and $500 was offered by Mrs. John Kirkpatrick, of Bloomfield, N. J., mother of one of the airmen.

Kirkpatrick and Marra were experienced pilots with considerable training in test work.

OUR NAVAL DELEGATION MIGHT NEED MORE FUNDS

S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, AT SEA, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The large American contingent now steaming eastward to the five-power naval conference in London must either conclude its labors within 60 days or receive more funds.

Budgeting of the present available funds of $200,000 tonight disclosed that even with the closest economy in London it will be entirely expended within two months. A congressional appropriation of additional funds to carry the delegation through the conference was regarded as inevitable by financial officials of the party.

In view of indications that the parley may last three or four months it was expected that congress would be asked for an additional appropriation with a preliminary estimate of the amount needed being $125,000.

Aside from the transportation costs of $30,000, it was estimated that the daily expense of maintaining the delegation in London would be approximately $3,000.

This vessel tonight was turning into the so-called "Great Circle" route of the North Atlantic.

MORE THAN $20,000,000 OLD AGE SECURITY FOR PROFESSORS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Expenditure of more than $20,000,000, nearly one-sixth of the entire income of the Carnegie corporation of New York since its organization in 1911, for old age security for professors was recorded in the annual report of President Frederick P. Keppel, published today and listing the corporation's grants to education, science, fine arts and peace for the war ended September 30, 1929.

The corporation's most important action of the year under review and the largest single commitment in four years, the report said, was the decision to pay nine annual installments of $600,000 each to set up a fund from which annuities of $500 are to be paid to professors aged 70. This fund supplements pensions to be granted after Jan. 1, 1931, by the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching.

REPORT THAT GENE TUNNEY IS TO UNDERGO OPERATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The New York Daily News says that Gene Tunney, retired world's heavyweight champion, has entered the Presbyterian hospital for an operation to be performed there tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The newspaper says that Tunney, accompanied by his wife, the former Polly Lauder, entered the hospital tonight. Mrs. Tunney was assigned to a room adjoining that of her husband so that she could be with him during his convalescence.

Dr. Hamilton Fish will perform the operation, cutting away a part of one of the former champion's kidneys.

Hospital authorities were uncommunicative regarding the case.

TWO MEN WERE FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 12.—(AP)—Two men tonight were found frozen to death and several others were missing on the Jerome-Prescott highway, as the result of one of the worst snowstorms in the history of Yavapai county.

The dead are Timothy Kirkpatrick, 35, manager of a stage company at Jerome, and David King, 32, truck driver. They were found three miles from their stalled motor car near the summit of Mingus mountain.

The two men left Jerome Saturday for Prescott.

Motor traffic out of Prescott was blocked late today as the storm hit with added fury.

MAN CHARGED WITH ABDUCTING HIS OWN SON

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Abraham Chernoff, 40, of New York city, tomorrow will be arraigned in city court on charges of abducting his 12-year-old son from a school here.

According to police, he came here six weeks ago and induced the boy, Zelle, to accompany him to New York. His wife, Ruth, from whom he is separated, made the complaint.

HOOVER PLACES RELIANCE IN TRUTH AND THE PUBLIC

Chief Executive Writes of Those Who Would Have Him Fail, Even if Failure Would Injure the Country—Gratified by the Knowledge that the Great Majority, Regardless of Party, Wish to Help Him—Says Truth Always Has and Ever Will Triumph—Public Judgment Never Will Fail if the Public is Given the Whole Truth.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 12—(AP)—The United States has swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the signing of the Declaration of Independence, despite those partisans desirous that the president should fail, even if their strategems injured the country, said President Herbert Hoover, in a letter made public here tonight.

Replying to a letter of New Year's greeting from Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of Ohio State university, the nation's chief executive painted a plain word picture of those who would have him fail in his task. Yet he found much gratification in the fact that the great majority, regardless of party, wish to help him succeed.

The outstanding problem of the day, said President Hoover, was the search for, production of and distribution of the truth, as a means of defeating half truths, untruths and injured facts.

"The human flood which flows through the white house shows all the dark colorings and the flotsam that you mention," continued the president. "But it is brightened more than you think by the majority who, regardless of party, genuinely wish to help the president to succeed in his task. Of course it is true that malice is sometimes the road to newspaper headlines, and there always will be partisans desirous that the president should fail even if their strategems injure the country or whose daily toil is to mix mud pies. But if these blots were other than exceptions, this nation would not have swept to a mightier and mightier destiny every year since the independence.

"You well know of the wearing of hair shirts in the middle ages by way of reminder of sins and trouble. Somewhere lately I said that every man has a few mental hair shirts and that presidents differ only by their larger wardrobe—for certain individuals, newspapers, associations and institutions officiate as haberdashers in this regard, with a high generosity which guarantees both humility and urbanity. There is even humor to be expected from the fact that they have no compulsory power. But above all this the president has for a few short years the opportunity to speed the orderly march of a glorious people, and the inspiration of that moving host is compensation that comes in larger measure to him than to any other man.

"You aptly penetrate the vital question of public action—the discovery and promulgation of the truth. No real believer in democracy questions the sureness of public judgment—if the public is given the truth, but there is a time element in the triumph of truth. When we look back over history we see the periods of either moral, social, economic, or political stagnation while the truth was en route and some variety of untruth occupied the scene. We can and must, however, greatly increase the production of truth and we must know the truth before the grave interest of 120,000,000 people is involved in government policies. We can sometimes speed up production before the ill-informed awakes to his opportunities. Facts are bad for his digestion and the truth makes misrepresentation uncomfortable. And the truth, as you say, is hard to discover: it must be distilled through the common judgment of skilled men and women from accurately and patiently collected facts and knowledge of forces before the extraction of the essence of wisdom. The materials themselves are also hard to come by: it takes time and patience, especially as our many inventions have forever banished the simple life. In the meantime a vast clamor of half truths and injured facts will always fill the air and intoxicate peoples emotions. The president himself cannot pretend to know or to have the time for detailed investigation into every one of the hundreds of subjects in a great people. But the fine minds of our citizens are available and can be utilized for the search.

"So you will know why when you hear of more and more temporary committees, commissions, conferences, researches—that they are not for executive action (for which they are anathema) but are one of the sound processes for the search, production and distribution of the truth. And they are more. They spread cooperation with government among our best citizens not only in finding the truth but also they aid to spread it and to get action upo[redacted] portant one third is 'government by the people' and they will govern themselves outside of the government when they see the light. It is from too much emphasis on 'government of the people' that we get the fundamental confusion that government, since it can correct much abuse, can also create righteousness."

In closing, with New Year's greetings to Dr. and Mrs. Thompson, President Hoover said his letter was "to indicate to you my resolution for the new year includes a continued effort to keep pure the wells of wisdom, and to reassure you that I have faith that the people want the truth determined even if it takes time and patience.

"May I also add that millions who have no means of publicity—millions that lack my temerity in writing you—are not enthusiastic over the antics of the agitators but quietly believe that Mr. Garfield was correct when he said that the great issues of our country were finally settled at the fireside and in the home."

SIX PERSONS WERE BURNED TO DEATH NEAR FINDLAY, OHIO

FINDLAY, Ohio, Jan. 12—(AP)—Six persons, including five members of the same family, were burned to death early today when fire destroyed the home of Wilson Long, 12 miles east of here.

The dead: Wilson Long, 46; his mother, Nancy Long, 75; his sister, Laura, 52; a daughter, Helen, 17; a son, Leroy, 4, and a friend, Leona Ewing, 14.

The fire started on the first floor of the home, where Nancy and Laura Long, and the two girls were sleeping. It was the theory of the authorities that a coal oil lamp had been upset and that the flaming oil spread quickly through the downstairs of the house. Neighbors discovered the fire but before they could reach the occupants of the house, the structure was a mass of flames. Long and his sons were asleep upstairs when the fire started.

After the smouldering ruins cooled late today searchers found the charred remains of the two women and two girls. No trace of the bodies of Long and his son were discovered.

TO CONSIDER PAROLE OF DR. FREDERICK A. COOK

LEAVENWORTH, Kans., Jan. 12—(AP)—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, Arctic explorer and oil promoter, again is to be the subject of a deliberative body, and its findings may result in his freedom from the federal penitentiary here. The prison parole board at a session beginning tomorrow, is to take up his application for a parole. Some 1200 other applications are to be considered.

The explorer has served almost 5 years of a sentence of 14 years and nine months, imposed on him in federal court at Fort Worth, Tex., for fraudulent use of the mails in connection with oil promotion activities.

PILOT AND SALESMAN WERE KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

AMARILLO, Tex., Jan. 12—(AP)—Emmett Myers, pilot and L. P. Wheeler, airplane salesman, both of Amarillo, were killed here today when their plane crashed.

The ship was one of six participating in flying exhibitions over the city. While circling about three miles from the English airport, to which both victims were attached, the plane went into a nose dive for about 1,500 feet, spectators said. The dive then turned to a spin and the plane crashed.

Myers is survived by his widow and four children.

WILLINGTON WOMAN DIED AT ST. PETERSBURG

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 12—(AP)—An aged woman tentatively identified as Mrs. Margaret E. Wewitt of Willington, Conn., died here early yesterday after being overcome by smoke from fire that partially destroyed a house in which she was visiting.

Firemen rescued her from a second story and although temporarily revived by artificial respiration she died soon afterwards.

PLAN THE RENEWAL OF EISLSON-BORLAND SEARCH

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 12—(AP)—Immediate plans for renewing the Eielson-Borland search depends upon the service ability of the cabin plane in which Captain Pat Reid and his two mechanics, William Hughes and Jim Hutchinson, landed yesterday at Unalakleet, Alaska, after being out of contact with the outside world for a week, Major H. C. Deckard, in charge of the rescue expedition, announced from Nulato today.

Major Deckard said he and Pilot Matt Neimenen would take off for Unalakleet, when weather conditions permitted, to examine the plane and decide whether it should be returned to Fairbanks for repairs. The plane was forced down at the mouth of Ungalik river in the Norton Sound district January 4 when Reid, accompanied by Neimenen in a sister plane, attempted to fly from Fairbanks to Nome to engage in the search for Pilot Carl Ben Eielson and Mechanic Earl Borland, who were lot last November 9 while flying to the fur trading ship Nanuk, ice bound at North Cape, Siberia. Reid was forced down in a storm, while Neimenen returned to Nulato.

WESTERN AIR EXPRESS PILOT MISSING SINCE FRIDAY

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 12—(AP)—Maurice Graham, Western Air Express pilot missing since Friday night when he left Las Vegas, Nevada, was the object of searching parties which set out from St. George, Utah, today in the belief that he has been forced down in a raging snowstorm near this town.

The Associated Press correspondent at St. George reported today that a plane believed to have been Graham's passed over that town about 1 a. m. Saturday flying low and apparently seeking the landing field. He said the engine was not operating smoothly. The pilot evidently missed the field in the heavy snowstorm that was in progress and proceeded northward.

CHRISTIAN BURIAL SERVICE FOR CHARLIE BOSTON, CHINESE

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—In the funeral chapel of the undertaking firm Chuan Seng, which means "May you live a long and happy life," a slim young Chinese Presbyterian clergyman with a Harvard accent read in English a Christian burial service today over the body of Charlie Boston, one time mayor of New York's Chinatown.

Led by an Italian band playing occidental funeral marches a long and complicated procession of motorcars then wound itself patiently through the narrow but no longer colorful streets of Chinatown and, once free, sped on to a cemetery on the outskirts of Brooklyn.

MAYOR KING NOT EXPECTED TO CHANGE DEPARTMENT HEADS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 12.—It was indicated today that there would be no radical changes in the annual appointment of city department heads to be made Monday night by Mayor Walter R. King at the January meeting of the common council.

Mayor King, when interviewed today, definitely spiked wild rumors that drastic changes were to be made Monday night in the police department. While Mayor King intimated that the police department as well as all other municipal departments would be carefully studied and receive the attention of the council with a view of bringing it up to the highest possible standards of efficiency, he said that he had given no consideration to a general shake-up in the ranks.

With every evidence that present incumbents will be re-appointed in the offices of superintendent of streets and sewers, superintendent of the water department, superintendent of the pumping station and plumbing inspector, interest in Monday night's appointments rests mainly in the position of chief of the fire department which combines with it the offices of fire marshal, superintendent of fire alarm and building inspector.

The recent death of Fire Chief Wade U. Webster has caused a vacancy in this office which will be filled by appointment. City officials remain non-committal on who the successful candidate would be, but it was learned from good authority that Charles A. Reynolds, a veteran member of the department, was the popular choice.

It is believed that the expected appointment of Reynolds will meet with public approval. He has been a permanent member of the department for the past ten years and for a number of years has held the position of lieutenant. Since the death of Chief Webster he has been acting assistant to the chief, having held a similar position two years ago during the period of vacancy caused by the resignation of the late Chief Henry J. Kelley. He is 34 years of age and a veteran of the World war. His selection as the logical candidate for the office is said to be based on a report of three unbiased experts who have been making a thorough survey of the qualifications of various candidates on behalf of the city administration.

WILLIAM B. ELLIOTT DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART DISEASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 12.—William B. Elliott, 58, veteran barber and highly respected citizen, died quite suddenly of angina pectoris at his home, 16 Oak street, about 2 o'clock this morning. He was born in Windham, June 20, 1872, a son of Warren and Ann Elliott Elliott. He is survived by his wife, Lula Whales Elliott, of this city, one son, Donald W. Elliott of Hartford, and his mother, Mrs. Ann Elliott Towne of Windham.

The deceased entered the barber business here 33 years ago, his shop being located in the Hurley-Grant block at 702 Main street. Upon returning from a long day's work Saturday night he ate a light lunch and retired, becoming ill shortly before death. His demise has cast a pall of sorrow in a wide circle of friends. He was a member of Obwebetuck lodge, No. 16, Windham encampment, No. 10, and Violet Rebekah lodge, No. 57, I. O. O. F., and of Royal Arcanum, Willimantic council, No. 723, in which organization he held the office of collector. He had also been a member of the old Thread City Cyclers.

OVER $2,000,000 IN ANTIQUES AT WILLIMANTIC EXPOSITION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 12.—The fifth annual Willimantic Exposition of the Windham County Poultry, Pigeon and Small Stock association closed in a blaze of glory Saturday night at the state armory on Pleasant street where the exposition has been visited by hundreds since Wednesday afternoon.

The finale of the exposition came when valuable door gifts were awarded at the conclusion of the show. As the crowd left the armory a new scene of activity began as workmen began crating the exhibits. Many in the poultry department were prepared for shipment to the Madison Square Garden show in New York city next week. There were about 500 birds entered in this department, an increase of about 200 over last year.

Commercial displays, many of them by local merchants, were larger and more numerous this year. The value of exhibits in the curio and antiques department alone was estimated at over $2,000,000, this figure including valuable Oriental rugs in the collection of Haig S. Iskiyan of Hampton.

Following the judging in poultry by Howard S. Rich of Springfield, Mass., Saturday, special awards of merchandise as well as the regular cash prizes were given. The judging of dogs was conducted in the evening by J. Southwick. A beagle hound owned by J. J. Dennehey, Jr., of this city, received high compliment.

Officers of the Willimantic Rod and Gun club elected for the ensuing year are: President, Clifford E. Williams; vice-president, Donald E. Crane; secretary, G. Donald Bartlett; treasurer, Raymond A. Parker; grounds committee, Albert W. French, William H. Nichols, A. Linn Weatherhead; equipment committee, Carl E. Rice, William H. Nichols, G. Donald Bartlett; fish and game committee, President Williams, Albert W. French, William H. Nichols, Herman Colderado and Frank Rockwood, Jr. The fish and game committee is to purchase a supply of pheasants and trout fingerlings from the state fish and game preserves, to distribute these on land and streams in this section. A new skeet trap is to be purchased and installed on the club range in Mansfield. A membership drive is also planned for the near future.

Stafford Springs

The Connecticut Electric Service company has taken over the Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company which has furnished electricity and gas to Rockville, Willimantic and Stafford Springs for several years. The Rockville-Willimantic Lighting company's franchise covered a wide area in eastern Connecticut. The principal owners were Milton J. Warner of Branford and H. M. Whiting of Pine Orchard, although in recent years customers of the company have purchased a considerable amount of stock. It is believed that the territory will benefit through the new ownership, as the new management will be able to provide more economic operations. The actual transfer of the property will not take place for a month or two, or until the completion of necessary preliminary formalities. There will not be any change in the local management for the present. The officers of the company which will take charge are: President, J. Henry Roraback; vice presidents, Robert W. Perkins of Norwich and R. H. Knowlton, Hartford; secretary and treasurer, Charles L. Campbell, Hartford. The larger organization will have available the power resources of the Connecticut company, which is the operating entity of the Connecticut Electric Service company.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hewett were recent visitors with Rockville relatives.

Officers of Oneco Tribe, No. 34, I. O. R. M., installed by Deputy Great Sachem Dunlap and his staff of Rockville are: Sachem, Amy Bolleau; chief of records, Hugh Ward; keeper of wampum, Raymond McQuaid; collector of wampum, Amos Belanger; senior sagamore, Forrest Blair; junior sagamore, Charles Ward; prophet, William Sullivan; trustee, A. Laurion; snapp, Leo Gaulin; appointed chiefs, Charles Thieberge and Fred Bolleau.

GOSHEN

Rev. Howard Bushnell gave a talk preparatory to the communion service Sunday morning. The junior choir sang an anthem.

Several from here attended the pageant given at the Bozrah church Sunday evening which was exceptionally fine, including the singing, costuming and interpretation of the various characters. The colored lighting effect added much to the beauty of the pageant.

Thursday evening following the usual choir practice, a set of stereopticon pictures on the boyhood of Christ was shown by the pastor, followed by a short devotional service and the January business meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. Refreshments were served at the close.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Jones entertained friends Thursday evening.

Miss Helen Taylor of school No. 12, lower grades, is boarding with Miss Clara Gillette.

It was unusual Thursday, Jan. 9th to note temperature at 60 degrees. A farmer here hitched up his team and got out his plow and did some plowing. It was turf ground and he reported no frost in the ground. He was careful however when it came night to see that his plow was put under cover. The same farmer while chopping wood near Noisy Brook thought it a beautiful sight as he looked a long way down stream to see the glimmering crystal water sparkle in what resembled March sunshine. This was Saturday, January 4th.

E. L. Waterman, sectional chairman of the County Farm Bureau, was calling on people in this locality Tuesday and Wednesday to renew their membership for the coming year.

OCCUM & VERSAILLES

The Bible contest of the Sunshine class ended with an even score. The captain, Miss Anna Zapf, held the banquet at her home. The dining room was prettily decorated, the colors being pink and green. The favors were turtles and rose-leaved mint baskets. The menu was fruit cocktail scallops, French fried potatoes, tartar sauce, fresh ham, cabbage salad, mashed potato, peas, apple sauce, rolls, strawberry shortcake with whipped cream, tea and coffee. Toasts were proposed and responded to. Later two acts of vaudeville were given by the rest of the class with Mrs. Harry Holdridge as captain. First came the Hawaiian girls in a singing and dancing act. In the second act the room was transformed into a school room, Mrs. C. W. Perkins acting as teacher. The evening proved a very merry one for all.

LEBANON

The Monk club met in the club room Tuesday evening. F. H. Wyant, humane officer of Norwich gave a very interesting address. Four new members were voted into the club. S. W. Troop, Irving Abel, Larry Chimebrosky and Kenneth Gimble. Refreshments were served by the committee, E. P. Abel, J. E. Burgess and Raymond Taylor.

Harry Bruce of New York spent from Sunday until Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bruce.

The Grange Whist club met in town hall Thursday evening with eleven tables in play. Prizes were won by Mrs. George Reynolds, Mrs. William Clark and Miss Edla Williams, J. A. Thomas, Cary Hallen and Kenneth Gimble.

Mrs. Ida Abel entertained the members of her Sunday school class and three other guests at a theatre party Monday evening.

A meeting was held in the town hall Monday evening to talk over some means of fire protection for the town.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning, Rev. A. G. Littlefield took for his text: "Behold, a Door was Opened in Heaven," Rev. 4; part of first verse. There was no meeting in the evening as a large number attended the pageant at Franklin church.

Wednesday a chopping bee was held; 15 men from the church met to cut wood on George L. Randall's lot, as Mr. Randall gave the wood to the Baptist church if the men would cut it. At noon a bountiful dinner was served in the chapel by the Women's society of the church.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society of the First Congregational church was held Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors. The report of the treasurer showed that much had been accomplished during the past year. There is a balance of over $500 on hand. It is hoped during the coming year to redecorate the basement of the church and every effort will be devoted to that purpose. The officers for the coming year were unanimously re-elected, as follows: President, Mrs. B. Blakeslee; vice president, Mrs. W. A. Pultz; treasurer, Miss F. Perkins; secretary, Mrs. E. F. Nourse; chairman of work committee, Mrs. C. Hallen.

Mrs. Blakeslee begins her fourth year as president of the society. She has worked faithfully and well and another successful year is looked forward to under her leadership. Plans were discussed for the coming activities and several dates set, St. Patrick's supper in March, summer sale in August, harvest supper in October and the annual sale and supper in December.

There was a good attendance at the Congregational Sunday school Sunday last. A committee was appointed to nominate the officers for the ensuing year. Holy communion was observed at the close of the morning service. Woman's Missionary society is to with Mrs. MacDonald Thur evening, January 14. There will Endeavor service in this church day evening, as there is a union vice at the Baptist church. Rev. G H. Strouse will speak and there w several musical numbers.

Needless Pain!

Some folks take pain for granted.

They let a cold "run its course."

They wait for their headaches to "wear off."

If suffering from neuralgia or from neuritis, they rely on feeling better in the morning.

Meantime, they suffer unnecessary pain. Unnecessary, because there is an antidote. Bayer Aspirin always offers immediate relief from various aches and pains we once had to endure. If pain persists, consult your doctor as to its cause.

Save yourself a lot of pain and discomfort through the many uses of Bayer Aspirin. Protect yourself by buying the genuine. Bayer is safe. Always the same. All drugstores.

DANIELSON

TWO BURGLARS FRIGHTENED AWAY FROM A. AND P. STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 12.— At 12:30 this morning two men who were burglarizing the A. and P. store on the West Side were driven away without loot when Fred Gagnon, who lives in a tenement above the store, was awakened by the noise in the store. Entrance was gained through the transom over the front door and the hurried exit from the place was made through the rear door. Mr. Gagnon saw to it that the state police barracks was notified immediately, but officers sent out to check up on the case could find no trace of the men. An arrest is looked for in this case, it was said this afternoon.

Burglars Ransack Canterbury Home

Burglars have ransacked the summer home on Frank Miller, a resident of New York at Canterbury. The break was made at the week end, probably during Friday night or the very early hours of Saturday morning. During the course of Saturday forenoon Napoleon Larivie, who occupies a small house near the Miller place and acts as caretaker during the winter season, when the Miller house is closed, discovered the house had been burglarized and reported the matter to the state police barracks here.

Officers sent out to check up on the matter found the interior of the Miller house in great disorder, the thieves evidently have gone over the contents thoroughly. It is believed the loss will be considerable, many of things of value being included in the furnishings and accessories, but just what is missing and what the value of the stolen goods is, cannot be determined until Mr. Miller can come out from New York. No one hereabouts knows.

The burglars upon going away overlooked a bag of tools they had brought with them, evidently to open doors, locked drawers or whatever else they might wish to open. The tools are now held at the state barracks here. Entrance to the house was gained through a second story window. The Miller summer home is a commodious and very pretty place, near Canterbury Green. State officers continued their investigation today.

FUNERALS

Mrs. James E. Logee

This afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Logee on Winter street, funeral services for Mrs. Nellie P. Law Logee, 66, widow of James E. Logee, were conducted by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers, all relatives, were Arthur Law, Randall Law, Raymond McNally, Iscah McNally, Manford Young and Douglas Logee. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. In addition to other surviving relatives mentioned in Mrs. Logee's obituary in this column she leaves two brothers, Orrin and George, both of Oklahoma.

Mrs. Regina Baril

Saturday morning the funeral of Mrs. Regina Baril was held from the home in Wauregan and with services at the Sacred Heart church in that place at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem, with Rev. J. C. Mathieu of North Grosvenordale and Rev. Henry Chagnon of Moosup as deacon and sub-deacon. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery, the committal service being conducted by Rev. Fr. Mathieu. The bearers were Joseph Rondeau, Delor Rondeau, Alfred Baril, Joseph Clocker, Charles Lavallee, Joseph Levesque. L. E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

This dreary day with its snow, its sleet and its rain was the means of keeping the great majority of people within doors, especially after church services of the morning. The storm greatly reduced traffic from normal for a Sunday and brought, on the other hand, work for the garage men, especially as to putting tire chains on cars. The highways became treacherous soon after snow changed to sleet and conditions were not improved by the rain that followed.

Members of the W. C. T. U. are to meet with Miss Hattie Codding Tuesday afternoon.

LaPalme Arrested As Bootlegger

Wilfred LaPalme of 54 1-2 Franklin street, spent much of this day in meditation—at the state police barracks on North Main street. He was being held there in default of bail, to answer in court on Monday to charges of transporting and possessing liquor.

Last night state officers were halting cars passing the barracks that they might check the machines on brakes, headlights and other equipment. One of the cars stopped was being driven by LaPalme, who is 27 years old, is married and has two children. He appeared unnecessarily nervous when halted, but the officer [illegible] found everything about the car in order and the registration and operator's license regular. A survey of the interior of the car revealed nothing unusual, so LaPalme was allowed to proceed.

Some time thereafter one of the state officers picked up a handbag near where the LaPalme car had stopped and found that it contained eight half pints and two full pints of what passes today as rye whiskey. Convinced that LaPalme had managed to rid himself of the bag and its contents after being halted for a checkup, but how he did it is not quite clear, some further thought was given to the matter and of the chances of finding where LaPalme had gone. After about an hour had elapsed officers despatched to Bonneau's dance hall near Killingly Center found LaPalme's car outside. Search of it uncovered another bag, a new lot, it is believed, that contained five half pints and two more pints. LaPalme was arrested. Later his home was raided and a small amount of liquor found and confiscated.

Idian LaRose, of Putnam, also was a reluctant guest at the barracks last night and up to early afternoon today, when he managed to get bail. He will come to court to answer to a charge that he was operating a motor vehicle while intoxicated. The woman riding with LaRose at the time was allowed to go.

LaRose's action in failing to stop on signal from a state officer, that his car might be checked, resulted in State Officer George Martin pursuing him and placing him under arrest.

An outcome of this affair was a raid by state officers this morning at the home of Mrs. Della Sullivan, a widow, who lives with her two daughters in a home on North street, just across the railroad tracks from the curtain factory of Powdrell and Alexander. Today's search of the home was for intoxicants, but none were found.

Recently elected officers of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Alban's parish are: President, Mrs. A. L. Reed; member chairman, Miss Dorothy Logee; secretary, Miss Gladys Anderson; treasurer, Mrs. Albert Birch; chairman of worship, Miss Alice Maud Bacon; chairman of membership Mrs. Hubert Taylor; chairman of Halliday house, Miss Ethel Birch; chairman of publicity, Mrs. E. R. Jones; chairman of social service, Mrs. John R. Marland.

Joseph Bullock, of Syracuse, was a week end visitor with Miss Ann Conklin, of Broad street.

It has been decided to incorporate the Danielson chamber of commerce and to increase the schedule of dues.

J. Carl Witter has sold his residence on Broad street to Dr. R. C. Garcin of Dayville. Dr. Garcin is to take possession March 1.

Mrs. Susan Reed Stifler will address members of the Killingly Woman's club Wednesday afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church, speaking on Changing Customs and Customs in China.

Danielson relatives were at Wauregan Saturday afternoon to attend the funeral of George B. Ferguson, for years a resident of Danielson.

The annual parish supper of St. Alban's church is scheduled for Tuesday evening. This event brings the people of the parish together each year.

Miss Henriette A. Auclair, of Central Falls, spent the week end with friends in Danielson.

F. O. Harrell, of Boston, at a special musical service under the auspices of the Danielson Federation of churches at the Methodist Episcopal church tonight, introduced bells, glasses and the saxophone in sacred numbers.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gareau, of Potter street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jeanette Gareau, to Daniel H. Caffery of Attawaugan. Miss Gareau has been teaching for several years, only recently resigning as teacher of the Valley school of this time.

This afternoon a meeting of Voiture Locale, 40 and 8, was held in American Legion hall.

Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, of the Danielson Baptist church, preached at the service at the Methodist Episcopal church in Attawaugan this morning, in an exchange of pastors.

PUTNAM

MR. AND MRS. DURAND OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 12—The 25th anniversary of their wedding, celebrated Saturday by Officer Benoni Durand of the local police force and Mrs. Durand, was marked by a round of events in which more than one hundred friends and relatives took part. Mr. and Mrs. Durand's silver wedding jubilee occurred on Thursday, but its observance was postponed until the re-assignments of police officers were made. At 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning an anniversary high mass was celebrated at St. Mary's church, where the couple were married a quarter of a century ago, Rev. Joseph D. Casey was celebrant. Mr. and Mrs. Durand reenacted their wedding days, even to the church ceremony, a coincidence being the fact that the principals were all present. To the strains of the wedding march from "Lohengrin", the couple entered the church, walked down the center aisle to the sanctuary where they received congratulatory remarks from Rev. Ulderic O. Bellerose, pastor of the church. They were attended by Mrs. Marion Rage, a sister of Officer Durand and Mrs. Albina Reill, a sister of Mrs. Durand, who witnessed the marriage twenty five years ago. Occupying pews in the fore part of the church was the family of Mr. and Mrs. Durand. Following the church ceremony an anniversary breakfast was served at the Durand home on Church street which was attended by family members and friends. A large and beautiful assortment of useful gifts was received by Mr. and Mrs. Durand from their many friends and acquaintances.

A reception in honor of the memorable event in the lives of their parents was tendered by the children of Officer and Mrs. Durand in the Foresters hall Saturday evening which was attended by about a hundred people. The programme of music and dancing was in keeping with customs prevailing a quarter of a century ago and was thoroughly enjoyed by every one present. Two entertainers who furnished delightful numbers were Fred Robitaille, local fiddling artist with his presentation revived the long lost spirit of the early days of the 20th century and "Bill" Dumas of New Bedford, well known French comedian drew a large amount of laughter from his audience with his funny remarks made in the French-Canadian dialect. The programme of entertainment was concluded with a vocal selection, "I Went In My Dreams," sung by David O. Breault, baritone member of the choral society of St. Mary's church.

During the day Officer and Mrs. Durand were in receipt of congratulations from friends far and near, which included messages from Mayor Charles A. Richard, Police Commissioner John M. Dean, Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil and brother officers of the police department.

Following a meeting of a group of prominent sportsmen, members of the local fish and game club, held Friday evening, it came to light that plans are being formulated for the establishment of a hunting lodge in Pomfret to be owned by the local organization that will be on par with any club lodge in the eastern portion of the state. An old saw mill which has been converted into a satisfactory gathering place for anglers and woodsmen, located on the shores of a beautiful inland lake in Breman hollow in the town of Pomfret is the site now under consideration. The location and the facilities available for such an institution are ideal. It is about two miles off the Putnam-Hartford highway. The farm is composed of about 75 acres of land and the pond and trout stream is well known to Windham and New London county fishermen. It was said today that many New Englanders of repute are deeply interested in the forming of the lodge.

Joseph Woolhouse, 14, of 12 Bovden street, Worcester, Mass., was taken into custody Saturday by Captain of Police A. J. Dubreuil after word had been received from Worcester authorities that the youth had left his home Friday without advising his parents of his intentions. Captain Dubreuil despatched a message to Worcester police informing them of the boy's apprehension in this city. Only a few hours passed before the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woolhouse at police headquarters. Mr. and Mrs. Woolhouse were overjoyed at finding their son who told police that Worcester was not to his liking, but who seemed delighted for an opportunity to return to his home from which he had departed the previous day.

The general election of officers of the hook and ladder company at the Central fire station in Union square will be held on Tuesday evening according to a notice issued Saturday to members of the company. Foreman Edmund Keane, pilot of the company for the past few years has declared his intentions of again becoming a candidate for re-appointment. Foreman Keane possesses an enviable record for service in the department. Records indicate that he has been present at every general alarm, with but one exception during the past six years. Subordinate officials of the company whose re-appointments are expected are Euclid Faveau, first assistant and Elzear Goertin, second assistant foremen. Officers elected are subject to confirmation of the board of aldermen of the common council.

County Agent Raymond E. Wing of the Windham County Farmers association, local farm bureau, today gave notice of the 21st quarterly meeting of county poultry raisers which will be held in the grange hall in Brooklyn on Friday, January 17. The programme will open at 10:30 o'clock in the morning and will be featured with a demonstration on the use of the fire gun in disinfecting houses for the exterminating of a harmful poultry bacteria known as Coccidiosis. Roy E. Jones, poultry specialist, will exhibit the use of the fire gun. A. B. Hall practical poultryman of Wallingford, Conn., will talk on "Incubation and Battery Brooding." Another speaker of state wide repute slated to appear on the programme is William Greick, originator of solid buttermilk. Mr. Jones will also address the poultrymen on the subject: "Care of Day Old Chicks." A basket lunch will be served at noon and the afternoon part of the programme will be devoted to a question box to be conducted by Thomas Moore of Central Village. Mr. Wing urges the attendance of every Windham county poultryman.

At a meeting of the Canadian Athletic club on Providence street this afternoon officers recently elected were installed. A social session was held following the ritualistic services.

Two persons, passengers in a Nash sedan owned and operated by Albert Winters of Providence were injured Friday morning in an accident which occured on Tucker's hill on the Providence-Putnam highway. Driving conditions were made hazardous at the hour of the collision because of fog banks which had arisen from meadows near the road. Winters was proceeding in an easterly direction towards Providence when he crashed into a truck owned by the Johnson Transportation company of Providence causing considerable damage to both cars. The two passengers, whose names were not obtained, escaped with minor bruises. State Officer James Carmody of Danielson barracks checked up the accident.

Charles A. Ryan, former councilman and a member of the 32nd division of the A. E. F., during the war is in possession of an autographed copy of "That's War," written by Captain W. A. Sirmon of the 326th regiment of the division known to many local ex-service men, who served with this outfit overseas. Capt. Sirmon's work vividly depicts the actual experiences in a day by day account of its service in France. In several instances the author, a native of Georgia, makes mention of the daring and heroic deeds of Connecticut companies in action. Mr. Ryan said that the paragraphs of the book revive memories of the days in France, since the author was continuously with the regiment during the hectic days at the front.

The indoor sports tournament between the Cargill Council K. of C. and the Israel Putnam lodge of I. O. O. F. got under way Thursday evening and the opener resulted in a 5-1 victory for the Caseys. The summary of the games played is as follows: Bridge—(K. of C. first) Harper and Hannifan lost to Campbell and H. Morrarty; A. Giraza and Martin won from F. and J. Strombells; Igoe and Benoit won from E. Anderson and McGarry; C. Giraea and Bourgeois won from McIntyre and Dow; W. and J. Rice won from Gifford and F. Morrarty; bid whist, Montville and Light won from Johnson and Ferns. The next meeting of the clubs will be held at the K. of C. rooms on Main street Thursday evening, Jan. 17.

A financial report for the year ending December 31, showing the condition of the church was read at all the masses today by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's, Father Bellerose said that the parish passed through an exceptionally good year, emphasizing his pleasure in being able to submit the report. During the past year many improvements, a credit to the pastor have been made on the various church properties including St. Mary's parochial school.

Tuesday at 7.30 the church school teachers and officers are to meet with Mrs. Ellen Wallen.

Seven of the 24 questions to be asked of every one in preparing the 1930 census are economic. The replies will give the government complete information on the number of home owners, renters, farm workers, industrial workers, unemployed, the nature of the industry and whether one works for himself.

JEWETT CITY

WATCHING FOR CONVICTS ALONG THE HIGHWAY

The man hunt, for Murderer Lalone and the other two convicts, who escaped from Wethersfield prison a week ago, was brought to the borough Friday evening. Following the report that the criminals had been seen in this locality, state troopers armed with machine guns were stationed at the "S" curve bridge in Tadpole, over which south-bound cars must pass. Several local machines in the traffic stream were held up during the night and the occupants were questioned as to their identity. Local police, as well as the troopers are of the opinion that the convict trio are no longer traveling together.

It is fully realized by the officers that Lalone has nothing to lose, being already a convicted murderer. They are evidently fully aware that a parley with him, if he is met with, would be very risky, and it is hoped here that the officers are not planning to take chances. The local police have received their instructions, Officer Vegiarde was in court at the time Lalone was tried, and knows the man by sight, in addition to photographs received from the state police department.

Addressed By Supt. Howe

The January meeting of the Methodist Men's class was held at the home of Lewis D. Howe, on Palmer avenue, Friday night. The president, George H. Thornton, called the members to order for a short business session. Committees for the year were named and elected. The ushers and collectors who served last year were re-appointed.

President Thornton expressed his pleasure and thanks to the class for selecting him as their leader, and suggested some ways and means for the good of the class. Oliver Carter gave a piano solo, and accompanied the soloists, John McLean and Joseph Hoddy. Each sang two solos. L. D. Howe, toastmaster and host, then presented Chester L. Howe, superintendent of Griswold public schools as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Howe gave an excellent address on "Progressive Steps in Education Through the Years." The members of the class and friends greatly appreciated his clear and forceful exposition of the various stages of education in America. Following the program Mrs. L. D. Howe provided sandwiches, pickles, cake and coffee. She was assisted by her daughter, Edith, and Mrs. Frank Gardiner. A votes of thanks was given the host and hostess, the speaker, player and singers. The class song and Benediction closed a pleasant and profitable evening.

Fifth Fire in Eleven Days

The fifth fire alarm of the new year came in at 4:50 Saturday morning for a blaze in the Ashland Cotton company's tenement at 32 Hill street, occupied by Theodore Raill. Chief Field, Engine No. 1, and Chemical No. 1 responded. An over-heated range in the kitchen was the cause. Damage $50.

The firemen laid 100 feet of hose but the chemical stream being effective in conquering the blaze, the hydrant pressure was not necessary. Five fires within eleven days, is a record since the fire company was organized, in 1895.

The three act comedy, The Beantown Choir, to be given under the auspices of Lisbon grange is said by those who know, to provide an evening of laughs, with music interspersed. The cast includes Mrs. Albert Rist, Mrs. George Helmboldt, Mrs. Harry Hull, Mrs. Jesse Phillips, Misses Annie and Lena Seidel, Ella Church, Sadie Goldberg, Ruth Allen and Augusta Thoma and Frank Mell. The quartette are Harry and Curtis Hull, Everett Thornton and George Helmboldt.

ADELARD KERMAUR, 68, DROPS DEAD AT HIS WORK

Adelard Kermaur, 68, dropped dead at Ashland mill Saturday morning while at his work as a scrubber in the weaving department. His home has been with his wife, who is an invalid on Mechanic street with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George Davignon. Besides his wife he is survived by five children. Medical Examiner G. H. Jennings gave permission for the body to be removed to Hourigan Bros. undertaking rooms.

When Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters meets at the home of Mrs. Alice Anthony Tuesday evening, a covered dish supper at half past six, will be followed by the meeting and a social time.

RADIO OPERATOR RUSHED OVER 200 MILES TO HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12.—Louis Kleinkraus, radio operator on the trawler Osprey, is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where he was operated upon early Saturday morning for acute appendicitis after a 200-mile speed run by U. S. destroyer Monaghan through the sound, in order to get the stricken man to port before too late. Kleinkraus was stricken when the boat was off Nantucket lightship Friday morning and a wireless message was sent to the Atlantic Coast Fisheries informing officials of the condition of the operator. The coast guard station was appealed to, to send aid to Kleinkraus and the Moghan, which was nearest the fishing boat was dispatched by radio, and reached the Osprey during the afternoon. The operator was transferred to the destroyer. Maintaining a 30-knot speed for nearly nine hours, the Monaghan reached the mouth of the harbor shortly before midnight. She was met by a patrol boat and the operator taken to the state pier. There Kleinkraus was transferred to an awaiting ambulance and rushed to the hospital and operated upon.

The fifth district meeting of the American Legion and auxiliary held in Union lodge rooms Friday night, was attended by a large number of members. The meeting was called to order by Commander Joseph Bellefleur of Norwich, of the fifth district, who introduced Miss Clemency Schall, West Haven, state president of the Legion auxiliary. Miss Schall's remarks were highly interesting and related to the splendid work done, including the fact that 154 veterans in hospitals received Christmas baskets from the legion. Upon the conclusion of Miss Schall's address, the legion and auxiliary conducted business session, the auxiliary meeting, presided over by Mrs. Thomas Sears, district president, of Taftville. The legion meeting appointed the following committees: Child welfare, Henry S. Dorsey, of New London; institutional welfare, John Morrison, Noank; 4-H clubs, Maurice Peck, Lyme; athletics, Thomas Sears, Taftville; forestry, Gilbert E. Rogers, Norwich; aviation, Meredith Lee, Norwich; district activities, Matthew Geary, Montville; Americanization, Edward Knox, Jewett City; boys' work, George Donohue, Groton; community welfare, Robert Davidson, New London; district news officer, Harold Hubbard, Stonington. During the meeting Captain Cole, of Norwich, and Commander Bellefleur delivered interesting addresses.

FUNERAL.

Christian Hanson.

The funeral of Christian Hanson, former tugboat master, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 25 Walden avenue and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Members of Lodge Varden acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Adam Cronsberry, of Hillside home; Elijah Benjamin, Waterford; Harry Langworthy, Groton; Mrs. William Fosberg, Quaker Hill, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

LORETTA BEEBE IN JAIL WITH HER COAST GUARD FRIEND

Loretta Beebe, formerly of Quaker Hill, Waterford, who has been in the limelight several times within the past few months because of her exploits with members of the uniformed forces, particularly the Coast Guardsmen for whose personnel she has a fondness, was arrested again Friday night by State Police Officers Donald Brown and Arthur Whitmarsh, charged with adultery. She was found in a house near Station 19, Waterford, enjoying the companionship of Vincent Navracil, a coast guarder. The latter also was charged with adultery and as neither the Beebe young woman nor the sailor could furnish a surety on their respective bonds, they were committed to jail until Monday when they will be presented in Waterford town court. The Beebe woman, who has been married, but does not live with her husband, spurned the attentions of Charles Gore, former coast guardsman, who became despondent to such an extent that he swallowed a quantity of bichloride of mercury, which resulted in his death a few days later at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. Several weeks later the young woman and another coast guardsman were arrested when they were found in a room in a local hotel where they had registered as man and wife. Both were fined in the police court on a charge of lascivious carriage. Friday night the state police received information that Navracil and the woman were occupying a cottage in Waterford and when the officers went to the house what they observed was sufficient to warrant the charge preferred against the couple.

Edward Milenski, 225 Stanley street, New Britain, and employed as a truck driver, was presented in the police court Saturday morning charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law, the specific charges being driving a truck without a license and failing to stop at an automatic danger signal. He was fined $5 and costs on the former count and on the latter charge a fine of $3 and costs was meted out. Milenski was arrested several days ago by Patrolman Ernest Opperman at the corner of Main street and Crystal avenue.

City Purchasing Agent John Sheedy is soon to become a benedict for he will be married next Wednesday. Saturday noon at the suspension of labor at the municipal building, Mr. Sheedy was summoned to the office of City Manager William A. Holt, where the working force of the building had assembled to greet him, also to present him a purse of gold. The presentation was made by City Manager Holt and was responded to with expressions of appreciation by Mr. Sheedy.

Three mechanics' liens were filed for record at the office of the city clerk Saturday. One lien was filed by Rose Verdi against Joseph Verdi, who sues to collect $7000. Property of the defendant on Montauk avenue has been attached. The suit is returnable before the next term of the superior court. The other two suits are brought by Wesley Cook, of Groton. One is for $40, which amount he claims to be due him from John A. Connor for material furnished in the construction of a house and garage on lower Boulevard and Pequot avenue. The other is brought against Thomas Occhialini for labor and material furnished the contractor for the construction of the Connor house and garage. Both cases are returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas.

Alfred Harvey, driver of Kenamee truck, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital as a result of an emergency operation for appendicitis, he having been removed to the institution two weeks ago, is improving gradually. It is believed that he will be able to return to his home within a few days.

City Clerk Julian D. Moran is indisposed at his home on Ocean avenue.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. James McNamara.

Mrs. Mary Mahoney McNamara, 59 wife of James McNamara, Mystic, died Friday at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, where she had been a surgical patient but a short time. Besides her husband, Mrs. McNamara is survived by a sister, Mrs. John LeBeau, of Mystic, two nieces, Mrs. Madeline Tavena and Miss Catherine LeBeau, Mystic, and a nephew, Ernest LeBeau, also of Mystic. Mrs. McNamara, who was born at Oswego, N. Y., the daughter of Jeremiah and Sarah Driscoll, had resided for 21 years in Mystic.

HAWTHORNE'S DAUGHTER SUBJECT OF LECTURE

Dr. James J. Walsh, of New York, noted lecturer and author, is to speak Monday night at the headquarters of the Diocesan Bureau of Social service under the auspices of the educational committee of the New London branch of the Connecticut council of Catholic Women. He will have as his subject, "Hawthorne of a Second Generation, Mother Alphonsa." The subject is of especial interest here because Mother Alphonsa was Rose Hawthorne Lathrop, daughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, author of the Scarlet Letter and other works. She married George Parsons Lathrop, like herself a writer and for a time they resided in New London. Eventually both were converted to the Catholic faith. Following her husband's death the widow founded a society for the care of friendless cancer patients, her convent-hospital being at Rosary Hill on the Hudson. She joined the sisterhood and was widely known as Rev. Mother Alphonsa. Since her death several years ago her noble work has been carried on by her associate Sisters and a fireproof home has been erected in her memory to shelter her beloved afflicted poor

A resident of 259 Huntington street communicated with police headquarters at 11 o'clock Saturday night, stating that someone had hurled a stone through the basement window of the residence. Patrolman John Clifford was assigned to the complaint but was not successful in ascertaining the identity of the stone-thrower.

PROGRAMME SCHEMES

There is going to be a lot of support for the action which has been taken by the Connecticut Manufacturers association and the Connecticut chamber of commerce in opposition to the practicing of soliciting for programmes throughout the state.

Already there are cities in which there is an understanding among the business houses limiting the participating in such schemes. They have been forced to such a decision because of the frequent demands and a recognition of the fact that there was no value attached to it.

When it is disclosed by the inquiry which has been made throughout this state that something like a million dollars a year is extracted from programme schemes, and these schemes are often promoted by those outside of the organization which is expected to be benefited, or in such a way that the promoters get several times as much as the organization putting out the programmes, it is time for those who have given the matter no serious thought to sit up and take notice.

Attention is being directed to a matter upon which many may have done more or less thinking and kicking, but now that it has gotten to the point where a statewide movement has been started to combat it there promises to be little difficulty encountered in establishing an agreement by those concerned throughout Connecticut that will deal with the situation quite as effectively as it is now done in certain of the cities.

One of the effective ways of starting opposition to any such practice is to over do it. There seems to be no question but what it can be justly said that that is the situation in regard to the programme scheme. It has been worked until it hurts. It has been extended and used until it has created resentment. Without a doubt, there have been instances where such pressure has been exerted that it might be regarded as a hold-up scheme and extortion. When those who buy space with the idea of helping a certain organization find that the most of those contributions is going to out-of-towners who bought the privilege of soliciting for the programmes the answer to future schemes of the kind should be sharp and decisive.

TREES AND WIRES

The condition of the trees in the city of Providence is considered of such importance that the city council has a special committee investigating their condition, the need of care and the protection which they are getting from public utilities.

According to a statement made by the chairman of the committee, complaints have been heard dealing with the manner in which damage is done to the trees by public utilities in trimming them. It doesn't appear that there is any understanding in regard to such work and if conditions in Rhode Island are different from what they are in other states it is probably due to the failure to take action that would get different results.

There have been instances where public utilities have gone along streets and highways and practically destroyed trees because of the manner in which they have cut and disfigured them. That invariably creates resentment and prompts early steps for prohibitive measures, but there is no need of waiting for anything of that kind to develop. It is undoubtedly true that public utilities are amenable to reasonable pleas and when they are made acquainted with the desires of a community it can be expected that they will do their best to comply. It is for their interest in dealing with the public to do so.

Any city does well to display a real interest in its trees. It is desirable that there should be a certain number of trees set out each year for the future beautification of streets and highways. They will offset those which have to be removed for one cause or another and will mean real assets in the days to come. When replacements can be made by setting out new trees near to the spot where old ones have been taken out, it is a desirable thing to do, but there are always opportunities for putting out new shade trees on city and town property, to say nothing of the chances on private land.

In the march of progress and in the demand for all the present-day facilities there is bound to be more or less conflict with growing trees. For the most part this interference can be overcome without destructive cutting, and it will be if public interest only manifests itself.

CENSURING CONGRESSIONAL RECORD

Even though it would probably run counter to the vanity of members of congress to have the word applause eliminated from the Congressional Record, where it is placed to indicate the reception accorded certain matters in the course of the session of congress, there are probably other reasons for letting the practice continue.

The idea of elimination is suggested on the grounds of economy. There would be less expense, it is claimed, if the word applause with brackets didn't appear. No one would ever get rich from the money saved by any such restriction, while one of the interpretative features of the Record would be removed.

Naturally the reader of the Congressional Record wants some compensation for going through its pages. He can draw his own conclusions as to the merits of speeches and statements, but he likes to know what sort of a reception it gets on the floor. Thus, if there is anything that calls for applause, it is well that it should be noted, the only question being as to just what the applause refers to, whether it is the clapping of hands by a few scattered sympathizers or a general participation. The bracketed applause might mean anything.

Instead of eliminating the (applause) from the Record it is possible that the discussion will result in a demand for a better explanation of what actually accompanies the reception of acts by congressmen. It would mean more to the reader if (catcalls) should be properly placed, if (boos) should be written in as well as (snickers) and (giggles). This might be the means of popularizing the Congressional Record and increasing its circulation.

In view of the waste that is involved in the printing of volumes of matter in the Record which is never read in either house, it is amusing to think of trying to save expense by such a process as eliminating (applause) and (laughter) from the publication. It is like straining at a gnat and swallowing a camel. Rather let it be indicated by exclamation points or otherwise whether the applause is scattered, general or prolonged and whether the laughter is just one or two haw-haws or an uproarious outbreak, convulsive and side-splitting.

THE MACINTOSH CASE

In the decision of the United States district court upholding the naturalization court which turned down the application of Rev. Dr. Douglas MacIntosh of Yale Theological school, there is only compliance with the law.

Dr. MacIntosh is a Canadian and undoubtedly a man who would make a good citizen. There isn't any question as to that, but he was unwilling to take the oath of allegiance because in it he would be required to agree to bear arms in defense of this country, if necessary. As a matter of fact, Dr. MacIntosh, although he served in the late war, is over the age limit and his vocation is such that he would not be called upon for military service except possibly that of chaplain. Thus, as a matter of fact, he would have nothing to fear from such an oath. However, he would be willing to fight if he considered the cause was morally justified according to his view.

That was the point upon which his admittance as a citizen hinged. He regards it as a principle for which he is standing, and it may be that the matter will be carried to the higher court. But what he is asking is that there be a discrimination in his case. He wants to make a reservation that will apply to his oath of allegiance and thus establish a precedent which will encourage others to seek a similar reservation until it might be so that all naturalized citizens would have such a string of reservations attached to their oaths of allegiance that they could determine for themselves whether they would support the United States in case of trouble, while the native-born citizens would be the only ones that would go to the front.

When it comes to obtaining American citizenship the oath of allegiance stands for all, and they should take it or leave it.

BLOCKS COOPERATION

The streets in the city of Philadelphia appear to be in the unfortunate situation which prevails in many other cities, they are not adequately marked. Those who are familiar with the city can go about freely, possibly with their eyes shut, and do not care whether there is a visible street sign or not.

With others, and that includes many of the residents as well as visitors, such is not the case. The lack of street signs in a large or small city is a handicap to those who are trying to find a certain location or outlet and it is also a handicap to those familiar with streets when they try to give directions to others.

It can be said without fear of serious dispute that there are more important things than street signs. If that is actually so and a community is not able to meet the expense of establishing an effective system of street signs such an improvement will have to take its time, but under those, or possible less desperate conditions, a city can hardly turn down a proposition that has been advanced by a public-spirited automobile club to stand the expense of erecting the much-needed street signs and giving the city the benefit of them.

That is the offer which has been made to Philadelphia by automobile clubs which believe the through state highways in that city should be marked and stand ready to meet the expense for no other consideration than that it be designated on each pole that they erected them.

The response by the city that it will neither mark such routes nor permit others to do so doesn't display the right sort of attitude toward this problem. It simply tells the stranger to do the best he can, get into all kinds of jams and create needless congestion instead of contributing a reasonable amount of relief to traffic. It seems to be resentful of a real effort at commendable cooperation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Even the sugar schedule doesn't promise to sweeten things up very much in the senate.

In spite of all the preventive measures people are still trapped in burning hotels which have no fire escapes.

Even though penalties are applied by the courts, there's always plenty of business awaiting as new terms of court open.

When the secretary of the Giants declares the offer to Ruth was generous to a fault, he voiced the sentiment of plenty of ball fans.

JUST LIKE A WOMAN

"Mother, would you mind very much if I went downtown this afternoon?" pleaded Evelyn.

"Is it something important?"

"Indeed it is, mother. You know I just loathe going downtown unless it is absolutely necessary. One of the stores is advertising a dream of a golf set, consisting of four fine irons, two fancy-faced woods and a smart, waterproof, leather-trimmed bag. That $20 gold piece Uncle Jed gave me yesterday for my birthday will just about cover the set."

"But, Evelyn," remonstrated her mother, "you need other things much more than a golf set."

"Yes, I know. Roger is lovely about letting me use his clubs at the most unearthly hours of the day, but you realize, mother, that I cannot continue to impose upon his generosity perennially and retain my self-respect."

"The money is yours to do with as you see fit," answered her mother, knowing the futility of appealing to her very young daughter's reason.

"That's the spirit, mother! I'll be back in time to make dozens of those cookies I promised to bake for dinner today."

"The golf department, please," said Evelyn. Turning to the left, she made a sudden stop.

"What a lovely sweater!" she exclaimed in delight.

"Pure wool, miss, and this peach shade would go nicely with your own coloring," said the pleasant salesman.

"Why, its just my size, too!" exclaimed Evelyn. "I'll take it." Waiting for the parcel, she noticed some lovely golf socks. The cuffs weren't striped like most of the girls wore them, but checkered and individual looking.

"Are these very expensive?" she queried in an eager tone.

"They're imported Scottish heather, but this week we are featuring them at an extremely low price. You can't afford to pass up such a bargain," the salesman encouraged. Evelyn realized the truth of his words and bought the two pairs. What was the use of playing golf, she mused, if one did not make the proper appearance?

"We're also showing something new in oxfords, miss. The arch support style, in cream and tan," and he proceeded to delight Evelyn by displaying before her appreciative eyes several pairs of the nicest oxfords she had ever seen. After trying on three pairs she finally managed to be fitted and secretly decided she had never worn a pair of shoes that fitted her to such perfection.

"By the way," said the accommodating salesman," would you be interested in the new golf hats we have on display this week? With each hat purchased we are offering a dainty scarf to match."

"This canary shade is adorable," said Evelyn, trying on the dainty felt.

"It's very attractive and will match your sweater perfectly," added the salesman. "Shall I send the things out?"

"No, I'll take them," offered Evelyn. She was a little disappointed to discover it was very near closing time. She would get home just in time for dinner if she hurried.

Later, she exhibited her afternoon purchases for the appreciation and approval of her parents, who eyed the gay bargain display in bewilderment and amusement.

"Mother, you haven't admitted that I'm capable of discovering bargains," said Evelyn in a petulant voice.

"Granted," answered her mother. "But I was just wondering where that golf outfit is that you wanted to buy."

"But, mother, please don't be unreasonable. You couldn't expect me to get all these things and then have enough left to buy golf clubs. I was fortunate enough to get home tonight," and a sudden illuminating smile lit her face as she continued, besides Roger is so lovely about letting me use his golf set."

"Let's hope," smiled her father, "that his generosity will last until your next birthday."—Chicago News

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12—No greater contrast exists in congress than between those two native sons of "Ioway," Smith Wildman Brookhart and Samuel Morgan Shortridge.

They are poles apart in about everything from looks to political philosophy.

Yet Shortridge does hail from Iowa. Perhaps that's why he likes to heckle Brookhart now and then in his own suavely courteous and ultra-gestureful way.

And when Brookhart arose one day to perform his annual stunt of celebrating the anniversary of the birth of "economic cooperation" just 85 years ago in Toad Lane, Rochdale, England, Shortridge saw his chance.

"That event in the "owd weaver's shop" in Rochdale, Brookhart allowed, "was the meager beginnings of the greatest economic idea ever promulgated in this world."

By contrast, he went on, America followed a policy of "competitive economics" that made American business "this most unsound thing in the world."

"Treason," Says He.

Shortridge said this sounded like "treason." He asked why so many Europeans were clamoring to come to the United States if things were so economically rosy at home.

"For the same reason the senator left Iowa," said Brookhart. "He had to go out to California where there was more territory."

"The desire of 'Hawkeyes' to locate in the Golden state has almost depopulated Iowa," said Shortridge.

"Your Iowans are coming back," Brookhart countered. "They could not get enough to live on in California. That probably is the greatest treason of all."

"They have made money enough in California to pay off Iowa mortgages and live happy ever after," Shortridge commented.

"Let us not get into a discussion of the merits or demerits of California, or we will be here all evening," sighed Walsh of Massachusetts.

"It would take a year to point out even her major attractions," Shortridge said, those long, eloquent hands waving visions of untellable glories.

It Had Been Told.

"I am sure of that," Walsh said. He had heard Shortridge discuss California before, often.

Incidentally, while senate colleagues were still chuckling over an intimate close-up of Brookhart's European tour in search of information on cooperation, recently published, the senator himself added something to the picture.

He had found, he said, a kindred spirit in the late Myron T. Herrick, then ambassador to France.

"If there was anything of ambassadorial dignity in his manner," he said, speaking of his talk with Herrick relative to economic cooperative system, "it disappeared. He began talking cooperation to me like a crusader, like I am talking it to the senator from California."

"An English poet must have foreseen the starting of that little store in Toad Lane," said Shortridge.

Then he quoted:

Sweet are the uses of adversity,
Which, like the toad, ugly and venomous,
Wears yet precious jewel in his head.

"I hope we can make sweet the use of the adversity of the farmer."

YOUR HEALTH

Blood Pressure.

By Norman E. Cole, M. D.,
Baltimore, Md.

The subject of blood pressure is enjoying today what amounts almost to a vogue, but these troubles are not new: the only new thing about them is that we are beginning to understand them better and are doing our best to find out what is dangerous about them in order that we may henceforth avoid that danger as much as possible.

Now a certain degree of blood pressure is normal for us. It is only when that pressure becomes less than normal or greater than normal, for one reason or another, that we need pay any attention to it at all. In this article I am concerned only with blood pressure which is above normal figure; doctors give it the name of hypertension. Remember that the blood vessel walls are made of elastic material and you will understand that they can bear a considerable increase of pressure temporarily. But suppose, now, that a person has been born with blood vessels of an inferior quality, in some way; or, suppose, on the other hand, that his nervous make-up is such that the variations in his blood pressure in response to the normal daily stimuli are greater than in the normal person, and his normal vessel walls are damaged eventually by abnormal pressure variations.

Here is the beginning of the changes which, going on slowly through the years, may lead at last to serious situations. Isn't it better to catch this whole thing in the beginning and prevent it?

"How?" you ask? Well, the way you live and think now, for instance, is going to have far more to do with your blood pressure fifty years from now than any amount of medicine you can take then. Moderation is the great word; moderation in eating, in smoking, in drinking (if you must drink at all), in any activities that worry you and tire you out; even moderation in exercise. Be regular in eating and sleeping and bathing and going to stool. In other words, practice good hygiene.

If you have any doubt about the condition of your arteries or about your blood pressure, talk it over fully with your physician. Do this anyway if you are forty or over. And one last word. Rule fear and anxiety, especially about yourself, out of your life. If your blood pressure is just gienic toward prevention of a furth-afraid, but adopt earnestly the hygience measures your doctor advises looking toward prevention of a further rise. And if you are older and already possess a "bothersomely high pressure, remember that a quiet life and a contented mind will do more to drop your pressure to lower levels than all the medicine in the world.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Broken Limb.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

'Tis the ones who succeed, and they only, who say
You will find with a will there is always a way.
—Old Mother Nature.

There is very little that Chatterer the Red Squirrel misses. Those bright eyes of his take note of everything. I know of no sharper eyes, unless possibly the eyes of Sammy Jay are sharper. So you may be sure that Chatterer notices every little thing. It happened that there had been a severe windstorm. All through the Green Forest twigs and small branches had been broken from the trees. The same thing had happened to some of the trees around Farmer Brown's house. You see, at the time of the wind there had been ice on the trees and this had made the twigs and limbs very brittle.

Now, over near the corn-crib was a maple tree. Some of the branches spread partly over the roof of the corn-crib, but they were high above it. During this windstorm one of these branches broke. It didn't break off clean. The bark and some long fibers held it from breaking off wholly. Thus it hung down and the tip of it as it hung this way was just a few feet above the roof of the corn-crib.

Chatterer had gone over early one morning to see if he could find any grains of corn around the corn-crib. Sometimes Farmer Brown's Boy would spill a few grains. Chatterer never failed to look up to see if by any chance that clothes-line had been put back from the top of the clothes-post to a corner of the corn-crib. Always he had a feeling of disappointment when he discovered that it hadn't been. Sometimes he would even climb up to the top of the clothes-post. On this particular morning Chatterer found no corn. He was just about to go back home when he discovered Black Pussy the Cat, and at the same time Black Pussy discovered him. The nearest place of safety was that tree with the broken limb. Chatterer scampered up this and from a comfortable seat in a crotch high up he looked down and scolded Black Pussy. Black Pussy didn't climb the tree. She knew from bitter experience that she couldn't get around in a tree as Chatterer could, so it would be useless to climb after him. Having nothing else to do, however, she sat down at the foot of the tree and glared up at Chatterer. She would keep him up there for a while, anyway.

After a while Chatterer grew tired of scolding Black Pussy.

After a while Chatterer grew tired of scolding Black Pussy. It is not Chatter's nature to sit still very long at a time. He began to explore the tree. He climbed all over it. He went 'way up to the top. He went 'way out on the twigs of some of the big branches. He even sampled a winter bud or two. So it was that presently he discovered that broken limb. He didn't pay much attention to it at first. It didn't interest him particularly. And then he just happened to notice that that limb hung down over the corn-crib.

For a few moments Chatterer sat very still. There was an intent look in his bright eyes. Once or twice he scratched his nose thoughtfully. Now and then he jerked his tail slightly. All the time he was studying that broken branch. Finally he shifted his position. He went out where he could look at it from a different direction. He leaned over and looked down on the roof of the corn-crib. He went back and examined the place where the broken limb was still attached to the tree. His eyes snapped with satisfaction when he saw that it would take considerable to break that limb wholly off. His weight on it wouldn't amount to anything. Carefully he crept down until he was 'way to the tip of that branch. Then he looked down on the roof of the corn-crib.

"I can do it," said Chatterer triumphantly. "I can do it."

The Magic Alarm Clock

(Irma Morris)

"Freddie, get up," called Mrs. Williams, her voice rising shrilly on the "up." "I can't get the boy out of bed," she wailed desperately, as she hastily carried in her husband's coffee.

"Douse him with cold water," growled Mr. Williams, who was never in a very happy frame of mind until after breakfast.

Mrs. Williams looked irresolute for a minute, then proceeded to the kitchen with firm steps. Shortly after, howls came from Freddie's room, and soon the racket in the rear of the apartment announced the fact that Freddie had arisen and was making a wild scramble to get ready for school on time.

Mrs. Williams sang about her work all day, fondly believing that Freddie was "cured." But the next morning her young hopeful seemed to have entirely forgotten his recent unpleasant experience and repeated calls and shakings brought no response.

"Douse him again," volunteered his father. But Mrs. Williams did not relish a repetition of yesterday's wearing scene. So she coaxed and threatened Freddie in "the same old way," till he finally tumbled out of bed and hurried into his clothes.

That afternoon there was a parents' meeting at Freddie's school. A lecturer spoke on "Habit Formation" and invited questions. After listening to several questions such as, "How can I make Jane eat?" and "What can I do to make Jack more tidy?" and "What's the best cure for thumb-sucking?", Mrs. Williams raised a timid voice. "How can I make my boy get up in the morning?"

The lecturer asked a few questions about Freddie and then calmly said: "Getting up in the morning is Freddie's job, not yours. Put the responsibility where it belongs. I feel quite sure your boy will be able to meet it. Why not get an alarm clock, telling him you expect him to get himself off in time for school from now on, without any assistance from you? Try it."

After the meeting Mrs. Williams purchased an alarm clock. She introduced it to Freddie that evening. The next morning she listened to its loud peal with bated breath. Freddie jumped right out of bed! Mrs. Williams busied herself in the kitchen and left him entirely to his own devices. Soon he appeared, face shining hair slicked down, shoes clean. Mrs. Williams served his breakfast. After breakfast, he donned his coat, just like his father and strode manfully into the kitchen to give his mother a "good-bye" kiss.

That morning Mrs. Williams did some hard thinking. "That's the whole trouble," she said to herself. "I've been doing everything for that boy. I haven't given him a chance to shoulder things himself. Why, of course he'd rather mind himself than mind me. I must change." And she still insists that the alarm clock "did it." She says, "He's as good as gold now and I just couldn't do anything with him before."

SUPT. GENTER ATTENDING ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MEET

District Superintendent Myron E. Genter of 56 Williams street left New York city Sunday night for Detroit, Michigan, to attend the biennial convention of the Anti-Saloon league of America, from January 13-19.

He will represent the Connecticut state organization as its president and a national director and the first district, which includes New England on its national executive committee.

This will enable him to renew acquaintance with Rev. Dr. J. M. M. Gray, a theological college mate, who is pastor of the Central Methodist Episcopal church, where the afternoon and evening sessions are held, and he will also have a few hours with his nephew, Arthur E. Genter, who is superintendent of recreation of the city of Pontiac, Mich. Mr. Genter will also spend part of a day with his son, Paul, at his fraternity house of Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware, Ohio, but will return early the following week to continue a heavy driving schedule for fourth quarterly conferences on the Norwich district.

BEFORE LISBON JUSTICE AFTER AUTOMOBILE CRASH

An accident between machines operated by Anthony Isbicki of 10 Irving street, Providence, whose parents live in this city, and a Jewett City man occurred Saturday evening at the top of Tunnel hill on the Jewett City river highway with damage resulting to both cars. The Providence man's machine had its front end stove in and the other car was damaged about the mudguards. The former car overturned and came to rest on its side.

An investigation of the collision was conducted by Constable Aubrey L. Potter of Lisbon, who arrested Isbicki on a charge of failure to grant the right of way. He was to be presented before Justice Walter Drew Saturday afternoon in Lisbon town court.

WITHDRAWAL IN $10,000 HEART BALM SUIT

ADVISES SPRING PLANTERS OF NEW KIND OF GRAPES

Town and country folk who pore over the garden manuals in anticipation of spring are advised by Dr. Donald F. Jones, plant breeder of the Connecticut agricultural experiment station, that four new varieties of grapes will yield particular satisfaction.

"Brocton is one of the sweetest, most tender and the juiciest green grapes that can be grown," Dr. Jones said recently. "It is rather weak in vine growth, but is productive in spite of this handicap. Brockton also has the advantage of being profitable, not only to the home owner who wishes it for his own table, but to the commercial grower who has a market for quality products."

"The white Portland is the very first grape to ripen and the bunches are good-sized and productive, though not so good to eat as the Ontario, which follows about a week later. Nothing in its season compares with the deliciousness of the Ontario."

In the fashion which makes grapes the most decorative of all fruit, the blue Sheridan exceeds any others. Great, graceful bunches hang all over the vine and they are richer than the Concord, according to Dr. Jones. However, the Sheridan is not so dependable for steady, year-after year production.

FUNERALS

Napoleon LeBlanc

At 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning funeral services for Napoleon LeBlanc were held at his residence on Railroad street, Baltic, followed by solemn requiem mass at Immaculate Conception church, Baltic, at 9 o'clock. Rev. A. A. Jalbert was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Ludovic Paradis deacon and Rev. William T. O'Brien subdeacon. There were many relatives and friends present and the floral forms were beautiful. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, Greeneville, and the committal service at the grave was read by Rev. Fr. Jalbert. The bearers were Narcisse, Raymond, Amede Pion, Arthur Jeannotte, Pierre Levasseur, Omer Tellier, and Noe Frechette. Undertaker George Grant of Taftville was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Frank Stuart

At 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon the funeral of Frank Stuart of Philadelphia, formerly Norwich, was held at Yantic cemetery. Rev. J. Eldred Brown, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, officiated and friends acted as bearers. In the gathering of mourners present were people from New London, Torrington and this city. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker Henry Allen & Son.

Mr. Stuart died Thursday afternoon at his residence in Philadelphia, where he had been living for the past 20 years. He was born in Norwich, April 5, 1863, the son of Frank and Eliza Stacey, and was married in Philadelphia several years ago. He was a plumber by trade. Surviving Mr. Stuart besides his wife, are three sisters, Miss Grace Stuart and Mrs. Andrew Wilson of this city, and Mrs. Howard Castle of Torrington. He also leaves a niece, Mrs. Ernest Bigelow of New London, and a nephew, Stuart Wilson of Hartford.

OBITUARY

Mrs. William H. Brown

Ida S. Bentley Brown, widow of William H. Brown, died from heart disease about 4:30 o'clock Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John W. Haselden, 37 Mulberry street. She was born in Preston, June 7, 1854, the daughter of Oliver and Mary M. Barnes Bentley, and was educated in the Preston schools. On Nov. 13, 1877, she was united in marriage with William H. Brown.

Mrs. Brown is survived by the daughter, Mrs. Haselden; a sister, Mrs. Hollis Tower of Dudley, Mass.; two nephews, Otis and Harrison Jenks of Preston, and two cousins, Mrs. Merton Webster of Westerly and Miss Mary Barnes of Norwich Town.

She was a member of Norwich grange, 172, Patrons of Husbandry; Clover temple, No. 9, Pythian Sisters; the Social Corner department of The Norwich Bulletin, and of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Universalist. Of a friendly and cheerful disposition, Mrs. Brown made many warm friends and acquaintances and her passing will be deeply felt by them.

Miss Isabelle Green

At the home of her sister, Mrs. Frank Crandall, in Palmertown, Montville, Miss Isabelle Green, 66, died at 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning, death ending an illness of more than a year. Born in Mansfield, May 19, 1863, she was the daughter of the late Albert C. and Mary J. Campbell. She had been a resident of Montville for the past six years, having previously lived in Willimantic, where she was employed for about 40 years at the thread mills. Besides the sister, Mrs. Crandall, of Montville, she leaves a brother, Fred Green, of that town. Miss Green was a member of the Order of Eastern Star, Woman's Relief corps and of the Methodist church, all of Willimantic. Her death will be deeply mourned by her many friends.

Arthur D'Atri

Following an illness of about two weeks Arthur D'Atri, 25, of No. 33 North Main street, died at 1:15 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the W. W. Backus hospital.

Mr. D'Atri was born in Norwich, Sept. 15, 1904, the son of Mrs. Camilla D'Atri and the late James D'Atri, and has resided here for his entire life, receiving his education in the local public schools. For three years he was employed at Dick's Service station, Franklin street, before it was purchased by the D'Atri brothers and then became a member of the firm, D'Atri's Tire shop.

Surviving Mr. D'Atri are his mother, three brothers, Michael, Alfred and Frank D'Atri and a sister, Miss Mary D'Atri, all of this city. His father died during the past year. He was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. Elks, Court City of Norwich, No. 63, F. of A. and of St. Mary's Memorial church.

The death of Mr. D'Atri was learned with profound sorrow by his many friends, who extend their heartfelt sympathy to the surviving members of the family in their time of bereavement. His death took from the community a young man who was well known, especially among the younger generation, and was admired by all for his fine qualities.

Inoculation Against Diphtheria

Thirty children were inoculated against diphtheria at clinics conducted in Franklin Friday afternoon by Dr. George H. Gildersleeve at the homes of Mrs. Jason Kingsley, Mrs. Arthur Smith and Mrs. Milton Beckwith. These clinics to be held weekly, are a follow-up of health work conducted in the town by Miss Lizabeth MacDonald, health specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs, in co-operation with the New London county farm bureau.

SCOUT LEADERS BRAVED STORM IN TAKING COURSE AT CAMP WAKENAH

Sixteen scoutleaders, representing practically every troop in Norwich, braved the snow, sleet and rain, Saturday afternoon and night at Camp Wakenah, Gardner lake, to complete the elementary course in Scoutmastership. Leaving scout headquarters at 2:00 in the afternoon the caravan of cars stopped just outside camp, where the men started on a trail for "treasure." After half an hour of tracking a trail of conventional signs of stick, broken twigs, blazes, etc., the treasure was found, a pot of hunter's stew made by Walter Weidman and William Collins.

Following the stew, all men made up their bunks for the night. An inspection of quarters was held, an examination of the beds revealing many different methods of keeping warm, "sacks," pockets and rolls. The inspection included a visit to the cabin recently completed by Scoutmasters Lloyd Rathbun, Robert Burke and Howard Ludlow, where the builders were warmly complimented on their "shack." Following inspection the men walked over a nature trail while Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale and others named the different kinds of trees.

The inclement weather forced the campers to cook indoors. Steaks, French fried potatoes, doughnuts, cocoa, special dishes made up the menu. And what a repast. After supper the men gathered in the Lions' cabin and had a "freezing" session of songs, stunts and games.

To bed with the sound of sleet on the roof. Up early in the morning to thaw out. The men melted their eggs and chopped out slabs of bacon, and prepared what they described to be a "wonderful meal." Cecil Wetherbee was made chief pan cake flipper, and Lloyd Rathbun, chief heart breaker, (for cooking a four and a half pound heart).

Will Collins led a discussion of map making following which the men judged distances, found the length of their own steps, the height of trees, etc. The course broke up in time for church or Sunday school attendance, the leaders declaring that despite the cold and rain, they had had a pretty good time.

Scoutleaders attending were: C. B. Gilbert, chairman of the training course; Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale, Jean Keiffer, William Wyman, Walter Weidman, John Hill, John Boldriginhi, Lloyd Rathbun, Robert Burke, Alexander Reuelke, Carl Brend, Carl Benker, Cecil Wetherbee, William A. Collins and Scout Executive Sellman. Scoutmaster H. Downer Johnson accompanied the party but had to return to Norwich Saturday afternoon.

WINTER BRICKWORK BARRED ON COUNTY HOME BUILDINGS

According to a statement given out by the Central Labor union and signed by Walter Hindle as president, and Charles A. Gore as secretary, it is announced that the contractor on the new county home buildings on Laurel Hill road is to resume work there this (Monday) morning. The consent of the contractor to resume work, which had been stopped for the winter season, had been won, it was reported through the activity of a special committee of the Central Labor union, whose statement was as follows:

"The shutting down of this job at a time when work was so badly needed was to the building trades a new policy, as we have no knowledge of any building so closed down for the winter and we have many buildings, both public and private, that have been good winter jobs, good buildings, good for the workers and good for the community as well as the merchants. This committee therefore, for the Central Labor union, wishes to express its appreciation of the interests responsible for the change in program."

The statement failed to indicate what branch of the construction work would be carried on.

George H. Bradford, chairman of the board of county commissioners, which has charge of erecting the buildings, said Sunday night that he had no knowledge that work was to be resumed at the site on Laurel Hill road. It was stipulated in the contract, Mr. Bradford said, that work was to stop after freezing weather set in, and there would be no brick laid this winter. He said he believed there was some work that might be done, such as digging in the corners where the steamshovels couldn't get in and other work of this character.

CITIZENS SCOUT COMMITTEE CALLED BY CHAIRMAN BROWN

A citizens general scout committee meeting has been called by Attorney Arthur M. Brown chairman, to call to the attention of all civic, religious, commercial and educational organizations the approaching Boy Scout campaign. The committee will meet for a quarter of an hour at 5:00 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon in the chamber of commerce conference room. All heads and leading representatives of institutions and organizations have been invited and are invited to attend.

The letter is as follows:

My dear Scout Friend:

Four months ago a boy in this city stole a canoe. His mother called the Boy Scout headquarters for aid. The canoe was quietly returned. A day later that boy brought in the names of eight other boys, "his gang!" This gang of boys became a troop of scouts. Today there are twenty-five boys in this troop, who have spent over 150 hours in civic service.

This is but one instance of what scouting is doing for boys in Norwich. Four hundred and sixty-one scouts under this council have accepted the principles of the scout oath and law. This good work must continue; but the present bright outlook for scouting this year (1930) necessarily will be conditioned by the success of the finance campaign to be held February 7-15, during the twentieth anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America.

I have been asked to serve as chairman of a citizens general committee to officially launch this campaign as a community project. We are asking the heads and leading representatives of the civic, social, religious, educational and commercial organizations to constitute this committee and to hold a brief meeting in the chamber of commerce rooms, Monday, January 13, at 5:00 p. m. for the purpose of (1) approving a slate of committees for the campaign, (2) to make helpful suggestions, (3) to inform ourselves so that we may all more effectively report back to our respective institutions the Boy Scout need and how it can be met.

Cordially yours,
ARTHUR M. BROWN.

According to the local scout headquarters, the biggest men in Norwich are lining up behind this campaign to assure its success. Present indications are that Boy Scout work in this territory will receive a fresh impetus, and will advance rapidly during the coming year.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION, NO. 100, RE-ELECTS ITS PRESIDENT

Norwich Typographical union, No. 100, at its annual meeting Saturday evening at the Del-Hoff hotel, reelected Benjamin Axelrod president. Other officers elected with him are: Alex Charnetski, vice president; Herbert Charnetski, secretary; Charles E. Barber, treasurer; Edward Olson, sergeant at arms; Reginald C. Pardy, William M. Savage, Charles J. Riordan, auditors.

The committees named were: President Axelrod, Linus Charnetski and R. C. Pardy on the standing committee, and President Axelrod, Wm. M. Savage, R. C. Pardy, L. Charnetski and John H. Bell on the apprentice committee.

The union received with much regret the decision of George B. Nebert and William C. Amburn not to accept again, nominations for secretary and treasurer respectively. Mr. Neibert has been secretary for 21 years and Mr. Amburn treasurer for ten years, both filling the duties of their positions with faithfulness and acceptability to the membership of the union.

SUMMARY OF YEAR IN FIRST CONG. CHURCH

"Unpaid Service In Our Churches; the Story of A Year," was the theme of Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Sunday morning at the Norwich Town Congregational church. He gave a summary of activities from the several branches connected with the church. For the basis of his sermon, Rev. Mr. Bailey used for his text, I Corinthians 9:11-12. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, it is a great thing of we shall reap your carnal things? If others be partakers of this mower over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the Gospel of Christ. In his introductory remarks Rev. Mr. Bailey dwelt largely on "Remuneration For Service Rendered." In looking about the Christian communities, he said he marvelled at the work and accomplishments of the people. Every one expects remuneration for service rendered today. It is not as in other days; now everything has to be paid for. With reference to the church in question, Rev. Mr. Bailey said: I marvel at our free will offering for membership. There are but four who receive salaries for services rendered in this parish. There are four score people who have equally spent 2,000 hours of time during 1929, which for one person would be equivalent to 250 days at eight hours a day average.

At this point a digest from the yearly reports was submitted as follows: The Church Improvement society which functions largely for the improvement of church buildings shows a good balance in the treasury. The Sunday school has a total enrollment of 140, including nine officers and 50 teachers. After sending 22 children into the larger room which were divided into a class for boys and a class for girls the primary department still has 35 enrolled.

The Sunday school treasury shows a substantial balance. Through the efforts of the various classes and investment funds about as much has been expended for outside benevolences as at home. "The spirit of the church is to help support the Kingdom of God, at home and abroad," quoted Rev. Mr. Bailey. Contributions have been sent to Rev. Edward H. Smith, China; iss to Rev. Edward H. Smith, China; Miss Beebe, Alabama. Referring to the organized classes—The G. O. A. L. class comprises young men of high school age. Under the leadership of the teacher, Clyde M. Beebe, much has been done in a charitable way, and some little time devoted to athletics, etc., also social times. The One Aim class of young women, was for several years taught by Miss Susan Hyde. There are so many who have removed from town, the regular sessions have ceased. Now only once a year does this class hold a meeting as its motto is, "Once a Member, Always a Member." When active, this class was engaged in work at home, also for the Kingdom of God. The Men's Forum, which has come important discussions, has through the past year been studying The Life of Christ. The forum is now to take up Deacon Brown's Book, for study. The Drop-in class, taught by Rev. Charles E. Reeves, assisted by Miss Hyde, comprises adult women. This class has been studying The Twentieth Century Quarterly, and Rev. Mr. Reeves has given several talks on the Bible. In this report, mention was made of a gift to a former loved teacher, Miss Louise Hopping; also beautiful flowers presented in memory of another beloved teacher, Mrs. G. F. Bailey, who served this class faithfully for several years. The Home department, Mrs. Charles W. Chapin, superintendent, has a membership of 14.

In reporting for the Christmas entertainment, much credit was given the committee of young teachers which carried on the work; as was also the company of young married women who co-operated so well with the pastor in putting on the pageant entitled, "The Christmas Mystery."

The activities of Ever Ready circle of The King's Daughters are each year about the same. Cards to shut-ins, baskets of flowers to the sick, a devotional meeting annually at Riverside home with gifts of fruit and candy, also a number of meetings during the year in different member's homes. The League of Service, which takes up the greater part of the missionary work of the church, is divided into several departments.

For the woman's department, the program committee keeps in touch with the work of the missionaries at home and abroad. On several occasions letters have been read from Rev. Edward Smith, Miss Gertrude Avery and Miss Beebe; and instructive talks have been given by some returned missionaries, Rev. Mr. Adams from Africa, Mrs. William M. Zumbro, from India, and Mrs. Walter Moran of Montville, after a return from the south, as well as Mrs. J. Beveridge Lee, of New London. Miss Susan Hyde is chairman. The work committee of the woman's department, Mrs. H. L. Yerrington, chairman, in its report mentioned Christmas boxes sent to Frederick Werking's school in Tennessee, Miss Beebe's school in Alabama. When work on quilts, etc., meetings have been held in the chapel and at the homes of members.

The men's department conducted weekly Lenten meetings, and besides other activities has lent financial support to other departments in the league, James F. Connolly is the chairman. The report of the literature department as submitted by Miss Louise Hyde, mentioned that the Missionary Herald was welcomed in the homes of several members of the church.

The cradle roll and junior and intermediate children all working together in the various branches. There are 90 on the cradle roll comprising babies of all ages to nine years of age. Miss Bernice Underwood is superintendent, assisted by other young women of the church. A feature for the little tots is their summer party on the church lawn, with opening of mite boxes. The young people's department, under the leadership of Mrs. Burton Jopson, among other things put on a little playlet, "Waiting For the Doctor," also attended the young people's rally at Park church. Activities in the children's department, under the leadership of Miss Jessie E. Hyde, did not commence until the fall of 1929, classes being omitted the first of the year. When taking up the work the children did much to make other children happy, (who were less fortunate), also contributed toys, games, books, etc., to Seaside Sanatorium, children's ward at Backus hospital. This department has two distinct societies. Mrs. Ernest Washington's report showed the work of the juniors, while Miss Hyde is also leader of the intermediates.

The reports of the Young People's C. E. society mentioned favorably the attendance contest which had 46 at its first meeting early in the year, the fourth and last meeting having an attendance of 250, in favor of the White side. About $60 was netted by this society at its lawn fete in the summer. A busy year was reported by the secretary, a great share of the work falling on committees and leaders of groups. Special mention was made of the volunteer service of the choir, also the W. I. T's, a young men's class that after several years has been given up, also the efficient service of the supper committee of the league of service for its wonderful work throughout the year, especially the way it conducted the New Year supper of the parish.

In closing, Rev. Mr. Bailey said it was encouraging and stimulating to see leaders accept the responsibilities for 1930, in view of so many handicaps in the past.

GAVE ADDRESS FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS

Prof. James P. Berkeley of Newton Theological institute, Boston, who is to conduct the pastors' conference on Christian Education at Hartford today (Monday), was the preacher at the service Sunday evening at the Central Baptist church. He brought a New Year's message to the Sunday School workers of Norwich, who were especially invited to be present, taking for his subject, Childhood and Youth.

"It has been said that this is to be the century of the child. It has proven so," said the speaker. He mentioned the differences between the youth of today and of yesterday. "We must think of these facts that are challenging us, namely the lengthening period of youth, the grading of his life, the freedom of the present-day youth and the competition of the interests of youth.

The preacher explained each fact in detail. He said that the freedom of the child was attributed to the fact that "the old repressive authorities have been removed" and remarked that the youth we have to serve now is really different from that of years ago.

"What are we going to do with this youth," he asked. In answering this question he added that "we must get things that are of value to them, it must be of growing value, something that will go up with them through the departments and out into their life. Under Jesus Christ this task is possible. Put into the lives of childhood and youth Jesus Christ," concluded the speaker.

ROCHESTER MOURNS DEATH OF DR. LUCIUS L. BUTTON

Rochester, N. Y., papers are still paying tribute to a native of Norwich, Dr. Lucius Lucine Button, 60, prominent physician, who died unexpectedly at his Clover Hills home, Brighton, Rochester, at midnight Dec. 30th, from angina pectoris. At the time of his death the entire city was saddened and the Times-Union, Democrat and Chronicle, Evening Journal and Post Express devoted editorial space to the loss which his passing meant to the entire community. His devotion to the demands of his profession was emphasized by all these tributes, as well as the wide circle of humanity touched by his ministrations. The Democrat-Chronicle said of him: "His place never will be filled, any more than the place of any great and good man is filled; but his career has ennobled an already noble profession and set an example which his younger colleagues can follow with deserved respect and genuine benefit to the community." The Times-Union concluded its eulogy, "His entire life was a sermon in deeds."

Dr. Button was the son of Dr. Lucius L. and Helen Rathbun Button, of Norwich. He went to Rochester after obtaining his degree at Yale S. 1892 and from the N. Y. Homeopathic hospital and Flower hospital, in 1895. He was prominent in medical, educational and hospital work in Rochester, and a member of a half dozen local, state and national medical organizations.

In October, 1921, Dr. Button married Rosalie Howard Wright, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. A. R. Wright, of Buffalo. Besides his widow, he leaves two daughters, Mrs. Charlotte H. B. Messinger and Miss Margaret T. Button, also a son, Lucius Lucine Button.

His funeral was held at Christ Episcopal church, Rochester, Jan. 2nd, Rt. Rev. David Lincoln Ferris, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of western New York, officiating, the rector and curate of the church assisting in the services. In accord with Dr. Button's known wishes the service was simple. The floral tributes were so numerous that no room in the home of Mrs. Button could contain them. Members of the medical profession were bearers. Later, the urn containing Dr. Button's ashes was buried in the family lot at Mount Hope cemetery, Rochester.

RONALD M. KIMBALL MADE SECOND VICE PRESIDENT

In its salesletter of January 8th announcement was made of several promotions for officials in the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago, which included the advancement of Ronald M. Kimball, formerly of this city, from assistant secretary to one of the second vice presidents.

Mr. Kimball has been with the Chicago institution for the past four and a half years, previous to which for the same length of time he was connected with the National City bank of New York city.

THOMPSON RESIDENTS BACK FROM DUTCH EAST INDIES

Bringing back a moving picture of native life in the Dutch East Indies, Andrew D. Roosevelt, cousin of the late President Roosevelt, his daughter, Mrs. Armand Denis, her husband and their three children arrived in Boston last week as passengers on the British steamer, British Prince.

They spent eight months in the Dutch East Indies, making their headquarters in Bali where Mr. Roosevelt had previously resided five years. He was one of the two white inhabitants of that place.

They brought back nearly 30,000 feet of film including an eight-reel scenario depicting life in the Dutch East Indies with a native cast.

Mr. Roosevelt and the Denis family reside in Thompson, Conn.

"Y" SENIORS NOSE OUT WILLINGTON IN LAST MINUTE IN FAST ENCOUNTER

The Y. Seniors scored a thrilling one-point victory over the South Willington Y. basketball team Saturday evening at the Y. gym, the final score totaling 38-37. The game was one of the best of the year and had a small crowd off their seats through a wild fourth period, which saw the teams match spectacular baskets with amazing regularity.

Willington made a desperate bid for the game right up to the final gun (they had a gun Saturday night) but probably wouldn't have gotten so much leeway had the Seniors presented their strongest front. As it was, Capt. Roland Harris, center, and Al Grebe, guard were out of the lineup, Harris being out of town and Grebe has an injured hand. Coach Demarest used Les Pingree at center, Lynch and Brown at forwards and Eccleston and Barber at guards for most of the fray until Brown was forced out of the game on personal fouls in the last quarter. N. Usher, of Willington also was relieved for the evening by this same route.

The Seniors had a fairly good edge for most of the first three quarters and especially for the first half. This ended, 23 to 15, in their favor. Willington had knotted the count by the end of the third quarter, however and then the boys went at it hammer and tongs through the last ten minutes.

Les Pingree and Aubrey Brown were high scorers for the locals and Pospisil and H. Usher led the Willington team in point-making while Eccleston played a nice floor game for the Seniors.

In the preliminary, the New London Riversides trimmed the Norwich Internationals, 28 to 17, in a hard fought tilt. Murphy, for New London, and the basketeer who prefers to be known as Italy on the Internationals, were the respective top scorers.

The Seniors have two games this week. Thursday they tackle Joe Belair's All-Stars at the Y. gym, and Saturday go to Ansonia to resume their state Y league campaign after a two weeks' rest. Belair has signed up the cream of the talent in the southern part of the county, including players from the Sub Base and Socony teams and expects to give the Demarest-men a busy evening.

THREE FIST FIGHTS MAR HAWKS WIN OVER RANGERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—(AP)—In a rough battle, enlivened by three separate fist fights by players, the Chicago Blackhawks defeated the New York Rangers two to one, tonight, and replaced them as second place occupants in the National league hockey race.

Duke Dutkowski, scored the winning tally for the Hawks unassisted 35 seconds before the end of the game when he split the Ranger defense after some beautiful stick-handling and beat Goalie Roach to the net by an eye lash.

All scoring was done in the third period and all fist fighting took place in the second. The first battle of fists came between Art Somers and "Bun" Cook of the Rangers. In a hard fight for the puck near the Ranger goal each accused the other of roughness and started the fight.

The officials and players quickly stopped them before any damage was done and they were given 2 minute penalties. No sooner had Bun Cook returned to the game than he became involved in a fight with Teddy Graham, new Blackhawk recruit from Tulsa in the association. He and Graham exchanged rights and lefts furiously with players on both sides tossing in a helpful jab here and there. They were sent to the penalty box for 5 minutes.

The liveliest skirmish came near the end of the period when Bill Cook, Bun's brother, and Somers fought for fully two minutes before they could be separated. They were given match penalties, forcing their teams to play the first 20 minutes of the last period with a five man limit. As a result of their expulsion from the game, Somers and Bill Cook face a possible fine from the league president.

BABE SAYS ITS UP TO THE YANKEES NOW

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 12—(AP)—Babe Ruth's only comment on his contract disagreement with the New York Yankees as he came into Florida tonight was that "it's up to them now."

The matter of the Babe's compensation apparently rests as it has for several days, Ruth demanding $85,000 annually under a three year contract and the Yankees offering $75,000 for a two year term.

The Bambino had about two hours to kill here between trains en route to St. Petersburg. He and his wife spent most of the time walking away from reporters' questions about the contract. His single comment on that subject was elicited by a newspaperman's mention that Bob Shawkey, the new Yankee manager, was only about two hours ahead of him on the way to Miami, and that Shawkey apparently was confident Ruth would appear in a Yankee uniform.

The Babe expressed regret that he had not known Shawkey was here. "We might have had a little chat together," he said. Ruth gave his weight as 225 pounds and said it would be the first time in six years it has not been necessary to pull himself down to his playing weight of 230 to 235. He said all he planned to do was play plenty of golf and get legs and arms in shape.

Learning that the Mandell-Quintero fight has been postponed to Wednesday night, he laid plans on the spot to attend, saying he planned to go to Miami Wednesday anyway.

AMERICANS BREAK WINNING STREAK OF BOSTON BRUINS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Displaying a remarkable defensive game, the humble New York Americans, broke the 14 game winning streak of the Boston Bruins, champions and leaders of the National Hockey league, with a 3 to 2 victory tonight. The unexpected triumph was all the more remarkable because it was the second in two nights for the Americans, tail-enders of the international group.

The American defense was almost but not quite all of the game, for a great attack in the second period brought all of their goals. Boston took the lead on Mackay's first period score and seemed headed for another triumph. But Billy Boyd tied the score in the second period and two minutes later, when two Bruins were off the ice, Sheppard put New York ahead on McVeigh's pass.

Boston tied the score once more in the period only to have Indian Johnny take the hero's role again with a perfect play that scored the winning goal.

The final period brought a great defensive exhibition by the Americans in holding off the furious Bruin charges.

DARTMOUTH WILL HAVE NO PROFESSIONAL COACHING

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 12—(AP)—Dartmouth will join Princeton, Yale and Columbia in playing league baseball games without a coach on the bench, it was announced today by Jeff Tesreau, Green baseball coach. The ruling followed the receipt during the week of an invitation from Princeton to turn the control of league games over to the undergraduates players.

Tesreau said that control of the Green nine in league games would be lodged solely in the hands of Bart McDonough, captain, and catcher of the Dartmouth team.

The acceptance by Dartmouth now leaves only Pennsylvania and Cornell as members of the league who have as yet not acquiesced in the new arrangements.

COUGARS BEAT PIRATES IN CLOSE ENCOUNTER

DETROIT, Jan. 12—(AP)—Detroit's Cougars were on the long end of a 3 to 2 National Hockey league game with the Pittsburgh Pirates here tonight.

Stan McCabe, New York Cougar wingman, scored his first National league goal mid-way in the first period and gave Captain Reg Noble a pass that resulted in Detroit's second goal 28 seconds later. White scored for Pittsburgh toward the end of the first period.

George Hay got the third Detroit score in the final period, and Briden added another point for Pittsburgh 45 seconds before the game ended.

Six penalties were called.

Eagles Beat Reds

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 12—(AP)—In one of the roughest games seen here this season, the New Haven Eagles defeated the Providence Reds here tonight, 2 to 1. The locals tallied in the first and third periods on some fine team work in which Whyte, Chouinard and Speyer figured. The Reds tally came just before the close of the game, Cormier caging the puck.

FONSECA LEADS AMERICAN LEAGUE HITTERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—(AP)—Lewis Fonseca, discarded to the minors four years ago by the Philadelphia Nationals, won the 1929 American league batting championship with the lowest average since Tyrus Raymond Cobb turned the trick way back in 1914.

The veteran Cleveland first baseman, official averages revealed tonight, batted 566 times in 148 games and collected 209 hits for a .369 average, which was 10 points lower than the championship average made by Leon "Goose" Goslin of Washington in 1928 and one more than Cobb's low mark in 1914. Al Simmons of the champion Philadelphia Athletics was second with a .365 mark, while Henry Manush of St. Louis, runner-up to Goslin in 1928, finished third with .355. Goslin was far down the list of leaders for the season, his average dropping 91 points to .288.

Other members of the "big ten" American league hitters and their official averages were Jimmy Foxx, Philadelphia, .354; Tony Lazzeri, New York, .354; Bob Fothergill, Detroit, .350; Earl Combs, New York, .346; Babe Ruth, New York, .345; Harry Heilmann, Detroit, .344, and Dale Alexander, Detroit, .343. It was the first odd year since 1919, that Heilmann, who now wears the livery of the Cincinnati Reds, failed to win the batting crown.

For the third successive year, exactly 50 American league batsmen hit .300 or better, 15 of them being players in their first or second year in big time. Alexander of Detroit led the rookies with his .343 mark.

Aided by the big bats of Heilmann and Alexander, the Tigers easily won the team batting championship, hanging up a .299 average, three points higher than the Athletics, who were second, and three points higher than the mark set by the Yankees, who won it in 1928. The Yankees finished third in 1929 with a .296 total.

Although Fonseca came back to top the willow wielders in the junior circuit, the averages disclosed that Charles Gehringer, Detroit star, swung the busiest bat in the league. Gehringer finished seventh among the leading batsmen with a .339 average; played in the most games, 155; scored the most runs 131; stole the most bases 27; led in three base hits 19; tied with his teammate, Alexander, for the most hits 215; tied with another teammate, Roy Johnson, and Manush in doubles with 45, and though he occupied an unfavorable position in the Tiger batting order, he drove in 106 runs.

Combs led in singles with 151; Babe Ruth was home run king again with 46 circuit smashes; Joe Sewell of Cleveland led in sacrifices with 41 and tied his own world's record by striking out but four times in 152 games. Roy Johnson, Detroit rookie, was at bat 640 times. Eight players, who batted 10 to 27 times, failed to get a hit.

For the first time since 1905, Ty Cobb was not included in the averages which he topped 12 times. Eddie Collins and Tris Speaker, who like Cobb have retired from active play, also were missing for the first time since 1908.

What is so treacherous as one of these antique beds?

An old antique four-poster looks mighty solid, comfortable and inviting but they're not trustworthy.

This can be vouched for by a man and his wife of my acquaintance. And after their experience antique four-posters have taken their place with 1910 automobiles when it comes to dependence.

This couple were the guests of a certain family in our town a few days ago and the hostess thought she was conferring an honor on her guests when she assigned them to the room with the family four-poster.

The bed was all that could be desired. It was piled high with a live feather tick, warm fluffy wool blankets and a downy comforter that made it look like a sure cure for insomnia.

The guests were delighted as a 250 mile ride had made them tired and all the evening their thoughts were of the delightful rest that was coming to them in that old substantial four-poster upstairs.

They eventually retired and as they sank down among the feathers it was with a deep sigh of complete comfort. Sleep was soon upon them and delightful dreams were transporting them far afield.

And then—then there was a crash and a clatter. The old bed had dropped a slat. Rudely awakened the couple sat suddenly upright in the old four-poster. There was another crash and clatter. The old bed had lost a couple of more slats.

That was all for the time but just as they were dozing off another slat gave up the ghost. With four slats gone the bed was sagging very close to the floor. And then unable to stand anymore the remaining slats joined their companions on the floor and the occupants were suddenly pitched out onto a hard and cold floor.

Sleepy-eyed and deprived of a good night's rest the guests sought other beds, one reclining on a couch in the room and the other curling up in the Morris chair.

Never be deceived by these four-posters.

RED SOX WILL BE LITTLE CHANGED FOR 1930

BOSTON, Jan. 12—(AP)—Late last season, while anchored firmly in last place, the Boston Red Sox played some remarkably good baseball for Bill Carrigan, who has since resigned in favor of "Heinie" Wagner, his old pal and first lieutenant.

It will be up to the same players who staged this last minute spurt to get the Red Sox somewhere this coming season for Bob Quinn, genial president of the American league tail enders, has been unable to strengthen them much.

"What the Red Sox need is more hitting strength and a couple of good southpaws," Quinn admitted, but then he sadly asked: "Where am I going to get them?"

"It's one thing to know what you want, and another to go out and get it," he continued. "Everybody's looking for hitting strength. There have been mighty few trades among the big league teams so far this off season for the mighty good reason that few clubs have any surplus of big league stuff.

"I'm making no excuses. It's a chance taking game. You bring up the best of the minor league players and there is only a slight chance that some of them will make the grade. Most of them fall back again and all you can do is keep trying."

The change in managers will probably not be noticed for Wagner, who helped Carrigan map out a good many campaigns, will carry on along the same well known lines.

A stock taking of the Red Sox assets reveals that the 1930 prospects are anything but rosy. The same old pitching staff, with Danny MacFayden, Ed Morris, Charley Ruffing, Milt Gaston and Jack Russell, all right handers, doing the bulk of the heaving, will be called upon to try to check rival batsmen with the same mediocre catchers, infielders and outfielders assisting.

Since October, Quinn has obtained a handful of recruits but nothing much is expected of them until they get some big league seasoning.

Jack Heving and Charley Berry, it is expected, will do the bulk of the Red Sox 1930 catching, Phil Todt will again be on first base, Bill Regan or Bill Narleski at second, Hal Rhyne or Grant Gillis at short, and either Bob Reeves or Walter Gerber on third.

It is not likely that there will be any new faces in the outfield, where Bill Barrett, Ken Williams, Russell Scarritt and Jack Rothrock cavorted during 1929.

Church League Tonight

In the first game of the evening at the Y. M. C. A. at 8:15, the Trinity Methodist quintet, sole conquerors of the Gamma club, will have a chance to move up into second place with the Brothers of Joseph, at the expense of the Stronghearts of Jewett City. As the Brothers do not play tonight, a win will put the Trinity team just a half game behind the league leaders. Jewett City, although not considered likely to upset the Methodists, nevertheless has showed improvement and will do their best to win their first game.

In the second game of the evening at 9:00, the Baltic Methodist and the Phi Delta Nu of the United Congregational church will meet, with the result that the winner will move out of a tie for fifth place in the league into third place. With the league less than half way through, both of these teams have still plenty of time to rally, and end out at the head. With but a half a game separating the first three, and just about the same for the next three, the league chase has suddenly grown exciting and Norwich basketball fans will be assured of a good game every Monday night.

OIMON WINS SKI JUMP AT GARY, IND.

GARY, Ind., Jan. 12—(AP)—Casper Oimon, of Canton, S. D., won the Class A event of the Ogden Dunes Ski club's tournament today, with a total of 19.3 points. Peder Falstad, also of Canton, S. D., finished second with 17.8 points. Oimon's best jump was 169 feet, equalling the slide record.

Gunnar Oman, Ogden Dunes Ski club, won the Class B event, with a point score of 19.00, and a best jump of 166 feet, bettering the former record of 165 feet. George Gunderson, of Racine, Wis., was second with 17.8 points and a best jump of 160 feet.

MILLER SHOOTS AN 83 TO PUT HIM IN TIE FOR 27TH PLACE IN LOS ANGELES OPEN

RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, LOS ANGELES, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Battling through torrential rains and terrific head winds, 50 hardy shot makers clubbed their way into the preferred division today in a heart-breaking second round of the 72 hole $10,000 Los Angeles open golf championship.

The select group that will continue on in the 36 hole finals, 18 hole tests tomorrow and Tuesday, was led today by Denny Shute, of Columbus, Ohio, who added a 74 to his first round of 73 for a total of 147. Shute clung close to Riviera's par 71 test to show the way to the greatest figures in the game.

Flooded fairways and distressingly slow greens spelled the doom of 77 others. In the list of those who failed was Walter Hagen of Detroit, present British open titleholder and former national open champion. Hagen, with an 81 for his first round, failed to tee off at the ninth after a miserable showing for eight holes. He took a nine on the par five first hole. Hagen said it was the first time in his competitive career that he had picked up.

Shute's showing in the face of the worst weather conditions attending the classic since its establishment in 1926, was a remarkable golfing feat. Playing in a heavy downpour, while tricky winds whipped up and down and across this course spread out in Santa Monica canyon, the Ohio aspirant went out in 38, three over par. For the in-coming stretch he posted standard figures of 36.

Only one other stroked his way below the 150 class. He was Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., youngster, whose first round 73 and 76 today put him in second place with 149. Smith was out in par 35 but faltered on the home stretch to take 41.

Three pros and an amateur claimed places in the 151 stroke station. They were Tom Armour of Detroit, a former national open titleholder; Al Espinosa, Chicago; Bobby Cruickshank, New York, and Fay Coleman, amateur from Culver City, Cal. Espinosa went around in 79, the others in 77.

Scores of 159 or lower qualified the finalists today. Under normal conditions, several strokes would have been lopped off this total.

Aside from Hagen, eight other prominent golfers failed to make the grade. Left out, with 161s, were Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J.; Al Watrous, Detroit; Henry Cuici, Bridgeport, Conn.; Fred Morrison, Neol McIntyre, Indianapolis, and John Dawson, Chicago amateur.

The former Helen Wills, world's tennis champion, with her husband, Frederick Moody, Jr., of San Francisco, braved the bad weather and galleried the Horton Smith-MacDonald Smith-Henry Cuici threesome. Mrs. Moody was drenched before the round was half over.

Several of the challengers, including MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., seeking his third successive title in this classic, barely squeezed under the wire. Smith chalked up an 82 for a total of 159. In the same class were Tony Mapero and Bill Mehlhorn, New York veterans. Johnny Farrell of St. Augustine, Fla., a former national open king, totaled 157 as did George Von Elm of Detroit, one time national amateur champion. Abe Espinosa, front line campaigner from Chicago, held a place in the 157 division, while Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., first Los Angeles open titleholder, had a 158.

The 50 finalists follow:

Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio, 73-74—147.
Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 73-76—149.
Tommy Armour, Detroit, 74-77—151.
xFay Coleman, Culver City, Calif., 74-77—151.
Al Espinosa, Chicago, 72-79—151.
Bobby Cruickshank, New York, 74-77—151.
John Rogers, Denver, 70-82—152.
Neil Christian, Portland, Ore., 79-73—152.

BERG-CANZONERI BOUT TOPS METROPOLITAN CARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Madison Square Garden shelves the heavyweights temporarily this week to make way for a lightweight duel between Tony Canzoneri, erstwhile featherweight champion, and Jack (Kid) Berg, bruising English fighter. This 10 round encounter, set for Friday night, heads the national boxing schedule for the next six days.

Canzoneri and Berg are two of Sammy Mandell's leading challengers for the 135 pound crown. Canzoneri already has had one shot at the title but muffed his opportunity when he was outpointed by the clever Rockford, Ill., titleholder at Chicago. Berg, whose rough and ready style of milling has won him thousands of friends among New York's boxing faithful, has campaigned with brilliant success in this country.

Harry Carlton, Jersey City lightweight, meets Sammy Dorfman, of New York, in the semi-final while Herman Perlick, Kalamazoo, Mich., featherweight, tangles with Jake Zeramby, Boston southpaw, in the first 10 rounder.

Al Singer, Bronx lightweight idol, comes back to the wars in a 10 round bout against Georgie Day, New Haven, at the St. Nicholas Arena tomorrow night.

The Philadelphia arena's weekly show tomorrow night will find Eugene Huat, French bantamweight, battling Vidal Gregorio, of Spain, in the 10 round feature. Harry (Kid) Brown, veteran Philadelphia lightweight, takes on Gaston Lecadre, of France, in the semi-final, also at 10 rounds.

At Jack Dempsey's Chicago coliseum, a light heavyweight battle between Leo Lomski, Aberdeen, Wash., and James J. Braddock, of Jersey City, will be the feature attraction Friday. On the west coast, at Los Angeles, Tuesday night, Fidel LaBarba, former flyweight champion, meets Ignacio Fernandez, Filipino featherweight, in a 10 rounder.

Other fights on the national schedule include:

Monday, at Chicago, Bobby LaSalle, California, vs. Clyde Hull, Cleveland, welterweights.

Wednesday, at New York coliseum, Big Bill Hartwell, Kansas City, vs. Arthur DeKuh, Italy, and Buck Weaver, California, vs. King Solomon, Panama, all heavyweights, each 10 rounds.

Friday, at Chicago coliseum, Archie Bell, Brooklyn, vs. Harry Fierro, Chicago, bantamweights, 10 rounds.

SHIRES AND SHORE MAY SIGN FOR SIX ROUNDER

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—A move to match Eddie Shore, rugged Boston Bruins defense star, with Arthur (The Great) Shires, was made here tonight, when Eddie Mack, Boston Garden matchmaker, wired the scrappy hockey player the following:

"Have made Bobby Goldman attractive offer for you to box Shires six rounds here, January 31."

Goldman, manager of Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, and an intimate friend of Shore, said he had advised the latter to accept Mack's offer if Art Ross, Bruins' manager, would sanction his appearance in the ring.

ARMORY A. A. PLAYS FRANKLIN PROS AT DANIELSON TUESDAY

There will be plenty of action and thrills at the State Armory, Danielson, Tuesday night when the Armory A. A. stacks up against the fast Franklin Pros. The Franklin team is a new team to appear on the schedule of the Armory basketball team. The Franklin Pros have about one of the strongest aggregations in Massachusetts and have defeated such teams as Millville, Clinton and Lowell this year not mentioning numerous other teams. Having already won seven straight games they are out to take Danielson's scalp, but the Danielson team says nothing doing as they are going to break their string of victories.

The Armory A. A. have been putting in a week of hard practice and are in tip top condition for the game. As there was some misunderstanding as to the use of the Armory, there was no game last week in Danielson but will be every Tuesday for the remainder of the season.

DEMPSEY NAMES SHARKEY AS CHAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—Jack Dempsey, who should know something of heavyweight fighters, believes that Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor who once wilted under the old man mauler's fists, is today the heavyweight champion of the world.

This and other interesting things the battle king of other years proclaims in ranking the boxers of the world for 1929 in a copyright story for The Ring, a fistic magazine. Dempsey's rankings replace those the late Tex Rickard prepared in past years for this publication.

"First I want to make my bow to Jack Sharkey and say that he is the best American heavyweight, and in my opinion the accredited world's heavyweight," says the article under Dempsey's name. "At Miami Beach he easily beat the outstanding contender at the time, Young Stribling, and in New York he knocked out Tommy Loughran, a really great fighter."

The former champion hints, but with little energy, that he may once more return in person to his old battlefields.

"There have been many stories printed to the effect that I am awaiting the winner of the Sharkey-Scott bout at Miami and that I would then issue a challenge to him. At this time I have no plans. I am a promoter who turned to this new field because I am inclined to believe that my second fight with Gene Tunney was my last.

"I have had my fling. The ring was kind to me and still is. The boxing public has been even kinder.

"But, if a foreigner gains the world's heavyweight title, be he Schmeling, Campolo, Scott, Carnera, or some one not yet on the horizon, I may be prompted to reconsider for I still feel even with my long absence from ring competition, that I could give a good account of myself with any of the present crop of heavyweights. On the face of things, however, I feel that I am done as an active participant. I feel that an American, Jark Sharkey, can well take care of the task of keeping the title in this country. If he isn't then, well——."

Dempsey places Sharkey at the top of the heavyweight group with Max Schmeling second; Tuffy Griffiths third, and Phil Scott fourth. Next he groups seven men in this order: Tommy Loughran, Otto Von Porat, George Godfrey, Johnny Risko, Victorio Campolo, Young Stribling and Paulino Uzcudun. The list was compiled before Paulino upset Von Porat.

Maxey Rosenbloom heads the light heavyweights with Jimmy Slattery, Lou Scozza and Leo Lomski linked in the second division. Mickey Walker, the champion, takes the same place among the middleweights with Dave Shade, Rene Devos and Ace Hudkins grouped below him.

The welterweight class has Jackie Fields, the titleholder, linked with Jimmy McLarnin at the top.

Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, shares honors with Tony Canzoneri in his own first division while Kid Chocolate and Earl Mastro outrank Bat Battalino, the champion, among the featherweights. Al Brown and Bushy Graham share the top group of the bantamweights with Black Bill and Midget Wolgast holding the same positions in the flyweight class. Neither division has a generally recognized champion.

CAREY LEASES STADIUM AND POLO GROUNDS FOR BOXING

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden corporation, today announced the acquisition of the Yankee Stadium and Polo Grounds for boxing purposes during the summer season.

Carey also said the garden was given an option on both stadiums for the 1931 season as well.

The garden's action in acquiring both baseball parks gives it a virtual monopoly on the big outdoor battles of the coming season and spikes reports that Jack Dempsey, now promoting bouts for the Chicago coliseum, would obtain the Polo Grounds for several outdoor shows this summer. The only large arena now available to Dempsey would be Ebbets field, home of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

PROVIDENCE REDS HAVE SIX-POINT LEAD IN C. A. LOOP

BOSTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The Providence Reds have ended another week with a comfortable lead on the other four clubs in the Canadian-American Hockey league, and the only battle appears to be that waged by the New Haven Eagles and Boston Tigers, last year's champions, for second honors.

The official standing, including last night's games, follows:

POETRY

The Rolling Years

"We spend our years as a tale that is told."—Psalm xc:9.

Year after year rolls by,
Bearing its burdens and tears,
But leaving the love and the joy
To gladden the on-coming years.

Year after year comes on,
Bringing—ah! who shall opine?
Dark shadows, but also the sun!
And ever "the oil and the wine";
For the healing of the smart
Of the wounded, troubled heart;
And the height'ning of the joy,
That it be without alloy;
For the strength'ning of the soul,
As the passing years on-roll.

Send, O Father, what is best,
Help us in Thy love to rest;
Safely lead us, day by day,
As we walk the "King's Highway."

Grant us faith to trust in Thee,
Whatsoe'er our lot may be;
Give us pow'r to do Thy will;
Strength to labor, or, be still.

As the years roll on apace,
May we sweetly "grow in grace,"
So that all around may see,
That our lives are "hid" in Thee.

—By Jennie Wilson Howell.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

"Believe it or not," as Ripley would say, but there is a well-defined notion in our minds that Raoul Walsh has surpassed, [illegible] in many other ways, his former world-wide success, 'What Price Glory,' with his current production, "The Cock Eyed World." In fact, the latter, which opened Saturday at the Breed theatre, might well be called an all-talking classic of the "Devil Dogs" in peace times.

There are many contributing reasons for this prediction; for with the advent of talking pictures, there is a marked breadth in technical advance in picture production as demonstrated by the results achieved by Walsh.

And Walsh having mastered the technique of sound pictures makes them another important factor which we must consider.

"The Cock Eyed World," adapted from a story by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, is a child of Walsh's brain, so to speak, for he not only directed but wrote the scenario.

Now the screen speaks through the wonders of Fox Movietone and "The Cock Eyed World" gives you its every word. You won't have to guess what Victor McLaglen and Edmund Lowe are saying to each other in their continual fights.

Lily Damita, co-featured with McLaglen and Lowe, is one of the best treats in the world for anybody's eyes. She proves that her training in European opera was well worth while when she sings "Elenita" with a delightful sweetness.

Bobby Burns sings the theme song, "So Dear to Me," and gives an all-around thorough performance. And speaking of songs we believe that "So Long," sung by the marines aboard a warship will soon be their "official" marching song.

Other members of the cast whose portrayals are outstanding are Jean Bary, as the Coney Island girl; Leila Karnelly as the [illegible] Russian; El Brendel as the "Swede" marine, and Joe Brown as the "wop" marine.

Palace Theatre

Ronald Colman, the man who made such a startling success in that magnificent movie, "Bulldog Drummond," and who has consistently been one of the greatest lovers and adventurers of the screen, has perhaps his greatest role of all times as the convict prisoner in "Condemned," the drama of Devil's Island now playing at the Palace theatre.

Cast with beautiful Ann Harding, Colman gives a breath-taking performance. He is sent to the hell on earth with other convicts, caged like a rat with all hope gone save the very little of that to him. Together with his companions in misery, he is cast among the exiles of this island prison and is in good prospect of rotting out the best part of his life there.

The warden of the prison is a brutal, bestial man, [illegible] as is necessary to keep control of the desperate wretches who are exiled to that spot. Through a stroke of circumstance Colman, the convict, is assigned to the warden's home to help the warden's wife with the household duties. Colman sees the warden mistreat her. His heart aches to avenge the insults and worse that he heaps upon her, but he does not dare to speak his mind.

It is not until the warden flies into a mad rage at hearing his wife's name and the convict's linked by gossip that the inevitable happens. His mania serves only to throw the lovers into each other's arms and results in the plighting of a great love. Of course that doesn't end matters, for when a man takes another man's wife, especially when a convict does it, there's bound to be trouble. There is plenty of it. Colman is incarcerated, and it is not until luck and skill come his way again that he has a chance, but a very slim one, for escape. At this point come the most thrilling scenes of the picture as the hunted one dodges through the jungle. Thrill follows thrill until it seems there will be no end of them.

Beginning Wednesday, the Palace will present for three days another great double feature bill including "Her Second Chance" and "Little Johnny Jones."

Broadway Theatre

The old time "curley-cue" of 35 years ago is revived in all its tawdry glory in Helen Morgan's first all-talking picture, "Applause," which continues through today and tomorrow at the Broadway. Miss Morgan's friends, accustomed to her wind-blown black bobbed hair, and her crooning voice, will never recognize her as the [illegible] "hog-fat" burlesque queen, doing her pitiful best to hold her throne despite the ravages of age, which threaten to topple her back to the chorus line at any moment. Her lovely daughter is Joan Peers, dainty newcomer, to save whom from the perils and pitfalls of burlesque road shows Helen Morgan, as Kitty Darling, sacrifices health, strength, even life itself. Fuller Mellish, Jr., is the sinister stage manager of the troupe, who brags of his easy living, wrung from the purses of the dumb chorines, and whose schemes include the winning of the burlesque star's daughter. This is broken up by Henry Wadsworth as an upstanding young sailorman, and by the mother, who solves the problem in her own way. Added talking features include, besides the latest Paramount Sound news, Charley Chase and Thelma Todd in "Stepping Out"; O'Donnell and Blair in "The Plasterers," a riot bit of slapstick; a Paramount Talkartoon, "Marriage Wows," and the Cow-punchers in "Cow Camp Ballads," a breath from the cattle country at sunset.

SIGNS OF GRADUAL IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRY WERE NOTED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(P)—The first full week of the year has brought visible signs of gradual improvement in industry.

New commitments, however, are being made cautiously, and many executives are inclined to look for a rather unsatisfactory first quarter. Nevertheless, business conditions are generally found more favorable than was hoped for a month ago, and there is considerable optimism regarding the long-range outlook.

The steel industry has shown definite although moderate improvement. Ingot production, which fell to 40 per cent of rated capacity during the year-end shutdowns, has returned to above 60 per cent, which compares with about 85 per cent a year ago. The trade looks for moderately increasing business, and predicts that operations will reach 65 per cent of capacity before the end of the month.

The automotive industry turned its attention to the reception of new models at the New York show. On the whole, trade reports as to the results of the displays were fairly cheerful. Manufacturers continued to increase output, but in a slow and cautious manner.

Retail trade generally was hampered by extreme weather conditions, unseasonably warm in the east, and cold and stormy over much of the west central area. Wholesale buying showed some expansion, particularly in dry goods, but was largely of a fill-in nature.

Freight car loadings, as reported for Christmas week, showed a drop of more than 200,000 cars from the previous week, and was the smallest for any week since the end of 1923.

Credit rates eased considerably. Call money touched 4 per cent on the New York stock exchange for the first time in nearly two years. Prime commercial paper rates were reduced to 4 3-4 to 5, from 5 to 5 1-4.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(P) Resumption of the gold basis by Japan and restoration of the yen to par will pave the way to Japanese borrowing in foreign markets, in the opinion of bankers here. That country has a large British loan maturing in 1931.

In spite of unsatisfactory conditions in the packing industry, the operations of Wilson & Co., Inc., for the fiscal year ending Nov. 2, 1929, showed an improvement over those of the preceding year. Sales for that period totaled $310,800,000 compared with $296,000,000 in 1928. Net profits for the year amounted to $2,304,593, as against $2,207,870 in the previous year.

On Dec. 31, 1929, the New York Telephone Co. was serving 2,620,057 telephones, a gain of 165,497 during the year. In New York city alone the telephones numbered 1,812,000.

The General Public Service Corp. reports for the year ending Dec. 31, net earnings of $8,385,593, the largest of any year in its history.

Production of crude petroleum from the Simms Petroleum Co.'s lease in the Yates pool in the Texas Panhandle has passed the 4,000,000-barrel mark.

COFFEE DRINKING RACE ENDS WITH A TIE AT 28

The second coffee drinking race took place in the lunch room on East Main street Wednesday evening. Champion Elliott Bennett with his manager, Buster Powers was first to enter the room, ready and in first class shape for the race. They took their special seats on the left as the crowd gave the champion an ovation. Then his rival, Rollin Rathbun, the man who expected to give the champ the heavy oil in the race, came in, with his manager, Happy Go Lucky Billie Fitzgerald. Young Rathbun the record-holder of Noank, was dressed in an English tweed suit, an iron hat and carried a black cane from Scotland. The Johnson sisters had everything ready with flags of all nations hanging in the center of the ceiling. Referee Lawrence Sullivan read the rules for the race. The judges were Robert Tooker and O. Bradshaw. The famous coffee maker, Harry Johnson had a [illegible] full of coffee and was all ready to serve the [illegible]. It was around 8:30 when Referee Sullivan tossed a new 14-cent [illegible], the [illegible] in [illegible] away in the [illegible] direct [illegible]. The coin read "heads" so Quick-sign Rathbun was first to start. That gave the champion coffee-hound the chance to see his rival out for the championship to do his stuff. Cook Johnson poured out from the coffee urn 11 cups of nice smoking coffee. By taking them slowly as a baseball pitcher looks over the batter always smiling Rathbun soon had them out of sight, calling for more. Again, Cook Johnson sent 12 more over the long bar. Manager Fitzgerald told his man from the fish and clam town to slow down—put on the brakes, for he had the evening ahead of him. He was ready again to drink the 12 cups before him. The crowd was cheering Young Rathbun along and wanted him to win out over Champion Bennett. Slow as a spider getting out of his web, when a buzz-bee is trying to get him it took Rathbun 22 minutes to down them, making 24 in all. Manager Fitzgerald called for five more cups and four were put away. Game Rathbun tried to get the fifth cup out of sight, but could not so he quit at 28 cups at one sitting. A big noise was let loose from the crowd like a 12 inch gun firing at Fort Wright on a busy day for the National Guardsmen. The hero, of the west side of Bank square, was next, all smiles, with victory in sight. Elliott Jesse Bennett, the coffee champion drinker of Noank and Mystic. So Cook Johnson put 15 cups of coffee on the counter, ready for action. He started off like a kid eating Thanksgiving pie and had 7 cups away in 5 minutes, so Manager Powers with his Pearl street voice that could be heard in Old Mystic said "Here Good Looking Bennett slow down, and cut out the curves, for 28 cups is some job to beat." Bennett sank the 15 cups of coffee, never to come back. Manager Powers told Cook Johnson 14 more cups would fix up Bennett for the evening. The crowd gave Manager Powers the big raspberries for his line of talk. When Bennett finished his 20th cup, the judges told Referee Sullivan that they thought the champion had something under his vest to catch the coffee, for it looked as if Hard Luck Bennett showed signs of weakening in the race. House Manager Mike Mahoney examined the champion and found he had 3 vests and his heavy underwear on. The referee said "Let the race go on!" Again he reached for his 28th cup and had a hard job to finish it, and his left hand reached out for the 29th cup, the one to beat his rival Rathbun, but could not raise it to his lips and said, "It is no use! I've got no room for that one in my dark alley!" So the coffee-drinking race was a tie as each sank 28 cups. The crowd of 200 cheered and at first House Manager Mahoney thought the floor would let go. The time was, Rathbun 1 hour and 16 minutes, Bennett of the two towns, Noank and Mystic on the coffee drinking line time was 1 hour and 23 minutes, a little slower than his rival. Judges Tooker and Bradshow gave the good sports to pull off the race a $2.50 gold piece each, also a tie.

Manager Powers and Manager Fitzgerald made arrangements for the next coffee drinking contest on the last day of January and Dr. Williams the well known checker player of Water street paid for the coffee.

CORNELL AND PATROL CRAFT IN SEARCH OF RUM-RUNNERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12.— Chief Boatswain's ate Alexander Cornell and the patrol boat 290, United States Coast Guard, together with five other patrol boats put to sea Saturday afternoon and evening in search of rum-runners. Cornell and the 290 affected the capture of the speed launch Black Duck with a cargo of liquor in Narragansett Bay two weeks ago, when machine gun fire from the patrol boat killed three of the four members of the crew and the fourth man was seriously wounded.

CITY IS GROWING GOOD— NO ARREST IN TWO DAYS

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12.— Not a single arrest has been made by the police since Friday, a record unusual for the New London police department. Not even a bluejacket was corralled in the police dragnet, which would indicate that pleasure seekers have curbed their habits since the New Year began.

A committee to arrange for the annual dance of the Italian Ladies' Aid society include Mrs. Antone Leverone and Mrs. Frank Caracausa, chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Otto Aimetti, Mrs. Joseph Coppo, Mrs. G. B. Musante, Mrs. Louis Bullani, Mrs. Mary Sandore, Mrs. Grace Sachatella, Mrs. Milly Santacroce, Mrs. Lucy Sachatella, Mrs. Louise Pennella, Mrs. Mattie Brooks, Mrs. Theresa Gentilella, Miss Josephine Campagna, Mrs. Josephine Baude, Miss Mary DiCarlo, Mrs. Dominica Piscatella, Mrs. Mary Romano, Mrs. Josephine Irlandi, Miss Anna Zito, Julia Taglianetti, Mrs. Louis Conti and Mrs. Antoinette Castenza.

An automobile reported stolen from the street here tonight, a short time later was found abandoned, but a short distance from where it had been taken.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held [illegible] evening. It began with [illegible] Parish house at 6 o'clock. [illegible] by acting [illegible] at the tables. After the supper all adjourned to the [illegible] audience room of the church [illegible] were led by the pastor, Rev. [illegible] C. Stone, in a short devotional service. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the clerk, [illegible] William S. Lee, who also called the roll, many interesting responses being given both by those present and absent, who gave evidence of their spiritual presence by sending responses through relatives and friends. The clerk's report showed the present membership to be 125, a net gain of five over losses by death and letters of transferrence. There were but two deaths among the membership during the year: Hon. Angus Park and Mrs. Mary Lyon. The reports submitted by the principal officers of the various societies connected with the church showed that in all lines of the work the accustomed loyalty had been manifested and the work remarkably well maintained. While the usual results were recorded both within the parish and in the outside world, each treasurer was able to report a balance with which to begin the work of the new year. Special mention was made of the gift of a piano by Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Allen of Norwich, and the drilling of a well and installing a pump at the parsonage property, both of which additions to the church plant are highly appreciated. The nominating committee, Mrs. William G. Park, Miss Gladys Crombie and Myron Allen, presented a list of the names of those whom they would nominate for officers for the ensuing year. Their report was accepted and adopted, and the meeting adjourned after the singing of: "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and the benediction.

Among those who have been with friends during the holidays, but who were missed at the annual meeting owing to the opening of the eastern colleges were the Misses Peck, Mr. and Miss Lebourveau and Miss Ladd.

SIGNS OF GRADUAL IMPROVEMENT IN INDUSTRY WERE NOTED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 12—(AP)—The first full week of the year has brought visible signs of gradual improvement in industry.

New commitments, however, are being made cautiously, and many executives are inclined to look for a rather unsatisfactory first quarter. Nevertheless, business conditions are generally found more favorable than was hoped for a month ago, and there is considerable optimism regarding the long-range outlook.

The steel industry has shown definite although moderate improvement. Ingot production, which fell to 40 per cent of rated capacity during the year-end shutdowns, has returned to above 60 per cent, which compares with about 85 per cent a year ago. The trade looks for moderately increasing business, and predicts that operations will reach 65 per cent of capacity before the end of the month.

The automotive industry turned its attention to the reception of new models at the New York show. On the whole, trade reports as to the results of the displays were fairly cheerful. Manufacturers continued to increase output, but in a slow and cautious manner.

Retail trade generally was hampered by extreme weather conditions, unseasonably warm in the east, and cold and stormy over much of the west central area. Wholesale buying showed some expansion, particularly in dry goods, but was largely of a fill-in nature.

Freight car loadings, as reported for Christmas week, showed a drop of more than 200,000 cars from the previous week, and was the smallest for any week since the end of 1923.

Credit rates eased considerably. Call money touched 4 per cent on the New York stock exchange for the first time in nearly two years. Prime commercial paper rates were reduced to 4 3-4 to 5, from 5 to 5 1-4.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP) Resumption of the gold basis by Japan and restoration of the yen to par will pave the way to Japanese borrowing in foreign markets, in the opinion of bankers here. That country has a large British loan maturing in 1931.

In spite of unsatisfactory conditions in the packing industry, the operations of Wilson & Co., Inc., for the fiscal year ending Nov. 2, 1929, showed an improvement over those of the preceding year. Sales for that period totaled $310,000,000 compared with $306,000,000 in 1928. Net profits for the year amounted to $2,804,508, as against $2,207,876 in the previous year.

On Dec. 31, 1929, the New York Telephone Co. was serving 2,630,087 telephones, a gain of 165,497 during the year. In New York city alone the telephones numbered 1,812,000.

The General Public Service Corp. reports for the year ending Dec. 31, net earnings of $3,395,898, the largest of any year in its history.

Production of crude petroleum from the Simms Petroleum Co.'s lease in the Yates pool in the Texas Panhandle has passed the 4,000,000-barrel mark.

NOANK

Miss Mildred Daboll, student nurse at the Hartford hospital, has returned after a short visit with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. John Daboll.

William Davis is a clerk in the local Atlantic & Pacific store.

Samuel Latham has returned to Ridgefield Park, N. J., after a visit with local friends.

The Reading club is to meet with Mrs. William Hill Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Minnie Palmer, who is employed in the office of the Westerly hospital, has been spending several days with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Roswell Palmer, of Front street.

Jack Buckley of Hartford was a recent caller on local friends.

Washington council, Junior O. U. A. M., is to meet Tuesday evening, at which time the officers will be installed.

The Whirlwind basketball team defeated the Stonington Maroons in the Town hall Friday evening, 62 to 10, the local boys outpointing the visiting team in all ways. Sweet and D. Robertson scored heavily for Noank, Sweet with 28 points and D. Robertson with 17 points. The line-up for the local team was: Rf, Robertson; lf, Sweet; c, Clarke and Chesebro; rg, Buddington and H. Robertson; lg, Marks and Butson. There was a large attendance of fans at the game, also a number of out-of-town visitors.

The last meeting of the week of prayer was in charge of the officers of the several missionary societies connected with Noank Baptist church. Miss Charlotte Morgan was the leader. There was a large attendance at the services.

The Silver Link society of the Methodist church is to meet with Mrs. James Ringland Wednesday afternoon.

The "Little Gem" cottage at Groton Long Point has been moved from Shore avenue on the south shore of the Point to the east shore. The large stone house being built by Contractor Emilo Falconi and force of men for Philip Steeger of Hartford is progressing rapidly. Plans are being made for a number of cottages to be built on the Point. Work will start early in the spring.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mosher of New London is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Alice Reid.

Albert Banks, who has been confined to his home by illness, is able to be out.

COFFEE DRINKING RACE ENDS WITH A TIE AT 28

The second coffee drinking race took place in the lunch room on East Main street Wednesday evening. Champion Elliott Bennett with his manager, Buster Powers was first to enter the room, ready and in first class shape for the race. They took their special seats on the left as the crowd gave the champion an ovation. Then his rival, Rollin Rathbun, the man who expected to give the champ the heavy oil in the race, came in, with his manager, Happy Go Lucky Billie Fitzgerald. Young Rathbun the record-holder of Noank, was dressed in an English tweed suit, an iron hat and carried a black cane from Scotland. The Johnson sisters had everything ready with flags of all nations hanging in the center of the ceiling. Referee Lawrence Sullivan read the rules for the race. The judges were Robert Tooker and O. Bradshaw. The famous coffee maker Harry Johnsen had a new looking suit of yellow and was all ready to serve the coffee. It was around 7:30 when Referee Sullivan tossed a new 10-cent piece, the kind John D. Rockefeller gives away in the winter down south. The coin read "heads" so Quick-step Rathbun was first to start. That gave the champion coffee-hound the chance to see his rival out for the championship to do his stuff. Cook Johnson poured out from the coffee mixer 12 cups of nice smelling coffee. So taking them slowly as a baseball pitcher looks over the batter always smiling Rathbun soon had them out of sight, calling for more. Again, Cook Johnson sent 12 more over the long bar. Manager Fitzgerald told his man from the fish and clam town to slow down—put on the brakes, for he had the evening ahead of him. He was ready again to drink the 12 cups before him. The crowd was cheering Young Rathbun along and wanted him to win out over Champion Bennett. Slow as a spider getting out of his web, when a buzz-bee is trying to get him it took Rathbun 22 minutes to down them, making 24 in all. Manager Fitzgerald called for five more cups and four were put away. Game Rathbun tried to get the fifth cup out of sight, but could not so he quit at 28 cups at one sitting. A big noise was let loose from the crowd like a 12 inch gun firing at Fort Wright on a busy day for the National Guardsmen. The hero of the west side of Bank square, was next, all smiles, with victory in sight. Elliott Jesse Bennett, the coffee champion drinker of Noank and Mystic. So Cook Johnson put 15 cups of coffee on the counter, ready for action. He started off like a kid eating Thanksgiving pie and had 7 cups away in 5 minutes, so Manager Powers with his Pearl street voice that could be heard in Old Mystic said "Here Good Looking Bennett slow down, and cut out the curves, for 28 cups is some job to beat." Bennett sank the 15 cups of coffee, never to come back. Manager Powers told Cook Johnson 14 more cups would fix up Bennett for the evening. The crowd gave Manager Powers the big razzberries for his line of talk. When Bennett finished his 20th cup, the judges told Referee Sullivan that they thought the champion had something under his vest to catch the coffee for it looked as if Hard Luck Bennett showed signs of weakening in the race. House Manager Mike Mahoney examined the champion and found he had 3 vests and his heavy underwear on. The referee said "Let the race go on!" Again he reached for his 28th cup and had a hard job to finish it, and his left hand reached out for the 29th cup, the one to beat his rival Rathbun, but could not raise it to his lips and said, "It is no use! I've got no room for that one in my dark alley!" So the coffee-drinking race was a tie as each sank 28 cups. The crowd of 200 cheered and at first House Manager Mahoney thought the floor would let go. The time was, Rathbun 1 hour and 16 minutes, Bennett of the two towns, Noank and Mystic on the coffee drinking line time was 1 hour and 22 minutes, a little slower than his rival. Judges Tooker and Bradshow gave the good sports to pull off the race a $2.50 gold piece each, also a tie.

Manager Powers and Manager Fitzgerald made arrangements for the next coffee drinking contest on the last day of January and Dr. Williams the well known checker player of Water street paid for the coffee.

CORNELL AND PATROL CRAFT IN SEARCH OF RUM-RUNNERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12.— Chief Boatswain's ate Alexander Cornell and the patrol boat 290, United States Coast Guard, together with five other patrol boats put to sea Saturday afternoon and evening in search of rum-runners Cornell and the 290 affected the capture of the speed launch Black Duck with a cargo of liquor in Narragansett Bay two weeks ago, when machine gun fire from the patrol boat killed three of the four members of the crew and the fourth man was seriously wounded.

CITY IS GROWING GOOD— NO ARREST IN TWO DAYS

NEW LONDON Jan. 12.— Not a single arrest has been made by the police since Friday, a record unusual for the New London police department. Not even a bluejacket was corralled in the police dragnet, which would indicate that pleasure seekers have curbed their habits since the New Year began.

A committee to arrange for the annual dance of the Italian Ladies Aid society include Mrs. Antone Leverone and Mrs. Frank Caracausa, chairmen, assisted by Mrs. Otto Aimetti, Mrs. Joseph Coppo, Mrs. G. B. Musante, Mrs. Louis Zuliani, Mrs. Mary Sandoro, Mrs. Grace Sachatella, Mrs. Milly Santacroce, Mrs. Lucy Sachatella, Mrs. Louise Pennella, Mrs. Mattie Brooks, Mrs. Theresa Gentilella, Miss Josephine Campagna, Mrs. Josephine Baude, Miss Mary DiCarlo, Mrs. Dominica Piscatella, Mrs. Mary Romano, Mrs. Josephine Irlandi, Miss Anna Zito, Julia Taglianetti, Mrs. Louis Conti and Mrs. Antoinette Castanza.

An automobile reported stolen from the street here tonight, a short time later was found abandoned, but a short distance from where it had been taken.

HANOVER

Twenty local people saw the pageant "At the Door of the Inn," given by the Franklin people in their church Sunday evening.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held Wednesday evening. It began with supper in the Parish house at 6 o'clock, about ninety being seated at the tables. After the supper all adjourned to the main audience room of the church, and were led by the pastor, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, in a short devotional service. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read by the clerk, Deacon William S. Lee, who also called the roll, many interesting responses being given both by those present and others, who gave evidence of their spiritual prescence by sending responses through relatives and friends. The clerk's report showed the present membership to be 135, a net gain of five over losses by death and letters of transferrence. There were but two deaths among the membership during the year: Hon. Angus Park and Mrs. Mary Lyon. The reports submitted by the principal officers of the various societies connected with the church showed that in all lines of the work the accustomed loyalty had been manifested and wthe work remarkably well maintained. While the usual results were recorded both within the parish and in the outside world, each treasurer was able to report a balance with which to begin the work of the new year. Special mention was made of the gift of a piano by Mr. and Mrs. Dwight L. Allen of Norwich, and the drilling of a well and installing a pump at the parsonage property, both of which additions to the church plant are highly appreciated. The nominating committee, Mrs. William G. Park, Miss Gladys Crombie and Myron Allen, presented a list of the names of those whom they would nominate for officers for the ensuing year. Their report was accepted and adopted, and the meeting adjourned after the singing of: "Blest be the Tie that Binds" and the benediction.

Among those who have been with friends during the holidays, but who were missed at the annual meeting owing to the opening of the eastern colleges were the Misses Peck, Mr. and Miss Lebourveau and Miss Ladd.

EAGLEVILLE

Mrs. George Eaton and daughter spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Warren of South Coventry.

CATHOLIC PARISH RECEIPTS FOR PAST YEAR $33,391

An interesting financial summary for the past year was read to his parishioners at the different masses Sunday morning by Rev. J. Francis Vincent, S. M., pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

The report disclosed that the total receipts of the year were $33,391.57. In spite of heavy expenditures, including the building of an addition to the chapel at Misquamicut, the sum of $15,000 was applied toward the reduction of the debt of the parish.

The Misquamicut chapel enlargement cost $7,428. The parish debt at the present time is $25,000. The report showed that the source of income for the amount raised was through weekly contributions, the annual collection and entertainments. A school library has been established at the school on High street with 300 volumes and other volumes will be purchased and added to the collection during the year. The gymnasium at the school is now being equipped. Geoffrey L. Moore has provided the necessary basketball equipment and the children are organizing teams among themselves and enjoying the sport each afternoon.

Jan. 10. John H. Austin sold to Irving R. Rowe and wife land on the easterly side of the Noose Neck Hill road, easterly from the Norman Farm tract, bounded by the Pawcatuck river.

At 2 p. m. Sunday a whistle fire alarm signal of the Westerly fire department was sounded from Box No. 325, Westerly-Watch Hill road near Mt. Pleasant farm. Members of the department responded, only to find the alarm a false one.

PROHIBITION OBSERVANCE IS TO BE A WEEK LATE

Fred B. Perkins of Providence, former United States district attorney is expected to be in Westerly Sunday evening, Jan. 26th as the principal speaker at the observance of the 10th anniversary of prohibition. The Westerly observance in a joint union meeting of the Protestant churches and the W. C. T. U., comes a week later this year than the actual date due to the fact that arrangements could not be made following so closely after the observance of the Week of Prayer by these churches for union evening services. The program is in charge of the Westerly Pastors' association, Rev. Arnt L. Schoning, pastor of the Broad Street Christian church, president, Rev. Luther G. Coburn, pastor of Pawcatuck Congregational church, secretary.

New Rifles For Club

The tenth annual meeting of Westerly Rifle club, William A. Stillwell, president, is to be held Friday evening next in the company room of the Dixon street state armory. During the past week new Springfield rifles have been received direct from the U. S. A. National Rifle association, Washington, D. C., shipped from the governmental arsenal.

George P. Celia of Pawcatuck is a member of a Westerly part with New York relatives and friends who have attended New York theatres the past week.

STATE MASTER COUNCILLOR TO SUPERVISE CEREMONIAL

Westerly chapter, Order of De Molay for Boys is to hold its meeting Monday, in the Masonic rooms. William Hustwit is the present master councilor and Carl F. Anderson of Watch Hill, the "Dad," William E. Arnold, state master councillor, and his suite will be present.

Mrs. Gertrude Foster Nash of Wells street announces the engagement of her daughter, Lillabelle, to Robert Allen Wilcox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Wilcox, of Newton avenue.

Budlong Woman's Relief Corp., No. 2 Thursday evening at headquarters, Caledonian hall, an open installation for friends and patriotic organizations. Present were: Commander Tefft and Adjutant J. Rooney of Budlong post, No. 18, G. A. R., R. I. department; President Mrs. Thompson and staff, Hancock W. R. C.; Trumbull W. R. C. Stonington and Harriet Beecher Stowe tent, D. of U. V. C. OBITUARY

Daniel J. Whalen

Daniel J. Whalen, retired Canal street merchant, died Saturday in Providence where he had been a patient after a long illness. He was born in Stonington, Conn., Jan. 27, 1877, the son of Mrs. Whalen and the late John Whalen. He was educated in the Stonington schools. He had spent most of his life in Westerly. Mr. Whalen had been retired from active business for some time. At one time he was foreman of the P. S. Barber Hose Co., and was a member of Westerly lodge, No. 678, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Besides his wife, Catharine Jordan Whalen, Mrs. Whalen is survived by five brothers: Patrick and Thomas Whalen of Westerly; William of Fall River, Mass.; Edward of Summer street, this town and Joseph Whalen of Boston, and by two sisters, Miss Mary Whalen of New York and Miss Catherine Whalen, of Westerly.

Capt. H. Russell Burdick and Farguhar Smith returned Saturday night from a motor business trip to Cromwell, Conn.

Leo C. Gaffney and Oliver W. Stoddary were motor visitors in Providence Sunday.

Elmer E. Babcock left for Boston Friday and is remaining at the Peter Brent Brigham hospital under observation.

Charles J. Norris, Pawcatuck fire district tax collector, remains in Boston where he is undergoing treatment at the Deaconness' hospital.

At Pawcatuck, Patrolman Adin R. Sheldon on Saturday began two weeks' duty as day patrolman while Officer George L. Seidell returned to the night patrol shift.

Constance T. Cundall of Pawcatuck has returned from a week end visit in Boston.

Miss Mabel A. Saunders, deputy town clerk of Westerly, was a week end visitor with Mrs. Julia G. Davis, formerly of Westerly, at her home in Brookline, Mass.

Fred S. Binns of White Rock, accompanied by his sister from Philadelphia, passengers on the liner Berengaria, landed at Southampton, England Friday, according to word received by Westerly relatives.

MYSTIC

The D. A. R. magazine, just out, contains articles of interest to Daughters of the American Revolution in Connecticut. The second article, on Bookplates, by Florence S. Berryman, contains the Bookplate of Elizabeth Clark Hull chapter, of Ansonia, engraved on copper by William S. Hopson. Mr. Hopson is four-score years old, is a native of Connecticut and still produces superb designs. The Hull chapter plate, reproduced, shows the ship Constitution in full sail in a fast-running sea. Two pages of the magazine are devoted to Mrs. Mary H. S. Johnston, the first woman mayor in the United States, of Humboldt, Iowa. She is now serving her second term of two years as mayor. She is a cousin of Mrs. Seth N. Williams of the Road Church district. On her visit to Mrs. Williams, two years ago, many in Mystic had the opportunity of meeting her. At a special meeting of the D. A. R. in Washington, D. C., Dec. 10, 1,250 persons were admitted to membership in the society, making a total of 170,779, the largest membership in the history of the organization. Connecticut added 55 members at that time, making her membership 6,234.

There was an exceptionally fine attendance at the very interesting meeting of the Workers' Conference held in the vestry of the Union Baptist church, Thursday evening. At 6:45, a bountiful supper was served. Then followed the business meeting, during which Rev. Mr. Shepler, the pastor, gave an interesting talk. Reports of the Christmas entertainment committee and of the piano committee were heard. It was voted to try the duplex envelope system in the Sunday school from the junior department on, up to the adults. It is hoped that there will be more systematic giving by using envelopes, as used in the church. The committee for the evening was Miss Clara Burnet, for Mrs. L. P. Allyn, who was unable to be present; Mrs. D. H. Bennett, Mrs. Lillian Packer, Mrs. C. H. Sweet and Miss Harriet Fish.

Phoebe Packer Rathbun tent, No. 3, Daughters of the Union Veterans of the Civil War, is to meet this (Monday) evening. This is the first meeting to be held under the new schedule, that is, meeting the second fourth Monday evenings, instead of on Wednesday as heretofore. This evening, there will be a covered dish supper at 6:30, to which the Sons of Veterans have been invited. At 8 o'clock, the installation of the recently elected officers will be held with Past Department President Mrs. Edith B. Lamb, installing officer.

When Pequot temple, No. 24, Pythian Sisters, meets this (Monday) evening officers will be installed by District Deputy Grand Chief Mrs. Gertrude Norris of Apollo temple, No. 14, of Middletown; she will be assisted by Grand Senior Mrs. Violet Forbes of Mystic and Grand Manager Mrs. Charlotte Fowler of Clover temple, No. 7, Norwich. Orient temple, No. 41, of Danielson; Clover temple, No. 7, of Norwich; Goff temple, No. 1, of New London and Wilcox temple, No. 6, of Westerly, have been invited to be present. Following the business meeting, there will be a social time. The committee is Mrs. Earl Finney, Mrs. Louis Sklarew and Mrs. Nicholas Duerr.

At a recent open installation of Orient lodge, K. of P., and Orient temple, No. 41, of Danielson, held in Danielson, District Deputy Grand Chancellor Henry Ritzle, Grand Vice-Chancellor Clyde J. Clendennen, Grand Master-at-Arms Charles Stribl and Grand Prelate Fred Bethel, all of Mystic, assisted in the installation ceremonies. Mrs. Clendennen, Mrs. Stribl, Mrs. Ritzle and Mrs. Herman Eldredge, with the above mentioned, attended the meeting.

FUNERAL

Franklin A. Chapman

Funeral services for Franklin Alonzo Chapman, 86, who died in the Boston hospital Wednesday, Jan. 8, were held at Elm Grove cemetery chapel, Friday afternoon at 3:30. Rev. Homer C. Moore, pastor of Old Mystic Methodist church, conducted the services. The bearers were Charles H. Burdick, Joseph Desley, William S. Walbridge and Lawrence Williams, all of Old Mystic. Mr. Chapman was born in Hopkinton, R. I., July 10, 1843, the son of Israel Clarke Chapman and Artimisia Tanner. July 5, 1870, he was united in marriage with Mary Jane Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benajah Davis of Old Mystic, and four children were born to them. Two died in infancy. The other two were Mrs. Lucy Polley of Waltham, Mass., with whom her father had made his home for several winters, and Miss Agnes Chapman of Boston, Mass. His wife died on Feb. 24, 1929. Mr. Chapman was a Seventh Day Baptist, until he united with Old Mystic Methodist church Jan. 1, 1891. He was a trustee of this church for several years. He was well known in the two villages, having been in the meat business for many years. Of late years he had raised vegetables and other farm produce. Even though he was in ill health for the past several years, he always insisted on coming back to his old home in Mystic for the summer season. Besides his two daughters, two granddaughters, Misses Bertha and Betty Polley of Waltham, Mass., survive.

Mrs. Albert Sherburne of New London spent the week end with her aunt, Mrs. Alice Sherburne, of High street.

Mrs. C. L. Crouch has been confined to her home for the past week with a severe grip cold.

W. A. Phillips and Mrs. Emily B. Holmes were in Westerly Friday.

Friends of Mrs. Kate I. Bennett, who has been ill, are glad to hear that she is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Attmore Tucker has returned to Providence, after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hewitt.

Mrs. Edward P. Clark of Stonington has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Lucy Brown, of Quiambaug.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Clendennen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stribl, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ritzle, Mrs. Charles Craig, Mrs. Donald Forbes, Mrs. Zenas Snyder, Nicholas Duerr, Moses Craig and Mr. Stevens were in New London Thursday evening and attended the meeting of Goff temple, No. 1.

STONINGTON

Sixteen members of the Lions' club held their meeting and supper at a local restaurant Thursday. After the supper the Christmas Fund committee, Paul Schepis, Dr. Owen J. Denehey, John Bindloss and Samuel Stewart, Jr., made their report. The president, Theodore Dewhurst, presided.

A fire on Napatree Point on Thursday attracted attention, illuminating the sky for about two hours and finally burning itself out. The blaze started in the heavy grass.

The pupils of Miss Florence Buck are rehearsing for a public musical. The program will be in two parts, the first a story taken from the childhood of a composer, Franz Schubert, in Vienna before his school days, 1805-1806. The second part will be a Mother Goose story in which 24 pupils will participate. The parents and friends will be invited.

Ex-Chief Ross of New London has presented the Hook and Ladder company of Stonington five pictures reminiscent of the days when fire engines were drawn by horses. The pictures have been framed and will be hung on the walls of the company rooms.

PRESTON

The annual meeting of Preston City Baptist church was held Wednesday. The meeting was called to order by Allen Burdick, chairman of the board of trustees. Mrs. Appleton Main was chosen moderator of the meeting. The reports of both church treasurer and benevolent treasurer showed an advance both in the material and benevolence line. The following officers were elected: Church treasurer, Appleton Main; clerk, Charles C. Zabriskie; benevolent treasurer, Mrs. Charles Zabriskie; collectors, Donald Zabriskie and Richard Cox; auditors, J. F. Richardson and Otis Browning; members of board of trustees for three years, Allen B. Burdick and Otis Browning. Following the business meeting the members and friends present were invited to a very appetizing dinner served by the Ladies' Aid society. After the lunch hour the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held. Reports of the officers and committees showed that a splendid amount of work had been accomplished during the year and the officers were re-elected.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held Tuesday at 12.30. A fine dinner was served by the Ladies' society of the church. At 2 o'clock the meeting was called to order by the clerk, Clifton Dawley. Reports were given by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Clark, the clerk, Clifton Dawley, treasurer, G. V. Shedd, Sunday school, Home department, Mrs. G. W. Clark, Primary department, Mrs. Charles Geisthard, Ladies' Missionary society, Mrs. Nathan Hall, World Wide guild, Mrs. Betty Main, Ladies' Aid society, Miss Florence Kennedy. Officers were: Clerk for three years, Clifton Dawley, re-elected; treasurer, G. V. Shedd, re-elected; one deacon, Sterry Pierce; one member board trustees for three years, Ernest Kennedy; two members standing committee, Mrs. G. V. Shedd and Mrs. Clifton Dawley; two members to attend association meetings, Miss Annie MacClimon and Mrs. G. W. Clark; cemetery committee, Sterry Pierce. It was voted to hold the annual meeting the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January; also to revise the manual and the matter was left in the hands of the pastor, deacons, clerk and treasurer.

The January meeting of the school board was held at the home of Nathan Hall Wednesday afternoon.

Relatives were in Danielson Wednesday to attend the funeral of Ernest Prue.

The leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening was Roger Robbins and the topic was, "Why Pray for Others?"

Rev. Mr. Brothwell of Greeneville Baptist church was the speaker at the local Baptist church Sunday morning. Rev. J. A. Smith was speaker at the Greeneville church.

PENDLETON HILL

Llewellyn and Richard Palmer are suffering from an infection which affects their eyes.

Warm weather and bright sunny skies have done much to draw the frost out of the ground and settle the mud.

Mrs. Lucy Lester is ill with pleurisy.

The church supper contemplated by the sewing society has been indefinitely postponed for the present.

ack Lines Lowered to Sun's Rays As Elite Loll On Winter Beaches

Sun backs are fewer than ever at Florida resorts this winter

MIAMI BEACH, Jan. 12. —(AP)— arket item: Sun backs dropped vis- ly in a "bare" movement on the ach here, but on the whole a althy tone is being displayed.

Bathers caught in the depression e taking their losses very prettily, deed, and about the only comment an admonition to backslappers:)on't touch me!"

Thus the world's greatest suntan factory backs up to 1930, starting in, as far as the back line is concerned, just about where it stopped last year. There have been many changes in details, but the original body lines are the same.

Sun-backs are far deeper in this winter's beach wear and what might have been a little advanced for last season is quite temperate.

The styles range from a full back, with only a loop about the neck for purposes of support, to V's with deep but not wide exposures. Another design features crossed suspenders in back.

The deeper V has been incorporated in swimming suits and light dresses, as well, to a marked extent.

Beach pajamas and coolie coats in astouding vivid colors are battling with the sun-backs, but the northern lass who wants a browner back to take home isn't too interested.

3RYAN'S DAUGHTER EVER JUST A SKIP AHEAD OF CLASSES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Ruth yan Owen, member of congress and oted for her trim, attractive appear- ce, used to tie a silk umbrella cov- round her waist when she couldn't d her belt!

Former teachers and classmates om the University of Nebraska smil- gly recall the ingenious make-shift stumes in which Ruth used to skid to the class room at the last min- te. Her life in those days was one antic dash for street cars.

These old friends meet her now at rmal dinners and receptions. They ote her beautiful costumes of black silver, her waved gray hair. A kle comes into their eyes.

"emember the time——" they be- The woman member of congress joins in their laughter over the reminiscences.

Roberta H. Christensen of Lincoln, now Nebraska correspondent for the General Federation of Women's clubs, says that Ruth went through the university on a hop, skip and jump.

"Her home was crosstown from the university," she says. "Ruth usually finished her hit and miss toilet and her hastily snatched breakfasts on the little suburban bench by the car line. Those were the days when hats were hats and off with the old, on with the new was one of Ruth's pet last minute diversions.

The story of the silk umbrella cover which she tied round her waist one morning when she could not find her belt is now a Delta Gamma classic at the university.

cup cooked lima beans
-3 cup diced celery tablespoons chopped onions
-2 cup diced raw carrots
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon pepper
6 cups water
4 cups milk
3 tablespoons butter

Mix beans, celery, onions, carrots, salt, pepper and water. Cook 30 minutes in covered pan over slow fire. Add other ingredients and cook 5 minutes. Leftover bits of cooked meat or other vegetables can be added.

Potatoes and Ham Escalloped (6) cups sliced, cooked potatoes tablespoon finely chopped onion tablespoons butter

tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1-4 teaspoon celery salt
1 slice baked ham cut 1 inch thick

Melt butter and add flour. Blend and add milk and cook until a creamy sauce forms. Place ham in shallow baking dish, add other ingredients to sauce mixture and pour over ham. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven.

Date Nut Loaf

1-2 cup fat
1 1-4 cups sugar eggs teaspoon vanilla teaspoon cinnamon
1-2 teaspoon cloves
1-4 teaspoon salt
2-3 cup sour milk or buttermilk
2 1-2 cups flour
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup chopped dates
1-2 cup nuts

Cream fat and sugar. Add other ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Pour in large loaf pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 40 minutes in moderately slow oven.

If lemons become hard, soak them for half an hour in warm water and they will yield much more juice than if squeezed when they were hard and dry.

STYLE MAKERS SEEK TO STABILIZE SKIRTS

PARIS, Jan. 12—(AP)—Certain powerful dressmakers have a little pact of Paris of their own. It aims, among other things, to arbitrate international misunderstandings like the proper length of skirts.

Long skirts have gone far enough, in the opinion of most of the important dressmakers.

Evening dresses are down to the toes or actually touch the floor.

But in the matter of how long skirts for street and sport wear should be, Paris maintains it has been misunderstood.

Most of the style makers protest against lengthening of street skirts. They want to see them left as they are now in the leading establishments, eight to four inches below the knees. They agree that the average woman's daytime clothes must be practical as well as beautiful to succeed.

Thus street costumes and sport clothes will remain at their present level in next spring's collections, now in preparation for exhibitions.

WOMAN CHAUFFEURS GROW TO POPULARITY IN LONDON

LONDON, Jan. 12—(AP)—The latest fad adopted by London's haute monde is woman chauffeurs, complete in trim uniforms, powder puffs and spare parts.

The season's grandest social functions have had an ever increasing, pleasant concomitant of feminine drivers parked across the street waiting for the conclusion of the festivities.

Employment bureaus say the demand for them is increasing daily, and that they have proven themselves possessed of two admirable qualities . . . punctuality and patience.

They are paid the same wages as men.

SIMPLE AND WORLDLY ARE TONES OF GOWNS

PALM BEACH, Jan. 12—(AP)—The simple girlish frock and the subtle sophisticated gown are running neck and neck in the Palm Beach evening parade.

The simple type is usually of some pastel shade or white, with that sweet girl graduate appearance suggestive of the naive 90's.

VELVET GAINS FAVOR FOR FORMAL FROCKS

A new velvet, that has the richness of hatter's push yet is as light as thistledown, is in vogue.

Women Would Carry Mails

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Their desire to become policewomen having been thwarted, Turkish women are demanding the right to become postwomen. Anti-feminists say the women are seeking such jobs to satisfy their thirst for perpetual gadding.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Cross Face

Mrs. Wallace was showing to a visitor a recent photograph of Billy, nicknamed "Cross Face."

"My dear, don't tell me this is Billy. How did you ever get him to look so happy?"

"Yes, I know. It's wonderful, isn't it? You would never know him for the thundercloud that he is, would you? I just told him that if he would get his picture taken like a good boy I'd let him go riding. And he was so pleased that he sat like an angel."

"That was clever. And how does he like the riding?"

"Well, that didn't turn out. It would have been awfully difficult to make all the necessary arrangements."

It is not hard to guess at least one reason why so much of the time Billy wears that sullen and belligerent expression which has won him his nickname.

A mother who promises lightly, who thinks nothing of breaking her promises, who bribes simply to gain her own end, is one who could scarcely expect to have a sunny and responsive child.

When a child has an unpleasant disposition it is usually his parents' fault. Healthy, happy children naturally have pleasant, happy faces, and when children are not happy it is because they are not being wisely and affectionately handled.

What kind of parent have you been? In your child's face you can read the answer to your own question.

SHIRT WAIST DRESS POPULAR FOR SPORT

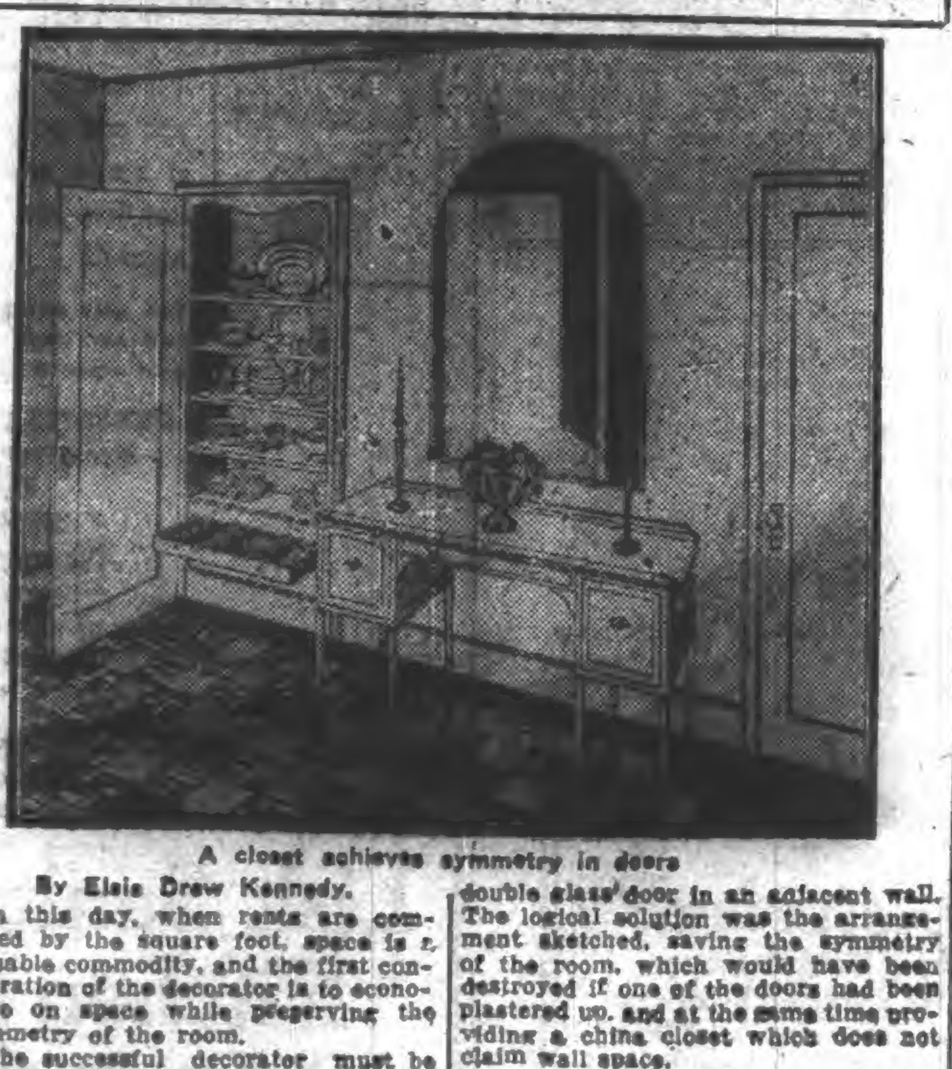
PALM BEACH, Jan. 12—(AP)—The shirt waist dress is much in demand this season for Florida sports wear.

Of one piece, in novelty silk, it features a full skirt, box plaited all around. The waist line has climbed a bit and the broad belt is finished in rows of stitching. The collar, if there is one, frequently is a variation of the Byronic type and is stitched like the belt.

Rouge Thesis Wins Degree

SENDAI, Japan, Jan. 12.—(AP)— A thesis on beni, a rare form of rouge produced in China and highly prized by women throughout the Orient, gained for Miss Chika Kuroda the second doctor of science degree ever awarded a woman by the universities of Japan.

CHINA CLOSET FROM AN UNNECESSARY DOOR



A closet achieves symmetry in doors

By Elsie Drew Kennedy.

In this day, when rents are computed by the square foot, space is a valuable commodity, and the first consideration of the decorator is to economize on space while preserving the symmetry of the room.

The successful decorator must be quite a clever person as well as something of an engineer. This problem of space vs. symmetry has been happily solved by a brilliant young decorator of my acquaintance in a small house in the suburbs of New York where live a young married couple of artistic taste whose salary is the sort that most young married people must be happy on.

In renovating this charming home for its new occupants, it was decided that the house should run mostly to living room, which meant sacrificing the space of the dining room. Here, then, by the cleverness of the decorator, space must be suggested by color, proportion and arrangement of furniture.

Of the two doors in the wall section sketched above, one leads into the kitchen, the other into a hall. The living room is entered from a large double glass door in an adjacent wall. The logical solution was the arrangement sketched, saving the symmetry of the room, which would have been destroyed if one of the doors had been plastered up, and at the same time providing a china closet which does not claim wall space.

This closet is made of composition board, inexpensive and durable, and a piece is scalloped out in graceful design and backed up to the door jamb to form a decorative frame when the closet doors is opened.

At the bottom a substantial wood chest of drawers provides a place for flat silver and such flat pieces as cake plates, trays, vegetable dishes and so forth; and if desired, fine linen. The dishes are arranged on the several shelves, which may be placed at any desired distance apart.

Inlaid linoleum in deep red, simulating tile, was chosen for the floor because tile suggests spacious rooms while the color introduces a note of warmth. The large mirror over the severely plain console reflects the windows opposite, adding immeasurably to the space and brightness of the room.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Choose the head of cabbage by its weight rather than size.

Rub Indian meal over a greasy sink and it will be much easier to clean it.

When making fruit salad squeeze a little lemon juice over the cut bananas to prevent discoloration.

Vinegar is excellent for setting dark colors, using one-fourth cup of vinegar to one quart of water.

To mend a lace curtain that is torn, iron a piece of starched net over the hole, instead of darning it.

Pitted prunes cut in small pieces and added to the last kneading of bread dough makes a very delicious bread.

Soiled leaves of house plants can be cleaned by applying equal parts of milk and warm water. Use a sponge and rub gently to prevent breaking the leaves.

When paring turnips remove quite a bit of the outer skin. The turnip has an outer part that will destroy the flavor of the vegetable if not removed.

When stewing fresh fruits, add the sugar just a minute or two before removing from the stove. This process brings out the fresh fruity taste.

To prevent new tinware from rusting rub the surface with lard and thoroughly heat in the oven before using; it will never rust no matter how much it is placed in water.

To keep meat from scorching while roasting or from becoming too brown, place a dish of water in the oven. The rising steam will prevent scorching and the meat will cook better.

To prevent eggs from bursting while boiling, prick one end of each egg with a needle before placing them in water. This makes an outlet for air and keeps the shells from cracking.

If gravy is lumpy, beat with an egg-beater until the lumps disappear. When gravy does not brown as it should, add to it a tablespoon of strong coffee. The addition of a tablespoon of cream to brown gravy makes it a delicious brown.

SOUR CREAM

Sour cream should be cherished. It is superb as a dressing for cucumbers, makes cream cheese taste like fresh cottage cheese and used as a dressing over stuffed plums or other tart fruit salads can not be excelled.

GREASE

When frying fish or anything that is likely to spatter grease, it is a good suggestion to slip an ordinary paper bag over the hand holding the work. Many a nasty burn will be avoided.

FLOOR WAX

An inexpensive floor wax may be made at home and found very successful, as it keeps the floors their original light color. To one-half cake melted paraffin add one teaspoonful turpentine. Apply to the clean floor with a cloth, then polish with a woolen cloth or weighted brush.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A small steel pen answers as well as a screw driver when tightening the tiny screws in eyeglasses.

Mercolized wax rubbed into the cuticle every night before retiring keeps the skin from getting hard and preserves the manicure longer.

White spots on the nails are usually the result of carelessness in manicuring. In pushing back the cuticle, use care. As the nails grow out the spots will disappear.

If your new frock has a round neck line that isn't especially becoming to you, a long string of pearls or other beads heavy enough to hang in a V shape will cut the round line and give the proper effect.

One of the best remedies for burns is equal parts of linseed oil and lime water applied with a soft cloth and then covered with a soft cloth to keep out the air. It is well to keep a bottle of this solution on hand for emergencies.

LIKE WATER WARM

Cut flowers will last much longer during the winter months if they are put into lukewarm water when they come from the florist.

BUREAU COVER

Instead of using a colored pad under a lace bureau cover, line cover with china silk to harmonize with the color scheme in the room. Place a piece of white oil-cloth, smooth side up, on the bureau. The silk lining will adhere to this and the cover will lie flat.

JUST FOR COMPANY

To put upon the couch or to stand up upon the floor, nothing could be more amusing than a very square and solid velvet elephant. These animals are about a foot high and come in black, blue, corral and violet velvet.

GREEN AND WHITE

A lovely set of tablecloth and napkins is made of green and white damask in a large block pattern. The napkins are beautifully embroidered with a green monogram done on the white space.

MEDICINE

Never keep a bottle of medicine in the medicine chest without a label. It is very foolish to trust to one's memory in an important thing like this. Mark each bottle plainly and discard at once any unlabeled bottle before any accident occurs.

FLOWER FROGS

All long-stemmed flowers, such as roses, daisies and sweet peas, make a much more charming bouquet if the first few are stuck into the holes of a flower frog placed at the bottom of the vase. This forms a stable working base for a bouquet.

STAINS

Stains on polished surfaces caused by wet or hot dishes may be removed, if not too deeply imbedded in the wood, as follows: Wash with suds made with white soap. Rinse, dry and, with a soft cloth dipped in a solution made of one tablespoon of alcohol to four tablespoons of water, rub around the spot with a circular motion.

DICTATES OF FASHION

The all-white formal gown continues to vie with that of color.

Calfskin suede—white with a green dot—is mentioned as a trimming for spring hats.

Evening handkerchiefs are longer than ever—reaching knee-length when trailing from the hand.

New shoe buckles are exceedingly simple, with a tendency toward the square or baguet shape. In crystal they are charming and so smart.

Under the frock of black velvet it is pleasant to wear an adorable slip of black chiffon trimmed with deep rose beige lace.

Three-quarter black rough woolen coats with black fur collars are worn by many smart women in Paris over afternoon dresses of black satin.

A romantic formal daytime frock is of green brocaded lame. Its sleeves are long and tight, its bodice tight, and its full skirt hangs in dipping lines.

A new fancy in pins either for a dress or a hat is similar to the safety pin, only it is sparkling with rhinestones set in silver and is of a graceful design.

BLOUSE BLUES.

The rare blue tones seen in mammoth bodies of water seem to have been captured by textile artists in search of flattering colors for satins and crepes suitable for blouses. These various blue tones, some light in value, others with a green cast are readily worn by even those possessing indifferent complexions. The blue to select is that which enhances the color of the eyes.

TWEEDS APPEAR IN MANY COLORS

Tweeds have evolved from the monotony of grays, tans and greens to lovely colors such as red, purple, blue, and rich shades of brown. The jacket suit of such a tweed requires a tuck-in blouse of plain color and modified shade or contrast. A brown tweed suit, for illustration, having a fleck of beige in its weave and collared in a shaded or ombre lapin is striking with a blouse of golden crepe.

RICH FABRIC FOR NEGLIGEES

Whether or not the trousered pajama would survive the trend toward extreme femininity is a question soon settled by the appearance of hostess pajamas made of luxurious fabrics in distinctly femininie styles. Lame, velvet, chiffon and other lovely materials of the mode combine to add beauty and richness to the pajama fashion. Even the uneven hemline appears in the pajama whose trouser hems trail gracefully. The flowing sleeves, smart peplums, and lovely style details that characterize new tea gowns also adorn the garment.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A few newspapers will make an excellent pad for your ironing board.

If you mend up your clothes before they go to the laundry they will last twice as long. It takes no longer.

Bronze ornaments should not be washed. Dust carefully and wipe over with a soft cloth moistened with paraffin oil. Then polish with chamois.

When a garment becomes shiny, sponge it with a solution of one teaspoonful of ammonia to one quart of water. Then press on the wrong side.

Often fresh spots spilled on frocks can be eradicated if the spot is put over one's warm hand and rubbed gently but persistently with a clean, dry towel or napkin.

Cetrain portions of a garment such as the collar, cuffs and some of the inner seams usually need special attention in laundering. If they are badly soiled, it is a good idea to brush them with a bristle and soapsuds before the garment is placed in the tub or washing machine.

CURTAINS

After hanging newly washed curtains that refuse to hang straight, have you tried inserting a curtainrod in the lower hem a day or two? This will reshape them.

CLEAN PURSES

Purses should be cleaned quite as regularly and perfectly as shoes or gloves. You can do this effectively by wiping off your purse with some good cleaning fluid and a soft cloth. Rub dry.

STARCH

The laundress often forgets what to starch and what to leave unstarched, and this is very annoying at times. A list of directions over the laundry tubs will avoid this trouble and result in the sort of laundry you like.

FIRST AID FOR NECKTIES

A necktie rack, which has much to commend it to the masculine owner, has a back board covered with blue leather to which nickel rods are attached in rows. An upright of the nickel keeps all in place most tidily.

WASH THE GARMENT BAGS

There is no more disheartening sight than a garment that has lost its freshness through hanging in a closet. Yet, that often happens to the gowns we wear seldom and prize most highly. Some people solve the problem by encasing their clothing in dust covers or garment bags. These can be put together by the home seamstress or purchased ready made in a variety of attractive washable materials.

In selecting a garment bag, there are two important factors to be considered—it should fasten securely though easily, and it should be made of sufficiently substantial material to prevent dust from seeping through. Since the garment bag comes in such close contact with the clothing it protects, it should be washed frequently with soap and water, otherwise it will defeat the purpose for which it is intended.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Maria Lourdes de Sa Texeira is Portugal's only airwoman. She is 20 years old and lives in Lisbon.

Society debutantes act as ushers at the Little Theater in Memphis, Tenn. They also serve coffee and cigarettes during the intermission.

The majority of the immigrant women now entering the United States are educated women of the middle class. Many are trained in a trade or a profession.

The organization known as the Black Cross Nurses of British Honduras, composed of Negro women, is greatly commended for its work among both white and black residents.

More than 63 hours a week is the average "working time" for 700 farm women who kept records and reported to the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture.

The first person to spend the night alone atop Washington Monument, in Washington, D. C., was Mrs. S. E. Longsell, aged 40, of Middlebury, Vt. Armed with a thermos bottle and a package containing a light lunch, she purposely secreted herself during the closing hour recently to see the moonlight over the capital city and the sunrise next morning.

EXTRA DECORATION.

When there are children in the family it is worth while to have a few jars of such decorative extras as fancy chocolate shavings, pink sugar and colored caraway seeds to sprinkle over the tops of cookies, white cake and puddings for an extra appetizing touch.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

When postage stamps are stuck together have you ever tried laying thin paper over them and running a hot iron over the paper?

RECIPES.

Sliced Orange Pie: Peel six oranges with a sharp knife so as to remove all the white membrane. Cut the orange pulp out of the sections, being careful not to get any of the membrane; measure and allow three tablespoons of flour to each cup of pulp and juice. Mix the flour thoroughly with one-third cup of sugar and a pinch of salt. Stir this mixture into the orange pulp. Fill a pastry-lined pie pan with the orange mixture, put on a top crust and crimp the edge. Bake in a hot oven.

Savory Stuffed Turnips: Allow one white turnip to each person. Peel and boil until they are partly done. Cut a slice from the bottom of each turnip to allow each to stand by itself. Cut the remainder in halves and hollow out the centers with a spoon. Fill the centers of the turnips with a filling of finely chopped cold meat, chopped parsley, minced onion, half a tablespoon of sugar, some bread crumbs, and pepper and salt to taste. Mix with melted butter. Tie the tops on and place in a baking pan. Pour over some good stock and then cover each top with a little grated cheese. Cook until a light brown, thicken the gravy. Untie the tops and pour over gravy.

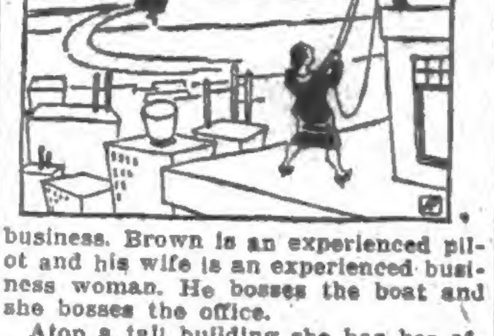
HER FLAGPOLE SIGNALING PUTS HUBBY ON NEW JOBS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 12—(AP)— The H. H. Colle, sea-going tug which does business mostly in the Memphis harbor, acts crazily sometimes.

Harvey Brown, its owner, has been seen to have his boat steaming serenely down the Mississippi and then suddenly kick her about and dash madly up the river for no apparent reason.

But he is only doing his wife's bidding.

The Browns team up on the river business. Brown is an experienced pilot and his wife is an experienced business woman. He bosses the boat and she bosses the office.



Atop a tall building she has her office, and nearby is a flagpole. When an order for a tow comes in, she runs up a flag and tells her husband, who may be miles away, where to go for the job.

Their flag signaling is complete. One flag tells Brown to call her on the telephone. Another tells him to come home to dinner, and others tell him where he can get a tow.

CHECKS SUPERSEDING POLKA DOTS-DASHES

PARIS, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Small checks are probably going to succeed the dots and dashes which fabric makers decree as the present fashionable material for tailored suits and ensembles.

The fabrics from which dressmakers have selected their materials for spring models include dozens of varieties of checked and semi-checked woolens, open-weave tweeds and printed and brocaded silks.

Minute checks form the background for small flower patterns on some of the most interesting crepe de chines and georgettes for spring.

The chic tailored blouses and tunics of suits and ensembles shown for southern resort wear are frequently of silk and feather-weight woolens with fine checked patterns.

Small plaid and invisible check suitings are forecast by some dressmakers.

Fine green and white check tweed is almost sure to be an early spring favorite, judging from materials being shown.

GIRL STUDENTS' THIRST NOT ALL FOR LEARNING

GRENOBLE, France, Jan. 12.—(AP)—The liquid as well as intellectual capacity of foreign women who come here to perfect their French is a source of comment in this university town.

Bars serve as informal student club rooms.

Most of the women who mingle with men students at the bars are foreign, for French co-eds are hesitant about the propriety of being seen there. Scandinavian, German and American women predominate at the cocktail hour.

French students still believe that woman's place is in the home when there is drinking to be done.

CAPITAL LIKES BREAKFAST, EVEN WHEN IT'S AT NOON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12. — (AP) — Breakfast's the thing in Washington among the higher-ups, even without the eggs and bacon.

Guests are invited for noon and are served cold jellied meats, sandwiches, salads, fruit punch, ices, cakes and coffee—but they call it breakfast.

Secretary Henry L. Stimson and Mrs. Stimson started the new year off with a "breakfast" at the Pan American Union. The guests were Vice President Curtis, his sister, Mrs. Edward Gann, and members of the diplomatic corps.

THOSE SMART SHOES? OH, THEY'RE COTTON

PALM BEACH, Jan. 12—(AP)— The fashion parade on Florida sands is aiding the cotton industry.

Matched shoes and bags made of a cotton material woven to imitate straw are considered very smart for informal wear. Shoes of this material hold their shape well and do not fray. Colored kid on toes and heels matches a diagonal strip on the bag.

SPORTS AND STARS SEEN ON BEACHES

PALM BEACHES, Jan. 12.—(AP) — The sport page motif has broken into pajamaland at Palm Beach, along with dozens of other bizarre effects in novelty prints for beach wear.

A pajama ensemble which attracted attention was printed in large squares, depicting various sports.

Women Prisoners Few

CAIRO, Jan. 12.—(AP)—There are so few women criminals in Egypt that prisons for women are almost empty. While about 24,000 men are imprisoned each year, only some 800 women are so sentenced. Most of those are convicted for traffic in narcotics.

She's Faced Perils Afar And Now Tries New York

Violet Cressy-Marcks, famed English woman explorer, is looking over the canyons of New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)— Fresh from her latest exploit in the frozen wastes of Lapland, where she cheated a hungry band of wolves of their evening meal, Violet Cressy-Marcks is "exploring" New York.

Entitled to the homage paid famous people she slipped into the world's greatest metropolis with the unostentation more becoming an immigrant.

The young golden-haired, blue-eyed English girl, whose youth seems incredible in view of her exploits, can afford to laugh when reference is made to her membership in the "weaker sex."

Of the romantic places that live only between the covers of books for most people, Miss Cressy-Marcks can talk with an easy familiarity.

Adventure? She has lived it. Shot elephants in the Congo, traversed the treacherous Sahara, and braved the sub-zero climate of the Arctic regions.

Despite her experiences, the British explorer is restless and after several weeks seeing America, will seek the less civilized regions of the Amazon river.

Your Health And Brain

By Dr. Leland B. Alford

The Sense of Smell.

Smell in man is a rather unimportant and probably dying sense.

It may be lost without much inconvenience or even without its absence being noticed.

It is vision which occupies the predominant place in our lives which smell takes in the world of the dog and other animals.

There are, however, some interesting facts connected with smell. It is said that most of what we consider taste is in reality smell. The present idea is that there are only four tastes—sweet, sour, bitter and salt—those being the only preceptions when the nose is held shut with food in the mouth. With the nose closed an onion and and apple tastes the same.

Smell is easily exhausted, as is evident when you enter a smelly room. At first odors are strong, but after a few minutes they cannot be detected.

Smell is "projected" outward. That is to say, when we smell something we think of its being at a distance, whereas taste is localized in the mouth.

The zone of smell is located in the upper recesses of the nose. Hence we sniff to catch a faint odor.

The persistent experience of a bad odor can be caused by disease in the nose but is usually hysterical in nature. Loss of the sense of smell may be due to fracture of the skull, an attack of influenza or changes incident to old age.

It is believed smell is produced by small particles which issue from a smelly substance. Yet a bean of musk will give off an intense odor for years without losing weight. The particles are supposed to dissolve the secretions that moisten the mucous membrane, and in the form of a solution to stimulate the small hairs which project from the cells concerned in smell.

MISS IRENE ELLISON HAS BRIDGE PARTY AT HOME

Friday night an enjoyable party was held at the home of Miss Irene Ellison of Fourth street. During the evening bridge was played, first prize being won by Miss Agatha Billadeau and consolation by Miss Peggy Barry. The Misses Marie Pierson and Mary Mahoney entertained with an exhibition of the prep step and popular solos were rendered by the Misses Mary Sullivan and Mary Roberts, accompanied by Miss Eileen Krause at the piano. Delightful ukelele solos were rendered by Miss Eileen Ryan, who also played for a tango dance, performed by the Misses Billadeau and Miss Ellison. Miss Eileen Krause told fortunes, the most amusing being that of Lois Zahn's. Those present were the Misses Irene Ellison, Eileen Ryan, Mary Sullivan, Eileen Krause, Peggy Barry, Marie Pierson, Agatha Billadeau, Mary Mahoney, Mary Roberts, Lois Zahn. Dainty refreshments were served by Miss Ellison, assisted by her mother, Mrs. E. Ellison and the Misses Eileen Ryan and Eileen Krause.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Delarm of Toledo, Ohio, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. James Service of Prospect street.

Following the Sunday school class work Sunday at the Greeneville Congregational church the annual Sunday school meeting was held. Various reports were read and accepted by officers which showed that the school had a very successful year. The officers in charge were Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor superintendent; Miss Jeannett Beattie, treasurer; secretary, Earl Kramer. Election of officers will take place on next Sunday for the ensuing year.

Sunday the second Sunday of the month was communion Sunday for the Children of St. Mary's society and women of St. Mary's Memorial church at the 7:30 o'clock mass which was celebrated by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keffe. A large number approached the altar railing and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan assisted Rev. Father Keefe in distributing communion. At the masses it was announced that next Sunday would be the communion Sunday for the men of the parish, at the 7:30 mass. At the three masses the pastor read the annual report which showed that the church had a very good year financially and spiritually and he thanked all the parishioners for their co-operation in making it such a successful year.

MOOSUP BAPTIST CHURCH

MOOSUP BAPTISTS REJOICE IN DEDICATION OF THEIR NEW CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

MOOSUP, Jan. 12—Rev. H. B. Sloat, Hartford, preached the first sermon Sunday morning in the dedication week at the new Moosup Baptist church, which replaces the building burned May, 1928. His topic was Looking Backward. Mr. Sloat took the year in which the church was founded in 1792 and about that date showed how there was the spirit of advance and progress in the world. It was just after the American revolution and the time of the French revolution, also of the revolutionary ideas of Voltaire, when the church in Moosup was founded.

It was an age of invention. In 1790 not a single power spinner was operated. An Englishman landed in Pawtucket and within a year had produced a carding, drawing and roving machine with 72 spindles in two frames. Handpower gave way to waterpower. It was in 1793 that Whitney invented the cotton gin and the year the Moosup church was founded. William Carey preached a famous missionary sermon in England, which resulted in the organization of the first modern missionary society. This was an age when England was reaching toward the East and English-speaking people in America were reaching toward the West, an age of open-mindedness and progress. This William Carey, Mr. Sloat said, was the patron saint of the Baptist church in Moosup.

He later went to India where he founded the first Christian hospital, the first printing press, built the first engine, the first pulp-mill, established the first medical work, primary school, orphan asylum, Christian college and periodical in India. He founded 30 mission stations, naturalized every kind of fruit and vegetable that could be procured and planted about the mission station every rare flower, plant and tree that he knew about. He also organized the first agricultural and horticultural society in India. He was known as the most illustrious benefactor and liberator that India ever knew. Such were some of the achievements of the man whom Mr. Sloat called the patron saint of the Baptist church in Moosup.

When this church was founded there was something in the air of the pioneering adventurist spirit that made for growth and progress and which has resulted in the present building in Moosup after the disastrous fire one year ago last May.

Young People's Dedication

Sunday evening President Charles B. Roper conducted a young peoples service of dedication in the new building. The meeting was called to order at 6 o'clock in the vestry by Edwin Hill, Y. M. C. A. secretary of Windham county. Harold Burgess presided at the piano during the song service. Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, pastor of the church, explained the nature of the service, refreshments were served and at 7 o'clock, singing Onward Christian Soldiers, more than 100 young people marched to their seats in the auditorium. Prayer was offered by Dr. A. Elwyn Tingley, pastor of the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church.

The service of dedication was in four parts. First, I dedicate myself to my society, given by the Moosup Methodist Episcopal Epworth league; second, I dedicate myself to my church, by the Moosup Baptist Young People's church; third, I dedicate myself to the kingdom of God, given by Jewett City Baptist young people; fourth, I dedicate myself to Jesus Christ, presented by the Danielson Baptist young people.

The lights in the auditorium were dimmed as Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe gave the significance of the lighted cross, hung from the front of the church. Also the significance of two candles was shown, representing the home and foreign missionary work of the Baptist denomination. One candle was received from the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society and at the close of the dedication services is to be presented to Miss Evelyn Cranska to be forwarded to Judson college, Burma; The other candle was received from the American Baptist Home Missionary society and is to be presented to Mrs. William A. Hill, of New Rochelle, N. Y., who is a former Moosup girl. Mrs. Hill is to send the candle to the Evelyn Briggs Cranska Memorial hospital in Managua, Central America, which hospital is a memorial to her mother.

Service of Light

Edwin Hill then took charge of the service of light, reading passages of scripture, emphasizing Christianity as a light and pointing out the obligation of each adherent passing on the light to others. The leaders of each of the four participating societies came forward with their candles, which were lighted by the pastor of the church. Two others from each society, who represented the officers came forward and their candles were lighted from their leaders. Then these twelve youths, representing the twelve disciples, went down the aisles of the darkened church, lighting the candles of those who sat in the ends of the pews. After the twelve marched to the front of the church, at a given signal, the lights were passed to those within the pews and soon the entire auditorium was ablaze with candle lights. The audience then stood, each holding a candle aloft, while the benediction was pronounced by Rev. E. E. Scates, of Jewett City Baptist church.

The regular church organist, Harold Burgess, presided at the new organ, which is a memorial given by Lucius B. Cranska. The chimes were given by Miss Evelyn Cranska.

Monday evening at 7:30 the men will have charge of a dedication service with a men's speaker and a men's programme. However, the meeting is open to the public, without regard to sex. Greetings are to be brought to the church by the men of the Moosup Methodist Episcopal church, the Lincoln club, Plainfield; the Central Village club, the Wauregan club, the Masons, the Lions club and the Rotary from Danielson. A quartet will sing from the Danielson Laymen's league. The address will be given by Dr. Joseph C. Robbins, of New York city, secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Mission society. The presiding officer will be Lucius B. Cranska. The next service in dedication week will be Woman's dedication service on Tuesday evening at 7:30.

NORWICH BENEFICIARIES IN CHRISTINA CALLAHAN'S WILL

An estate of about $35,000 is disposed of by the will of the late Mrs. Christina Callahan of Fall River, Mass., of which Edward T. Murphy is executor and which has several Norwich beneficiaries. The estate includes a house on Union street in this city and the executor has appeared in probate court here by counsel presenting what purports to be an exemplified copy of the probate court proceedings in Massachusetts. He has made application here for granting of ancillary letters testamentary. Judge Nelson J. Ayling has set the hearing on the application for Tuesday, Jan. 21, at 10 a. m.

The will makes bequests as follows: $4,500 each to Charles and Lena O'Brien, children of John F. and Cora O'Brien; and to Richard Duckworth, son of Charles Duckworth.

$2,000 each to Mark A. Sullivan and his wife, Mary, of Wareham, Mass.

$1,000 each to St. Vincent's Orphans home, Fall River; Rev. James J. Quinn, Fall River; Mrs. John Leonard, Fall River; Eliza Edwards, Norwich.

$400 to Maryknoll Missions, Far East, New York; $200 to Isabelle Tierney, Fall River; and $100 each to Rev. John J. Kelly, Rev. Leonard J. Daly, Mary E. Sullivan, and Norah Doherty, all of Fall River.

To Eliza Edwards of this city, is left a lot with buildings there on Union street, Norwich, for and during the term of her natural life and after her death to Lena O'Brien.

To Eliza Edwards is given, devised and authorized the burial of "my lot" in St. Joseph's cemetery, Norwich.

The residue of the estate is given to Mark A. Sullivan of Wareham, Mass.

SECRET SINS EXCUSES FOR NEGLECT, SAYS PRIEST

Trained physicians of souls that they are, priests of the Roman Catholic church become adepts in the analysis of motives, as was demonstrated Sunday, when Rev. Myles P. Galvin continued his series of sermons on the blessed sacrament, preaching to the usual great congregation at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church. Briefly, Father Galvin reviewed the great impetus given frequent communions by the efforts of Pope Pius X, who reigned from 1903 till the close of the World war.

It was the teaching of the Holy Father that children should begin to receive the sacrament as soon as they had reached the age of reason—the age to commit sin. Also he taught that without insisting on confession immediately preceding, daily communion is allowable for those whose souls are free from mortal sin, providing that they receive the sacrament with the proper motive—that is, not from pride, from human respect, or from mere routine. There should ever be worthy motives, perhaps the overcoming of some vice, the obtaining of some special favor. Pope Pius knew that frequent communion is the test of love for Our Divine Lord.

Then Father Galvin took up the reasons for delay advanced by so many who call themselves Catholics—no time to go to confession, yet they have time for dances, for movies, for social gatherings, frequently immoral, drinking parties, hearing and dissemination of scandals. Some persons are too pious; others have some secret vice, person, place or thing, which is the occasion of sin and are aware that if they go to confession they must promise to give up this occasion. Others are afraid of the comment, maybe the jeers, of companions who may sneer at their piety. Some profess to be too humble—not worthy to go frequently. Naturally, the preacher said, none of us could ever be worthy to receive the body and blood, soul and divinity of Christ, Who is God, yet it was the Saviour Himself Who promised us this food for our souls, hence will supply for our unworthiness.

When we leave this world there are going to be only two places to go, he reminded his hearers—heaven or hell—it is for us to choose. Get the habit of receiving Our Divine Lord often, he advised, get familiar with Christ, so that when death comes Our Redeemer will prove a real friend, upon Whom we can depend to take us to an eternity of happiness with Himself.

The junior choir sang the Gregorian mass according to the new Justine Ward method, directed by the organist, Henry J. LaFontaine. Their consecration hymn was the beautiful composition extolling the virtues of Saint Therese. While Father Galvin was assisting Rev. John J. Reilly in administering communion to many scores of penitents, Mr. LaFontaine's interlude was the melody of "The Lost Chord."

BOY ON PROBATION FOR RED ARROW THEFT

A 12-year-old West Side boy, charged with theft of $1,600 in Red Arrow money, was presented in the juvenile court Saturday morning and placed on probation, after he was given a severe reprimand. The boy is alleged to have taken the money, of $5 and $10 denominations, on Dec. 10 at the store of Hanover and Curland, Franklin street, and bid on several articles at an auction that night. The Red Arrow officials became suspicious of him and he was later summoned to appear in juvenile court.

RESUMING WORK AT RICHMOND RADIATOR PLANT

Work at the Richmond Radiator company plant located on Thames street will be resumed this (Monday) morning to be effective in all departments, after having been shut down for the past six weeks. Since Dec. 1 only a few men have been employed at the shop, which will now run until additional ordrs are received with about 50 per cent. of the regular working force. Resumption of work at the mill was made possible through the receipt of a number of orders during the past few weeks.

SETTLEMENT IN PROTEST OVER ROBBINS COURT POLES

The difficulty that arose on Robbins court over the re-location of poles by the city gas and electric department has been amicably settled and a threatened appeal to the public utilities commission will be avoided. The arrangement now agreed to will save a handsome tree on the court and avoid placing a pole where it would partially block the entrance to a garage. Five property owners in the court were the objectors to the first plan of locating poles.

Sang at Reception

At the reception given Friday night at Norton, Mass., for the senior class at Wheaton college, Miss Elizabeth Johnson of this city was a member of the quartette that sang.

ANDREW CONNOR ESTATE APPRAISED AT $155,907

An inventory and appraisal of the estate of the late Andrew F. Connor, which has been filed here in the probate court shows that he left an estate of $155,907.87. Mr. Connor was in the wholesale grocery business for many years on Water street.

Valuations put upon stock belonging to the estate by the two appraisers, John R. Tarrant and Louis E. Legare, included the following:

Fifty preferred Aeolian, $3,250; 15 common American Book, $1,500; 30 American Bosch Mag. Co., $1,758.75; 200 Austin Nichols Co., $1,275; 50 Barnet Leather Co., $450; 30 common Fireman's Insurance Co. of N. J., $3,120; 485 Joseph Connor & Sons, Inc., $48,650; 18 Cap. Drug's, Inc., $1,417; 25 common General Motor Corp., $1,884.38; 125 Cap. Glidden Co., $7,562.50; 106 common P. Lorillard Co., $2,597; 384 Ligget & Myers Tobacco Co., $30,394; 110 National Cash Register Co., common, $13,980; 165 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., $8,870; 40 common Vanadium Corp., $3,560.

In the list of stocks of the estate are about 700 shares, which the appraisers find of no value. Those include: 200 shares common American Tire Corp., 100 shares City Central Corp. preferred and 75 shares common, 30 shares preferred and 30 common Herschell Spillman Motor Co., 320 shares Tem. Ctf. Island Oil and Transport Corp., 30 shares preferred and 30 common A. L. Sayles & Son.

Thomas Martin Connor, brother of the deceased, is executor of the will and, with a sister, Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Crawford, is one of the chief beneficiaries. There is a bequest of $15,000 to Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Hill of this city and bequests of $500, $1,000 and $2,000 to several relatives.

Besides the stocks the estate included two small pieces of property, one being an undivided one-fourth interest in property on Main street, valued at $1,250, and another land and buildings appraised at $3,000.

TELEPHONE CO. TRANSFERS WEYMOUTH TO NEW LONDON

J. Nelson Weymouth of New Haven has been made assistant manager of the New London exchange of the Southern New England Telephone Co., having the same jurisdiction over the Niantic exchange.

Mr. Weymouth entered the service of the telephone company in 1910 as a contract agent and during the latter part of that year was stationed in New London. He continued his connection with the commercial side of the telephone business and in June, 1912, he was appointed exchange manager at Saybrook, three years later taking the managership of the Danielson, Putnam and Moosup offices of the company.

In 1917 Mr. Weymouth was appointed exchange manager in this city, where he remained until January, 1923, when he was transferred to the headquarters of the company at New Haven to be secretary of the benefit plan of the company. During his several years here, Mr. Weymouth made many friends in and out of the telephone business and he is well known in this section of the state.

A short time ago, Mr. Weymouth resumed association with the commercial side of the business, being transferred to headquarters work, and he again enters the field as assistant to Manager E. C. Ford in New London.

HARWOOD B. DOLBEARE WRITES ARTICLE IN BANKING JOURNAL

In the December issue of the American Bankers' Association Journal Harwood B. Dolbeare had a thoughtful and convincing article on "Liability Insurance for Depositors." Mr. Dolbeare, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Dolbeare, of Warren street, Norwich, is associate professor of finance in the University of Florida, at Gainesville. In the Journal his paper is displayed with the editor's sub-title "A critical analysis of the new Florida law which requires banks to set aside a reserve fund for meeting stockholders' liability."

RULES AGAINST CLAIM MADE FOR DEPENDENCY

By a ruling made by Compensation Commissioner Albert J. Bailey, a claim made for dependency by Allan Brown of 9 Fourth street, on account of the death of his brother, Edward H. Brown, has been disallowed. Edward Brown was suffocated by a sliding pile of soft coal in a bin while he was in the employ of the Edward Chappell Co. Louis Brown, brother of the deceased, is allowed $200 for funeral expenses.

Commissioner Bailey finds that Edward Brown was an older brother of the claimant, Allan, and that he was a widower and had no children. Since the death of his wife on Sept. 27, 1929, or a few days thereafter, he boarded at the home of the claimant, paying $10 per week for board and room and washing.

In dismissing the claim, Commissioner Bailey finds that Allan Brown received no contributions or money from the deceased during his life time, that he relied upon for his ordinary necessities of life or to enable him to support his family in the station of life to which they were accustomed. The only contribution was for board which was for services rendered and value received and for these reasons, "I find that the claimant has not sustained the burden of proof imposed upon him under the compensation act, and I do not find that the claimant was a dependent upon the deceased."

Entertained William Gillette at Tea

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis S. Hopley of Washington, D. C., recently entertained William Gillette at a tea. Mr. Gillette is giving a week's performance there in his famous "Sherlock Holmes."

NEGRO SPIRITUAL PROGRAM AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church a group of ten young people from the A. M. E. Zion church gave a most pleasing program of Negro Spirituals under the direction of their chorister, Robert H. Johnson. The pastor of the church, Rev. George Warren Potter, was assisted in the opening part of the service by Rev. Edward W. Gantt, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church, who led in the responsive reading and offered prayer. The program given by the visitors was as follows: Spirituals, "Walk In Jerusalem," "Study War No More," by the choir; reading, Miss Scott; solo, Miss Gwathmey; reading, Mrs. F. A. Whitted; duet, Mrs. Edward Gantt and Mrs. Robert Johnson; Spirituals, "In My Heart," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," choir; musical reading, "Old Hymns," Robert H. Johnson; Spirituals, "Old Time Religion," "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," choir. The singers were Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Johnson, Idella Scott, Mrs. Edward W. Gantt, Rosamond Johnson, Farance Jobrey, May Ockery, James Anderson, Andrew Marshall, Daniel Harris and Walter Johnson. Miss Emma J. Cook, the organist, acted as accompanist. Earl Robinson and Edward Eccleston, Boy Scouts in uniform, took up the offering. There was an attendance of over 200.

At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "Strange Things," taking for his text, St. Luke, 5:26, "We have seen strange things today." Under the direction of the organist, Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich, the junior choir sang the anthem, "Songs of Gladness."

At the recent election of officers in the M. E. church school Lewis E. Aldrich was elected librarian and Dr. James H. Floyd assistant librarian.

Scouts Hear Contest Score.

At the meeting Friday evening of Troop 2, Boy Scouts, connected with the M. E. church, the standing in the efficiency contest was given by the scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter. Earl Robinson is in first place with a score of 525 points, Clayton Rose and Edward Eccleston are tied for second place with 475, Donald Olsen is in third place with 470, Leon Ladd is fourth with 460, Frederick Ross and Arthur Bennett are tied for fifth place with 455. The other members of the troop are all below 400 points. Assistant Patrol Leader Leon Ladd has charge of a new game that was introduced when the Scouts' sense of hearing was tested by locating an object by its sound, while blindfolded. A basket of fruit was made up by the troop and sent to Patrol Leader Clayton Rose, who is ill. Several scouts reported bicycle hikes which are credited in the contest, if they exceed five miles.

LONG DISPUTE PROBABLE ON DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

Even the Dry Law Leaders in Congress are Expressing Conflicting Views on the Recommendations Made by the Law Enforcement Commission—Would Call For a Score or More of Additional Legislative Enactments, and Serve as a Basis For Stormy Debates in Congress and Long Hearings by Committees of Both Houses—President Hoover Backs Commission's Recommendations—Wets Desire a Report on the Volstead Act Itself.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — (AP) — President Hoover called upon congress today to reconstruct prohibition enforcement machinery as a means of coping with difficulties encountered by the 18th amendment, which was put into effect just ten years ago this month.

He sent to the senate and house the first conclusions returned by his law enforcement commission on this controversial subject, and backed these up with similar reports from Attorney General Mitchell and Secretary Mellon, the two cabinet officers most directly concerned with enforcement.

Stipulating that its preliminary recommendations were made "without prejudice to any ultimate conclusions," the commission created greater speculation than ever as to its precise attitude toward the Volstead act.

Hardly had the documents been read before wet and dry leaders on Capitol hill began to express conflicting views. The outlook tonight was for a prolonged continuance of the dispute over prohibition which has racked congress since the dry laws first were proposed and which again reached the route stage in recent weeks.

Calling for the passage of a score or more of additional legislative enactments, the reports are expected to serve as basis for stormy debates in the halls of congress and for long hearings and consideration by committees of the two houses.

Most drastic of the changes proposed were:

Transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit from the treasury to the justice department.

Creation of a unified border patrol to operate as a part of the coast guard.

Prohibition against the entry of all persons into the United States except at points of entry designated by the president.

Enlargement of the powers of United States commissioners so they might try "casual and slight offenders" against the prohibition laws.

Provision for additional judges and enlarging the forces in the offices of the United States attorneys, United States marshals, and clerks of federal courts.

Amendment of the padlock injunction provisions of the Volstead act so as to prevent the concealing of ownership of property used for the manufacture and sale of illicit liquor.

Expansion of federal prisons and re-organization of parole and other practices.

To define as "casual and slight violations" unlawful possession, single sales in small quantities, unlawful making of small quantities, transporting small quantities, and assisting in making and transporting as a casual employe.

To fix penalty for "casual and slight violations" at a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months in jail, or both, with authority for district attorneys to try accused in such cases by complaint or information.

To authorize state, county and municipal officers to seize liquor carrying vehicles, including automobiles, water and air craft and to proceed in the nearest federal court against such vehicles and their operators.

The president's recommendations were referred to appropriate committees of the two houses. Those will consider them along with a number of other measures introduced by both wets and drys since the opening of the present session.

The law enforcement commission emphasized time and again in its report the difficulties of obtaining both observance and enforcement of the anti-liquor laws.

(An abstract of the law enforcement commission's report is printed on Page 10).

MORE DRY LAW ARRESTS WOULD CONGEST COURTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Prohibition Commissioner Doran believes the expenditure of more than $15,000,000 for federal prohibition enforcement would be unwise because of congestion of the federal court dockets.

The house appropriations committee was guided by the commissioner's opinion in reporting the annual treasury-postoffice supply bill to the house today, but it allowed for the strengthening of the coast guard by allotting $32,122,040, an increase of $2,452,000 over the current year.

"We could make a 50 per cent increase in the number of persons arrested," Doran said, "but under present conditions it would merely congest the courts still further and further complicate the situation."

Prompt trial was necessary in prohibition cases, he said, because there was "no class of cases that get colder than prohibition cases."

Commissioner Doran said the Jones law had a great effect in driving many small liquor operators, manufacturers, runners and retailers out of business, and had served to concentrate activities of the larger operators. He cited a decrease from 76,000 arrests in 1928 to 67,000 in 1929.

WETS WANT REPORT ON THE VOLSTEAD ACT ITSELF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)— Determined efforts by the dry and wet groups to use the law enforcement commission's report as a wedge for amending the law to their respective likings, were indicated tonight in congressional reactions to the recommendations for legislation transmitted by President Hoover.

Promises and demands mingled while the enforcement of the dry laws dominated attention of the senators and representatives. House leaders pledged immediate action toward carrying out the proposals for new statutes and by nightfall several measures were in preparation. Assurance of early consideration also came from the tariff-busy senate.

Drys and wets generally accepted the commission's report, which avoided any judgment upon the merits of the prohibition laws. The wets made it clear, however, that they wanted the commission to go farther and submit a report on the Volstead act itself.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader in the house, issued a statement asserting he believed "it is the overwhelming desire of the house to support President Hoover in his proposals."

OPPOSED TO MEN WORKING MORE THAN EIGHT HOURS A DAY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Decision to give careful consideration to a plan for bringing about a gradual reduction in the workingman's hours of labor, with the hope of effecting an improvement in the unemployment situation of the country, was reached today by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor in mid-winter convention here.

The council believes that solution of the unemployment problem could be obtained, at least partially, if an eight-hour day were made universal, and further improved hrough establishment of a five-day week, President William Green declared after today's session.

"We understand that many men now are working ten or more hours a day in various lines of industry, some of which is night work," said President Green, "and we do not feel that there is any necessity for any worker to be called on to work more than eight hours a day in any of the highly industrial establishments of the country."

TRACING THE MISSING FAIRCHILD MONOPLANE

HARTFORD, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The state aviation department announced tonight that it had succeeded in tracing the missing Fairchild monoplane, containing Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, of New York, up to 1 o'clock Friday afternoon and that it had found three persons who actually saw the plane clearly enough to identify it.

Chief Inspector George S. Pranaitis said that two woodchoppers in Meshomasick state forest in Portland saw the plane pass over their heads while they were eating lunch shortly after Friday noon and that it was traveling northwest. At 1 o'clock it was seen flying above the state highway between the villages of Warrenville and Phoenixville in the town of Ashford by Mrs. W. A. Stevens of Greenwich, who was driving from Danielson toward Hartford.

GENERAL SMUTS GUEST OF WASHINGTON YESTERDAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.— (AP) — General Jan Christian Smuts, former premier of Africa, was an honored guest of Washington today, receiving among other things the tribute of the senate in a five-minute recess.

Previously, General Smuts had been tendered a luncheon at the capitol by Senator Pittman of Nevada, a democratic member of the foreign relations committee.

Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, in proposing the recess, said the former premier was "so well known in recent history that he needed no introduction to the senate."

Later in the day, at Smithsonian institution, he was presented with a five-volume set of 400 plates of American wild flowers painted in natural colors.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER TRIBUTARIES RISING

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 13.—(AP)—United States Engineers corps headquarters here answered its first call for aid today as tributaries of the Mississippi river continued the rise which has inundated lowlands in half a dozen states and driven hundreds of families to higher ground.

Meanwhile, rains over the upper watershed backed up predictions that the end is not yet in sight.

River levees throughout the valley were holding but in the bottom lands the water was spreading steadily over widening areas. As a whole, however, damage has been comparatively small, lowland dwellers moving to higher ground in advance of the encroaching water.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO COTTON COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Chairman Legge of the farm board announced that stock subscriptions totalling between $790,000 and $800,000 had already been paid today into the new $30,000,000 American Cotton Cooperative association, just incorporated in Delaware.

Not all of the state and regional cotton cooperatives had become members of the association today, but Legge said there apparently were no legal hindrances to their membership.

LAWTON APPOINTED CHIEF MIDDLETOWN FIRE DEPT.

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 13—(AP)—The common council today elected Michael W. Lawton, deputy chief for more than a year, as chief of the Middletown fire department.

Lawton, who has been a member of the department for 23 years, succeeds Chief George S. Pitt, who died December 22.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 13—(AP)—Port workers declared a 48-hour general strike in protest against the killing of one of their number by shots alleged to have been fired by non-union workers. Six unions will join in the strike.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 13—(AP)—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the Reichsbank, today opposed the second Hague conference on reparations in the matter of the international bank but the conference, after brief consideration of his stand, ignored it and went on with its work.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 13—(AP)—A list of names of five Americans was brought here by Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago and Jaockson E. Reynolds of New York to submit as a candidates for president of the bank for international settlement. Neither of the American reparations representatives would give any indication as to the men they would indorse to the bankers committee.

TWO CHILDREN ASPHYXIATED; MOTHER OVERCOME BY GAS

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Two children were asphyxiated and another child and their mother, Mrs. John Lynch, were overcome today by gas in their home at 237 Evergreen avenue.

The child was being kept alive by first aid squads, and firemen working in relays, by means of artificial respiration and pulmotors.

Mrs. Lynch's condition was reported critical but her recovery was expected.

The dead children were Margaret, 8, and Daniel, 2. The faint spark of life found in the third child, John, Jr., was being kept glowing by the united efforts of the first aid squads and firemen.

The whereabouts of John Lynch, a mason, the husband and father, is not known. Neighbors said they did not believe he was at home last night.

Neighbors said that Mrs. Lynch was in the habit of arising about 7 o'clock and starting cereal on the gas stove and then retiring for a short time. It is believed a kettle boiled over and extinguished the flame.

DIFFICULTY IN GETTING 560 POUND WOMAN TO AMBULANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Smith, 62 years old, is only five feet two inches tall, but she weighs 560 pounds.

So tonight, when she suffered a heart attack in Our Lady institute, a Bronx convent kindergarten and music school, where she is cook, ten policemen and the equipment of a police emergency squad were required to get her out of the building to an ambulance.

The emergency squad removed her by means of the "body bag," which is used to lower two or three bodies at a time from the ruins of burned buildings. She was taken to Fordham hospital.

MADE DENIAL OF REPORT OF DISTURBANCES IN URUGUAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The Uruguayan legation tonight issued a denial of report of disturbances in Uruguay declaring that "absolute order prevails in the country."

"Nothing has altered the public order in Uruguay," said the statement. "There has been held a meeting promoted by the nationalist chief Nepunuceno Sarazia who publicly advocated constitutional reform. The government has adopted no measure of repression."

The meeting referred to was held several days ago in northern Uruguay.

BUSINESS SECTION OF TOWN DESTROYED BY FIRE

ST. STEPHEN, N. B., Jan. 13—(AP)—Nearly all of what was St. Stephen's business section lay in ruins today as the result of a fire which raged all day yesterday.

The fire destroyed eleven stores, causing a loss of about $250,000, only $100,000 of which will be recovered through insurance.

The task of clearing away the debris which is expected to take several days, was started this morning.

HEARING ON SEPARATION ACTION OF MRS. SHATTUCK

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Lydon today heard testimony in the action of Mrs. Cynara Shattuck for a separation from her artist husband, William R. Shattuck, of Hollywood, Cal.

Alleging that her husband to whom she was married January 16, 1928 in Montclair, N. J., ordered her out of his home, Mrs. Shattuck seeks $100 a week alimony. She said in her complaint that Shattuck's income is $15,000 a year.

GRANTED DIVORCE FROM DR. HENRY E. MARKS

RENO, Nev., Jan. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Diana Ponsonby Marks, said to be related to British nobility, was granted a divorce here today from Henry E. Marks, New York physician. They were married in New York October 12, 1923 and have a child five years of age, custody of which goes to Mrs. Marks. Mrs. Marks charged her husband with mental cruelty, alleging that he nagged and criticized and made her life miserable.

U. S. NAVAL DELEGATION READY FOR WORK FRIDAY

LONDON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The American delegation to the five power naval conference, will be housed in its London headquarters and ready for work on Friday afternoon. Secretary of State Stimson and his colleagues are expected to land from the liner George Washington, at Plymouth, at about 7:30 a. m., and will speed to London by a special train due here at noon.

MRS. VIRGINIA C. K. LITTLE WINS DECREE OF DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Jan. 13—(AP)—Mrs. Virginia C. Kayser Little was granted a divorce here today from Everett W. Little, former American and Canadian agent for a well known brand of champagne. Mrs. Little, whose name is in the New York social register, testified that her husband had done nothing but "loaf" since prohibition came and he could sell no more wine.

NEGRO ARRESTED AFTER POLICEMAN HAD BEEN SHOT

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—James Threadgill, 36, a Negro, was arrested by a raiding squad under the direction of Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley here tonight a short time after Patrolman James Troy had been shot in a pistol battle with a man on whom the police were attempting to serve a warrant.

Nothern Europe Is Being Swept By Gale

First Raged Over E[illegible] Causing the De[illegible]42 Persons.

LONDON, Jan. 1[illegible] great gale raging over Eng[illegible] night and early today and [illegible]eeping on to northern Europe, [illegible] the deaths of 43 persons in Engla[illegible], on the continent, and at sea. This list of known dead is supplemented by a longer one of those suffering from injuries.

Twenty-three sailors went down with the naval tug St. Genny, which foundered last night while hove to in mountainous channel seas, 32 miles off Ushant. Only five survivors from the crew were picked up.

Fourteen deaths occurred inland in England. Most of them were caused by falling trees and masonry, and similar accidents, though a youth was actually blown into the water and drowned while standing on Ramsgate pier.

Telegraph and telephone service was disrupted in many districts, cutting off wire communications between London and some of the big provincial centers.

The liner Antonia, arriving at Liverpool today, reported that she had been unable to call at Queenstown owing to the violence of the gale. Her wireless aerial had been blown down.

Reports reaching London from the continent indicate that the storm was violent there also, though the only deaths reported so far are those of a father, his son, and his daughter, and two companions, who were drowned by the foundering of their motorboat at Vestfjord, Norway.

Fifteen steamers had taken refuge in the Elbe estuary near Hamburg from the force of a hurricane raging in Heligoland bight. Stormy weather was reported prevailing all over the North sea.

The inhabitants of Hamburg feared that a flood tide pushed up by high wind and seas would flood the lowlands at the mouth of the Elbe.

DIVORCE HAS BEEN GRANTED MRS. THORA T. NICHOLS

RENO, Nevada, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mrs. Thora T. Nichols was granted a divorce in the district court here late today from Clarence E. Nichols, vice president of the Federal Light and Traction company of New York. Following the signing of the decree, she planned to marry W. F. Nicholson vice president of the Pullman company.

Mrs. Nichols obtained her divorce on grounds of mental cruelty. Custody of a minor child has been agreed upon and a property settlement effected out of court. She charged that her husband was cold and indifferent and accompanied her to no social functions. Nichols did not contest the action but appeared through counsel. They were married in Chicago May 10, 1920.

MEN HELD FOR LYNCHING RELEASED IN $10,000 BAIL EACH

JACKSON, Ky., Jan. 13.—(AP)— The eight men held in jail here in connection with the lynching Christmas day of Chester Fugate were ordered released in $10,000 bail each today by County Judge William Turner. Arrangements were made by them at once to furnish the bonds.

The men held included six charged with the actual taking of Fugate from jail, and S. L. Combs, then the jailer, and his son, Lewis Combs, deputy jailer, whose terms since have expired, and who were indicted along with the other six.

Their trials are to be held at special term of circuit court beginning February 3.

CHIEF JUSTICE TAFT GOING TO ASHEVILLE, N. C.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.— (AP) — Chief Justice Taft was in his customary cheerful mood today with his characteristic chuckle punctuating his conversations.

All plans have been perfected for his departure to Asheville, N. C., tomorrow afternoon. It has been decided that Mrs. Taft will accompany him to Grove Park Inn, Asheville, where he will remain for several weeks. Dr. Thomas A. Claytor, the heart specialist who has treated him for several years, also will make the trip, and a nurse, familiar with the condition of the distinguished patient, will go to remain during his period of recuperation.

DEATH OF BARRIE CARMEN, FORMER DANCING MASTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Barrie Carmen, one-time jester to the court of King Broadway, is dead.

Death overtook the dashing dancing master, artist and former escort—and for a brief time, husband—of the wealthy Irene Schoellkopf, last Saturday in South Carolina as he was on his way to Florida's winter resorts.

He died from an acute heart attack. He was 37.

Carmen had been seen very little of late about the bright lights of the great white way where less than ten years ago he was a favorite figure—a wit, entertainer and a provoker of laughter at the parties of his wealthy friends.

SIX MORE COAST GUARDSMEN PLEADED GUILTY YESTERDAY

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Six more coast guardsmen, charged with intoxication the night the Flor-Del-Mar, a rum runner, was unloaded at the base here, pleaded guilty at the general court martial today.

Twenty-two men of 39 implicated in the theft and drinking of liquor from the rum craft, have now pleaded guilty, and are awaiting a review of their sentences by the U. S. treasury department.

The remaining cases will be disposed of this week.

DRASTIC RESTRICTION OF IMMIGRATION PROPOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Drastic restriction of immigration from countries in the western hemisphere is proposed in bills sponsored by Chairman Johnson, of the house immigration committee, and Representative Box of Texas, the ranking minority member of that committee.

The measures, both of which plan to limit the total quota to 50,000 immigrants a year from Canada, Mexico and Central and South American countries, will be brought up before the committee tomorrow. Arrangements are to be made for early hearings.

Approval Of Hoover's Report On Dry Law

Favorable Reaction Among Leaders of Wet and Dry Organizations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The preliminary report on prohibition by President Hoover's law enforcement commission today found favorable reaction among leaders of wet and dry organizations alike, but both groups refrained from commenting upon the suggestions that went with it to congress from President Hoover.

Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said in a statement that it was clear the commission "has now concluded, after eight months of study, that the problem of prohibition is not one to be solved by tinkering with enforcement procedure," and that it was clear also "that the commission believes the law as it now stands is unenforceable."

The Anti-Saloon league's board of directors was said at headquarters of the league here to have taken the report under consideration today in Detroit, where they are meeting preliminary to the biennial convention of the league. Favorable reaction to the report by them was predicted.

The board of directors, composed of two to eight members from each state, with Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Detroit as chairman, is expected to formulate general resolutions on prohibition, however, instead of making a pronouncement on the commission statement.

The league has refrained from involvement with the commission, it was explained, and they welcome the findings of a body investigating independently.

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, was absent from his office. His son said he did not know his father's whereabouts "at least as far as the public is concerned."

The Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals Research secretary, Deets Pickett, said "we favor the recommendations of President Hoover as they come to us."

He considered the report of the commission a "start," he said, that might serve as an introduction for further statements.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER TRIAL OF GLADYS MAY PARKS

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 13.— (AP) — Gladys May Parks, charged with murder in the first degree, faced a jury of twelve men today when her trial began for the alleged killing of two motherless children that were in her care.

As had been indicated by her counsel, no women were selected to pass judgment on the innocence or guilt of the defendant who admits she buried the children in shallow graves in woods in widely separated parts of southern New Jersey.

Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin, in his opening address, asked the jury to return a verdict of murder in the first degree. "The whole community asks a verdict that she was guilty of doing away with these two innocent children," he said in closing.

The jury was drawn in less than four hours and one witness was examined before court adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Gladys May Parks, also known as Mrs. Baker and by other names among her neighbors, sat calmly throughout the long examination of prospective jurors and the recital by the prosecutor of the details, as he knew them, of the killing of the children.

SIX MEN WERE KILLED BY GAS EXPLOSION IN MINE

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Six men were killed late today in a gas explosion in the Peerless-Casaba Coal company's mine at Straven, about 40 miles from here. At least one man was injured.

The dead: Arthur Lawley, Coleman Davis, Chalon Brantley, and Rob Vernon, all white miners; Bill Lanier, Negro, and a Negro named Coleman.

Jim Chepper, the seventh miner in the shaft at the time of the explosion, was sent to a Birmingham hospital.

Physicians said Chesser was in a critical condition.

The explosion occurred in what is known as the eighth right seam, 1,000 feet below the entrance to the mine.

At least 14 other men and possibly a number of others had left the shaft an hour before the explosion occurred, officials said.

STONE REMOVED FROM RIGHT KIDNEY OF GENE TUNNEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Flanked by white robed specialists in an operating room of the Presbyterian hospital, Gene Tunney took a 25-minute count today and awakened minus a troublesome stone that had formed at the entrance of his right kidney.

A minor operation, performed by Dr. George Winthrop Fish with Dr. J. Bentley Squires and Dr. Carnes Weeks in attendance, removed the obstruction. It was feared at first it might be necessary to take out the kidney itself. The former heavyweight king rallied splendidly from the operation which was described as "entirely successful."

RESULTS OF 15-MILE RACE IN THREE-DAY AIR MEET

MIAMI, Jan. 13.—(AP)—D. Stratham, of Americus, Ga., won the first event in the three-day air meet here today when he covered the 15-mile course for three seater planes with Ox-5 motors in 8:7 1-2 minutes.

The second event, a 15-mile race for 200 horsepower planes, was won by H. A. Little, piloting a Monosporte in 7:09:1 minutes.

A protest was made in the race when Dale Jackson, St. Louis endurance flyer, piloting a Cessna plane, cut inside the pylons and forced out L. W. Scott of the Alexander Aircraft corporation.

TREASURY-POSTOFFICE APPROPRIATIONS BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.— (AP) — Although numerous governmental activities provided for annually in the treasury-postoffice appropriations bill, were allotted sums more and less than those provided last year in the $1,147,778,682 measure reported today to the house, the $15,000,000 recommended for prohibition enforcement remained exactly the same.

THREE MEN KILLED WHEN PAY CAR WAS DYNAMITED

Three Men Were Injured, Two of Whom May Die—Robbers Failed to Get the $33,000 in a Pay Car Chest—Car Was Dynamited Near Colliery in the Vicinity of Wilkesbarre, Pa.—Explosion Was Heard or Felt Over a Wide Area.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 13—(AP)—Three men were killed instantly and three others were injured, two critically, today when bandits dynamited a pay car of the Glen Alden coal company.

The explosion occurred near the Truesdale Colliery of the Glen Alden company. The payroll, containing $33,000 was intact save for a few bills which were rent to pieces by the force of the explosion. No trace of the bandits was found. An organized search of the section, which is isolated, immediately was begun.

The dead:

Arthur E. Webb, 32, of Scranton, paymaster in charge of the car.

Frank Bimski, 40, a miner, of Plymouth, who was riding on the car to the colliery to get his pay.

Martin Burns, 31, section foreman, of Warrior Run.

The injured:

Fred W. Pfaff, 50, a guard of Scranton, both feet crushed and internal

James Shevlin, 32, section foreman of injuries; condition serious.

Sugar Notch, both legs blown off and both arms crushed and skull fractured; will die.

John Sookil, 50, miner, of Plymouth, slightly injured.

According to others who were riding in the dynamited pay car, a charge of explosive was placed under the track and set off by electricity from a barricade more than 200 yards away.

The pay car was drawn by a mine motor. As it neared the Truesdale colliery, with the funds for the miners, a terrific explosion occurred. The force of the blast uncoupled the motor and the pay car. Without stopping for investigation, Harry Powell, motorman, of Wilkesbarre, proceeded under full power to the colliery and spread the alarm.

The blast had been heard there but with muffled detonations, an everyday occurence in mining villages, nothing was thought of it until Powell in the small motored jig incoherently told his tale.

Posses immediately hastened back to the scene. There they found the pay car off the track and partially wrecked. The remains of Webb, Bimski and Burns were found as was the mangled bodies of Pfaff and Shevlin, both of which still held life.

Sookil, who was but slightly injured, saved the pay-roll. Dazed from the force of the blast, he managed to gain his feet and stood over the iron bound pay chest which was bolted to the floor of the pay car. One of the bandits approached. The lid of the pay chest had been ripped off and bits of currency were scattered about the floor.

Warning the approaching bandit away Sookil struck a menacing attitude and the bandit, without offering attack and probably alarmed by the noise of the returning motor car, fled.

Officials who later examined the pay chest, found most of its contents intact, pressed down into the chest by concussion.

Earlier in the afternoon several hundred workmen employed at the main colliery of the Truesdale working, had been paid off from the main pay car. This work completed, an auxiliary pay car was attached to the small motor gig and with Paymaster Webb started the long step climb up Newport mountain.

It had nearly reached its destination when the blast came.

Several persons residing in the vicinity heard the blast and dismissed it as another of the several blastings heard daily. It was not for some time that news of the robbery attempt reached residential sections and then a constantly mounting stream of curious trekked for the spot.

By that time however, a hastily improvised searching party, armed with shotguns, pistols and other arms, was scouring the country-side. Included in the party were civilians, miners of the Glen Alden company, police of Hanover township and Nanticoke and state troopers, coal and iron police and county detectives.

The Truesdale colliery is one of the largest in the anthracite region and is in Hanover township, about a mile from Nanticoke.

RUM RUNNER KILLED IN GUN FIGHT WITH OFFICERS

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 13—(AP)—Juan Gomez of Harlingen, Texas, who was riding on a motor truck, loaded with liquor was shot and killed today in a gun fight with federal officers near Los Indios close to the Mexican border when the truck was not stopped at the command of customs inspectors. The driver of the truck escaped into the dense brush.

Four officers were guarding the river road when they heard the truck approaching it. A stop sign was stretched across the road.

Before reaching the sign the truck swerved and ran through a fence to the left of the road. Shots were exchanged and Gomez fell from the seat with bullet wounds in the neck and chest. Leaping from the truck the driver raced for cover firing his rifle as he ran.

In Gomez's pistol two empty shells were found.

MISSING FISHERMAN WERE PICKED UP AT SEA

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 13—(AP)—Rescued from what shipping men deemed almost inevitable death in the Atlantic, William Larson, of Southport, N. C., who on last Friday was carried adrift in a small skiff from his fishing smack, and for whom shore stations and coast guard cutters have been searching ever since, this afternoon was safe aboard the steamer Ivy Olsen.

Larsen was picked up off Cape Romaine, North Carolina, 200 miles south of position at which he was reported adrift to coast guard Friday. In view of weather conditions along the coast Friday and Saturday, the rescue was little short of a miracle, coast guard officials here said.

LOW TEMPERATURES ALONG THE PACIFIC COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Winter griped the west today and official weather forecasts promised more storms.

Icy temperatures were distributed generously along the Pacific coast; highways only a few miles inland were choked with snow, and the Columbia river was frozen from bank to bank to a point below the Dalles, Oregon.

Snow was falling in Salt Lake City and was expected tonight in Reno. Arizona too, felt the cold although telephone communication was established with Grand Canyon where the Mexican president-elect, Pascual Ortiz Rubio and his party were cut off from the world a number of hours by the season's most severe storm.

CHICAGO'S CITY COUNCIL DEADLOCKED OVER BUDGET

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Chicago's city council still was deadlocked tonight over its 1930 budget; 25,000 city employes still were awaiting pay checks—and the president of the board of education was predicting the closing of the metropolis' schools.

Aldermanic leaders, the corporation counsel, Silas H. Strawn (of the citizens' rescue committee) and others, representing both sides of the controversy over the nature of the budget conferred and reported "just friendly discussion." The afternoon newspapers said, however, they learned definitely the conferees were unable to agree.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jessie Swirles Bladworth

STAMFORD, Jan. 13.—(AP) — Mrs. Jessie Swirles Bladworth, better known to American womanhood as May Manton, died at the Shorehaven club, Sound beach, last night at the age of 79. She had been ill since the death of her husband, on October 7, last from injuries received when he was struck by a hit-and-run driver on September 16.

Mrs. Bladworth was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, but had lived in Sound beach for 40 years. Her husband was a pattern maker and with him she founded the May Manton Pattern company.

COMBING CONNECTICUT FOR MISSING FLIERS

WATERBURY, Jan. 13—(AP)—Densely wooded sections of the small state of Connecticut, believed to hold the secret of the fate of two airmen missing since last Friday, today were carefully searched without success.

From Ansonia to Danbury searching parties beat through underbrush along the Housatonic river until nightfall in hope of finding some trace of Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, who left Farmingdale, N. Y., Friday morning on an altitude flight in a large cabin plane.

State police and Boy Scouts, spurred by numerous reports that an airplane, flying low in foggy, murky weather with its motor functioning with difficulty passed over this area, planned to resume the hunt tomorrow. All reports of the craft placed it within a fifteen mile radius of Southbury, with one exception. A resident of Portland, near Middletown, said he heard a plane at about the same time in that section.

While much of the area was carefully combed today, the almost impenetrable forest growth bordering on Kettletown, where the craft was last seen, was regarded as most promising for finding it if it had met with a tragedy in this state. Farmers, urged on by offer of a $1,500 reward, stumbled their way over the rough terrain with no success, but were not inclined to give up the hunt. They planned to be out again in the morning, and it was said that perhaps several days would be required before the territory had been fully covered.

THOUSANDS DYING DAILY FROM FAMINE IN CHINA

PEIPING, China, Jan. 13—(AP)—The China international famine relief is confronting the most hopeless situation it has ever faced in famine-ridden China in the northern province of Shensi, where thousands of people are dying daily from famine and exposure.

Grover Clark, a former Peiping newspaper editor, returning from a six weeks inspection trip in the Wei river district, declared today that [illegible]000,000 persons were doomed [illegible] within a few months. After investigating whether the famine relief could be of aid, he has absolutely no hope of saving them.

He estimates that 2,000,000 people out of 6,000,000 in the area, which extends on both sides of the Wei river, died during the past eight months. Thousands were frozen to death during the recent cold wave, when with the thermometer at 32 below, Shensi province suffered the coldest weather recorded in its history. The people, accustomed to a minimum temperature of 15 above for more than 40 years, were caught unprepared.

FORMER GOV. HOLCOMB IS HOLDING HIS OWN

SOUTHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Marcus H. Holcomb, Connecticut's governor during the World war, tonight was said to be holding his own, there being no change in his condition since early in the day when it became known that he was in a serious state, having suffered the fracture of two ribs last Thursday when he tripped over a rug and fell heavily in his home here. Last November, former Gov. Holcomb celebrated his 85th birthday and at that time, was in very good health and quite active for one of his years.

TWO ARRESTED FOR BURGLARIZING STORE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13.—A speedy investigation into a break at the Max Rabinowitz grocery store at 117 Main street during the night led to the arrest this afternoon of Alphege Potvin of 11 Ash street and Eugene Delude, 19, of Adelbert street. Both are to be arraigned in police court Tuesday morning on charges of breaking and entering and theft. The break was discovered when the store was opened this morning. Delude admitted after a grilling that he had removed a cardboard from the rear door of the store and loosened the latch. He said that he then notified Potvin that all was in readiness for the burglary. Chief of Police Thomas F. Grady and Officer Arthur M. Hurley, who conducted the investigation, gained a valuable clue to the identity of the perpetrators of the crime when Patrolman Joseph LaChappelle, who was on duty in the lower district during the night, said that he had seen Delude and Potvin about midnight, meeting Potvin again about 2:30 a. m. The time of the burglary was fixed at about 12:30 o'clock, less than one hour after Mrs. Potvin had become a mother. The two men are said to have made three trips from the store to the Potvin home with armfuls of a wide variety of merchandise. Both men were questioned by the police during the forenoon and their alibis differed, but they were released. In the afternoon, the officers found the Potvin barber shop closed and learned that the proprietor was sleeping. Potvin had previously said that he had slept well during the night. The police then visited the cellar of the Potvin home and underneath a stairway found 12 cans of tomatoes, and a cardboard smeared with blood believed to have come from a cut on Potvin's hand. A further search of the Potvin home revealed 22 cartons of cigarettes, cigars, cookies, bread, etc. Potvin broke down and showed the officers where he had buried other canned goods. He was locked up and the officers returned for Delude, who then admitted his guilt and assumed responsibility for the actual break.

REPORTS HEARING PLANE IN FOG ON FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13.—J. A. Isham of Columbia reported today that the cabin monoplane bearing Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, test pilots for the Fairchild Airplane Mfg. Co., may have been the one he heard over Columbia last Friday forenoon. Isham said that he and a neighbor were working in a field near his farm between 10:30 and 11 o'clock Friday forenoon. They heard the droning of a plane coming from the south. While the machine must have come to within a short distance of where the men stood and was apparently flying at low altitude, it could not be seen, owing to the thick blanket of fog. The plane turned south but within some 15 minutes returned again. It headed toward Columbia center and again turned, going over the isolated Wells Woods district. Mr. Isham said that the motor sounded as if it was not functioning properly. He did not hear any crash but expressed the possibility of the plane's coming down in the large, uninhabited area of Wells Woods, an extensive tract of timber lying south of Columbia, toward Hebron and Marlboro.

MUSICIANS NOTE CHIEF ANNIVERSARIES AT MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13.—Notable anniversaries in the musical world of the community were observed by Local 403, American Federation of Musicians, at the regular meeting held in the Opera house block Sunday. The occasion marked the 25th anniversary of the founding of Local 403, the 72nd anniversary month of the organization of the first brass band in Willimantic and the 49th anniversary of Charles N. C. Wheeler as director of bands in the city, as well as the 30th anniversary of the founding of the present band.

Among the 70 musicians present were five charter members of the local. According to the report of Secretary Brooke the local has a membership of 104. Among the charter members who spoke were J. Deloraine Conant, Clinton C. Helmold, George W. Hickey, William Taylor and George J. Michaud.

Willimantic's first band was organized in January, 1858, and was known as the Willimantic Cornet band. It disbanded during the Civil war but was reorganized in 1863 under the direction of the late Thomas W. Rollinson. The National and Willimantic bands followed in 1878 and in 1871 a band known as the St. Joseph's band was formed. There was a decline in the interest in bands in the early 80's but this was revived in 1884 when another band sprang up under the direction of William J. Maxwell.

In 1880, Charles N. C. Wheeler, a pupil of Mr. Rollinson, became a director and, in 1900 he organized Wheeler's Boys' band. Three years later the name was changed to Wheeler's Willimantic band and the name of B. P. O. E. band was adopted after a period of seven years. Mr. Wheeler continues as director of the B. P. O. E. band and is also bandmaster of the Willimantic State Trade school and the K. of C. Boys' bands.

During the meeting the following officers were elected: President, George J. Michaud; vice-president, Roderick Cote; recording and financial secretary, Frank W. Brooke; treasurer, Joseph A. Pepin; sergeant-at-arms, Daniel Sullivan; executive committee, Ralph H. Gibson, John T. Quinlan, Robert C. Fletcher, Clifford Donnelly and Lawrence Haggerty; alternates to the committee, Harold Colburn, Francis Johnstone and James Day. Refreshments were served under the direction of William Taylor.

FUNERALS

Michael Sullivan

Leaving from the home, 9 Jackson place, the funeral of Michael Sullivan was held this morning with a requiem high mass in St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Francis A. Duch was the celebrant and Mrs. Henry Mathieu soloist. Mrs. Edmund [illegible] presided at the organ. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery, where Rev. Father Duch read a committal prayer. The bearers were: Michael F. Sullivan, Frank Teevan, Maurice Welch, Patrick Pickett, L. Vincent Shea and John Healy, Jr. Arrangements were in charge of Kilourey Brothers.

Mrs. Mary J. Randall

Services for Mrs. Mary Jane Randall were held at the Columbia Congregational church at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rev. John Howell and Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiated. Burial was in the Columbia cemetery. Avery & VanZandt had charge of the arrangements.

OBITUARY

Jared Pearl

Jared Pearl, 85, formerly of Windham, died at his home in Manchester Sunday. He had sustained a shock Monday of last week. The deceased was one of the four surviving members of Drake post, No. 4, G. Why are A&P Prices Lower?
... because in one year American women make 1,500,000,000 visits to A&P Food Stores

NATURALLY these many visits enable A & P to achieve proportionally vast economies which are passed on to A & P customers in the form of lower prices.

A & P's many customers buy such enormous quantities that A & P is in a position to demand the best in quality and to buy the best at lowest prices that you may save.

DANIELSON

PUTNAM MAN FINED $150 FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—The price of being found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while the driver is in a state of intoxication has gone up in the Killingly town court. This morning Ildiau LaRose of Putnam was fined $150 and costs of prosecution. He was arrested Saturday night after he failed to obey the signal of a state officer ordering him to bring his car to a halt. As a general rule, fines in such cases in the local court have been $100 and costs, but higher fines are assessed in many city and police courts of the state, some making a practice of setting the fine at $200.

Another case disposed of this morning was that of Wilfred LaPalme of Franklin street. He was charged with keeping liquor with intent to sell, with transportation and with an actual sale. Pleading guilty, he was fined $50 on each of the first two counts and given a sentence of 30 days in jail on the third count, execution of the jail sentence being suspended. His car is held at the state police barracks on North Main street and may be confiscated under the laws of the state if it can be established that LaPalme has a clear title to it.

Vincent Vardineto of Providence also was in court today, charged with driving a car without having an operator's license. Judge W. Fenner Woodward fined him $10 and costs.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Danielson Trust company was held at the bank this morning with 964 of the 1,000 shares that are outstanding represented either in person or by proxy. All but three of the seventeen directors attended the meeting. The report of Treasurer Clifford H. Starkweather showed that 1929 was a very successful year.

The directors re-elected for the ensuing year are: J. A. Atwood, Oscar F. Atwood, Sidney W. Bard, Frederick E. Bitgood, W. Irving Bullard, Herman M. Coulter, Irving W. Davis, N. Lorne Greig, Frederick A. Jacobs, D. E. Jette, J. W. Powdrell, Frank T. Preston, Alfred L. Reed, Clifford H. Starkweather, Everett T. Tillinghast, Fred W. Tillinghast and A. Putnam Woodward. J. A. Atwood is president of the bank, Frederick A. Jacobs vice-president, Clifford H. Starkweather treasurer, Harry E. Magoon assistant treasurer.

Incident to the visit to Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox church here of Rt. Rev. Joachim Alexopoulis, bishop of Boston, George P. Berris said that the members of the congregation are appreciative of the generous spirit of the town's people in giving toward the cost of carrying out various improvements at the church property on Water street. These improvements include the construction of an ornamental metal fence about the church.

Incident to the plan to build many houses in Danielson, there was a revival of talk of an old project today—that of building a vehicle bridge across the Assawaga river at some point about opposite the westerly end of Oak street. Such a bridge would make the many home sites in the Riverview section more attractive to home builders, as it would make that area easier of access. Only a footbridge now crosses the river, this from a point near the state armory to Palmer street on the Riverview side. Vehicles that are taken over to Riverview have to follow the roundabout route through Main and Maple streets. Shortage of building lots in central sections of the borough outside of Riverview has inspired revival of the talk about having a new bridge, a project discussed many times in years gone by.

State officers continued today their investigation of the breaks at the A. and P. store on the West Side and at the Miller summer home in Canterbury. Frank Miller, owner of the property, has arrived from New York and was carefully going over the contents of the house today to determine what was taken by the burglars. The home contained many things of value, including antiques.

There were no special developments in either case up to late this afternoon. On the West Side the presumption appears to be quite general that the break at the store was probably made by boys and possibly by ones resident here.

Committees of the Westfield Congregational church for the year are: Finance, Frank J. G. Bailey, Irving W. Davis, A. Putnam Woodward; flower, Miss Miriam Boomhower, Mrs. Deborah Atwood, Mrs. Oswald C. Street; missions, Mrs. Harding W. Gaylord, Mrs. Burdette C. Hopkins, Mrs. Eric V. Johnson; music, Frederick A. Jacobs, Miss Edith L. Fuller, Miss Mary E. Smith; pastor's library, Arthur G. Bill, Miss Amelia B. Hutchins, Miss Carrie L. Fellows; property, Walter Anderson, Thomas A. Beckett, George B. Guild; pulpit supply, Miss Agnes W. Jacobs, Miss Frances W. Danielson, Miss Marion D. Choilar; religious education, Miss Frances W. Danielson, Mrs. Burdette C. Hopkins, Mrs. Wilfred J. Pluze; seating, Albert R. Fiske, Mrs. John A. Paine, Bertram Hammond.

Mrs. Rene Buteau of Main street was hostess for the Entre Nous club at its week end meeting. Winners at bridge were Mrs. L. A. Woisard, Mrs. William McLaughlin and Mrs. Frank J. Gorman.

Thursday of this week, Jan. 15, is the 10th anniversary of national prohibition. W. C. T. U. chapters the country over will observe the event. In Danielson the observance will be in the evening at the Methodist Episcopal church. Local clergymen will assist and an interesting program will be presented. A general invitation has been extended to the public to attend, and it is hoped that the response will be large.

Under the auspices of the Westfield Men's club and in the interest of a special fund of the Westfield Congregational church, Harrell, the musical magician, gave an entertainment in the gymnasium of the Congregational church this evening.

A quartet from the Laymen's league was in Moosup this evening to take part in a service at the newly dedicated Baptist church, replacing the one destroyed by fire in May, 1928.

As to getting an ice crop, Danielson's icemen are facing much the same kind of a situation as they did during January, 1928. There was a prospect of early cutting in December, but much mild weather since has caused an entirely different situation.

On Friday of this week, as guests of the company, members of the Killingly Woman's club, will inspect the curtain factory of Powdrell and Alexander, the largest of its kind in the world.

Forms for filing income tax returns are being received here from the office of the collector of internal revenue at Hartford.

PUTNAM

ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO SELL RHEA PLANT FRIDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 13.—A third attempt will be made to dispose of the machinery, good will, stock in process, etc., of the National Rhea company, bankrupt organization, at an auction sale to be held at the plant on Canal street Friday, Jan. 17, Leonard H. Mellor, superintendent of the company said this afternoon. The price decreed by the Connecticut and Rhode Island courts of $147,500 will be in order again this week. It is believed that this price is the primary reason for the auctioneer's previous failures to secure a prospective buyer for the property. On two occasions prominent New England mill men have been present at the auctions, intent upon bidding if a lower salable figure would be accepted.

Manufacturing operations at the rayon plant are at a standstill and many employes have been temporarily thrown out of work because of the present state of affairs. Lewis A. Waterman, appointed receiver of the mill through a superior court order issued last summer after voluntary bankruptcy proceedings has been filed by stockholders for re-organization purposes, had made no statements for publication relative to the future conditions anticipated after a sale has been secured. It has been said that activities at the plant will be revived immediately after a new ownership takes over the bankrupt concern.

Harry Stone, 23, who claimed his residence in Everett Mass., was arrested this morning when Officer Joseph Page of the local police investigated various complaints to learn that Stone was conducting the well known "gyp" game of selling products on the deposit plan, the purchaser paying the balance on receipt of the goods through mail.

Possessing all the appearances of a successful business man and equipped with a brief case in which he carried samples and style pictures of a brand of ladies silk hosiery manufactured by an East Boston concern, he began a canvass of the various residential sections in an effort to gather up some easy money. With his investigation completed Officer Page took the salesman into custody on Farrows street. The swindling scheme was revealed when the East Boston firm denied that Stone was their agent. Eric H. Johnson, prosecuting attorney, said this afternoon that Stone in all probability will be arraigned in city court Tuesday morning on charges of misrepresentation and obtaining money on false promises. Today's incident marked the first visit of the year by a fraudulent agent and incidentally the first plan to be nipped in the bud—since as far as could be learned by police only a few residents had been made victims of Stone's "racket" of high pressure salesmanship.

A writ of attachment served Saturday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer of Dayville upon the clothing house of Horowitz Brothers Inc., Main street, in favor of Samuel Diamond of Grove street, caused the business establishment to be closed today and all securities remaining in custody of Sheriff Ayer. The developments in this case which occurred Saturday had been anticipated for several days, since the owners apparently aware of Diamond's intended action, on January 3, with a view of averting attachment, filed a deed of trust with Town Clerk Henry N. Benoit. Under stipulations in Connecticut law the weapon of the Horowitz Brothers, which in reality constituted an assignment to creditors, meant nothing in the way of preventing the carrying out of Sheriff Ayer's bit of legal strategy Saturday afternoon.

The store of Horowitz Brothers was formerly owned by Samuel Diamond who is soon to be complainant in an action against his successors in business. The nature of Diamond's impending court case is not known since none of the preliminary documents have been filed in superior court here, according to a statement made today by Curtis N. Dean, clerk of courts.

Adhemar Benoit of Walnut street, who was injured last Saturday evening by a hit-and-run driver at Attawaugan, was reported as improved today by the officials of the Day Kimball hospital. Benoit's injuries consist of a fractured leg and fractured thumb. The driver of the car responsible for the Putnam grocery man's plight is still unknown to officers of the state police barracks at Danielson who are making efforts to reveal his identity and bring about his apprehension.

Robert Bruce of New Haven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bruce of Mechanics street, spent the week end at the home of his parents.

Omer J. Milot, a member of the firm of Milot and Williams, today announced the dissolving of partnership between these two merchants. Mr. Milot in the future will conduct the business at the establishment on Main street. Albert H. Williams of Woodstock was formerly associated with Milot.

The weekly card tournament of the Elks and the Masons was held Monday evening at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street. A luncheon was served by the Masons following the adjournment of the session.

Scoutleaders Training Course

The first session of the scoutleaders training course was held Friday evening in St. Theresa's hall, St. Mary's church, with Father Casey and Scout Executive Lellman officiating. The meeting opened with the Lord's prayer led by John P. Cronin, following which for an hour and a half the men engaged in many interesting activities. Organized in patrols with patrol colors, the leaders gave yells, cut out amusing patrol animals, tied knots, played games of competition and covered the Tenderfoot requirements. Following the session refreshments were served. Those in attendance were: Fred Racine, John P. Cronin, C. R. Brodeur, John Simmenzi, Lawrence Lucier, Edward Donovan, Arthur A. Peminville, Secorda Rovers, Norman Pelyurt, Labby G. Maascotte, Frank Gleason and Harry L. Trask. Father Casey extended a cordial welcome to Scoutmaster Frank Gleason and Harry Trask of Putnam and expressed the hope that other scoutleaders and men interested in boys' work in Putnam would attend the course. The second session of the course will be held Thursday evening, January 16.

JEWETT CITY

TOTAL OF $574 PLEDGED ON BAPTIST LOYALTY DAY

The Baptist church observed a Loyalty day Sunday, in connection with the January communion service. In answer to the statement of the trustees of the church, in which was set forth a tabulated account of the status of the treasury, the response from the members present was so general and generous that $574 was placed in the offering basket, thus going a long way toward the taking up of a note which represents the total deficit. The committee, that so ably planned the loyalty idea has reported that a clean slate for the beginning of 1930 is practically assured. In connection with the first communion of the year, a new order of things, as relative to the form of service procedure, included the reading of the church covenant, as a responsive feature, pastor and people taking part.

Twenty-nine members of the Baptist church and Sunday school were in Moosup Sunday to be present at the dedicatory service of the new Baptist church.

The installing officers were: President Alma Forceir of Goodyear, assisted by Angelina Brien, of Jewett City, vice presidents, Mr. and Mrs. Bartolomi Caron of Norwich, honorary presidents, George Sylvester and Mrs. Eva Caron, Jewett City, doyens, Felix Guillet and Mrs. Azilda Menard, Jewett City, master and mistress of ceremonies respectively, Francois LaLiberte and Mrs. Lida Gingras of Jewett City. The officers of Jean D'Arc council installed were: President, Mrs. Carmelle Casavant; honorary president, Delphine Beauregard; honorary president, Georgiana Couture; doyen, Mrs. Olive Blanchard; secretary, Marie Roy; assistant secretary, Regina LaPointe; treasurer, Mrs. Lucianna Rousseau; auditors, Mrs. Regina LaPointe and Clorinthe Ramsey; guards, Rose Arsenault and Carmelisse Ethier; mistress of ceremonies, Mrs. Celia Cadieux; chaplain, Rev. Nicholas Caron. The officers of Council Chapleau are: President honoraire, George Davignon; doyen, F. X. Casavant; president, Ephrem Sylvestre; vice president, Louis M. Gingras; secretaire, Joseph Couture; secretaire adjoint, Louis Cyr; tresorier, Clovis Casavant; percepteur, Joseph Couture; verificateurs de comptes, Paul E. Couture and Francois Lavallee; maitre de ceremonies, Felix Nadeau; 1st. commissaire ordinateur, Louis J. Beaulieu; 2nd. commissaire ordinateur, George Lefebre.

An entertainment program was given which opened with addresses of welcome by the presidents of the two councils. There were speeches by Rev. J. J. McCabe, Rev. Nicholas Caron, Louis Gingras and Alma Forcier. Recitations were given by Evelyn Caron, Rita Malhiotte, Loretta Fregeault and Laura Sylvester. Solos by Ephraim Sylvester and Mrs. Aglae Sarazin were accompanied by Jean Rousseau and Mrs. Sarazin. The children's choir, under direction of Sister Cecelia sang several selections. Refreshments were served by committees from both councils.

It will be of much interest to her friends to learn that Mrs. Margaret Bitgood of Voluntown is in Backus hospital where she has undergone an operation. Mrs. Bitgood is eighty-six years of age, and is making a fine recovery, expecting to return to her home soon. Mrs. Bitgood is a sister-in-law of Mrs. William Bitgood, of Voluntown, who is well known to Bulletin readers.

Mrs. F. X. Casavant goes to Worcester Wednesday to install the officers of St. Jean de Baptiste council, of which she was president for eleven years.

VARIETY OF SUBJECTS IN CALENDAR COLLECTION

Many who are calling at The Bulletin's business and correspondence branch in Jewett City, the Hiscox home, 76 Main street, to admire the annual calendar display, are finding the 66 issues received so far, of more than usual beauty and interest. For several men who called Sunday, nothing takes precedence over the railroad issues. Of these there are four—The Missouri Pacific, shows one of the crack Overland Limited trains rounding into the bend along some western stream. This painting is done upon a sheet of green tinted steel. The N. Y., N. H., and Hartford, Serving New England, couples transportation information with various illustrations. The New York Central lines shows the East and West bound "20th Century Limited" trains, as they cross in the new Buffalo station at midnight. After a canvas by W. L. Green, with the great tower illuminated, the high lights and colors are brought out to perfection. The Pennsylvania, with a painting by Grif Teller, shows its Broadway Limited, with a sky-line vista of advancing building wonders, all in color, and so realistic, that one involuntarily steps aside, lest the great machine might move.

The Cunard-Anchor line, Red Star, White Star and International Mercantile Marine are attractive ocean steamship issues. The last named exhibits a different trans-Atlantic liner, all in colors, for each month, as the season advances.

The General Electric of Boston and the Thames Building company of New London are large 12-sheet calendars. The former shows a dozen paintings by Green, which call attention to the wonderful mechanical ends being accomplished today by means of the economic application of electricity. The building firm sets forth in color 12 modern residences painted in accordance with a draft plan scale.

Two master pieces in still another line, are only to be viewed "through a glass darkly," these are from gallery canvases by Armstrong, the titles being "Lady of the Evening," and "Temptation." They are printed for the trade by the Foxon company of Providence and the other by Wetmore Electric company of Boston. D. A. Boyd of Halifax, N. S., shows the Indian Maiden Love Dance and the Sussex, New Brunswick, Canada Ginger Ale Co., have a masterpiece by Teller. "Where the Years Go Softly By," showing a scene from the original painting in quiet Bruges where lingers the stately dignity of long ago.

The R. J. Canter Co., of New York, and the Lowell Shuttle Co., of Boston, have beauties in "The Rose Girl" and "Rose." The New York Liner and Laundry Co., of New York, have a large 18x30 inch copy of the painting—"Watching the Clouds Roll By."

"The Veteran," by Parsons, from the Western Ammunition, of Chicago; "Let's Go," by W. D. Fuller, from the Hercules Powder, of Wilmington, Del., and twelve scenes by the Winchester Arms Co., are all comprised in the camping and sports collection.

There are four pastoral reproductions, which to some who have called seem the most attractive; "The New England Homestead," from W. A. Wilcox, of Westerly; "Home Sweet Home," from the Franklin Machine Co., Providence; "The Old Homestead," from A. V. Woodworth, Danielson; "The Shepherd's Flocks," by Lauve, a scene in Holland from Wauregan store. One of the leaders, "Perry at Lake Erie," by DeLand, the reproduction of a famous National canvas, is the gift of Smith Granite Co., of Westerly. Two scenes from the wild, "So Long" and "The Fireside," are from W. M. McNicol and Charles H. Phillips. These paintings are 36x18 inches.

The shaded figure tints of the American Bank Note Co. are printed as in former years.

Of special notice in another line are sailing vessels, "Homeward Bound," from Thos. Redfern and Son of Fall River, and "Rolling Down to Rio," from the Atlantic bank of Fall River, with "Old Ironsides," from the Providence Mill Supplies. R. Hoe and Co., of New York have added their 1930 issue, the size of a door, the picture title is "Sunrise on Lake O'Hara." "Lustre Odors and Blossoms," one of the most artistic from a color standpoint, is from the Sachem Provision Co., of Norwich.

"The Holland Windmill," is from C. E. Barber, of Central Village. "A Mediterranean Scene," is a gift from the Pieroni Sea Grills of Boston. "Can We Be Friends," a brush copy, is an issue by the Worcester Rendering Co. Farm scenes, 5 feet by 18 inches is from the DeLaval Cream Separator company of New York. John A. Roebling's Sons of Trenton, N. J., send a fine copy in colors, entitled, "Building the Mighty Bridge." The Pacific Mutual of Providence, had added, "Wawona," one of the giant redwoods, with 18 leading events in history in full color, that have happened during its lifetime, beginning with the "Nativity."

Three leaders from the bank calendars are: "Rural Peacefulness," from the Jewett City Savings; "A World of Happiness," from the Brooklyn Savings, and "Birth of Home Sweet Home," from The Park bank of Baltimore. The Troy Laundry of Norwich has a small copy of the "Fishing Fleet." "Spanning the Centuries," is from Joseph Roode, from a painting by Jef Leempoels. Henry McEwen of Danielson presents a sunset scene on Lake George. "Along the Historic Knox Trail," is from The Short Line Co.

The twelve local calendars include: "La Guardia," by Roy Bert from Charles R. Carey; "Ecstacy," from J. B. L. Claire, "The Old Mill," from E. J. Jodoin; "The Coquette," from Malek's hotel; "Lucille," from A. Zegeer; "The Guardian of the Family," from the Soule Street Bakery; "An Interrupted Meal" from D. J. Sullivan; "Lake George," from the Adams Motor Co.; "Moon Beams," from the Polish Corporation; "After the Ball," from Frank Minski; "The World Loves a Winner," from the Jewett City garage, an embossed bird scene from Arremony and Son.

In this beautiful display, a great variety of subjects is considered, ranging from business specialties to the finest art.

CALIFORNIA FARMING DESCRIBED BY TOURIST

From San Diego, Cal., Mr. Ross continues his letters: We drove out to Lakeside the first of the year. We expected to see a great lake. This lake (it would be called a pond in Connecticut) was not quite as large as the Slater mill pond in Jewett City. There were hundreds of ducks in the lake, rather tame for wild ducks. They are called mud hens, and are protected by law. I believe they are not edible. In this valley we saw great live oak trees. I think their roots must have reached water, as the foliage was a very dark green. The attraction of this place was not the lake but the mountains surrounding the valley.

At one point, as we approached the river (perfectly dry) there were six or eight artists sketching. The different coloring of the mountains was wonderful. The near mountains were pink, which shaded to a very dark blue as the distance increased. I should like to see the canvasses of these artists to see if they were alike.

On the way to Lakeside we passed through several valleys. All the farms are in valleys as the mountains are so steep that they can not be cultivated, although there are some mountains that can be utilized as pastures for cattle and sheep.

In one valley, the farms (ranches) were planted to oranges and lemons. In another valley were walnuts (English), olives and grapes. All these trees are in full leaf except the walnut. These trees look like old apple trees in their shape, the limbs are rather short and blunt. The bark is smooth and does not look unlike our beech trees in Connecticut. The color is a light gray.

The most valuable land is given over to avocado (alligator) pears. We were told that an acre of this pear was worth $5,000. This pear, when ripe, is a dark green, the shape of a Bartlett. They sell for 35c to 75c apiece. I do not care for them. They taste like boiled eggs.

One valley was filled with chicken farms, farm after farm, chickens and chickens. Thousands of chickens on one farm, a few turkeys, some cattle. The cattle are never housed. There are no barns. The cows stay out-of-doors all the time. These dairy farms are usually on the side of a mountain and those that go down into the valley are used for raising alfalfa. If there is plenty of water (and all these farm are irrigated) we were told that the alfalfa can be cut ten or tudor times (?) (What?)

In going from one valley to another we go partly up a mountain then circle around and come down on the other side. Some of the roads look quite dangerous, yet are perfectly safe, for as a rule, they are well graded.

The market or truck gardens are nearer the city and are finely kept.

It may interest you to know when the time is best to plant different vegetable and the time it takes them to ripen or mature.

Hebron League of Women Voters met January 8, at 2 p. m., in the chapel of the First Congregational church. Deaconess Harriett Hyde from Middle-Haddam, came in place of Miss Emily Whitney, because of the latter's illness. Deaconess Hyde took up the question of schools, which was outlined by Miss Whitney. This talk was followed by Current Event, by league members. Fourteen were present. Mrs. Della Porter Hills was secretary, in place of Miss Mary E. Cummings, who was unable to be present.

The Congregational church, Jan 5, changed the time of service to 12 o'clock and Sunday school at 11 o'clock. Gilead Congregational church, Sunday school at 10:30, and [illegible] at 11:30. Rev. John W. Deeter, pastor.

The Bible study class meeting was postponed Thursday night.

FUNERAL

Miss Eunice C. Porter

Funeral services for Miss Eunice C. Porter were held at Hebron Congregational church Thursday afternoon, January 9. Rev. John W. Deeter and Rev. Theodore D. Martin officiated. A prayer service was held at the home before the public service at the church. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery.

A turkey supper was served by the Tolland county farm bureau, Saturday, Jan. 4, at North Coventry Grange hall. The supper was given in honor of the officers, directors and solicitors, who took part in the recent farm bureau membership campaign.

The county wide canvass was a success. Many members were added to the roll. Hebron reported 35 paid-up members and many prospects. Those attending the supper from Hebron were Mr. and Mrs. C. Daniel Way, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Foote, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hilding, C. B. Kinney and LeRoy Kinney.

Miss J. Edna Latham led the C. E. meeting Sunday night. The topic was "Why Pray for Others?" taken from Acts 2:39. It was also a consecration meeting and Miss Gladys Hough called the roll. Miss Marcia Zabriskie, of Norwich, and Miss Mary E. Cummings, of Hebron, played the piano for the service.

The following officers were elected Sunday at the Congregational church school: Superintendent, Edward A. Smith; assistant Supt., Miss J. Edna Latham; treasurer, Miss Mildred Hough; assistant secretary and librarian, Miss Thelma L. Cummings; assistant secretary and librarian, Myron Hills; superintendent primary department, Miss Anne Clarke.

LIKE CHICKEN GRAVY ON DUMPLINGS, FYREWELL ON FURNACE

Ask your coal merchant for a copy of the Reading "Economy" leaflet, showing you how to have better heat at lower cost. Or write us at Philadelphia.

JUST as golden chicken gravy adds the last touch to dumplings, so Fyrewell adds the last touch to your furnace's enjoyment of Reading furnace size hard coal.

Fyrewell is a specially prepared small size Reading Anthracite that sells at a low price.

Furnace has been the standard size for firing furnaces since houses first had such heating plants.

Used together they give uniform heat with less attention and at lower cost. In fact, the average cost of the combined sizes is so low that it's about what you would pay for smoky fuels, or for synthetic fuels that overheat you one minute and leave you to freeze the next.

And in the long run, counting all the costs of keeping warm, you'll find that the Reading Fyrewell-Furnace combination is the cheapest fuel you can use.

Ask your dealer to send you a supply of these sizes of Reading hard coal. He has them, or can get them quickly. Then enjoy better heat at lower cost.

THE COMMISSION'S REPORT

In the report of the enforcement commission and in the message of President Hoover submitting it, it was clearly set forth that the report was only a preliminary one. The commission has devoted much time to the study of a big problem and it has reached certain conclusions at this time that permit it to offer recommendations, which if carried out will help to remove certain handicaps and difficulties. It isn't maintained by the commission that some of these things have never been mentioned before. The important thing is that they have now been put forth by a commission which has made a study of the situation and backs the changes, even though they may have been advocated previously by others.

Recognition is given to the fact that enforcement has been carried on under more or less handicaps, that courts have had congested dockets because of the business before them, so much so that bargain days have had to be resorted to in order to handle the congestion, that agencies have overlapped in such a way as to defeat the smooth operation of enforcement and that there cannot be the success that is expected in connection with enforcement until these difficulties are remedied.

It isn't claimed by the commission that the overcoming of these faults will provide clear sailing for the work of enforcement, or that the suggested changes if made will straighten out the whole prohibition enforcement problem. It believes that they will serve to improve the situation, that there should also be a revision and coordination of the various statutes used in connection with enforcement in the interest of a more workable code and that there should be a readjustment of the machinery of enforcement.

The changes which the commission recommends are necessary in the commission's opinion in order to give the law a fair trial. Having transmitted its conclusions so far as reached it rests with congress to decide whether and when the suggested legislative enactments are put into effect, being informed by the commission that they would in no way conflict with further reports. The report is thus one of progress, and certain responsibilities are left with congress while the commission wrestles with other features.

BEAUTIFYING THE ROADS

It is a natural outcome of the efforts which have been put forth in behalf of better conditions along the roadsides through the elimination of the billboards that there should be a demand for real beautification. Those who were once devoting their attention to bringing the roads and landscapes back to normalcy are certain to find much sympathy in their efforts to better conditions.

Those who ride these days make up a large part of the population. They drive for various reasons but to a large degree there is a charm about the countryside that appeals and fascinates. It is evident that while there is much to admire there are many stretches where help might be given in providing for future improvement, such as the grading of banks, the seeding of certain plots, the setting out of roses and shrubs and the planting of trees.

There is much of such work that can be done by the residents along the roads, much that can be contributed by the respective towns through which the improved highways run and much that can be done during and following the completion of the road building by the state. It is in behalf of this state work that a special appeal is being made by those who were once devoting their entire attention to the elimination of the billboards. Good results in one direction have given encouragement to extend their efforts in another.

Everyone will appreciate the betterments that can be made and will take an interest in pointing out places where attention is needed, but is it not probable that there will be many who will take the view that the outlay that is contemplated from state funds for the beautification of roadsides should be applied to the building of needed roads?

The situation prevails in Connecticut, and it is probably the same in other states, where certain sections have no improved roads. There are the main thoroughfares which have been improved but the feeder, or cross road, has never gotten any betterment from state money. And yet the residents on that road and others leaving it are equal contributors to the road building funds of the state. If they believe that their tax money should go for some road work in their section before any of it is applied to beautification, or if they think the side roads should get attention from state funds before [illegible] expense is authorized on the best roads, no one will blame them very much.

PROTECTION AT SEA

As the result of marine disasters it is the belief of Senator Wagner of New York that there ought to be an investigation of marine law by congress for the purpose of determining whether there is as much protection given to the human cargo as it should get.

There have been certain losses of ships which have prompted this idea. It has been revealed that there has been a laxity in regard to the inspection of ships before leaving port and the New York senator believes that there should be an inquiry into the manner in which marine insurance business is conducted, especially since it is to a large degree in the hands of foreign companies, and a study made of the provisions for limited liability for losses to passengers and cargo.

It is to be appreciated that there are safety provisions for those who go to sea these days which never existed in years that have gone. There are times when it seemed as if everything necessary was being done, but no sooner is that idea snugly tucked away than something happens to create the opposite view. That changed view becomes necessary because of the revelations that are made concerning the failure to do the very things that are expected to insure safety. If inspections are not made, or not properly made, and bad conditions are approved, so much so that they contribute later to the loss of a ship, it 's evident that a recklessness is being displayed with human life which is criminal. Possibly the ship owners would not tolerate such conditions if they knew, but the apparent purpose of the suggested inquiry is to have the matter brought so vividly to the attention of the owners, through protective requirements, that there will be no chance-taking. If ship owners must bear a larger share of responsibility because of the failure to provide protection, it is obvious that they are going to give more attention to the safeguarding of their ships and, therefore, their passengers and cargo.

Just as long as there is a toleration of lax methods it can be expected they will be continued. It is when the public becomes aroused, or efforts are made in its behalf, that it gets the consideration it deserves.

HEED YOUR WARNING

Special attention has been drawn this week to the cases of parrot fever which have been reported. This is not a new disease, for it has appeared before, but there is a seriousness about it which justifies the publicity which has been given to it. When it is said that it resembles typhoid fever it is bad enough, but when there is combined with it the menace of pneumonia it is apparent that it is a disease that should be given a wide berth.

That is apparently the purpose of the warnings that have been issued in connection with the disease. They are warnings of prevention that need to be heeded. If it is contracted from parrots and there is a fair probability of avoiding it by keeping away from the birds, especially the sick ones, there ought to be no great difficulty involved in escaping an attack of parrot fever, or psittacosis.

The importance of precaution cannot be too deeply appreciated. It is most valuable for self and it is equally so for others. The mortality rate where the disease gets a start is high, so high, in fact, that few people would willingly jeopardize their good health by a test of their power of resistance. If it is a case of sacrificing the parrots or facing an attack of the disease there ought to be no hesitation over a prompt decision that would mean not only prevention but protection.

The mere statement concerning the seriousness of the disease should be sufficient to bring about an establishment of every possible precaution on the part of the individual. Many are inclined to wait for the authorities to act, even when it is a case of self-protection, but life is too sweet to most people to warrant delays or chance-taking.

A FAIR PLEA

When the British foreign office responds to the French note of last month and urges that the nations come to the conference at London with open minds and not entrenched behind certain fixed positions, which may have been influenced by misunderstandings, it unquestionably takes the right attitude.

It is possible for those who are anticipating certain changes to imagine an entire false situation. They can fortify themselves against such imaginary changes until they become confirmed in that view and without realizing that they have been working themselves up into a state of unwarranted conviction without cause.

If the representatives of the respective nations can go to London with open minds, such advance knowledge as has been given them in the invitation and a thorough understanding of their own situation, it seems not improbable that they can come to some agreement in regard to limitation of warships in the various classes that will be in accord with desires and an improvement over the present situation.

It should be remembered that there is something to be gained for all of them. If, after the cards have all been placed on the table, there is an exchange of views based on those cards there will be a fair opportunity to bring about adjustments and understandings. If the representatives go prejudiced, and especially if they go in that state of mind because of misunderstandings, it places a handicap upon the conference before it starts and makes it more difficult to get down to business.

Just because a conference has been called and will soon open doesn't necessarily mean that all that is desired will be accomplished. Emphasis is placed on the fact, however, that there is no cut and dried programme, no dotted line to sign. The aim is to come to an understanding that will satisfy all and faith in such an outcome is bound to be helpful to the conference.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—A bill to commemorate the loyalty and greatness of one of Connecticut's most distinguished sons, who become a famous general in the Civil war, has been introduced in the house by Representative Palmer of Missouri.

It is a bill asking for an appropriation of $30,000 to erect a memorial to Gen. Nathaniel Lyon, who was killed at the battle of Wilson Creek, Missouri.

Gen. Lyon was a native of Connecticut and the Connecticut delegation will join with Representative Palmer in urging the passage of the memorial bill.

The battle was terrific and Lyon knew from the beginning that he was greatly outnumbered in forces, but determined to carry on to victory if possible, in spite of great odds. When the situation became desperate, Gen. Lyon said to his men, "I will lead you." They had advanced but a few steps, when Lyon was shot through the heart, but as he fell, he called faintly, "Forward, my men—forward—I will lead you." He died with those words on his lips.

Commenting on the bill Representative Glynn said today he believed Lyon was one of the great generals of the Civil war, and had so told Mr. Palmer, who replied that many persons familiar with Civil war history, felt that had Lyon lived he would have reached the foremost rank in the list of great generals—not excepting Gen. Grant. However that may be, there seems to be no doubt but what Gen. Lyon of Connecticut birth, was one of the great generals of the Civil war, and well worth being honored by a memorial.

Washington is slowly waking up to the fact that its social season will be a short one, and that society must "step lively" if it wants to put through its customary gay programme.

Connecticut took a hand in social affairs last week, although but few of the women of the delegation entertained in their homes.

Senator and Mrs. Frederic C. Walcott were among the most distinguished guests at the dinner given by Vice President Curtis and his hostess-sister, Mrs. Gann, in honor of the ambassador of Great Britain and Lady Isabella Howard, who are to leave Washington for England next month. Sir Esme Howard, wishes to retire from active diplomatic duty at that time, and many farewell parties are being given in their honor.

The dinner given by the vice president was beautifully appointed. It was held in the Chinese room of the Mayflower, which is the room in which Senator and Mrs. Bingham gave a large dinner last March in honor of the governor of Connecticut and his staff, when they were here attending the inauguration ceremonies.

At the New Year's reception at the white house, Connecticut made a good showing, all the members of the house and the senators who were in town at the time being present to greet President and Mrs. Hoover at the first formal reception of the Hoover administration.

Senator and Mrs. Walcott were guests at the dinner given at the British embassy on Tuesday, by Lady Isabella and Sir Esme Howard. The dinner was a very exclusive but brilliant affair and is one of a series the British ambassador is giving on the eve of his departure for London and retirement from diplomatic service. The dinner was in honor of the Grand Duchess Kira of Russia.

Senator Bingham gave a small luncheon in his committee room at the capitol in honor of William Gillett, the Sherlock Holmes of the stage. Mr. Bingham's guests were several of the most prominent members of the senate.

Mrs. Freeman has joined Representative Freeman at their apartment here after spending the holidays in Connecticut.

Mrs. John Q. Tilson, of New Haven, wife of the republican floor leader of the house, will come to Washington early this week to remain for the winter. The Tilson's have an apartment at the Mayflower, and have already many social engagements for January and February. Their daughter Margaret, whom Mrs. Tilson took to France last fall and placed in a school there, is enjoying her work immensely. Miss Margaret is specializing in French and Latin, and is also taking part in many of the outdoor sports, which the wonderful climate of southern France makes possible the year round. She will return home in May.

Senator Borah is the only senator who sets aside a certain hour each day to receive members of the press, much in the same fashion as is done by presidents of the United States. The Borah hour is 4 p. m. and to his office treck many a correspondent who is eager for a sensation that will make front page copy.

Senator Borah seems much amused, and may be gratified, to learn from a geneologist that the Borahs were originally Bohemians and of kingly ancestry, although the ancestor was dethroned in a revolution. Descendants married, so it is said, into German and French families.

When Borah received a family tree from its compiler, Mr. Roethe, he dictated the following reply: "Perhaps if this can be substantiated, it will enable me to escape the charge of being a communist or so-called socialist. I must lose no time in looking into it—that matter of being of royal blood!"

Senator Borah is cordial and friendly with Washington correspondents. He likes to talk to them and with them. Many senators are nick-named, but we never hear Borah spoken of as "Bill Borah." It is always "Borah" both by his colleagues and by the correspondents.

They are telling many clever stories and incidents regarding the daily routine, habits and temperament of Mr. Legge, chairman of the farm board. Legge was quoted as saying he didn't care where he sat at table, if he had plenty to eat, or something of that sort. He came on from the west with farm business on his mind, and the question of his social rating seemed to have no interest for him. Legge is a 12-hour a day worker. His routine is unbroken, from the time he goes to the white house every morning at 7 a. m. to play medicine ball with the president, until he pops into bed at a reasonably early hour at night. He lives at a hotel within a stone throw of his office and the white house, so depends on the medicine ball exercise for "his daily dozen."

Legge is said to be perfectly unruffled when opposed by those who differ from him, regarding farm board views. Probably he has a "right smart temper," as one of his colleagues expressed it, but he is clever enough not to antagonize by bringing it into too constant use. Legge is quoted as once remarking, "I can afford to lose my temper among friends, but never among those who do not like me, for then I should lose my advantage."

THE EYES HAVE IT

And that isn't all!" snapped Peter, rising to his full, blond bigness. "I am not going to be any fourth at bridge. You are not to accept any invitations of any kind for me to meet this Dixie person. And if you entertain her here at the home I am to have three hours' warning—or its equivalent in distance. That's final."

He stalked out of the sunny breakfast room. In the silence he left Angela reached for another muffin.

"Our brother certainly takes being a bachelor as a public trust."

"Whatever did he mean," gasped Mother Crane from the doorway.

"It is this Dixie Fifield—she is a house guest of Lucy Fairfax. She's a southern girl—and working at it hard while she is in the north where southern girl stock is high," explained Angela.

"What Angela means, mother," interpreted Ruth, "is that Miss Fifield has charm—alarming charm. She has quite devastated all the eligible men of Rosedale. And our Peter doesn't propose to be—er—"

"Exposed," offered Angela helpfully. "You see, mum, she caught a fleeting glimpse of his profile at the country club and she has decided to meet him. By passing on this bit of information I brought down the avalanche you just witnessed. He can sidestep all he wants to. She is going to meet him. And what she meets, she annexes."

The whirr of the telephone brought Angela to a running stance. She worked on the assumption that all telephone calls were hers. And she was generally right. Her voice came floating down the hall.

"Oh, yes, Lucy. I should love to Peter? Well, of course we never accept invitations for Peter. He is a rising young doctor you know—he simply won't have social obligations interfering with his practice. Yes—you can call him at his office, Dr. Peter Crane—eye, ear, nose and throat specialist." Silence. Then—"Why, of course. Good-by, dear." Angela did the length of the hall in a running slide.

"Get out the old family engagement ring—start knitting for your grandchildren, mother. Dixie is going to have her eyes examined.

* * *

"Fifield," murmured Dr. Crane, rubbing his chin with one hand and fingering the appointment card gingerly with the other. "What—does she—look like?"

"Like she hadn't anything wrong with her eyes," snapped his crisp office assistant.

"Show—her—in," wavered Peter.

Peter let his patient get well into the room before he looked up from his desk. In the smart trimness of his office she looked like a golden moth—in sunny yellow from the tip of pointed toes to crest of buttercup hat. Slowly Peter came up out of his chair.

"Miss Fifield? You wanted an examination for your eyes. Sit down."

The girl fastened her deep blue eyes on Peter's face and wafted downward into a chair—slowly as though it mattered not one whit whether she ever got there so long as she could look at Peter.

"Yes," she cooed in a lingering, delicious voice. "You know," confidingly, "I have headaches."

"Have you ever worn glasses?"

"No, I had some once, Doctoah Crane. But they made me look so dreadful that—that I nevah wore them. You could give me glasses that wouldn't make me look weird, couldn't you?" Her tone expressed entire confidence. Peter grunted.

"My business is to fit your eyes, not your face."

"Oh, but I thought that was part of an eye expert's work—you know—to fit people to glasses that were becomin'?" With the upward left of her voice came an upward lift of her eyes. Peter grabbed a chair—shoved it before her, and sitting down in it squarely began taking her record and giving her something that might pass for an examination. Was it jassamine—that taunting, illusive fragrance? How ever did hair that looked black get so many gold lights in it? Tiny, tiny feet.

"Your eyes seems to be perfect." He rose with an elaborate air of dismissal. Miss Fifield was in no hurry.

"Then why do I have headaches?" Her red bud of a mouth fell into a pathetic little curve that only kissing could cure. Peter clutched valiantly at his professional aloofness.

* * *

"Possibly you don't get enough sleep."

"But I sleep all morning long—except when your ol' cah wakes me roarin' past." Peter stiffened. He wanted to promise that hereafter he would sneak by silent as a cat on velvet.

"What," he said gravely, "did the last man say who looked at your eyes?"

Dixie Fifield brought her clasped hands up to cushion her chin with a little gesture of blissful reminiscence.

"He said—he said—'Honey, you've got the bluest eyes I evah saw.'"

"By gosh," said Peter, leaning suddenly closer, "so you have. They are wonderful."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—If there was ever another official biography in the Congressional Directory like that of Chief Justice William Howard Taft, the Bystander does not know of it.

Not alone that it tells of the only man in American history to have headed two of the three great branches of the American governmental system, its story of public service—of triumphs and bitter disappointments—runs back over nearly a half century of the 72 years of the life of the former president.

In that time Mr. Taft has held nearly a score of high public offices, about as many as there are fraternal orders in Secretary Jimmy Davis' official list of those to which he belongs.

Yet Taft ran for office only three times, twice for the presidency and once for superior judge in Ohio. Those are his only experiences with actual vote getting. And his second presidential race brought him the most crushing defeat the candidate of a major party has ever met.

A Backward Glance

The Bystander recalls the first time he ever saw Mr. Taft. It was years ago on the old mail dock in San Francisco. He was en route to the Philippines to do one of those sitting-on-the-lid jobs President Roosevelt was forever finding for him. In his party traveled a youngish, well set-up chap from Ohio, Nicholas Longworth by name, also Miss Alice Roosevelt. It was that long ago.

A mountain of trunks arrived to be loaded. One trunk hit the dock with a resounding bang. A flare of white light and muffled explosion followed.

Mr. Taft, leaning massively over the liner rail far above, looked down in bewilderment. Then someone took him word that a lot of flashlight powder in somebody's trunk had been set off. that was all.

And then, for the first time, the Bystander heard that bubbling, throaty chuckle which is the usual Taft approach to a joke of his own, for his is a sense of humor that has room for everybody.

It is a delightful sound. It makes the corners of your mouth twitch with an involuntary smile even before you know what the joke is. It is so wholehearted and happy.

Keeps Affability

Not so long ago, the Bystander happened in to the supreme court to hear a case argued. The chief justice in sober robes, with white mustache sweeping over a face now pinched and heavy lined by age and the rigors of weight reducing, these many years, was only a vague reminder in looks of that massy figure, with round, jolly, ruddy face, that leaned over the liner rail.

But something in counsel's staid argument touched his sense of humor. Again that chuckling prelude came bubbling up, happy, carefree; as boyish as ever.

The years have not changed it nor soured the sunny disposition of this American of unique destiny.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Friendship

Mr. Editor: What does that mean? Montaigne has said that friendship is the highest degree of perfection when people live in harmony with one another, for it can be truly said blessed are they who have the gift of making friends; for it is among one of the best gifts that God has given to the human family. Yet it contains many things, but above all the power of going out from ourselves, and seeing and appreciating what is real and loving in others. We try when once having secured the good will of others, to hold it and to cherish that friendship as something that is of divine origin. Friendship and happiness travel on together, hand in hand. Who can appreciate this more than the man who travels? Wherever he is, perhaps far from his own home town, what a wonderful feeling takes possession of him when, during a casual conversation, one makes mention of the fact that he came from some town and he finds he is talking to someone who formerly lived in his home town! Note the pleased look that comes into his face. And you, too, are also pleased to think the places you have known he also recalls. You have then started a friendship that will grow stronger as the years roll on, for when friendships are real they are built upon a foundation that time alone will only break down. The pleasant memories we have of our friends fill our every-day life with pleasure. Friendship in our lives is as necessary as the sunshine and the rain are to the flowers and the vegetation.

Many there are who can recall Henry George, the great single tax advocate. He, at one time, was speaking in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn and one of his admirers proposed three cheers for Henry George, the friend of the working man. In reply he said: "Just a moment. I do not want to pose as the friend of the working man, but I do want to pose as the friend of every man, and that ought to be the aim of every one here, to be the friend of all of us." True friendship is a harmony between our better natures, and our best and truest friends are the ones who look out upon life and its people with respect. By the mutual bond of friendship, men build for all time, not upon the shifting sands of today, but upon the solid foundation of the rock of tomorrow, and by the irresistible and eternal power of truth and friendship. This structure will outlast the march of time and be recalled in the grateful soul of man, long after lesser things have faded from the minds of men and are lost in the hidden recesses of our memory.

When we grow tired of the every-day work, what a relaxation to once again come back to our land of dreams to visit our friends, to listen to the charm of their voices as they tell us of the happenings of the days since we have been gone! Nothing is more real than this meeting with our friends of today and yet we give a thought to our friends of yesterday who have only gone on before to wait and watch for us and bid us welcome later on. There we will greet them when we wander on and we shall see our friends when we look through with enraptured vision on that scene of glory through the open gates of that other and brighter land. Memory is a curious thing, but it at least serves to bring back to us thoughts of those whose lives have been devoted to the unselfish task of helping another. This, to me, is the truest conception of real friendship and devotion.

I often give a thought when I go up into the Rose of New England and visit my many friends as to how real it all is. When I call at the home of some of my dear friends at Norwich Town, at the home of Mrs. Hafner and her beloved daughter Jennie at 28 Case street, to quote the words of one who has been my helpmate for nigh on to 59 years, "Here is home where happiness has entered and still tarries; here is friendship which only time will end." Here I wish to quote the words of one of the brilliant writers of the day, whose books are found in all the libraries of today, Margaret Fuller: "True friendship is as necessary to call out the treasures of the mind as harrowing and planting those of the earth," an axiom which, if followed, would make worthless things worth while. Earth a short remove from Heaven, friendship is of divine origin. Note Proverbs 18; 24th verse.

The Plaut-Cadden Clock

Mr. Editor: Now that a judge of the superior court did not agree with the chief and his fire department and showed them that they could be mistaken, we wonder if the chief would not please, for the benefit of those who miss it, put the Plaut-Cadden clock where it stood before his department wrecked it, driving the wrong way through a one-way street when they were not even going to a fire, only going to do relief duty for the central station.

CORRECT TIME.

YOUR HEALTH

A NEW USE FOR YOUR BIRTHDAY

By the Director of Publicity,
Gorgas Memorial Institute,
Washington, D. C.

General Gorgas said "America can be freed of preventable diseases." If anyone would follow his advice it would go a long way toward making the country healthier.

Man deteriorates after maturity. The reason is chiefly disease—the diseases of middle age like diabetes and heart trouble, Brights disease, hardening of the arteries, cancer and nervous disorders. Out of every 100 of us heart disease kills 22, apoplexy 12, kidney trouble 12, cancer 10, tuberculosis 4—61 per cent of us before our time, of preventable diseases.

Medical science is capable of preventing or stopping or slowing down the effects of this great two-thirds of the ills that conquer us but our slogan seems to be "millions for pills and repairs but not a cent for preventive advice." It is possible to lengthen life 5 to 10 or even 15 years and not only to make it longer but to make it far happier and better. It is not legislation that is needed but intelligent use of the opportunities that are always within our reach; and the health audit is the way each individual can take action.

By health audit I mean an annual visit to the family doctor to get an examination that takes about an hour. If special tests are needed for our lungs, or hearts or other complicated apparatus it is his business to see that we get them, to tell us where to get them, to receive and study the reports of those tests, even to arrange the expense so that the only bill we pay is to him. Health charts are available for his use to guide him in checking all the intricate parts of us that may cause trouble.

The doctor who refuses to examine healthy an apparently healthy man on the claim that he is too busy, but simply pats him on the back with an affectation of heartiness and tells him that he never saw a healthier man, is in danger of becoming a mere emergency man to be called when something breaks; and any doctor who is content to do the second-well, is missing a great opportunity for human service.

We are not old-fashioned enough to forget our birthdays and try to hide our years in the amusement of our friends and the delusion of our own minds. So I make this suggestion: That since health is our most valuable personal possession and the greatest asset of the nation we prove ourselves better citizens and better fathers and mothers of the generations that are to follow by making each birthday our annual reminder that a periodic physical examination, the annual health audit, means longer life, happier life, better life. This is the message of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, based on the advice of General William Crawford Gorgas.

A YANKEE ABROAD

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

Such A Humane Death!

LONDON—The season for hunting stags with hounds is finished, with the setting in of the gloomy winter months, and those of us who enjoy this fine old sport are suffering a distinct feeling of loss.

To be sure, the fox hunting season is on, but I personally never get so much exhilaration out of seeing the dogs tear a fox to pieces as I do when the sleek limbed hounds pull down a big stag and rip his throat out.

After all, a fox an inferior animal and pretty small quarry, although I would be the last to decry the sport of fox hunting, with all its noble traditions. It's purely a matter of individual taste, of course, but I myself rather prefer dog fighting to fox hunting, if you can get hold of two dogs which are sporting enough to fight to the death.

But what a game is stag hunting! What a thrill to dash on horseback across country behind the baying pack, the saddle leather creaking a sweet accompaniment as you leap hedges and streams.

For miles and miles you gallop in the crisp autumn air, with the gallant leaders of the pack snapping at the flanks of the deer, until he is exhausted. And then the kill! They have him by the throat, and a glorious run is finished.

Dying In Comfort

I should add here just a word for the benefit of those bigoted people who write to the newspapers, protesting against stag hunting as a "cruel" sport. What utter rubbish! How little they know of the real facts, these folk who sit by their fires and preach to others.

Cruel? Why, the master of the staghounds even carries a "humane killer," a superior kind of pole-axe, so that he can dispatch a stag when necessary. He never is very far behind the hounds, so that it is quite impossible for the stag to be very long in dying.

My very Scotch friend, Sandy Machrihanish of Aberdeen, who is a keen follower of the stag hounds, is now engaged in writing a book which ought to be one of the finest contributions to the history of the sport.

Sandy traces the subject back through the centuries, and cites the antecedents and affiliated sports. One of his most sparkling chapters gives in graphic language the details of the Neronian sport of throwing Christians to the lions.

Motorists will be interested in a unique suggestion which Sandy advances as an incidental sidelight to his book.

He advocates that all drives of automobiles be compelled to carry "humane-killers," so that they may put a quick end to the sufferings of pedestrians who have been run down and injured.

Little Talks on Thrift

Personal Budget One of Great Helps To The Thrifty

A man who is often referred to as a business genius recently said: "Early in life, when a boy, I formed a habit of jotting down a record of every penny I spent. This taught me the value of system and frugality. I soon found myself able to save a little money. As I grew, I developed habits of general thrift from this simple beginning, and, with a small amount of capital thus available when I reached the age of maturity, I was able to take advantage of opportunities that led to subsequent success." Many other men who have achieved great success in the business world could give similar testimony.

One of the first essentials in making plans is to keep a budget. This may seem a trivial matter yet is is the only method by which any person can plan his financial affairs scientifically or develop greater efficiency in personal economics.

The value of budget keeping is especially applicable to the young, for the habit thus formed early in life is quite apt to be carried along as a permanent routine.

Every business concern keeps a strict account of every penny received and spent, and a business which transacted its affairs in any other manner would be most inescapably managed.

If you are endeavoring to get ahead in the world and be prepared for the rainy days that come into all lives, adopt first of all the rule of keeping an accurate daily record of your expenses. You will find that by the adoption of this system your progress in thrift will be made doubly easy and you will soon be surprised at the difference these well-ordered practices make in the amount of your savings.

"Working without a plan is sailing without a compass," says the old proverb and it can well be applied to the administration of one's personal affairs.—By S. W. Straus, president American Society for Thrift.

BANQUET AND ENTERTAINMENT FOR PARISH WORKERS

About 70 attended the enjoyable banquet given by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May, rector of St. Patrick's church, Monday evening at the Wauregan hotel, in honor of the parish workers, trustees, choir members and collectors. The main dining hall was effectively decorated with purple primroses and green foliage, while candlelight was used as the guests came into the diningroom. The banquet was served at 8 o'clock, the appetizing menu being:

Grape Fruit Supreme Kalamazoo Celery Green Olives
Roast Milk Fed Chicken Dressing
Mashed White Potatoes
Garden Spinach
Succotash
Pineapple Salad Mayonnaise
Dinner Rolls
Ice Cream Petit Fours Coffee

During the banquet hour, at which Henry J. LaFontaine presided as toastmaster, the song leaders were Mr. LaFontaine and John Kelly. After a short address of appreciation by Msgr. May an attractive programme was rendered by the men of the senior choir. John Murphy and Mr. Kelly gave characteristic recitations and a quartet, Louis Grover, William Shannon, Walter LaFontaine and John Kelly favored with vocal selections.

For the remainder of the evening dancing was enjoyed with music by Brennan's orchestra.

MALINOWSKY PAYS FINE IN MONTVILLE COURT

The continued case of Anthony Malinowsky came before Justice Oscar Church in Montville Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock. On Jan. 3rd, at Dart's corner at Palmertown, a coupe owned by Mrs. Bertha C. Growedsky and driven by Emile Mogeau, coming out of the cross road was crashed into by a Hudson sedan, operated by Malinowsky, who was driving toward Uncasville on the state highway. The coupe was shoved against a heavy truck where it lay half turned over and wedged between the two, badly damaged. After an examination Traffic Officer Howard Lamphere entered a complaint for reckless driving.

At the hearing Malinowsky was found guilty and a fine of $25 and the costs of court was imposed amounting to $38.85. Attorney Thomas Shields was counsel for the defendant.

Gus Sanszek was presented before Justice Church, charged with not having the proper capacity markings on the side of his truck. He was fined $3 and costs.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Heibel

After a long illness Johanna Barbara Bauer Heibel, widow of John Heibel, died about 7 o'clock Monday morning at her residence, No. 31 Elijah street. Born in Germany, May 13, 1862, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Conrad Bauer she came to this country when a young woman and for many years has lived in the Greeneville section of the city. She was united in marriage with John Heibel at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1888.

Mrs. Heibel is survived by six daughters, Mrs. Benjamin Farnesworth of Orvando, Mo., and Mrs. David Dunn, Mrs. Lena Wolley, Mrs. Josephine Waldron; Mrs. J. Banfield, Mrs. Dorothy Wilcox and Mrs. Louise Heibel, all of Norwich and a son, C. J. Heibel of Hartford. CITIZENS' COMMITTEE PROMISES SUPPORT TO SCOUT CAMPAIGN

Representatives from civic, business men's, commercial, fraternal, patriotic, and mercantile associations, educational and religious interests met Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the chamber of commerce conference rooms to officially launch the Boy Scout finance campaign as a community project. Chairman Arthur M. Brown in a convincing talk called upon all those representatives present and absent to give their hearty support to the campaign. Mr. Brown declared the scout work was a most important one to this community and expressed his conviction that scouting was doing more to build character in youth than any other single agency.

Mr. Brown then briefly summarized some of the important work being done. He called attention to the enrollment of 461 scouts who meet once a week, who go on hikes, attend camps, and pass the many tests, and who subscribe to an oath and law. Mr. Brown spoke at length upon the splendid civic service performed by the scouts as a whole citing some 16 different important community good turns, aside from all the troop and individual good turns. Some of the more important mentioned were:

Scouts present totem pole to Lord Mayor of Norwich, England.

Scouts lay memorial to Sachem Mamohet.

Scouts serve entire week as fire demonstrators.

Scouts serve as ushers at many civic and community meetings.

Scouts assist as guards during the styles parade.

Scouts mobilize and search for lost child.

Scouts present pageant at Rotary and at Court of Honor.

Scouts distribute 200 Red Cross posters and 150 Christmas Seal posters.

Scouts collect ten bushels of toys and repair them for poor kids.

Scouts collect 500 pounds of magazines for hospitals and thousands of funny papers.

Scouts wear uniforms on Armistice day.

Scouts greet Santa Claus arriving from Hartford.

Scouts number the houses in Norwich.

Scout Executive John Sellman was asked to outline the plan of the campaign which he did briefly, expressing his regret that Max Hanover had been forced to withdraw because of illness, which necessitated the selection of a new chairman of workers. Mr. Sellman called attention to the splendid co-operation extended by Edwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., chairman of prospect lists, and L. M. Crandall, James Pedace, chairman of publicity, Walter H. Casey and William Wyman who have just completed an audit and of James L. Case who has volunteered to head up the committee to see large contributors.

The citizens general committee expressed approval of the campaign set up, promised the support of their respective organizations, and appointed Arthur M. Brown and Ex-Mayor H. M. Lerou to convey to a prominent citizen their desire that he head up the workers' committee.

SELECTMAN COMPLAINS OF CROSSING SIGNAL FAILURE

Complaint to the public utilities commission of the state has been made by First Selectman William S. Murray over the faulty operation of the automatic electric signal at the Eighth street crossing of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. A copy of his letter of complaint has also been forwarded to R. F. Smith, superintendent of the New London division of the railroad.

By permission of the public utilities commission the railroad installed the automatic electric signal light at the crossing to replace the flagman service there.

It was the claim of the railroad that protection to traffic at the crossing would be better rendered by the signal, because it would be operated by every approaching train and so give twenty-four hours service at the crossing instead of the shorter time when a flagman was on duty.

The signal went into service on the first of January, but Selectman Murray's complaint is that it has already failed to work three times, causing close escapes from an accident by a train hitting a vehicle at the crossing.

Selectman Murray's letter is as follows.

Jan. 12, 1930

Mr. Henry F. Billings, Sec'y.,
Public Utilities Commission,
Hartford,

Dear Sir:

Permit me to call to the attention of the public utilities commission, the matter of the electric flashlight highway crossing signal recently installed by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company at the Eighth street crossing, so-called, within the town of Norwich, Connecticut.

I believe this signal was installed and put into operation about the first day of January, 1930, and since that date I have positive information whereby it failed to operate successfully on three separate occasions and in each instance a serious or probably fatal accident was averted by a narrow margin.

The first instance I will refer to occurred on January 3rd, about 3:30 o'clock, p. m., when a municipal truck approached the crossing from the west, going east down the steep grade at the same time a switching engine was operating on the track very close to the crossing but running very slowly and was able to stop allowing the truck to pass over the crossing safely, the signal failing entirely to operate or give any warning of the approaching engine.

The second instance occurred on Jan. 6th, about 3 o'clock p. m., when an automobile operated by a nurse approached the crossing from the west, going east down the grade, at the same time a freight train was approaching going south and very close to the crossing but the operator of the vehicle not realizing her danger was fortunate to get over safely. The signal failed to operate and gave no warning of the approaching train.

The third instance occurred Jan. 10th, about 12.55 o'clock p. m., when a delivery truck was approaching the crossing from the the east going west, at the same time a freight train was approaching and close to the crossing but the operator of the vehicle on this occasion was warned of the danger by employes of the United States Finishing company who were returning to work, which no doubt avoided an accident.

The signal failed to operate or give any warning until the engine and three cars crossed the crossing, then I have been informed it started to function.

If no dependency can be placed on this type of a signal, it is a menace rather than a protection and some immediate action should be taken to correct the situation which would adequately protect the travelling public who are obliged to use this particular crossing.

Trusting the commission will take this matter under consideration and give it their immediate attention, I am

Respectfully yours,
WILLIAM S. MURRAY,
First Selectman.

TELLS WHAT MYSTIC ORAL SCHOOL DOES FOR DEAF

Walter J. Tucker, superintendent of the state school for the deaf at Mystic, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Contact club at the Wauregan hotel Monday noon, his talk having to do with the children at the school, the causes of deafness and other facts. In part he spoke as follows:

When people visit our school we are often asked why there are so many deaf children. The latest statistics show there are seven residential schools for the deaf in Canada, 19 private or denominational schools in the United States, 110 public schools for the deaf in the United States, all but one of these day schools use the oral method of instruction. There are 63 residential schools such as ours in the United States, making 192 schools for the deaf in the United States with a total enrollment of 17,193 pupils.

The greatest proportion of our graduates in spite of their handicap are peaceable, industrious, law abiding members of the community in which they live, fulfilling the duties of intelligent and good citizens and contributing their full share to the welfare of society. Their services are sought by employes who have had experience of their worth and that this is the best evidence of their industry. The deaf marry and rear well-behaved children, they acquire property, open bank accounts, vote intelligently and win the respect of those with whom they come in contact.

The causes of deafness are many. Some children are born deaf and no one can explain why. The marriage of relatives particularly cousins often results in deaf offspring. If a person has become deaf through accident or disease, his children will in nine cases out of ten have normal hearing. Of accidents which cause deafness, falls, especially when children are young, are responsible for the most cases of deafness. Cerebrospinal meningitis, measles, scarlet fever, influenza, diphtheria, diseased tonsils and mastoids are some of the causes of deafness. Also injuries to the ear may cause it. The simple act of boxing the ears may cause a child to become deaf. This is a fact that all parents and all those in charge of children should know and govern themselves accordingly. It is a well known fact that colds caught when a child is in a weakened condition, after he has had one of the diseases mentioned cause running ears with deafness as the result.

It is claimed by the best ear specialists that a large per cent of defective hearing in childhood is due to diseased tonsils and adenoids—the removal of which would have saved the hearing of thousands of deaf children who are now pupils in our state deaf schools.

The uneducated deaf person is a child in thought. A child learns by parental discipline or early education to attribute certain consequences to certain acts, as a dog can be taught not to bark at a certain person.

The child must indeed be instructed in such knowledge as will be useful to him in after-life, but woe unto the teacher of the deaf who thinks her only responsibility ends here. The child must be led to form the habits so necessary to others as well as to his own well-being, of industry, honesty, and self-control. He must be taught independence of thought and action. In short he must be taught his duty to himself, to God and to man. Our responsibility is indeed great, but so is our opportunity.

The Oral school up on the hill at Mystic is your school. It belongs to you, to the public and to the state. It is your money that keeps it going. Long after you and I are gone, whatever good has been accomplished in moulding the lives and character of the deaf children who have gone to this school, the good that has been done through your financial and moral support and through our energy and enthusiasm will endure.

President Ernest O. Rodier, who was in charge of the meeting, announced that Wilbur S. Williams, John P. Lyston and James F. Fleming were the members of the nominating committee, which will present its state of officers at the annual meeting of the club next week.

POLICE MAINTAIN WATCH FOR MOODUS BURGLARS

The police of this city and throughout eastern Connecticut were requested Monday morning to be on the watch for a gang of burglars who during the night broke into a store in Moodus and another in Higganum, and attempted unsuccessfully to enter the Higganum post office and the Economy Grocery store there. In Moodus they stole ten suits of clothes and ten leather coats from the clothing store of Ritt and Pear. This store was robbed on the night of Jan. 9, and the break is still being investigated by the state police of the Westbrook barracks.

The drug store of L. H. McAvoy in Higganum, which was the second place visited, was practically cleaned out, according to word sent out by Lieutenant Bushey, commandant of the Westbrook barracks, the burglars taking almost the entire stock of fountain pens, safety razors, cigars, cigarettes, cameras, alarm clocks, etc. The store was entered by the front door which was forced, and the burglars left by the front door. The rear doors of the post office and the Economy store, showed that efforts to force them had been made, but it is believed that the burglars were frightened away before they could complete the breaks at these places.

STATE EDUCATION BOARD GIVES NORWICH 35,883

Population estimates for Connecticut made by the state board of education upon the basis of the number of children registered of school age give the state a population of 1,596,623 and the town of Norwich 35,883 in population.

The figures on total and for the different cities vary considerably from those given out recently by the state department of health, which were based on vital statistic returns. These would give the state 1,668,762 population by July 1 and the city of Norwich 31,064 by that time.

The number of children in the state between four and sixteen years is shown to be 384,489. The ratio of the entire population in 1920 to the number of children enumerated in the fall of 1919 was 4.15. This ratio is used as a basis for estimating the 1930 state population.

Estimates by Towns

The estimates for the larger towns in the state follow:

NEW DIVIDEND RATE ON GOVERNMENT LIFE POLICIES

According to advice received at the regional office of the United States Veterans' bureau, Hartford, the director of the bureau has approved a new dividend schedule for dividends payable during the year 1930 on U. S. government life insurance policies. There has been apportioned for dividend payments during the coming year $7,200,000, which represents an increase of $1,050,000 over the allotment for the year 1929. This is the highest dividend return ever authorised by the bureau and evidences its policy of passing on to its policy holders the benefit of favorable conditions.

This added allotment represents an increase of approximately 16 per cent in dividends over the amount paid to policy holders in 1929 and is applicable to all plans of insurance issued by the government except the five-year convertible policy, on which the dividends will be the same as under the present schedule. Government life insurance is still available to World war veterans in good health, the time limit for applying having been removed by congress and no limit now being in effect. This insurance is furnished to veterans at less than cost, inasmuch as the government bears all the expense of administration. The premiums are the net rates according to the American experience table of mortality and interest at 3 1-2 per cent per annum, and include protection against total and permanent disability without limit as to age before which disability must occur and for which there is no additional premium charge.

Considering the benefits granted, the premium rate affords protection at low cost which is still further reduced by the dividends allotted, resulting in a very small net charge to the policy holders for this insurance. Applications may be filed with any of the three Veterans' bureau offices located in Hartford, New Haven and Bridgeport and necessary forms can be obtained at these offices or through any Red Cross or veteran organization in the state. Full information is available at the bureau offices and all premiums may be paid at the regional office in Hartford instead of having to forward same to Washington as heretofore.

SHOWS LOAN VALUE ON U. S. CERTIFICATES

According to an announcement made by the regional office of the United States Veterans' bureau at Hartford, that office is receiving a great many requests from ex-service men for full payment of the adjusted service certificates (commonly known as the bonus) which were issued by the government.

These requests are based upon a newspaper dispatch from Washington which appeared in many newspapers of the state and which, because of its wording, has given the general impression that the adjusted service certificates may be cashed.

To correct any misunderstanding in this direction, Major T. J. Bannigan, the regional manager, has requested the assistance of the newspapers in disseminating information on this point:

The adjusted service certificates were issued by the government as paid up insurance policies which would become due and payable 20 years from the date of their issuance. However, a table of loan values appears upon the face of all certificates indicating the loan basis at the expiration of two years from the date of the policy. This table also shows the annual increased amount which may be loaned up to the 19th year of the policy. At the present time the maximum which may be borrowed upon any certificate is approximately $295, but it should be clearly understood that no certificate can be cashed under any circumstances.

DEFENDANT WINS JUDGMENT BEFORE JUDGE WALLER

In the suit of Stanley Olsiewski of this city against Elmer Jones of New London for $1,500 damages, judgment for the defendant has been rendered by Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas court where the case was tried.

Olsiewski sued for $1,500 damages, claiming that his car was damaged to that extent as the result of being struck on Nov. 2, 1928, by an automobile owned by the defendant, Jones and operated by his son, Elliott. The accident occurred on the Norwich-Willimantic road in the town of Windham.

FUNERAL

Mrs. James R. Turner

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. James R. Turner of 96 High street was held at Mt. Calvary Baptist church with many relatives and friends present. The service was conducted by Rev. Henry Harris, the pastor, and Rev. Edward W. Gantt, pastor of A. M. E. Zion church. The floral forms were beautiful. Burial was in Yantic cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Harris and Rev. Mr. Gantt. The bearers were James Green, William Spivery, James Hackley and Henry Lacy. The funeral arrangements were in charge of Undertaker C. A. Gager.

LAYMEN'S NIGHT HELD IN MOOSUP CHURCH DEDICATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MOOSUP, Jan. 13.—This was Layman's night at the dedication of the new Baptist meeting-house in Moosup. Laymen from the churches of Danielson and Plainfield participated in a service with a men's program and speaker. The Wauregan Men's club brought greetings to the men of Moosup through their first vice president, Arthur Mott. The Plainfield Lincoln club was represented by its president, Frederick Lyon, the Moosup Methodist Episcopal men, by Carl Sheldon, and the men of Central Village by Rev. George H. Rees.

The Masons brought a greeting by Franklin Sheldon. The meeting was presided over by Lucius B. Cranska. Anthony Paranzino read the scripture and Rev. William Williams of Wauregan offered prayer. Four selections were sung by the Danielson Laymen's quartette. The speaker of the evening, Rev. Jos. C. Robbins was introduced by the pastor, Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe, who said that he had been called a man of three major enthusiasms, first, an enthusiasm for the world-wide kingdom of God; second, for Jesus Christ; third, for the church of the living God. The subject was world outreach of the Christian church.

REV. R. W. E. DEWOLFE
Pastor of the Church

Dr. Robbins, who is foreign secretary of the American Baptist Foreign Missionary society, said that the man who built himself into the Christian church did the greatest thing that any man could do, that the most able men in the world such as Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin, former President Roosevelt, Lord Irvine and McKenzie King all emphasized the part that the Christian church had in helping to make for world order, peace and righteousness. The speaker said that this cost life. He told of a young man at Renton university, who as a missionary in Rangoon, was set upon by seven Buddhist priests. He and his wife were cut to the ground with great knives, from which they nearly lost their lives. At present in America they are planning to return to their missionary field to give their lives, if necessary, for the cause they love. Mr. Robbins said there must be basic motives that are eternal and satisfying for such missionaries to give their lives. The first motive was the need of the world. When Dr. Robbins was in India last March he traveled six weeks on horseback in upper Burma where, a native with a lacerated arm had walked 20 miles to our Baptist missionary doctor, who then told him he had to walk 120 miles more to a mission hospital. The second great motive is a hungry world.

Dr. Robbins was in a meeting this past year where three preachers on the program preached a sermon in turn. One sermon was on malaria, which infested the district, a second sermon was on digging a new well and the third sermon Dr. Robbins preached on the gospel. The three preachers were asked to make up an offering to buy food to keep the villagers for three days. Then the missionaries took some of the natives into more prosperous districts where food was provided them to tide them over the time of famine.

Dr. Robbins said that the missionaries were the only persons who were grappling with this need. The intellectual need, Dr. Robbins said, was met by the missionaries, who have translated the Bible into 734 different languages and dialects, reducing many languages to writing for the first time. The first need, the speaker said, was the world's need for God and life without God was meaningless and worthless. Dr. Robbins told of the first missionary, Judson, who talked with a wild robber Karen, who had killed 32 men. He was captured and was to be sold into slavery. Judson daily told him about the love of God. This robber became a Christian and was taken by George Dana Bordman into the Karen country where he became a flaming apostle who won many hundreds of the natives to Christianity. Last year there were from 75,000 to 80,000 Christians, spiritual descendants of this robber chief. In that community, 2,000 persons were won to Christianity by these native Christians. Sir Charles Emmes, speaking for the British government, said that now Karens had largely become self-supporting and self-propagating in their churches, and that missions have made of them loyal and industrious citizens. Dr. Robbins closed by giving three challenges, the first being for a new loyalty on the part of men to the living God; second, for a new loyalty to the church, which is the only organization which has the task of world-wide redemption; and third, a new loyalty to Jesus Christ. Dr. Robbins has just recently come from a meeting of 2,500 Garos who had all been head hunters and who are now industrious, honest and serviceful members of the Christian churches in their community. Together they sang All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name and welcomed Dr. Robbins to their village.

At the close of the service Lucius Cranska thanked the various men's organizations for their cooperation and help in the layman's service. He also thanked the Methodist church and the Masonic lodge for help and service during the months when the church was without a building. Mr. Cranska also thanked the general public for all the sympathy extended to the church since the fire.

The benediction was pronounced by Dr. A. Elwyn Tingley.

The next service will be Tuesday evening under the auspices of the women. This is open to the public, men and boys as well as women and girls. The Flagg Trio of Danielson, consisting of a harpist, violin and bass viol, will provide music. Mrs. William A. Hill of New Rochelle, N. Y., a former Moosup girl, will return to her native town to have the special address on the women's program. Miss Alma J. Noble of the World Wide guild is coming from Buffalo, N. Y., to speak especially to the girls and young women.

Florida has 41 officially approved airports.

RETIREMENT OF MAJOR GENERAL W. C. RIVERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The war department today announced the retirement because of age of Major General William C. Rivers, the inspector general of the army, without making public the name of his successor.

Until an appointment is made the duties of inspector general will be carried on by Colonel John F. Preston ranking officer of the department.

HOWARD STREET RAID AT NEW LONDON RESULTS IN DISCOVERY OF BOOZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13.— Dennis Shaughnessy, 108 Howard street, was arrested tonight charged with violation of the liquor law and was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $1,000, which was furnished by Patrick V. Devine, to assure Shaughnessy's appearance in the police court tomorrow. The police have received numerous complaints because of the sale of liquor at the Howard street house and when absolute evidence was obtained that liquor was dispensed there, Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer submitted the evidence to Deputy Judge John McGarry and the latter signed a warrant calling for the search of the Howard street house. The warrant was given to Patrolman Dennis Murphy to serve and accompanied by Patrolman Louis Pine a visit to the house was made shortly after 8 o'clock. Shaughnessy, who is only an employe of the resort, was its sole occupant when the officers entered and he was arrested, for five one-gallon containers of so-called Bacardi rum were found, together with two quarts of gin, several bottles partially filled with whiskey, both Scotch and rye. These were seized as evidence, but a large quantity of bottles that had contained whiskey were not molested.

The residence of Nazaire Rousseau, at Center Groton, was destroyed by fire late Saturday night, together with the greater part of the furnishings. The fire was discovered when it was at its height and a request was made of the Groton department for assistance. Pioneer Hose company responded, but their services were of little value for the house was doomed. However, the pumper sent a stream of water from a nearby brook that prevented the flames from communicating to other buildings. Rousseau is employed as foreman by the Southern New England Telephone company.

FATHER OF FIVE CHARGED WITH NON-SUPPORT BY WIFE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13. — Joseph Verdi, a barber, who has been arrested several times for violation of the liquor law, and who resides at 33 Brewer street, was arrested this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer, charged with the non-support of his wife, Rose and their five minor children, Jesse, 17; Joseph, 13; Catherine, 10; Joseph, 8 and Frances, 2 months. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $200 for his appearance in the police court tomorrow.

WILLIAM McGUIRE VIOLENT— TAKEN TO NORWICH ASYLUM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13.—William McGuire, at one time employed at the former plant of the Groton Iron works, was committed to Norwich State hospital tonight for observation. Mr. McGuire had been a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital but a short time, but tonight he became violent. He threatened and attempted to jump from the window of his room and it was only through the exercise of diplomacy on the part of nurses that he was prevented from carrying out his threat. He was taken to the State hospital in the ambulance and will be treated there indefinitely.

Another patient to be received for treatment at the State asylum from New London today is Irving Downes. He was taken to Norwich late this afternoon by Captain Charles A. Pinney and Patrolman Louis Pine.

Daniel Toohey, 107 Main street, reported to the police this afternoon that his bicycle had been stolen.

A man of 62 employed, whenever he is in the mood to work, as a tailor, was arrested at a rooming house on Masonic street, this afternoon, charged with intoxication. He will be in the police court tomorrow for he was locked up by Automobile Patrol Officers Clarence Martin and George Cockell.

Railroad Ave. in Bad Shape

Railroad avenue, although a short highway, is one of the most deplorable in the city because of its condition of lack of repair. Ruts two and three feet in length and about a foot depth exist and at the present time are filled with rain water so that users of the sidewalk are expectant of receiving a deluge whenever they attempt to transact business on that thoroughfare. This condition has existed a long time, but no effort has been made to fill in the depressions.

LORETTA BEEBE AND SAILOR IN JAIL IN DEFAULT OF BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13.—Loretta Beebe, formerly of Quaker hill, Waterford, and Vincent Navracil, married, were before the Waterford town court this afternoon, charged with adultery. Probable cause was found and they were bound over to the next term of the superior court. In default of a surety on their respective bonds the Beebe girl and Navracil were remanded to jail to await trial. It is probable that they will be brought into the present term of the criminal court at its present session on a bench warrant for the court is already in session at Norwich. The Beebe girl, who has been in the public eye in and around New London much of the past six months because of her lascivious conduct, was arrested several nights ago when she was found occupying a cottage near Station 19, Waterford, with Navracil, the young woman and her cohabitor being arrested by State Police Officers Donald Broan and Arthur Whitmarsh.

Miss Margaret Harkins, of 5 Jay street; John Walsh, 29 Golden street; Mrs. Donald MacKenzie, Waterford, and Mrs. Edward Alto, Westerly, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

Two mechanics' liens have been filed at the office of the city clerk today. One is brought by the F. H. & A. H. Chappell Co., against Thomas H. and Charles R. Humphries to recover $50 for material furnished the defendants. Property owned by the defendants on Park street and Norwood avenue has been attached. The other action is brought by Generosa Muro, proprietor of the Connecticut Macaroni factory, to recover $95 from Pasquale Santangelo. Property on Shaw street, belonging to the defendant, has been attached. Both actions are returnable before the next term of the court of common pleas.

Kalil Tellage, of Willimantic, and George Telage, of Stonington, who recently leased the store, 107 Main street, also purchased the fixtures, have now purchased of Nicholas Deep all of the stock, etc.

A Chrysler automobile stolen in New London several months ago and which is the property of William Collins, Montauk avenue, has been recovered in New York. The New London police were notified of the recovery of the auto this afternoon and Collins will go to that city within a day or two and claim it.

OBITUARY

William F. Damas

William F. Damas, 69, well known marine engineer, died Saturday night at his residence, 231 Crystal avenue, after a lingering illness with heart disease. He is survived by his widow and by several nephews and nieces. Mr. Damas was for many years engineer of the former steamer Block Island, which plied between Norwich, New London, Watch Hill and Block Island. In recent years and until his health started to decline, Mr. Damas was employed as engineer of the New London line steamer New Hampshire.

Norwich Man Gets Ring

Jack Rabinovitz, 240 Main street, Norwich, was awarded the diamond ring at the Lyceum theatre during the past week. The award was made Saturday night.

Thomas Gragan, former member of the city council, who has been seriously ill for over two weeks at his home, 24 Adelaide street, is reported as being vastly improved. Mr. Gragan, who suffered two slight shocks, is now able to exercise daily about his home.

Missing Rings Found

Miss Marjorie Miller, 69 Oneco avenue, reported to the police Sunday night that she had lost a diamond ring and an emerald ring while at the Hotel Mohican. Officer Elwood Bailey was assigned to the case, but when the officer arrived at the hotel he ascertained that the rings had been found by Bert Powers, the houseman. The rings were returned to the owner.

The cover of the catch basin, corner of Main street and Crystal avenue, was discovered shattered this morning. It is believed that the damage was caused by a heavy truck passing over the grating. The matter was reported to the highway department.

An unidentified automobile struck and damaged the traffic beacon, corner of Howard street and Montauk avenue Sunday night. The beacon was moved out of position about a foot and the mechanism operating the light was put out of commission.

I. J. Lipofansky, a boy residing at 225 Howard street, was slightly injured this afternoon when he jumped from an automobile truck upon which he was riding. The boy got a bad bump on the head. The truck was being driven by Hiram Simmons, of Walker hill, Groton, and when it passed through Main street, the youth suddenly opened the door and jumped. Simmons, in reporting the accident at police headquarters, said he was unaware of the youth's intention to jump out.

YOUTHS RESENT ACTS OF COAST GUARDSMEN

Another evidence of the ill-feeling existing among a certain element of the population, more particularly the younger generation, against the members of the United States Coast Guard, growing out of the slaying of three members of the crew of the launch Black Duck, off Narragansett bay, by the crew of the patrol boat 290, and the wounding of the fourth member of the crew of the rum-runner two weeks ago when the launch was halted by machine gun fire while attempting to get away from the rum-chaser, was evidenced last night. James Delmore, Francis Devine and Francis Sullivan were arrested, charged with breach of the peace in attacking William T. Lugenbell, chief petty officer, stationed at the state pier and residing at 116 Howard street. The young men were in the police court this morning and each was fined $10 and costs.

The men had been drinking last night and according to their own admissions, they had visited a drinking resort at Fort Neck. Upon leaving the drinking resort they went to Howard street and to the rear of the home of Lugenbell. When the latter attempted to enter his home a short time later he encountered the youths, who set upon him and beat the chief petty officer. Lugenbell called to his wife to bring him his revolver and then the youths fled to Howard street and disappeared. Complaint was made to the police and Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolman George Labarre rounded up the young men a short time later and they were made prisoners for the night. Leo Howard, another coast guardsman, stationed at the academy, made it known today when it was learned that Lugenbell had been assaulted, that when he was passing Lugenbell's residence he was threatened and that one of the trio remarked that "we will get the next d— coast guard that comes along." When questioned as to where they purchased their liquor, the trio refused to divulge the identity of the seller.

Lucius G. Briggs, 58 Broad street, Norwich, was in the police court this morning charged with reckless driving and was fined $5 and costs. Briggs was arrested Sunday night on Bank street by Automobile Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanaugh, when the autoist drove through that busy thoroughfare at a fast rate of speed, so much so that other autoists were threatened with injury because of possible collision.

MOODUS-HIGGANUM BREAKS REPORTED

The state police of the Centerbrook barracks are exerting every effort in an endeavor to ascertain the identity of burglars who made two breaks, one in Moodus and the other in Higganum Sunday night and who attempted to rob another store and the post office at Higganum. The crooks forced an entrance to the store of Ritt & Pear, Moodus and stole 10 suits of clothes and 10 black leather coats. It was the second time that the store has been robbed in less than a week. The thieves then gave their attention to the drug store of G. H. McAvoy, in Higganum, for this morning it was discovered that the pharmacy had lost much stock. Entrance was gained by forcing a rear window and the stock taken included two Gillette gold razors, two fountain pens, 19 boxes of cigars, the entire stock of cigarettes, 20 boxes of candy, 18 ties, three cameras, nine alarm clocks, shaving brushes, 12 combs, shoe spats and two dozen safety razor blades.

Joint Installation.

The joint installation of Herwegh lodge, No. 12, Sons of Hermann and its auxiliary, Eidelweiss, No. 10 was held this week in the rooms of the organizations, Main street, and for another year. Emil Pech and his wife will guide the destines of the two orders, for husband and wife were elected presidents of the respective orders. The installing officer was Herman Staabstate, president, who was assisted by Mrs. Fritz Vogt as grand vice president and Frank A. Baier as grand treasurer. The officers of Herwegh lodge installed were as follows: President, Adolph Bach; vice president, Max Abramovsky; corresponding secretary, Herman H. Appledorn; financial secretary, Paul Tendler; treasurer, Charles Doering; trustee, Fritz Vogt; guide, Paul Bauernschmidt; guard, John Fallwuist. The officers of Eidelweiss installed were as follows: President, Emily Bach; vice president, Mrs. Fannie Ruddy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Emma Fendler; financial secretary Miss Martha Neumann; treasurer Mrs. Pauline Neumann; trustee, Mrs. Augusta Vogt; guide Mrs. Celia Wheeler; guard, Mrs. Eric Carlson.

The 90th anniversary of Montauk Avenue Baptist church will be celebrated April 1, when the mortgage note of $950 on the church will be burned. The mortgage was reduced $1000 during 1929 and the remaining indebtedness has been practically subscribed so that the church will be free from incumbrance on the anniversary date.

At the annual meeting of the Alumnae association of Lawrence-Memorial hospital held in the recreation hall, the following officers were elected: President, Miss Grace Platt; vice president, Mrs. Grace Bump; secretary, Mrs. Beatrice Noyes; treasurer, Mrs. Johnathan Johnson; board of directors, Miss Louise Johnson, Mrs. Harry Olsen, Miss Katherine Sullivan, Mrs. David Walsh and Mrs. Robert Rome; nominating committee, Mrs. Edward Brutzman; program committee, Mrs. Robert Rome; auditing committee, Mrs. David Wyatt; nurses' relief fund, Miss Ruth Taylor; membership, Miss Carol Kane; publicity, Miss Katherine Sullivan. Mrs. Russell Coe and Mrs. Grace Seaton were elected delegates to the state meeting next month.

Officers of Goff temple, No. 1, Pythian Sisters were installed by Mrs. Gertrude Norris of Apollo temple, Middletown, grand installing officer, at a meeting of the organization in Union lodge rooms Wednesday night. The officers seated were: Most excellent chief, Elizabeth Lompno; excellent senior, Katherine Noyes; excellent junior, Lillian Cohen; manager, Jane Reed; mistress of finance, Mima Jeffrey; mistress of records and correspondence, Frances Greenman; protector, Marie Westle; guard, Alice Loseno; pianist, Florence Maus. The installation ceremony was witnessed by visitors from Norwich, Colchester and Mystic.

Frank Drago and Robert England of Hartford are guests of Mr. and Mrs. James McNamara of Truman street.

TANLAC WINS!

Two More Victories Over Stubborn Stomach Trouble—Joyous News For Other Sufferers

SO HAPPY MUST TELL WHAT TANLAC DID FOR HER

FROM old and young they come, letters overflowing with words of praise and gratitude telling of wonderful, almost unbelievable relief they received from this matchless medicine. Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. Take for instance, Mrs. Mary Bond who writes: "The moment food entered my stomach I would have such terrible pains that I could hardly move. Although I had doctored and taken all kinds of medicines I had never been able to find anything to help me until a boarder recommended Tanlac. I have now taken five bottles and am delighted with the way it has helped me. You can imagine how good I felt when I ate a nice big steak and didn't have a bit of trouble after having lived on dried toast for almost a year."

FINALLY FINDS RIGHT THING IN TANLAC

First Bottle Proof Enough

THOSE who have found only disappointment and failure in their search for health will do well to profit by the experience of this well-known man, Mr. Patrick O. Keefe. "For a number of years," says Mr. Keefe, "I suffered from stomach troubles. I could hardly eat anything without suffering gas and terrible bloating and I was always constipated. I heard about the benefits others derived from Tanlac. I admit I was skeptical for I had tried so many different medicines without results. Finally I was persuaded to try Tanlac and I will say the first bottle was proof enough for me. I have now taken several bottles and a wonderful change has come over me. My bowels are regular, digestive organs have been toned up, and I can eat three meals without gas, bloating or any misery." Tanlac is not only a wonderful stomach medicine but a great tonic.

POETRY

After Sunset

I have an understanding with the hills
At evening when the slanted radiance fills
Their hollows, and the great winds let them be,
And they are quiet and look down at me.
Oh, then I see the patience in their eyes
Out of the centuries that made them wise.
They lend me hoarded memory and I learn
Their thoughts of granite and their whims of fern,
And why a dream of forest must endure
Though every tree be slain; and how the pure
Invisible beauty has a word so brief,
A flower can say it or a shaken leaf,
But few may ever snare it in a song,
Though for the quest a life is not too long.
When the blue hills grow tender, when they pull
The twilight close with gesture beautiful,
And shadows are their garments, and the air
Deepens, and the wild veery is at prayer,
Their arms are strong around me; and I know
That somehow I shall follow when you go
To the still land beyond the evening star,
Where everlasting hills and valleys are,
And silence may not hurt us any more,
And terror shall be past, and grief, and war.

—Grace Hazard Conkling.

That Harp You Play So Well

O, David, if I had
Your power, I should be glad—
In harping, with the sling,
In patient reasoning!

Blake, Homer, Job and you,
Have made old wine-skins new.
Your energies have wrought
Stout continents of thought.

But, David, if the heart
Be brave, what boots the art
Of exercising wrong,
Of harping to a song

The scepter and the ring
And every royal thing
Will fail. Grief's lustiness
Must cure the harp's distress.

—Marianne Moore.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Mrs. Casey—My boy is simply inscrutable.

Mrs. Hogan—Have you tried mechanics' soap?—Detroit News.

"Who was this fellow Pan?"

"Why, he was half man and half goat."

"Ah, a husband!" — America's Humor.

Prospective Lodger—Isn't that the jail across the street?

Landlord—Yes, and to the other side we have the cemetery, so you see the neighborhood conveniences are excellent.—Exchange.

Patron—How many sandwiches will this jar of peanut butter make?

Clerk—Two dozen at home; 10 dozen in a drug store.—The Pathfinder.

The Suitor—My precious lamb!

The Daughter of the Packing King—Don't call me that. Lambs are getting frightfully cheap again. Just call me dear. Venison is still at a prohibitive price.—Boston Transcript.

Dick—If I mailed a letter addressed to "the dumbest man in Chicago," I wonder who they'd deliver it to?

Oswald (innocently)—They'd probably return it to the sender.—Chicago Evening Post.

"How old is your son?" asked the visitor.

"Well," replied the dad, "he's reached that age when he thinks the most important thing to pass isn't his examination but the car ahead."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An old Negro woman in attendance upon the Monday morning police court was slumped in her chair, her head resting dejectedly upon one hand.

"Well, Mammy," suggested a compassionate lawyer, observing her, "have you been fighting again?"

"No, sah, promptly came her indignant denial. "No, sah, I ain't been fightin'. I been fit."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Once again the Palace scores with a double feature smash program. Starting tomorrow this popular theatre will show two outstanding shows. One of them is that riot of love, adventure and music and dancing known as Little Johnny Jones, while the other is Second Choice, also a Vitaphone and a stunning success wherever it has played. In fact both pictures, previously shown each by itself, have proved box-office hits, which is the surest way to tell what the public thinks of them.

Dolores Costello and Jack Mulhall are starred in Second Choice. Chester Morris, who was such a tremendous hit in the crook film, Alibi, is also starred in this picture, the story of which deals with a girl who married a man for spite.

Temporarily Dolores has forsaken motion pictures, but it is very likely that we will have her back in Vitaphone again in due time.

EDNA MURPHY AND EDDIE BUZZELL

Eddie Buzzell, who is the star of Little Johnny Jones, is a universal favorite. When you see him you will understand why the Broadway fans paid $6.60 to get a look at him and hear him. Besides being full of song hits, the picture has a racy, and amazing plot that sweeps it along like a swift wind. It is a thrilling yarn of the turf, of jockeys, of thoroughbreds and romance.

Today for the last time the Palace presents Ronald Colman and Ann Harding in that superb picture of sacrifice and love, Condemned.

Broadway Theatre

Youth has its fling and goes into open revolt against modern divorce and thrill-mad parents in "The Marriage Playground," the most perfect combination of romance, comedy, pathos and drama ever screened, which opens at the Broadway tomorrow. This stunning film is based on Edith Wharton's cyclonic novel, "The Children." The famous Wheater children of the novel live their hectic lives in "The Marriage Playground," far beyond the fondest expectations of the author, and form a most delightful group of lovable youngsters. Headed by Mary Brian, the eldest child, and guided by Fredric March, a family friend, Philippe de Lacey, Anita Louise, Little Mitzi, Billie Seay and Ruby Parsley, to say nothing of Baby Donald, nine months old, band themselves definitely against the mode of living of their wealthy, society-loving parents. Lilyan Tashman and Huntley Gordon, and lead their astonished parents a merry dance to a surprise ending that is a knockout. Kay Francis as a sophisticated divorcee, William Austin, Seena Owen, Jocelyn Lee, David Newell and Joan Standing complete the remarkable cast for this fast-moving story of ultra-modern life, with its gay scenes laid on the Lido Venice beach, Palm Beach, the Riviera and Deauville, with some beautiful Swiss scenery as well. Fox Movietone news, a featured comedy, "The Fatal Forceps," with Ford Sterling and Bert Roach; Stanley & Ginger, a peppy pair in "A Few Odd Moments"; Roger Williams, the original "one-man band," and "Sympathy," a one-act riot of a married man who made whoopee directly against his wife's orders, complete a most interesting program. "The Laughing Lady," Ruth Chatterton's sensational drama, classed as another "The Lady Lies," will follow the engagement of "The Marriage Playground" on Saturday.

Breed Theatre

"The Cock Eyed World," the all-talking Fox Movietone feature at the Breed theatre this week, has song numbers written by Con Conrad, Sidney Mitchell and Archie Gottler, the former of whom taught the marines one of their songs.

During the filming of an early sequence, Director Raoul Walsh spent several days on board the U. S. S. Henderson with 600 marines from Mare Island navy yard, a navy band and a large group of sailors.

Con Conrad led the band and trained the marines to sing "So Long," the marching song, which they did with considerable vim.

"So Dear to Me" has an irresistible appeal and charm and is sung by Bobby Burns, whose crooning voice was heard in vaudeville and more recently in "The Vanities."

Burns plays the role of "Conners," a heart-broken marine in Russia with a sweetheart in America whom he believes to have been untrue to him.

The lyrics and words are the joint work of Con Conrad, Sidney Mitchell and Archie Gottler, under contract to Fox Movietone.

"The Cock Eyed World," which is doing capacity business at the Breed theatre this week, co-features Victor McLaglen, Edmund Lowe and Lily Damita.

WESTERLY

JOHN CAVINK ADMITS ACCOSTING GIRLS IN PARK

John Cavink, 26, of 28 1-2 Pleasant street, Westerly, a former Stonington resident, is held at Westerly police headquarters as a disorderly person, charged with accosting young girls in Wilcox Park. He will be before Judge Oliver H. Williams at a special session of Third District court on the complaint for which the maximum penalty is three years in jail.

For a number of months Chief Brown and members of Westerly police force have been hunting for a man who is said to have accosted high school girls in Wilcox Park. Monday morning Officer LeRoy Norman took Caving into custody. Later Cavink was confronted by two girls at police headquarters who identified him as the man who had approached them either when they were on their way to school in the morning or while they were in the park eating their lunch during the noon recess. Chief Brown stated that Cavink had admitted to him and Attorney John Ferguson, counsel for the state, that he is the man who has been acting suspiciously in the park since last October.

Alcisia Barr was installed president of Robert Brucker auxiliary, No. 6, American United Spanish War Veterans Sunday afternoon at the V. F. W. hall. The officers were installed by the department president, Lydia A. Lynch. About 60 members of the auxiliary and Robert Brucker Camp were present, also department officers from visiting camps and auxiliaries in Providence and Pawtucket. The installing officer, Mrs. Lynch, and Nellie Mason, organizer of the auxiliary, were presented gifts from the auxiliary. The retiring president, Martha A. Taylor, presented her chaplain, secretary and treasurer gifts also. The past auxiliary president, Mrs. Taylor, was presented a jewel and flowers.

Following the installation a lunch of salad, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee was served. The newly elected officers are: President, Alesia Barr; senior vice president, Jennie Keegan; junior vice president, Marybelle Bates; chaplain, Esther A. Cooper; conductor, Martha A. Taylor; assistant conductor, Lucy Keegan; musician, Ruby Marshall; guard, Edna Smith; treasurer, Jennie Barr; secretary, Annie Garlick; patriotic instructor, Mary Kimball Wheeler; historian, Ann Carnaghan; reporter, Annie Garlick.

The auxiliary held its regular meeting Monday evening at 8 o'clock in V. F. W. hall.

OBITUARY

George E. Sprague

George Edward Sprague, in his 24th year, died Sunday afternoon at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer H. Pendleton, in Quonochontaug following several months illness from blood poisoning. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sprague and was born in Westerly. On September 29, 1928, he married Miss Helen Pendleton, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Palmer Pendleton. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague were living on Chester avenue, when Mr. Sprague was taken ill. He spent several weeks in the hospital and was taken to the home of his wife's parents on the first anniversary of their marriage. He is survived by his father and mother and wife. He was last employed at the plant of the Bradford Dyeing association.

FUNERAL

Joseph T. Patterson

Monday morning from the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Palmer, Ashaway, the funeral of Joseph Thomas Patterson, was held. He died at Wallum Lake sanitarium Thursday. Requiem high mass at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Immaculate Conception was sung by Rev. J. F. Vincent, the pastor. The bearers were members of the Westerly Carpenters' Union: Sinclair Barker, secretary; Henry O'Keefe, Arthur Guarino and John H. Sullivan. Burial was in River Bend cemetery. Mr. Patterson was a carpenter and a member of St. Louis Union, No. 73, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

On the wet and skiddy highway surface Sunday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Griffin of East Orange, N. J., who were on their honeymoon, narrowly escaped serious injury, when their automobile overturned on the Charlestown-Kenyon road near Kelly's corners. The car was wrecked. Both occupants, however, escaped with a slight shaking up and several minor bruises.

The overturned auto rested on Mrs Griffin to such an extent that it was necessary to completely wreck the top of the car to free her, when passers-by assisted in lifting the automobile clear. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin returned to New York from Westerly on the 7:04 p. m. express. Mr. Griffin bore evidence of the mishap in the form of plasters and dressing on his scratched and cut face and head.

E. Adelph L. Leon, engineer for Westerly highway commission, at Atlantic City, N. J., attending the National Association of Road Builders' convention, being held in the new auditorium with attendants from all over the world.

Mrs. Charles F. Hickox was in Providence Monday.

Harry H. Coleman was among Westerly hockey fans who attended the game Sunday at the Rhode Island Arena, Providence.

Paul Lewis returned to his duties as section foreman on the New Haven railroad after a week end visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merton B. Lewis, in Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Twomey have returned to Pawtucket, R. I., after a week end visit in Pawcatuck.

Westerly band, Charles O. Gavitt, director, is to hold its meeting Wednesday evening at Peckham's Inn, with Director Gavitt as toastmaster.

MOTHERS GIVING CHILDREN VITAMINS THEY NEED

Approved By Highest Medical Authorities In World

Progressive mothers now give their youngsters the full Vitamin benefit of Cod Liver Oil in sugar-coated tablet form.

Two McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets equal in Vitamin potency one teaspoonful of pure Cod Liver Oil and are just as good for every ailment, sickness, rundown or underweight condition for which liquid Cod Liver Oil is prescribed.

The most learned scientists the world over say Vitamins A and D go to build up strong, sturdy bones, add weight to thin little bodies, help to make teeth sound and straight and keep eyes free from soreness.

Most boys and girls, if they are to develop into attractive, healthy men and women, need a daily supply of Vitamins and in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets they are sure to get them.

For McCoy's chemist extracts these priceless Vitamins from pure, Norwegian, Vitamin tested Cod Liver Oil and puts them in tablets that youngsters love to take instead of the obnoxious oil they hate to take.

Bear in mind that doctors prescribe Cod Liver Oil for the Vitamins it contains—the oil without the Vitamins has no medical value. 60 tablets 60 cents at any drugstore in America. Take your Vitamins straight and take them daily.

NOANK

Mrs. Abbie Palmer Anderson, 58, widow of David Anderson, who died at the home of her nephew, Percy Palmer, on Church street Saturday, had been ill for the past three months. She was born in Noank Oct. 15, 1872, the daughter of William and Sarah Palmer. Mrs. Anderson was a member of Noank Baptist church. During the past 25 years she has been a resident of New Jersey, until about three months ago when she came to make her home with her nephew. She was also an accomplished singer. Surviving her are two brothers, William and Ernest Palmer of Noank, also her nephew, Percy Palmer.

Robert Lane of Wesleyan university spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lane.

Joseph Butson of East Greenwich spent the week end with local relatives.

The third in the series of the Lyceum course was given in Shandeor's hall recently and was largely attended. The Royal Holland Bell Ringers furnished a most unique entertainment. They introduced a novel musical instrument known as the Swiss hand bell, also the cymbal harp, cathedral chimes, rattlebones and the occarina, a small musical instrument imported from Holland. The company also entertained with native songs and dances. There were six entertainers.

John Morrison, Neil Morrison, Jerry Sullivan, Edward Morgan and Fred Rafuse of the local post of the American Legion, and Mrs. John Jenssen, Mrs. Howard Palmer and Mrs. James Ringland, members of the auxiliary, attended the meeting of the Fifth district at New London.

Mrs. J. Whiting of Old Mystic has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Smith.

The "Reliance," owned by Capt. Grover Eldridge, has been in port with 19 barrels of haddock and codfish.

A meeting of the Wide-Awake club of Noank grammar school was held in the room of the eighth grade recently. The following officers were chosen for this year: President, Wilfred P. Ellis; vice-president, Esther Sistare; secretary, Helen Cox; treasurer, Theodore Reid. After the meeting, the following program was given: Song, seventh and eighth grades; recitation, Hazel Trahan; song, Mabel Bracci, Hazel Trahan, Blanche Laffargue, Virginia Bonomo, Walter Carpenter and Theodore Reid, accompanied at the piano by Wilfred Ellis; recitation, Mabel Bracci; song, seventh and eighth grades.

A meeting of the Boy Scouts will be held in Legion quarters on Main street Wednesday evening.

The Ladies' Aid society of Noank Baptist church, which had planned a dinner and all-day session at the church today (Tuesday), has postponed the meeting a week.

Miss Sara Ellis of East Greenwich spent the week end with Miss Inez Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis of Uxbridge, Mass., visited over the week end with Mrs. Lewis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carson.

Members of the local W. C. T. U. attended the tenth anniversary celebration at the Methodist church in New London Sunday evening.

Joseph Snider of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent Sunday with local friends.

Mrs. Thomas Perkins of Groton spent Sunday with friends here.

Patrick Cahill died at his home on Brook street early Sunday morning. Mr. Cahill has been in poor health for some time but death was due to a shock. He was born in County Killarney, Ireland, the son of Patrick and Mary Osborne Cahill. He had lived in this village for a number of years, having moved here from New London. Surviving him are his wife, Catherine L. Cahill; a sister, Mrs. Richard Malley of Worcester, Mass.; two brothers, Thomas Cahill of Worcester and Edward Cahill of Kansas City.

Miss Louise Rose and George Vardeles of Westerly, R. I., spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Sisson of Bayside avenue.

Olaf Jenssen has returned after spending several days in New York.

Stanley Specht has gone to New Haven, where he is employed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mosher has returned to Groton, after spending several days at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice Reid, of Pearl street.

FLAGMAN HAS TRAINED FOUR ENGLISH SPARROWS

The night flagman, William Wilcox, on the Main street railroad crossing, who sees that the people are safe and that automobiles don't cross while a train is in the block, is not lonesome on his job. He has four trained English sparrows; they help him pass the long hours of the night. Flagman Wilcox has named them Patsy, George, Bert and Susan. The sparrows are so tamed they will go and sit on his knee, or light on his head. Trainer Wilcox will hold out his hand and Bird George will do a little dance, as the flagman whistles a tune. And how the winter sparrows love candy! He will get some candy at the waiting room on his way to the flag station and it is funny how his playmates of the air know that their master is coming. They will fly up to meet the smiling flagman. Then the four birds will get back to the flag station and land on a fence post to greet their friend. watching Wilcox will sing to them "Do You Know What I Have For You, Winter Birds?" They will listen as though to sing "Well, Old Timer, What is it, Candy?" Over him fly the birds and Patsy will find the candy and the rest will join the party. Soon the candy will be out of sight and the sparrows will rub their bills, meaning "gee, that is good." Flagman Wilcox says if the birds are not around, it makes the time seem long; but when they are flying about and on the post outside the shanty, he can talk to them as a mother does to a child when he steals the jam on the kitchen shelf.

George seemed to be the father of the group. He will eat right out of my hand, or give me his foot, like a stranger shaking hands in Cuba. I put bread on the post and a dish of water to wash it down. For the past six years, these birds have come every day. When I was on the day watch the birds would see me coming a long way off and start a race in the air to see who would get there first. It sure took me a long time to train them, but to lose one of my bird friends I would not know what to do for they have been with me so long. My pets know when a train is calling by the noise of the whistle and watch me grab the stop sign. They know all right. One bird, Patsy, is a little afraid yet, and hard to get him to stay still when a stranger comes; but the rest don't move. When the ground is covered with snow and the other birds cannot find anything to eat those sparrows don't worry, for they know their train master will have some bread or candy. Flagman Wilcox claims when the birds could not get anything to eat he would feed about 30 that came when his pals were eating. It would be good if all of us thought of those sparrows in the winter and throw out some bread or build a little house for their family. They cannot hide behind a leave on a tree now to keep warm like in the fall. Trainer Wilcox said one time he was eating and a knock came on the window pane, he looked around, and did not know where it came from—thought some boys playing in the street threw a ball at the window. "I kept on eating and about 5 minutes after another knock came and it was one of the trained birds, I said 'Hello, George, what are you doing here?' I opened the door and in flew Mr. Bird George. I put a few pieces of bread on my hand; he ate them all right and was not afraid in the kitchen. I got on my coat and hat, took my lunch box and started for the flag station. The bird came along too and as soon as I got there he joined his pals. That is the funniest thing I know of for a bird to do, to know where I live and with his bill knock on the window pane to make me look out! I have walked around with one of the birds on my head; they are great pals!"

MYSTIC

A joint installation of Canton Hartford, No. 6 of Hartford, Canton Windham, No. 3, of Willimantic and Canton Aram, No. 10, of Mystic, was held in the Odd Fellows hall on Cottrell street, Mystic, Saturday evening, with Colonel J. William Johnson, of Waterbury, the installing officer. Prior to the meeting, a turkey supper was served to 70 members and guests. The committee for the supper was: Mrs. James Cooper, Mrs. Samuel Grimes, Mrs. John Koulbanis, Mrs. George Truss, Mrs. Samuel Lamb, Miss Phoebe Stinson and Miss Marian Cooper. The meeting was opened at 8 o'clock by Captain Clarence Hempstead, and the installing ceremonies followed. The officers installed for Canton Aram, were: Captain, Howard S. Perkins; lieutenant, James Cooper; ensign, George Truss; clerk, Willis V. Chapman; accountant, William A. McDonald; color bearer, Past Captain Samuel Lamb; sentinel Past Captain John Koulbanis; picket Major D. Elmer Wilcox; chairman of entertainment committee, S S. Lamb; finance committee, Major Wilcox, S. S. Lamb, Clarence Hempstead. Colonel George Brahman of Bridgeport, of the Connecticut general staff and grand patriarch of the Grand encampment of Connecticut, and two past grand representatives of Grand encampment of Connecticut Following the meeting, square and round dancing was enjoyed.

The attendance at the Sunday school of the Baptist church at Old Mystic, Sunday, was 48 and and a collection of $3.14 was taken. Ladies' Aid society is to meet Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Charles H. Burdick. Friday evening, the prayer meeting will be held at 7:30 o'clock instead of 7:45. The church meeting is to be held at 8 o'clock.

At the Union Baptist church, Mystic, Miss Judy Avery of Groton played a violin solo during the offertory period, "Meditation," by Massenet. Miss Avery also played during the singing of the hymns. Mrs. John W. Phillips gave beautiful pink roses to the church, in memory of the birthday of her mother, the late Mrs. William Baggs.

Miss Margaret Smith, of Norwich, visited Mr. and Mrs. George Ashcroft of High street, Sunday.

Allison Whipple, of Meriden, spent Sunday with relatives in the village.

This (Tuesday) evening, at the meeting of Stonington Travel club in Stonington Free library, Kenneth Bates of Mystic will give a talk on "An Automobile trip through Italy, France and Belgium."

When the Country club meets Thursday evening the committee in charge will be Mr. and Mrs. G. Victor Grinnell, Mr. and Mrs. Orrin A. Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cutler, Miss M. Josephine Dickinson and Mrs. N. Stanton Gates.

The Monday club met with Mrs. George C. Lane at her home in Noank. The program was in charge of Mrs. Ebenezer Morgan and the subject of the afternoon was Glacier park.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Elliot, of New London, spent Sunday with Old Mystic relatives.

The semi-annual installation of Mystic encampment, I. O. O. F. was held Friday evening in Odd Fellows hall, District Deputy Edward Walsh and suite of New London, conducting the ceremonies. Following the meeting, refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. The officers installed were: Chief patriarch, D. Elmer Wilcox; senior warden, Ralph O. Hughes; junior warden, Howard Perkins; high priest, Jesse Stinson; recording scribe, James Cooper; financial scribe, Courtland Potter; treasurer, William A. MacDonald; guide, Edward Babcock; inside sentinel, Brivio Tiziani; outside sentinel, Irving Hughes; first watch, John Koulbanis; second watch, Samuel S. Lamb; third watch, Willis V. Chapman; fourth watch, William MacCausland; first guard of tent, Clinton LaFerier; second guard of tent, Carl Hoelck.

The United Workers of Old Mystic Methodist church are to meet Wednesday afternoon in the Parish house.

OBITUARY

Mrs. James McNamara

Mrs. Mary Mahoney McNamara, wife of James McNamara of School street, Mystic, who died Friday afternoon at Lawrence Memorial hospital, New London, had been a surgical patient there for the past week or more. Her death came as a shock to her friends and neighbors, as she had been in her usual health, until lately. She was a devout member of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church here, and was always a willing worker. Mrs. McNamara was born at Oswego, N. Y., May 15, 1870, the daughter of Jeremiah and Sarah Driscoll Mahoney. She had resided in Mystic for many years. She is survived by her husband, a sister, Mrs. Catherine LeBeau of High street, two nieces, Mrs. Madeline Travena and Miss Catherine LeBeau, and a nephew, Ernest F LeBeau, all of Mystic. Funeral services were held Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from Mrs. LeBeau's home, with requiem high mass at St. Patrick's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John P. Kennedy, the pastor, sang the mass. Burial was in St. Patrick's cemetery, Mystic.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carter and son Adelbert, of Wethersfield, spent the week end with Mrs. Carter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Eldredge, of Old Mystic.

Mrs. Gerda McLean, of Westerly, was a recent visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Swain, in Old Mystic.

Of the 1,600,000 tourists who in 1929 visited Vancouver, B. C., 17 per cent stayed at tourist camps.

STONINGTON

The board of selectmen of the town of Stonington met Saturday afternoon in the Town hall and set the date for a special town meeting as Jan. 20. The meeting has been called to make appropriations for the necessary improvements to West Broad street. At this time the selectmen will present their plans to the voters and hope to have the work underway by Feb. 1 and complete alterations before the summer traffic rush.

The business on Water street, owned and operated by Isaac F. Gavitt for the past several years, was sold Saturday to John Paulos of Mystic.

At the last meeting of Barbara Frietchie council No. 2, Daughters of America, the following officers were installed: Councilor, Emily Robinson; associate councilor, Christine Holland; vice-councilor, Lilla Stapling; associate vice-councilor, Helen Fish; junior past councilor, Jennie Carpenter; associate junior past councilor, Anna Merrill; recording secretary, Laura Ostman; assistant recording secretary, Ruth Conrad; financial secretary, Ethel Merrill; treasurer, Florence Morse; inside sentinel, Sherman Swallow; outside sentinel, Ethel Briggs; warden, Lillian Carpenter; conductor, Emily Briggs; degree mistress, Laura Ostman; publicity agent, Catherine Scott; trustee for 18 months, Jennie Carpenter; trustee for 12 months, Lilla Stapling; trustee for six months, Sherman Swallow. The degree team, assisted by Matilda Morgan council of Westerly and Liberty council of Noank, did the work. At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served. Dancing followed.

Miss Ada Gavitt was pleasantly surprised by a number of friends Saturday evening in celebration of her 17th birthday.

Miss Lenora Bailey of Willimantic Normal school spent the week end with her parents.

GALES FERRY

The Lord's Song, Psalm 137:4, was the theme of the Sunday morning sermon at the Community Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. Jerome Greer. A solo, The Beautiful Garden of Prayer, was sung by Courtland E. Colver at the offertory.

The Sunday evening Epworth league service was led by C. E. Colver, the topic being Appreciating Other People. There was special music, Misses Helen L. Colver and Gertrude D. Allen singing a duet, In the Garden, and junior girls giving Since Jesus Came Into My Heart. The poem, The Man With the Hoe, by Edward Markham was read by Miss Colver. In place of the usual talk by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Greer told of attending the Mid-Year Institute of the Norwich District Epworth League at the opening session in New London, Friday evening, and reports from the Institute on World Peace and the Teachings of Jesus were given by C. E. Colver, Jr., and Mrs. Jerome Greer. Rev. Mr. Greer closed with a talk on the address by District Superintendent Myron E. Genter, on Our Social Contacts. The next meeting of the institute is to be in Mystic Friday evening. Supper at 6:45 will be followed by classes at 7:45, an address at 8:30 by H. W. Hicks, and a Fourth department demonstration at 9:15.

Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt called on her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Rowland H. Perkins, and her sister, Miss Laura A. Perkins, in New London recently.

Mrs. Billings F. S. Crandall and Miss Alice Satterlee, local members of Anna Warner Bailey chapter, D. A. R., attended a meeting of the chapter in Groton Thursday.

Mrs. Robert Townsend of Mystic, who has been the guest for a week of her mother, Mrs. Charles F. Bartlett, left Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend of Uncasville.

Queen Esther circle met Thursday evening with Mrs. Jerome Greer, at the parsonage. Miss Helen L. Colver, president of the circle, presided at the business session and the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Gertrude D. Allen. The receipt of $4.15 for supplies, sent to the Ethel Harpst Home, Cedartown, Ga., was reported by Miss Matilda Harold. Plans for an entertainment were made and Misses Allen and Ethel F. Main were appointed a committee in charge, with Miss Harold, candy committee, and Misses Em Beth Bennett and Margaret Parker, committee on advertising and tickets. The next meeting, Feb. 13, will be at the home of Misses Lillian and Velma Atkins. Miss Rose Norcross was named program committee and Misses Velma Atkins and Em Beth Bennett for refreshments.

Miss Eleanor Kidder of New York was a guest for several days the past week of her grandmother, Mrs. Charles H. Comstock, and her aunt, Mrs. Mary C. Watrous.

Mrs. George M. Brown and daughter, Barbara Bushnell, of West Haven, were guests Friday of Mrs. Brown's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker.

The Ladies' Aid society met Friday afternoon in the vestry with 15 members present. Two quilts were tied and the members also worked on handkerchief bags and fancy articles. Miss Alice Satterlee, president of the society, presided at the business meeting. Reports were given by Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins, secretary-treasurer. It was voted to make a donation to the fund for the Home for Aged Methodist Women. Needs of the church were considered and acted on. Mrs. Jerome Greer, Mrs. R. Irving Hurlbutt and Mrs. Andrew P. Miller, the committee preparing work for the session, were continued in charge for the next meeting.

The teachers of the Ledyard schools were in session with School Supervisor James F. Connolly of Norwich Thursday afternoon at Ledyard Center school. The subject of the study book, Child Centered Schools, was continued by Supervisor Connolly.

Miss Mildred Maher of Norwich, school nurse, visited the village school Friday. Supervisor Connolly was a caller there the same day.

UNCASVILLE

The vesper service at the Methodist Episcopal church Sunday afternoon was well attended. Thirteen singers from the African Methodist Episcopal church, Norwich, gave a fine service of song—using the following spirituals: "Walk in Jerusalem, Just Like John," "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," "Old-Time Religion," "In My Heart," "Every Time I Feel the Spirit." These were all rendered in a fine way. Rev. Mr. Gantt offered the prayer of invocation; Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich gave an illuminating and instructive address to the young people on "Sweeping Against the Wind." He followed this with a splendid sermon on what God wants of us. Both addresses were of a high order and eloquently and impressively delivered. Such talks cannot fail of good.

Robert French, the church organist, played a number of selections in a very pleasing way. The people desire that all these friends come again. Mrs. J. W. Aston, choir leader, led in the singing of the hymns.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION STUDIED BY FARM EXPERTS

Spontaneous combustion has been recognized since the time of the ancient Greeks, but to this day scientists are seeking a satisfactory explanation of its cause. The ancients thought the cause was friction, and their historians told of great fires that were started by the wind rubbing the branches of a mountain forest together.

New theories have been advanced as to the cause of spontaneous combustion since the time of the Greeks, and much progress has been made by scientists who have been studying this problem for years. The United States department of agriculture is especially interested in spontaneous combustion as it affects farm products, and now has under way a number of experiments seeking to discover new facts.

Agricultural products which undergo a process of heating under certain storage conditions include hay, grain, and horse manure. Pliny, the Roman historian, gave the following advice to haymakers: "When the grass is cut it should be turned toward the sun and must never be stacked until it is quite dry. If this last precaution is not carefully taken, a kind of vapor will be seen arising from the rick in the morning and as soon as the sun is up it will ignite to a certainty and so be consumed."

The annual loss from spontaneous combustion on farms in this country is estimated at $30,000,000. In an effort to reduce this huge annual loss to farmers, the United States department of agriculture has built a barn at the experimental station at Beltsville, Md., and filled it with hay. Conditions which cause spontaneous heating will be duplicated and every phase of the problem will be carefully observed.

HORSE BUSINESS IS COMING BACK—BREEDING RESUMED

Whether the horse continues to decline in numbers by reason of displacement by the motor car and tractor, or not, the horse business is due for better times in the opinion of J. O. Williams of the U. S. department of agriculture. The number of horses on the farms of the country declined in 1928 to the lowest point yet recorded, but the market stiffened or advanced. Mr. Williams points out that for several years farmers have been breeding and raising only about half as many colts as are required for replacement of the diminished number of work animals in use.

"Inferior horses of all types are a drag on the market, and undoubtedly will continue to be so," says Mr. Williams. "But the difficulty with the horse and mule situation in recent years has been largely psychological. Breeders of horses and mules have wondered whether there would ever be a recurrence in demand for work stock and have been timid about resuming breeding operations. This has resulted in the present shortage of good work and pleasure animals, a situation which promises to become much more acute within the next few years. We believe that farmers should now study their farm power situation; those who will continue to use horses and mules can now replace aging animals with young stock before an acute shortage occurs."

That farmers are beginning to realize this situation is reflected by a study the department of agriculture recently made of the number of stallions and jacks in service in 24 states. The number of these has declined sharply in recent years, but owners in some localities reported that last year witness a considerable increase in the number of mares bred.

SHADE TREE BORER DAMAGE

The twigs of trees are favorite points of attack for a number of small borers. The somewhat common maple and oak twig pruner cuts off limbs up to about an inch in diameter and is occasionally abundant enough to prune severely even good-sized trees. The Bartlett tree research laboratories recommend the collecting and burning of fallen twigs during the winter or early spring as an excellent control measure. The hickory twig girdler is another of these pests. It may be controlled in the same way.

The plant lice are sucking insects, like the scale insects, and are sometimes extremely abundant and injurious, especially during cool, backward seasons. These soft-bodied insects are preyed upon by hosts of small parasites and numerous bright colored lady beetles with their ugly dark colored grubs. These natural enemies have the advantage during warm, sunny periods of early spring. Cool, wet weather is favorable to the plant lice.

The peculiar galls upon Norway spruce trees, sometimes very abundant and extremely injurious, resemble in a general way minute pineapples and are the product of plant lice activities. Infestation by plant lice is most easily recognized by the sticky "honeydew" upon the foliage and sometimes so abundant as to keep walks and pavements wet under the infested trees.

OPEN SEASON FOR APPLE TREES

With thousands of acres of land well suited to apple growing lying idle, many growers in the Ozark region of southwestern Missouri and northwestern Arkansas are trying to produce apples on land that is not adapted to the purpose, according to A. T. Sweet, of the United States department of Agriculture.

This situation arises from the fact that apple trees do not grow well, produce abundantly, or live as long as they should on soil that has a tight subsoil. Where there is an open subsoil the trees send their roots deep down into it for moisture and plant food. In order to make use of the level areas, growers have often selected orchard sites which have a tight subsoil when there was plenty of the more desirable land near by.

In a study of the relation between subsoil conditions and growth of apple trees in the Ozarks, Mr. Sweet found that a 20-year-old tree often commands the moisture and plant food of at least 5,000 cubic feet of soil if the soil is open and porous. He also found that root diseases are in many places an accompaniment of bad subsoil conditions.

Good cultivation, fertilization, and disease control may seem to overcome the handicap of a tight subsoil when the orchard is young, but can not overcome it as the trees become older and their demands for food and water increase, Mr. Sweet concludes.

EGG SIZE VERSUS PRODUCTION

Much has been done during the last 15 to 20 years in the way of increasing egg production; in fact, practically everything has been done since the days of the first egg-laying contests. Fifteen years ago a hen that laid 200 eggs was considered a wonder, while today a hen that does not lay 300 eggs is given little consideration or publicity. To expect an increase from 300 to 400 eggs per bird in the next 15 years would seem to be out of the question; but there is much that can be done to the way of improving egg size.

Egg size is of even more importance on the commercial poultry farm with early hatching, summer and fall pullet production, and a more exacting egg market each season. More A-No. 1 market eggs per bird, with a persistency that will enable the flock to be kept through the entire year, is the logical solution for the poultryman who is feeling competition.

A wise selection of breeding stock at home or from outside blood may step up egg size and production very definitely, while an unwise choice may react in the opposite direction.—Jones' Poultry Letter

TRILLIONS OF PARTICLES IN THIMBLEFUL OF EARTH

In studying the soils of the United States, scientists of the United States department of agriculture have discovered that the more minute particles of the soil play a very important part in determining its usefulness, and in indicating the treatment the farmer must give the soil if he is to get the best returns from his labor.

These smaller particles of soil are described by the soil scientists as "soil colloids." Some soils are composed largely of colloids; others are sandy and gravelly and have a relatively large proportion of particles larger than colloids. Ceramic clay used by potters is largely colloidal.

"The number of these particles in the soil is almost unbelievably great, their size incomprehensibly small," says H. G. Byers, of bureau of chemistry and soils of the department of Agriculture in a popular discussion published recently. "For example, in a soil which consists of 30 per cent of particles which average one-tenth of a micron in diameter, which is a fair mean for soils, there are about 240,000,000,000,000 particles per cubic centimeter of soil which present a total surface of 79,000 square centimeters. Stated othewise, a child's thimblefull of such soil contains 240,000,000,000 particles with a surface area of about 72 square feet. So it is apparent that the soil surface exposed to the eye is insignificant compared to that open to the exploring roots of plants."

MOVING LARGE TREES

Moving large trees was once regarded as being so difficult that it was seldom attempted, but by the use of modern equipment and the exercise of care, it can be done successfully, says the United States department of Agriculture. The same attention to details is required as is needed in moving smaller plants, but because of the greater weight to be moved and the longer time required, both in preparation and moving, much greater attention to details is necessary.

Among the essentials for successful transplanting are a good tree, including a well-developed root system and a healthy top; moving at the proper season: Deciduous trees while dormant, evergreens when the ground is sufficiently warm and moist to stimulate the plant to the immediate formation of roots; properly dug trees with the roots well protected from the time the soil is first removed until replanted; an adequate hole; the tree properly set and the soil sufficiently firmed; the top properly pruned; and the soil properly watered until the tree is reestablished.

With the use of derricks, trucks and an abundance of protection for the bark and roots, the mechanical difficulties of moving large trees have been greatly reduced.

FARM HOME MAKERS HAVE A LONG WORKING WEEK

More than 63 hours a week is the average "working time" for 700 farm women who kept records and reported to the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture.

They reported an average of 52 hours and 17 minutes spent on strictly homemaking activities alone. This is more than the 44-hour working week which is the standard in industry, the bureau points out. In addition, these women spent an average of 11 hours and 18 minutes a week on dairy work, care of poultry, gardening and other outside tasks.

Some of these 700 home makers lived in the middle west, some in New York state, and some in three far western states. The group as a whole represents rather superior home makers—those likely to cut down working time by intelligent methods. For the country as a whole the average working time would probably be higher, the bureau says.

Figures for the New York home makers are typical. They show that feeding the family occupied 25 hours and 51 minutes; cleaning and straightening the house required 8 hours and 15 minutes; and that other items in the care of the house added 3 hours and 17 minutes. Laundering, sewing, mending, care of clothing, care of children, and other management and miscellaneous items filled the remaining hours of the total.

Clearly the farm home maker enjoys very little of that leisure the modern woman is popularly credited with, according to this study. The city home maker's situation may be somewhat different. For the farm home maker, however, ready-made clothing, ready-cooked foods, and better equipment and household convenences have not offset the fact that at present she gets much less help from other members of the family than the farm mothers of 40 or 50 years ago. At best the farm home maker still has a long day, and by industry's standard may be classed as overworked, the bureau of home economics concludes.

Try for More Winter Eggs

MANHATTAN, Kas. (AP)—An experiment in flock management at Kansas State Agricultural college aims to get the highest egg yield from pullets in the fall and winter when prices are high, and the best fertility and hatchability from the hens during early spring months.

Healthy Poultry Houses

MANHATTAN, Kas. (AP)—The Kansas open-front, gable-roofed, straw loft poultry house, with straw in the roof acting as an absorbent for moisture needed by fowls, is called the most healthful home for poultry in cold weather.

Why Folks Stay Fat

Not always because of over-eating, but because a gland is weak. That gland largely controls nutrition. When it is weak one may nearly starve, yet stay fat.

Modern physicians the world over now combat this great cause of obesity. And excess fat, in late years, has been disappearing fast.

Marmola prescription tablets contain the chief factors which they use. People have used them for 22 years— millions of boxes of them. And countless clender figures everywhere now show the amazing effects.

Go try this right method to reduce. Stop starving. Read the book in the box with the formula and reasons. Ask your druggist today for a $1 box of Marmola and watch the change.

TRADING IN STOCKS AT THE LOWEST EBB ENCOUNTERED SINCE JULY 28, 1928

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.— (AP) —The stock market continued to dawdle today, trading falling to the lowest ebb witnessed in a year and a half. Total sales were 1,452,580 shares, the smallest turnover since July 28, 1928, when 1,407,500 shares were traded.

The outstanding item of the day's news was announcement of prompt over-subscription of the $150,000,000 issue of American Telephone bonds, indicating that the demand for investment securities of the better grade still survives.

Buyers of equity shares, however, are disposed to await convincing evidence of a revival in industry before further extensions of their holdings. Also, there is a considerable army of speculators that waits for an upturn to get into swing before attempting to pick the leaders.

Another factor in the market's present position is that considerable stock still seems to be hanging over the market, and may represent unliquidated holdings taken over by banks during the crash. At any rate, every advance attracts selling, which is particularly discouraging to speculators for the rise.

On the other hand, bear drives have been generally unsuccessful of late.

The market has not yet touched the lowest levels of activity reached in July, 1928, when the so-called Coolidge bull market received a blow with an increase in the federal reserve bank rate. On only three days of that month did total sales exceed 2,000,000 shares, and the minimum for a full session was less than 1,200,000.

Corporate and trade news over the week end was unimpressive, and today brought few new developments. Passing of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender common dividend was not unexpected. Cigarette prices were increased by the Liggett stores in the metropolitan area, indicating a passing of the latest price war. Credit conditions remained steady, with call money holding at 4 1-2 per cent. Bankers look for some easing as the week progresses.

The market moved irregularly lower during the morning, and amateur bear selling appeared to be a contributing factor. A substantial rally set in during the last hour, however, centering in the rails. Pennsylvania was a strong feature, advancing more than 2 points in a large turnover. This was a comparatively wide move for this stock. It has been sluggish of late, but the rights expire Wednesday, and buying was attributed to quarters in which better action for the stock after the expiration of the rights has been predicted. Coppers sagged a little, in selling in anticipation of unfavorable December statistics as to stocks of the red metal on hand. Montgomery Ward was a target for the bears for a time, but closed only about a point off.

Allied Chemical and Auburn Auto mounted about 4 points. Shares closing about 2 to 3 points higher included American and Foreign Power, American Tobacco, Chesapeake and Ohio, Columbian Carbon, General Electric, Hershey Chocolate, Michigan and Newton Steel, Radio, Keith, Hudson Motor, Wabash and Western Union. U. S. Steel closed at 171, up 1 3-8. Brunswick Balke broke about 4 points to a new low at 14. Pierce Arrow A and Industrial Rayon also fell back about 2 points.

Commodities largely moved in narrow ranges. Wheat futures, however, lost about 1 1-2 cents a bushel, reflecting reports of cheaper Argentine offerings and slackening foreign demand. Corn closed steady, however. Cotton futures sagged for a time, but rallied to close a little higher.

Foreign exchanges generally continued to sag. Sterling cables dipped 1-8 cent to $4.87 7-8, the Spanish peseta, on the other hand, rallied further, closing about 1-3 cent higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Despite rallies in the late trading, Chicago wheat prices today finished at the lowest closing level shown here for some time. Among the main depressing factors was a surprise increase of 4,660,000 bushels in the amount of wheat supplies afloat on the ocean, together with word that France, usually an importing country, is selling wheat to Great Britain. Announcement of 3,311,000 bushels decrease of the United States wheat visible supply failed to act as a counter-balance.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were nervous at 1c to 1 5-8c a bushel under Saturday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 1-4 and 3-8c higher, oats 1-4c to 1-2c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of two cents.

Unexpected downturns in wheat values at Liverpool today did much to bring about price setbacks here as soon as trading began, especially as news of a big increase of supplies on ocean passage to Europe was emphasized by reports of inactive demand aboard. Furthermore, signs indicated that foreigners were selling wheat future deliveries here, and advices were received that Argentine new crop wheat, January-February shipment, was being offered in Germany seven cents a bushel cheaper than United States hard winter grades. Adding to the downward trend of the Chicago market were messages saying No. 1 Northern wheat was obtainable on the sample tables in Minneapolis at $1.25 a bushel, a price down to exact equality with the federal farm board loan basis.

Price rallies that took place toward the last in the Chicago wheat market today came about chiefly as a result of buying to collect profits for speculators who previously had been sellers. Shrinkage of the United States wheat visible supply figures today had apparently been discounted in advance, and was of but little effect as a market influence. Final estimates of export business in North American wheat today put the total at only 800,000 bushels, mostly Canadian.

Corn prices developed relative strength today, weather conditions over the corn belt being generally adverse for corn movement. There also were complaints that unseasonable warmth and excessive moisture is causing deterioration of corn still in the fields. Oats were responsive to wheat market weakness.

Provisions tended upward, owing chiefly to absence of any unusual pressure to sell.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—New financing operations dominated bond trading today and the market struggled through one of the dullest sessions in recent months. Prices tended to ease under the counter-attractions of issues either offered or pending.

The outstanding event of the day, of course, was the flotation of the American Telephone company's $150,000,000 loan in 36-year debenture 5s. It was reported unofficially that the subscription was nearly four times the principal amount, and the bonds promptly sold at a premium on a when issued basis, ranging between 100 5-8 and 100 7-8 against the offering price of 99 1-2.

Such a reception for the largest issue in several months had the effect of strengthening sentiment, although it was pointed out by some experts that part of the inquiry doubtless came from sources seeking an immediate profit in an otherwise sluggish market. Nevertheless, it was believed that the success of the loan would encourage other important offerings. One of the prospective issues, the Associated Gas & Electric company's $30,000,000 convertible 5 per cent issue, is to be marketed later in the week at a reported price of 90.

In general, quotations on listed bonds made only unimportant changes today. The highest grade rails and utilities were fairly firm, and such declines as appeared averaged less than a half a point. Industrials were softer. Only a few transactions in United States governments were recorded and prices scaled down, with a loss of slightly more than a quarter point in the Treasury 3 3-4s.

Miscellaneous issues closing at small net declines included Baltimore & Ohio Gold 4s, U. S. Rubber 5s, Southern Railway General 4s, St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s, Southwestern Bell Telephone 5s, Burlington 4 1-2s, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, May maturity, and a few others. The underlying firmness of the price structure was apparent, however, in high grade loans for which buying inquiry appeared, and a representative list made slight improvement.

Convertibles did little either way, keeping pace with the slow gait of the stock market. Foreign bonds were likewise stagnant. State and municipal Latin-Americans moved higher, but European government issues were dull, although firm.

Tomorrow's new offerings include a $8,853,000 issue of Province of New Brunswick 30-year 5s, priced at 99.75.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The curb market went through another listless session today in which prices were churned about within a narrow range. Final quotations showed a preponderance of net gains, due largely to a flurry of buying in the last hour of trading. The day's sales were only 643,900 shares, which was about the hourly average in the big markets which preceded and accompanied the October-November break in prices.

Electric Bond & Share, which is reported to be negotiating for other companies, closed a point higher at 83 3-8. Niagara Hudson Power, the president of which recently suggested a joint conference of state officials, public utility executives and interested citizens in the development of the St. Lawrence river power project, closed fractionally lower. American & Foreign Power warrants advanced 1 1-2 points and Standard Power & Light 1, while American Gas & Electric dropped 2 points and Cities Service yielded fractionally.

Indian Territory Oil dropped nearly 2 points but the other petroleum issues were quiet and generally unchanged. In the aviation group, Roosevelt Field, which sagged to a new low at $2 a share last week, rallied to 3-8, but most of the other issues in that group were sluggish. Ford of Canada B dropped 3 1-2 points on a few sales.

A. O. Smith, which sold as high as 260 last year, fell 10 1-4 points to a new low at 148 on selling inspired by reports of increasing competition among the oil pipe line manufacturers. Singer Manufacturing jumped 10 points on one sale. Shares of Driver Harris, manufacturers of special envoys, advanced 2 1-2 points and United Porto Rican Sugar 2. Mock Judson and National Candy each lost more than 4 points.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Fred Sargent, president of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, believes that the company's December statement will show a decrease of about $500,000 in gross revenues from the figure for December, 1928. He estimated that the 1929 earnings will approximate $9 a share on the common stock.

Total sales of the Frigidaire Corp., subsidiary of General Motors, for 1929 exceeded those of 1928 by 25 per cent., E. G. Biechler, president, said today.

The Paramount-Famous-Lasky Corp. is reported to be entering upon a production schedule which will surpass all previous records. The 1930 schedule calls for the filming of about 65 feature pictures and 52 short subjects, and the expenditure of about $19,000,000, increase of about $1,700,000 over 1929.

Copper buying continues on a hand-to-mouth basis, trade reports indicate buying is not expected to be resumed on a major scale until after the January statistics have been published. Producers are said to be confident that the prevailing price of 18 cents a pound for the metal will be maintained.

The International Shoe Company's production and shipments are understood to be well ahead of a year ago, although the output at present is not up to the peak of several months ago when 200,000 pairs were being manufactured daily. Current production was placed at about 192,000 pairs daily.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Cotton futures closed steady, 3 to 8 points higher. Spot steady; middling 17.65.

Kansas expects to spend approximately $20,500,000 in road improvements in 1930.

THREE NEW DWELLING HOUSES TO BE ERECTED IN CITY THIS MONTH

Building activities in Norwich took on a new lease during the second week in the new year and rapid progress has been made. A number of new projects have been started and much progress has been made on work now in hand.

At the office of Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft there were seven building permits granted during the past week for new work that entails an expenditure of nearly $15,000. Included in the permits were three for new dwelling houses, two of them to be erected on Fanning avenue and the other on Boswell avenue. The two Fanning avenue houses are of the cottage house type while the Boswell avenue building is to be a two-family house. There were permits for two new garages and the other two permits were for alterations to brick structures in the city.

Work started this week on the new gymnasium building at the Norwich Free Academy, the contract for the work having been awarded to W. S. Spencer last week. Part of the excavation work has already been completed and Mr. Spencer expects to rush the work along as fast as possible so that the building will be ready for occupancy about the first of August.

At the Norwich Inn work is steadily going ahead with the prospect that the inn will be ready for occupation during the early summer if not before. The slate roof has been put on and the heating system installed in the building. The workmen are now engaged in putting on the lath for the building and the plasterers will follow the lathers within a short time.

On the McKinley avenue extension a large amount of work is being accomplished, two new houses having been completed within the past month. Two other new dwellings are now being erected, both having reached the point where only the interior finish work is necessary to the completion of the houses.

The mild weather of the past few weeks has aided the contractors greatly in their work and if the mild weather continues building operations will be far ahead of the usual winter schedule.

The following building permits were granted at the office of Fire Marshal Taft during the past week:

To Frank Broneiko to build a two-family house on Boswell avenue. The house will be 26x30 feet and of frame construction two stories in height with concrete foundation. Each tenement will have six rooms and bath. The exterior will be finished in shingles and clapboards, the first story being in clapboards and the second story and gables in stained shingles. The interior will be finished in hard-finish plaster with Arkansas pine trim. The floors will be of oak. The plumbing will be of brass and the house will be heated by steam. The estimated cost is $4,500.

To Gustave Lambert Jr. to build a one-car garage, 12x20 feet on Fanning avenue. The garage will have a cement foundation and floor and the exterior will be finished in novelty siding and the roof will be covered with fireproof shingles. The estimated cost is $200.

To Herbert Richard to build a one-car garage, 12x20 feet in the rear of their home on Fanning avenue. The garage will have a concrete foundation and floor. The estimated cost is $200.

To Gustave Lambert Jr. to build a cottage house on his land on Fanning avenue. The cottage will have six rooms and bath and will be finished in hardwood and hard-finish plaster. The exterior will be in clapboards with fireproof shingles on the roof. The house will be 24x26 feet with a veranda across the front. The estimated cost is $3,000.

To Gustave Lambert Jr. to build another house of the same description as the one above on another lot on Fanning avenue. The cottage will be from the same plans and will cost approximately $3,000.

To Contractor P. F. Sweeney to make alterations to the building on Main street owned by A. Agranovitch. The wooden posts and girders on the second floor will be removed and steel ones substituted. A new floor will also be laid. The estimated cost is $1,500.

To Gustave Lachenbach to build a new boiler room to replace the old one at his place of business at 84 West Main street. A new chimney will also be erected. The construction will be of brick and iron. The estimated cost is $600.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were six sales of real estate as compared to five sales for the corresponding week in 1929. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $148,325 and $23,650.

There was a single real estate sale in New London during the past week a decrease of nine sales from the number made during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $16,015 and $33,910.

REAL ESTATE

Although real estate activity in Connecticut has increased since January 1 it is still somewhat below the level for the corresponding period in 1929. As shown by the totals of warranty deeds in the state's principal business centers, sales and mortgage loans for the past week were below the totals for last year. The week's record of 232 warranty deeds filed for record in the cities and towns reported by The Comercial Record compares with 371 for the like week a year ago. Mortgage loans this past week amounted to $1,882,335 against $3,255,343 in 1929.

BUILDING PERMITS

The record of building permits issued during the past week in the leading Connecticut building centers shows fewer new building projects than for 1929 during the corresponding period. There is also a notable decrease in the week's total of estimated construction expenditures. This, however, can hardly be accepted as indicative of the probable trend for the opening months of the year in view of the fact that it is too early to arrive at definite conclusions in this direction. On the contrary it is a common belief that with mortgage funds likely to be abundantly available there will soon be undertaken a considerable amount of work formerly held up on account of financing difficulties.

NEW LONDON

Consistent with expectations there was a decided decrease in the number and value of private garages built in 1929 as compared with those of 1928. For the past year the annual report of Building Inspector William Gunn, Jr., shows that there were 143 garages erected at a cost of $75,410. For the previous year there were 179 garages built at a cost of $105,165, resulting in a decrease of 36 garages and $29,755 in money.

The most remarkable explanation for this decrease is that the building of private garages in connection with houses which have been built for some time has been carried on so extensively during the past ten years that there are few homes left in which garages are desired and can be built.

Accordingly, it is the general opinion of local contractors that the number of private garages built in future years will be only slightly higher than the number of new houses built. The past year there were 107 new houses built, most of which had garages attached or on the grounds.

Work has been completed on the construction of a cottage built for Ada Levine at Jefferson avenue and Pleasant street. The exterior of the new dwelling is finished with gray stained shingles and the roof is finished with red colored composition material. An enclosed vestibule in the front enhances the general facade appearance and a tendency toward the English style of house gives the dwelling a touch of distinction. The foundation is of concrete. The interior contains six rooms and bath and private plans provided for all improvements and conveniences including steam heat, brass piping, hard wood floors and built in fixtures.

BUILDING PERMITS

Elery Thompson, garage, Grove street, $500.

Mrs. A. H. Frink, frame addition, 29 Cottage street, $1,500.

C. Green garage addition, 335 Ocean avenue, $150.

Number of permits for the week, 3; estimated cost of buildings, $2,150

GROTON

The work of sheathing up the interior of a former garage in the water and light building in Groton now being converted into the main office of the Groton police department, is well underway. The alterations will provide for the department office being clearly visible from Thames street, and also will enable officers on duty there to have a commanding view of the highway. There is a main entrance door opening on the street and two windows fronting on the highway. The department office at present is in the rear of the building, and is inadequate.

Recent favorable weather has speeded work on the construction of the new garage building in Bridge street, Groton, for the Crossley Chevrolet Co., Inc., which will commence business there as soon as the building is completed. The company will be the Chevrolet agency in Groton and will operate a gasoline station and repair station. The building is to be two stories high in the rear and one story high fronting on the street. The station will be on the lower floor and the entrance doors will be in the rear. They will be connected with the main highway by a driveway. The second floor of the building, to be entered from Bridge street, will be the company's show room.

Considerable improvement has been made to the old Rodensky building in Thames street, Groton. The place, which formerly was a barnlike structure has been remodeled to provide two stores by means of an addition and alteration of an old store, which formerly occupied the entire main floor. The building has been shingled all over. There is a tenement on the second floor of the building.

Work is nearly completed on the addition to the brick building in Thames street, Groton, in the borough center, owned by Arthur A. Greenleaf of Groton and Nathan Belcher of this city. The addition is for expansion of the store of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company, which occupies the main floor and the basement of the building. The addition provides more basement room and extension of the main store.

WESTERLY

Since the first of the 1930 year Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills and Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi have issued the following building and zoning permits:

Jan. 8. Israel H. Chapman, Misquamicut. Move a presently located building at Misquamicut and build a one-story addition to same, 8 feet by 20 feet.

Jan. 8. George L. Madison, Weekapaug road. Construct three summer camps, 10 feet by 14 feet, off Weekapaug road.

Jan 9. Thompson Corners Community club, Watch Hill road. Cut in door on side for exit, replacing window.

Jan. 10. Dr. E. P. Duffy, Breen road, Watch Hill. Build addition, 6 feet by 20 feet to garage. Make new front entrance.

Jan. 10. Mrs Mary Graf, Martin House, Canal street. Install new store front in Martin House block at 34 Canal street, of plate glass, metal and cement.

Jan. 11. Samuel H. Davis, Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut. Enclose porch of house on Atlantic avenue, Misquamicut, with glass.

FINANCIERS INSIST ON BETTER CONSTRUCTION

Significant in the home construction field is the growing tendency of late on the part of those agencies which finance home building operations to insist upon not only a better type of house but as well one of permanent construction. It isn't so easy as it used to be for the jerry builder to finance his operations. He is being cramped by the financier's insistence not only upon good houses but houses that will resist the ravages of time and the elements with the least degree of depreciation.

In some instances this has advanced to the point where brick construction is virtually demanded. Generally speaking the trend with most of the more important agencies is increasing toward more permanent construction. More brick homes are being built today than in a number of years, and in many instances realtors are restricting their developments to homes of this type. There is reason for this, beyond the financiers' insistence.

With materials at their present prices and labor costing in most localities almost if not quite as much as the materials that go into the home, it behooves the man who builds or buys to make a good investment. One upon which he can cash in readily if occasion arises where he is compelled to sell. And the resale value of the brick house is always highest. Besides there is the every year saving on insurance premiums, fuel bills and maintenance costs.

New types of brickwork is causing a wide revival of interest in the common brick home. And economy is aiding in this as well, for the common brick house today can be built in most cities at not to exceed 5 or 6 per cent more than its cheapest competitors. And in durability there is small comparison.

LIMESTONE FELT USED AS WALL INSULATION

A few weeks ago an article appeared in these columns describing a limestone felt which had proved unusually effective as insulation for heating plans and steam, hot water and hot air pipes. It appears now that this same material, in slightly different form although exactly the same material, is used as wall, ceiling and roof insulation.

The felt was prepared in long, spongy strips when used for boiler or heater insulation as well as for pipe covering, but when used for wall and ceiling insulation it is prepared in a light, woolly fibrous form which proves easy to handle and as simple to apply between walls or between floors. Like the strip felt, it is composed of limestone, fused by extreme heat, then forced through tiny orifices in a cold room as a result of which it forms into tiny glass tubes, each containing an infinitely small amount of dead air. The addition of tens of thousands of these microscopically small tubes into a single mass is what forms the insulation, for it is this dead air, in countless hermetically sealed dead air spaces, which does the trick.

In the case of wall and floor insulation, however, the material is not mated under water pressure, but is left in a woolly form because it is far more flexible to handle that way. When "poured" between lathing and outside walls of frame houses the lathing is put on to within a foot or so of the ceiling after which the limestone felt is poured in until the space is completely filled. Then it is packed in to ceiling level and the top lathing added.

In the case of floor insulation the method is equally simple. The floor boards are left off and the entire space between the floor timbers is filled to an exact level. After that is done the floor boards may be nailed in place and no further attention needs to be given it.

No water ever is necessary in applying the insulating material and being a mineral product it never rots, decays, or absorbs moisture. This also means that there is no odor from it. It also is vermin and rat-proof and never settles.

Where this type of felt has been used it has been noted that it insulates homes against heat and cold and in addition makes floors and walls quite thoroughly sound-proof—a definite advantage in its own right.

The University of Texas has established extension courses in six cities of the state.

HOME OF W. IRVING DRAKE ON NEWTON ST.

The above is a photograph of the new home of W. Irving Drake on Newton street built by Contractor Homer J. Monty of Grant Court, who has been responsible for the development of that section of the city. The house is very attractive in design and finish and is exceptionally well planned. There are six rooms and bath with a built-in garage in the basement.

The exterior of the house is finished in clapboards for the first story and the second story is in brown stained shingles. Composition shingles are used on the roof. A large veranda extends across the front and there is a smaller porch in the rear. The windows are of the six over one design. The interior is very attractive with a large reception hall, living room and dining room. French doors separate the hall from the living room. The kitchen is large and conveniently equipped with various built-in features. The bedrooms on the second floor are also large, sunny and airy. The bath is equipped with built-in tub and shower bath and is in white porcelain, and tiled.

The finish on the interior is in hard-finish plaster and hardwood trim with all oak floors throughout.

The house is heated by steam and the plumbing is of brass.

DRIPPING EAVES DUE TO MANY CAUSES

Many a home owner has wondered irritably just why it is impossible to keep the front steps from being glazed over with a coating of ice in cold weather. If the roof of his veranda or porch sloped forward the answer is simple, but the remedy is not quite so simply. It means, of course, that the accumulation of ice in the eave trough has reached the point where it is impossible for water from melted snow or ice to run off and naturally is drips over the edge and down upon the steps, where lowering temperature at night turns it to ice.

The ideal arrangement, according to builders is to have a small gable above the steps, which causes the drip from melting snow and ice to flow to either side. Gables of this type have perplexed others, who, not knowing their purpose, have figured them to a waste of money and so much unnecessary ornamentation.

But frozen eaves troughs are not the only cause for wet or icy steps. Only too frequently are faulty or poorly installed eave troughs responsible. One local home owner went so far as to have a new eaves trough installed a year or two ago, then was thoroughly disgusted to find that it slopped water over his steps just as generously as before. He was inclined to be profane about it until a discerning friend discovered that he had installed it in exactly the same position as the old one. A level showed that it had been installed originally with no regard for pitch and that even the sag in the center—which came directly above the steps—had not been overcome. A competent carpenter corrected the trouble in half a day and there has been no further drip, even in those periods of alternate thawing and freezing which have the disconcerting habit of filling troughs with ice and leaving no space for water to run off.

The writer discovered yet another cause for dripping water from eaves troughs last spring. The trough, on examination, proved to be free of debris, but the wooden conductor was found jammed tight with leaves, dirt and some pitchy material which had been washed off the strip shingle roof. After clearing the conductor a wire with a cloth swab at one end was kept constantly handy to give the conductor an occasional swabbing out. The amount of debris brought down after each storm proved surprising.

PREPARING ALPINE PLANTS

While the season for fall planting has all but passed, late fall is exactly the right time to sow the seeds of alpine plants in cold frames, where they lie dormant during the winter and germinate in the early spring. The soil should be a mixture of loam, peat-moss and sand.

CHANGE WATER IN BOILER OCCASIONALLY

Now that the boiler has been pounding away for three months or so, maybe it would be wise to take stock and determine if the water needs to be changed. Likewise, in case a new boiler operated for the first time during the recent fall, it would be equally to the point to find if a film of oil still covers the surface of the water. Such a film does more to cause dissatisfaction with the performance of new boilers than anything else. Draining out the water does no particular good, for the film adheres to the sides of the tubes and seldom runs out. The most effective way is to open one of the plugs at the top of the boiler, when the fire is low. Then, by running in sufficient water to cause it to overflow the film flows out, leaving the water clear. As for a change of water, this can be done by drawing off two or three pails, also when the fire is low, after which fresh water can be run in until the water shows in the gage again. Even with a low fire, however, it is wise to allow the fresh water to run in slowly.

JUMPING THE FIELD

It might be wise for those who plan ambitious garden programs for next spring to make sure that the stock they need will be available when they need it. One never should forget that with the arrival of spring countless thousands of home owners will be thinking of their gardens simultaneous, and that means a rush on the nurserymen. Nursery stock ordered now will be reserved to be delivered at a customer's convenience. Why not be a bit forehanded and have the laugh on the folks who do their garden shopping, as well as their Christmas shopping, at the last possible moment?

ADVOCATING ARBITRATION IN COMMERCIAL DISPUTES

Horace B. Cheney, vice president of Cheney Bros., and chairman of the commercial arbitration committee of the Connecticut chamber of commerce is sending a communication to the members of that organization along with a copy of a new manual on commercial arbitration in Connecticut which has been prepared by his committee. He advocates the arbitration method for settling commercial disputes.

The manual outlines the system by which parties to commercial disputes may avail themselves of the benefits of the 1929 Connecticut arbitration act. It suggests the use in contracts of what is known as the "standard arbitration clause." Copy of the clause, information on its use in contracts, and the method of procedure under its terms is contained in the manual. This clause, adopted by the state chamber and the American Arbitration association contains the essential legal requirements under the Connecticut law to make it valid, irrevocable and enforceable. Copies of the manual can be obtained, free of charge, from the Connecticut chamber of commerce at Hartford.

Under the standard rules of procedure, parties to a commercial controversy may apply to the state chamber for assistance in making a submission of a controversy, selection of arbitrators and arrangements for a hearing. The cost is nominal, ranging from $1f, when the claim involves less than $1,000, to $100, when the amount involved is $10,000 or more.

There are available in 44 cities and towns throughout the state, 150 men diversified in their callings who have accepted and who are willing to give their services in the interest of speedy, expert and economic settlement of commercial differences.

$1,800 YEAR INCOME PENALTY FOR SULTAN

DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika Territory, Jan. 13—(AP)—Can a sultan do wrong?

A white man's court says he can; but apparently it went too far when it presumed to punish him, for its sentence has been revoked by a higher court.

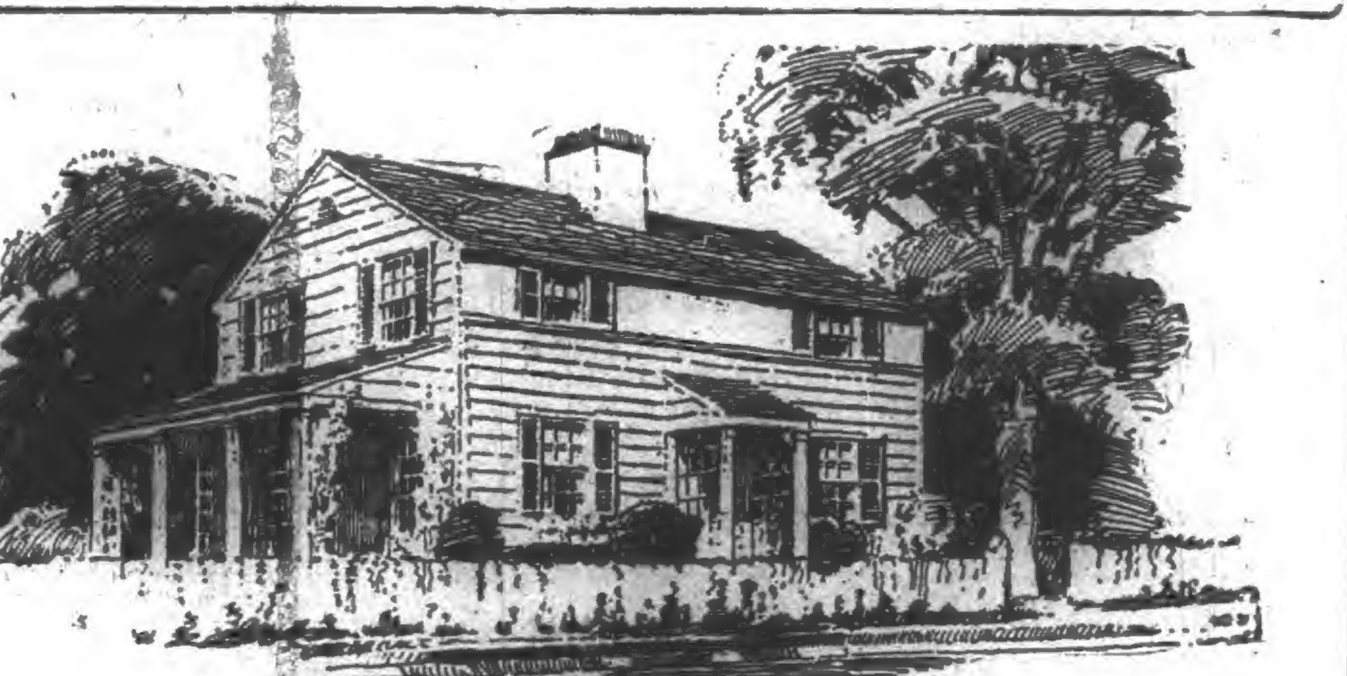
The defendant was the Sultan Saidi Fundikira, formerly paramount chief of Tabora province. He was tried last May by the high court on a charge of embezzling public funds, and the court sentenced him to two years' imprisonment as casually as if he were the defaulting cashier of a white man's bank.

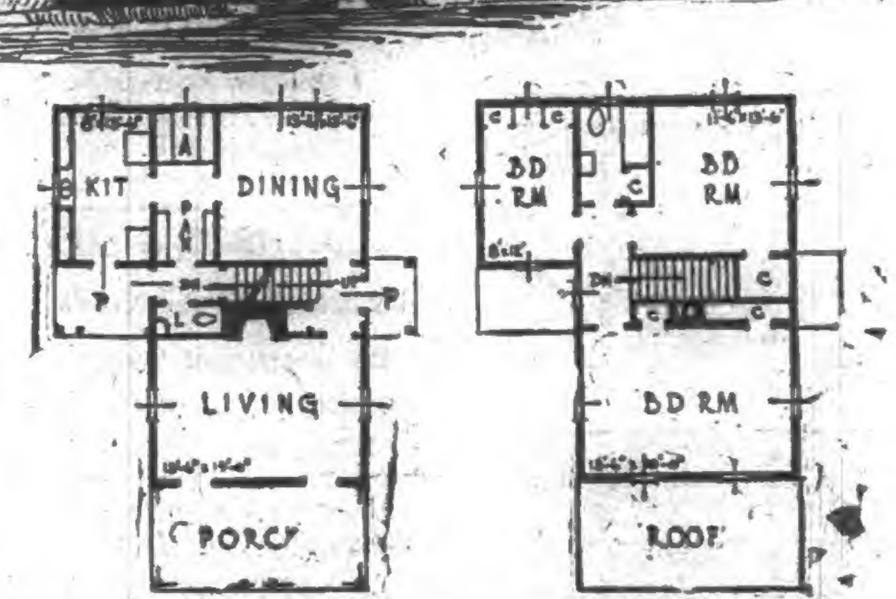
But the supreme court of East Africa has revoked the sentence, and instead of going to prison the sultan will go into a sort of political exile at Bagamoyo, north of here, on a pension of $1,800 a year.

The pension in itself is a kind of punishment, for until they found him out the sultan was overlord of 100,000 natives and for a while had an income of $50,000 a year from tribal tribute and forced labor.

This subsequently was reduced to an annual salary of $8,500, or considerably more than he will have to struggle along on in exile.

HOME FITS LONG, SHORT, WIDE OR THIN PLOT





Either a wide, short lot or a narrow, deep plot will be suitable for this six-room home and its length, characteristic of the early Jersey colonial type, adds to the beauty of lines.

In a wide tract, the entrance would be placed toward the street. A lot as small as 30 feet could be utilized by placing the porch at the left toward the outside.

The kitchen and bedroom above it, need not be built with the original structure, as the ample pantry space could be used for kitchen purposes if a smaller home were desired. The addition could be made economically later.

Exceptionally large bedrooms, with two in the complete plan open to ventilation on three sides, are desirable features. Six closets are provided on the second floor.

A dining alcove or breakfast nook is incorporated in the first floor plan opposite the large pantry. A convenient wash-room is included in the ground floor, also.

Construction costs in relation to cubage are extremely economical in a house of this type. In the largest metropolitan centers, maximum estimates range from $12,000 to $14,000 and proportionately in other centers, where wages are considerably lower Clapboards or shingles are recommended with flush siding on second story. White wood-work and green blinds are suggested as essentials for an attractive color scheme.

C. A. REYNOLDS NAMED CHIEF OF WILLIMANTIC FIRE DEPT.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13.—Charles A. Reynolds, a veteran member of the permanent fire department, was appointed fire chief at the January meeting of the common council held tonight. The office includes the positions of chief engineer, fire marshal, inspector of buildings and superintendent of fire alarms. Chief Reynolds, who succeeds to the late Fire Chief Wade U. Webster, has held the position of lieutenant of this department for several years and during two vacancy periods served as acting assistant to the chief. The successor to the office which his promotion vacates and the appointment of an additional regular member of the department has been referred to a later meeting.

Other appointments for the ensuing year made tonight were of present incumbents. As named by Mayor Walter R. King and approved by the council, the appointments were: Corporation counsel, William A. King; inspector of plumbing, Theodore Marrott; superintendent of streets, Edwin O. Sumner; superintendent of sewers, Edwin O. Sumner; superintendent of water works, Henderson F. Moulton; superintendent of pumping station, Willard N. Bowen.

Among resolutions introduced tonight was one by Alderman William E. Webbe for continuing the construction of permanent road on lower Main street to a point meeting the proposed new state highway. It was explained by Acting City Engineer John F. Collins that the annual appropriation of $10,000 for this type of work probably would not complete the construction in mind. On motion of Alderman John P. Carlson, the resolution was tabled until the next meeting.

A petition of the West End club for the use of Memorial park by the All-Star baseball team was referred to the park committee. Three petitions on various claims were referred to the claims committee, as was also a bill from the town of Windham for $45, representing one-half the cost of bringing the Storrs Cadets here to parade on Armistice day. A resolution of the water committee ordered the water shut off where back rents were due for a period of one year or over. The records of City Clerk Arthur L. Clark showed that there are about 140 water rent delinquents representing about $6,000. On motion of Chairman Eugene B. Lewis of the police committee, no action was taken on a resolution to paint the name of the city on the police car, which is of pleasure make.

A resolution adopted extended sympathies to C. A. Lamoureux on the death of his brother, Ferdinand Lamoureux at Ware, Mass. Upon recommendation of Mayor King, William V. Palmer, Sr., was appointed inspector of sidewalks for the ensuing year.

Prior to making the appointments Mayor King read his annual message to the council. Among timely recommendations made by the mayor were the following:

Improvement of sanitary conditions, especially in the vicinity of restaurants.

Inspection of main supply pipes of the water system from Mansfield to the city reservoir.

Repairs to pumping residence and ice-houses at Mansfield.

Construction of comfort stations.

Installation of suitable stop signs and traffic lines at intersections.

Installation of street lights where necessary.

Proceeding as soon as possible with preparation of Soldiers' Memorial park.

Continuing sidewalk construction and maintenance of streets.

Immediate construction of sewers to serve the northeast portion of city including Upper North, Church, Jackson, Ash and other streets of the district.

Furthering plans for an adequate sewage disposal plant.

Mayor King pronounced the city's 46 miles of streets as good as any in the state. In conclusion he asked for the cooperation of the new administration in giving the public the most possible returns for each dollar expended in public work.

The meeting adjourned until next Monday night, at which time it is probable that action will be taken on the appointment of a city engineer and on the filling of vacancies in the fire department.

ORDER OF DE MOLAY OFFICERS INSTALLED MONDAY EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 13.—Westerly chapter, Order of De Molay, A. Hustwit, master councilor, "Dad" Carl W. Anderson of Watch Hill, held its fourth regular election and installation of some 20 new officers at Masonic hall, Monday night. The chapter is sponsored by Palmer chapter No. 28, Royal Arch Masons, of Pawcatuck, and was instituted March 2, 1929.

The installing officer was W. A. Arnold, Rhode Island state master councilor, and a member of Woonsocket chapter, Order of De Molay of Woonsocket, R. I., with suite of five. He was assisted by Marshal V. Hall, Chaplain C. H. Arnold and Standard Bearer C. W. Walter.

A. Hustwit was elected and installed master councilor.

Other officers, elective and appointive, installed at public ceremonies at 8 o'clock were: Senior councilor, W. Morey; junior councilor, E. Botelle; scribe, W. Lawson, for majority member, F. Wallace; treasurer, P. Payne; senior deacon, W. Eagan; junior deacon, R. Bonner; senior steward, D. Rae; junior steward, J. Itchkawich; orator, J. Edmond; chaplain, S. Stewart; almoner, B. Stenhouse; marshal, M. Thorp; standard bearer, A. Platt; sentinel, J. Doney; organist, E. Peckham.

Judge Oliver H. Williams was a business caller in Providence Monday.

COMMISSION'S VIEWS DRY LAW ENFORCEMENT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)— Reserving judgment on its ultimate prohibition conclusions, the law enforcement commission—in a preliminary report sent to congress today—recommended that the national prohibition law be immediately strengthened in the interest of promoting observance of and respect for all law.

"If on no other grounds than to give the law a fair trial," the commission said, "there are obvious and uncontroverted difficulties, pointed out by experience, which may, and, as we think, should be met so as to make enforcement more effective."

These difficulties were declared by the Hoover commission to be:

Division of enforcement between the treasury and justice departments.

Disordered condition of federal legislation involved in enforcement.

Possibilities of defeating padlock injunctions by means of concealing ownership of property used for manufacture and sale of illicit liquor.

Congestion of petty prosecutions in the federal courts leading to wholesale disposition of accumulated cases under circumstances impairing the dignity of and injuring respect for those tribunals.

"Without prejudice to any ultimate conclusions," the report said, "we think that in the interest of promoting observance of and respect for law, the national prohibition law may well be strengthened and its effectiveness increased in these important particulars."

As to observance, the commission declared that "it is wholly impossible to set off observance of the prohibition act from the large question of the views and habits of the American people with respect to private judgment as to statutes and regulations affecting their conduct."

"We must not forget the many historical examples of large-scale public disregard of laws in our past," the report said, adding that "we must bear in mind the puritan's objection to administration, the whig tradition of a 'right of revolution,' the conception of natural rights, classical in our policy, the democratic tradition of individual participation in sovereignty."

Asserting that as to enforcement there were no reliable figures to show the size of the problem, the commission said the reported arrests in the last fiscal year of upwards of eighty thousand persons from every part of continental United States "indicates a staggering number of what might be called focal points of infection."

Attention was directed that there also were 18,700 miles of boundary and shore lines for the United States "at every point of which infection is possible."

The number of smuggling roads from Canada is reported as at least 1,000, it was added.

"To deal with an enforcement problem of this size and spread," the report continued, "the federal government can draw only on a portion of the personnel of three federal services, whose staffs aggregate about 23,000.

"Approximately one-tenth of this number is in the investigative section of the prohibition unit. Of the remaining 20,000, only a small proportion of the personnel is available for actual preventive and investigative work. The remainder is engaged in work far different from prohibition.

"These figures speak for themselves.

"To adjust the machinery of federal administration, as it has grown up for other purposes, to this huge problem of enforcement of prohibition is not easy, and will require much further study. Unification, centralization of responsibility, and means of ensuring cooperation between federal and state agencies, are things to which we must come, quite apart from the exigencies of enforcement of prohibition, but which can not be achieved overnight."

Replying to those who have assailed it for a failure to hold public hearings on the prohibition question, the commission reported to President Hoover that it conceived it "to be more useful to make a careful study of the whole question, securing information from the responsible officers of government and from printed reports, as well as from hearings before committees of congress, before embarking upon public hearings."

Summing up its four recommendations for legislative enactments, the commission said:

"We think they could not in any wise interfere with any ultimate program which we may have to recommend, and would in the meantime advance observance of the law."

The commission dealt with each of its recommendations separately and with some of them at considerable length. In urging transfer of the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department, the report said it was an anomaly that the cases are investigated and prepared by agencies entirely disconnected with and not answerable to those who are to prosecute them.

"If prosecution, the legal side of enforcement, is partitioned between two district agencies," the report said, "the diffused, ill-defined, non-located responsibility is sure in the long run to be an obstacle to efficiency."

The commission reported that there must be a careful study of how to separate the work which belongs in the treasury of granting permits and administration of regulations as to the legitimate use of alcohol or liquors.

Pointing out that there are 25 statutes, many enacted before the eighteenth amendment, to which there is recourse in prohibition enforcement, the commission asserted they were in form disconnected, unwieldy, and in much need of co-ordination and adjustment to each other. Consequently it recommended that these statutes be "revised and digested," with a view to making them a unified whole in the form of a simple, better-ordered and hence more workable code.

On the question of padlock injunctions, it was stated that the use of injunction proceedings as a means of enforcing prohibition was so important that the section of the Volstead act dealing with this subject should be so amended as to enable the courts to reach unknown claimants of property, non-residents and residents who conceal themselves to evade service of process.

"It contains nothing which is not already done in the state generally when private claims to property are concerned," the commission added.

Congestion in the federal courts causing long delays in prosecution and "bargain days" for accused were declared by the report to have done much to create a feeling in some localities that the law cannot be enforced.

"If it is possible to deal with the matter adequately with the existing machinery of the federal system, it should be done," the report went on. "We think such a solution entirely possible and in the right line of progress."

Pointing out that the Jones law has expressly recognized a class of "casual or slight violations," the commission said a statute authorizing the district attorney in such cases to prosecute by complaint or information would obviate the long delay, unnecessary expense, and needless keeping in session of grand juries which are demanded by the present state of the law. In such cases, when so prosecuted, the penalty suggested would be a fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment in jail without hard labor not to exceed six months, or both.

"We think also that it would be expedient for congress to define the term 'casual or slight violations,'" the commission said. "Speedy convictions and certain impositions of penalties are important considerations and are more likely to be efficacious than threats of severe punishment rendered nugatory by congested dockets overpassing any possibilities of trial in the manner constitutionally appointed for crimes of such magnitude."

Suggestion also was made that petty cases be heard before a United State commissioner and a report made to the courts which would pass judgment on the case. There would be a safeguard that the accused if found guilty by a commissioner could demand trial by jury within three days.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Back in the Cornerib

I pray you take a trifle spurn;
On such your future life may turn.
—Farmer Brown's Boy

Chatterer the Red Squirrel poked his head out of his doorway very early. Indeed, the Black Shadows had hardly begun to leave the Green Forest. It was too early for a little fellow like Chatterer to be abroad. Hooty the Owl had not stopped hunting yet and it would not be daylight for some time. Chatterer ground his teeth with impatience. He knew it wasn't safe to go out yet, but it seemed to him that he couldn't, he just couldn't wait much longer.

He did wait, however. Chatterer is too wise to take such an unnecessary chance as to expose himself to attack from Hooty the Owl. He knew the wise thing to do was to wait until it was reasonably certain that Hooty had retired for the day. So he did wait, but he didn't wait one minute longer than seemed necessary. From the Green Forest to the old stone wall alone, one side of the Old Orchard and from the end of that across Farmer Brown's dooryard, Chatterer scampered. Straight to the tree that grew near the corncrib Chatterer ran. Up the tree he climbed and straight to the broken branch that hung down over the corncrib. There he paused long enough to make sure that that branch hadn't broken away any farther. Then slowly and carefully he climbed down until he was clinging to the very tip. Some five feet below him was the roof of the corncrib.

For a few moments Chatterer runs there, trying to make up his mind to let go and drop. It seemed like a long drop for such a little fellow. He wasn't quite sure whether he dared let go or not. But finally he made up his mind that nothing ventured nothing have, so he let go. He spread his legs out and flattened himself as much as possible and then he landed with a little thump on the roof. Chatterer drew a long breath. It hadn't been as bad as he thought it would be.

"I wouldn't mind doing it over again this very minute," said Chatterer, his eyes sparkling with excitement. "It's nothing at all. Now for a breakfast of corn! My, but that was a lucky wind that broke that branch! It was lucky for me anyway. Now, if I am careful, I can come over here as often as I like and no one will be the wiser. I do hope the wind and the ice will not break that limb wholly off."

Two minutes later Chatterer was inside the corncrib and feeling very much at home there. Whenever he thought of Farmer Brown's Boy he chuckled. Yes, sir, he chuckled. It seemed to Chatterer that he was very smart indeed. You know, most of us like to think we are smart. He wondered what Farmer Brown's Boy would do about it when he discovered that some one was taking that corn.

"I won't let him see me," thought Chatterer. "The thing now is to keep him from knowing who it is. So I'll just keep out of sight. If he doesn't know I'm here, I can come as often as I please all winter long."

So when later that morning Farmer Brown's Boy came to get the corn for the hens, Chatterer was nowhere to be seen and he took the greatest care not to make the least little sound. He was just that way for several mornings. Then he grew careless. He left a bare corncob. It seemed such a little thing that it couldn't matter. But sometimes the little things are the things that matter most. It was that corncob that first aroused the suspicions of Farmer Brown's Boy.

ILLER WITH AN 82 FOR THIRD ROUND IS FAR DOWN THE LIST

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, Los ngeles, Jan. 13—(AP)—While the gal ry followed in the footsteps of the fing elite today, Denny Shute, ung and little known pro from Col bus, O., stroked his way over Riv a's picturesque course to retain an portant if not impressive lead at the d of the third round of the 72 hole 0,000 Los Angeles open champion ip.

After two years in the professional anks, Shute and his total of 222 show d the way to the greatest figures in e game. Possessing neither flash nor ash, the slender Ohioan went around e par 71 layout in 75. His previous ounds were 73-74. Today he was out n 37 and in in 38, each nine being two ver par.

Three strokes behind Shute follow d two of the tournament's favorites, orton Smith of Joplin, Mo., and obby Cruickshank of New York. ruickshank came in with 74 and mith took 76 to reach the 225 stroke ation.

Within striking distance for top oney were Tommy Armour, Detroit; l Espinosa, Chicago, and Chet Beer, f Bakersfield, Calif., all in the 227 ass.

The rest of the field was scattered rom 228 strokes well into the 240's. he end of the third round saw five otables of the game practically out of he running so far as first money went. eo Diegel of Agua Caliente, Mexico, . G. A. champion, marked time with total of 228 while MacDonald Smith f Long Island, N. Y., winner of the itle for the last two years had a 230 o show for his efforts.

First place money was out of reach f Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., first os Angeles open titleholder; Johnny arrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., former ational open champion and Bill Mehl orn of New York, another veteran. ooper chalked up a three round total f 232; Farrell had 233 and Mehlhorn 241.

Poor first or second rounds due to xceptionally bad weather Friday and unday spelled their doom.

Despite fair weather today and a airly dry course to shoot over, only ne entrant was able to equal par. Honors went to MacDonald Smith who went out in 38 but stroked his way to a brilliant 33, three under par on the ncoming stretch. It was the second ime that par had been equalled or bettered during the present tourney. In the first round Johnny Rogers of Denver conquered driving rain and strong winds to come home with a 70.

Except for MacDonald Smith's low score and sub-par nine, the round was without thrills for the gallery of several hundred persons.

Tomorrow's final 18, however, is expected to bring out a golfing race with Shute seeking to maintain his slim lead against the challenges of Horton Smith and Cruickshank. Armour, Al Espinosa and Chet Beer also have a slight chance to come ahead for top money of $3,500.

The only two amateurs in the field, Fay Coleman of Culver City, Calif., and George Von Elm of Detroit were far down the line. Coleman had a total of 236 and Von Elm, former national champion, was tied for last place with 244.

The leaders follow:

Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio, 73-74-75—222.

Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 73-76-76—225.

Bobby Cruickshank, New York, 74-77-74—225.

Tommy Armour, Detroit, 74-77-76—227.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, 72-79-76—227.

Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Cal., 78-74-75—227.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mex, 73-80-75—228.

John Rogers, Denver, 70-82-77—229.

Frank Walsh, Chicago, 76-77-77—230.

Tom Kerrigan, New York, 79-75-76—230.

Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, 75-78-77—230.

MacDonald Smith, Long Island, N. Y., 78-81-71—230.

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Cal., 76-77-78—231.

Billy Burke, New York, 74-80-77—231.

Harry Cooper, Buffalo, N. Y., 81-77-74—232.

Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., 75-81-76—232.

Clarence Clark, Tulsa, Okla., 80-78-74—232.

Tom Racklets, Youngstown, Ohio, 77-78-77—232.

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del. 79-80-73—232.

Tony Manero, New York, 80-79-74—233.

Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., 76-81-76—233.

Arthur Bell, Honolulu, 75-79-79—233.

Bonnie Rouse, Chicago, 77-82-74—233.

Messie B. Miller, Norwich's representative in the Los Angeles $10,000 open golf tournament, found himself far down the list at the end of the 54 holes of play by virtue of an 82 which he shot Monday. Miller for first three rounds has 74-83-82—239. The tournament is being played under the most adverse of weather conditions, especially the first two rounds, when the players were forced to combat strong winds and a driving rain. The play Monday was under more favorable conditions but the fairways and greens were still soggy.

Miller at the end of the first round was in seventh place but his 83 on the second day dropped him to 27th place and the 82 yesterday leaves him still more than halfway down the list. A low score today in the final 18 holes may put him within the money. Following the Los Angeles tourney will come the Agua Caliente $25,000, in which he is entered. He will not have to qualify for this tournament as his standing in the National open admits him.

PLAINFIELD HAS TOUGH TEAM TO FACE ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

The Plainfield Pros are to be up against a tough proposition on Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house when they tackle the Long Island Pros, claimants of the world's professional basketball title. The Long Island team is one of the fastest clubs in America and they base their claim to the world's title by virtue of their two wins and tie game with the Celtics last year. They have lost only one game this season and that to the Brooklyn Visitations, 25 to 22.

The preliminary game finds the undefeated Buddies stacking up against the Putnam Whirlwinds. One of the largest crowds of the present season is expected at this game.

BOB FARRELL, PRESIDENT OF HARTFORD E. L. CLUB, DEAD

HARTFORD, Jan. 14—(AP)—Robert J. Farrell, president of the Hartford baseball club of the Eastern league, died at St. Francis' hospital here at 12:05 this morning. Mr. Farrell underwent an operation Saturday, Jan. 4. He was 32 years old.

Mr. Farrell was a son of former Assessor James T. Farrell, a democratic political leader here, and was the owner of a real estate and insurance agency. Mr. Farrell had long been interested in baseball, pitching his first game when he was 12 years old, and playing on school teams and later as a semi-professional until about five years ago. He attended the South school here, Williston academy and Suffield school before going to Georgetown university, and pitched for the varsity teams at all these institutions. After leaving college, he was given a tryout with the New London team of the old Connecticut league and then played semi-pro ball in all parts of the east.

He assumed control of the Hartford baseball club in February, 1928, and took an active part in the management of that organization during the past two seasons.

YALE-HARVARD RACE ON THAMES ON JUNE 20th

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 13—(AP)—The annual Derby races on the Housatonic river this year will be held on May 3, when Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania crews race over a course of two miles, it was announced today by the Yale Athletic association.

The Yale-Harvard boat race will be held at New London, June 20 as a climax to the season for both teams.

The 150 pound varsity crews of Yale, Harvard and Princeton are scheduled to meet on the Housatonic, May 10. These light varsities rowed in 1928, with Princeton winning.

Yale will take part in the American Henleys at Philadelphia on May 31, and will compete against Princeton and Cornell at Princeton, May 17.

The full schedule follows:

May 3, Yale, Columbia and Pennsylvania varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at Derby, 2 miles, 150 pound varsity 1 5-16 miles.

May 10, Yale, Princeton and Harvard 150 pound crews at Derby, 1 5-16 miles.

May 17, Yale, Princeton and Cornell varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at Princeton, 1 3-4 miles.

May 24, Yale and Harvard 150 pound freshmen at Derby, 1 5-16 miles; Yale and Harvard championship class crews, 1 1-2 miles.

May 31, American Henleys at Philadelphia.

June 19, Yale and Harvard combination crews at New London.

June 20, Yale and Harvard varsity, junior varsity and freshmen at New London. Varsity race four miles, others two miles.

BALTIC AND TRINITY TEAMS WIN IN CHURCH LEAGUE

The Baltic team and the Trinity Methodists won their games in the Church league last night at the Y. M. C. A. court. The games were two distinct opposites, one being close and exciting and the other a walk-away game. The Trinity Methodists won from the Stronghearts of Jewett City, 59 to 5, the largest score of the league, while the Baltic team nosed out the Phi Delta Nu team, 21 to 20. The summaries:

MAKE CONFLICTING REQUESTS FOR GRAND CIRCUIT DATES

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Jan. 13—(AP)—Stewards of the Grand Circuit gathered here today for their annual conference face conflicting requests for dates in the 1930 big time harness racing season.

Indianapolis and Syracuse, Toledo, Grand Rapids, and North Randall, and Goshen and Milwaukee wanted part or all of the same time. The dates requested were: Toledo, the weeks of June 30 and July 7; North Randall, the same; Grand Rapids, the week of July 7, when a furniture meeting is to be held there; Aurora, the week of August 11; Hartford, Conn., the week of August 17; Milwaukee the week of August 25; Goshen, N. Y. the same; Indianapolis August 2 to 6; Syracuse Sept. 1 to 6; Kalamazoo was alone in a request for the week of July 15. It was agreed that Lexington shall come at the end of the schedule.

A rules committee, composed of A. J. Crawford, of Lexington, William P. Engelman, Kalamazoo, and W. L. Stalker, of Toledo, was given the requests with instructions to iron them out as best it can and report to the stewards Tuesday.

SHYMA CLUB BOXING CARD ALL READY FOR THE GONG

Everything is all set for the Shyma club boxing show at Parish hall on Jan. 24 and each and every boxer on the card is reported as working hard to get in condition. From the Sub Base comes the report that Benny Novak and Young Lavigne are working out daily for their bouts with Ero Peterson and Frankie Nist of Worcester, respectively. Al Beauregard and his brother, Shires Beauregard, are all set for their struggles, Al meeting Lou Piquette of Bridgeport in the main go and "Shires" meeting Mush Moriarty in the opener. Lou Brouillard and Artie Lee of Bridgeport hook up in the semi-final eight rounder.

DUWELL CLUB DRAWS DOWN NATIONAL 10-MILE ROAD RACE

The Duwell club has been assigned the National ten-mile road race by the Connecticut A. A. U., which had charge of awarding the honor. The Duwell club has promoted the road racing here for a number of years and many of the country's best distance runners have competed here. The national event will probably be run on Memorial day.

Susie Says

Remember when a 2c stamp cost two cents and not two for a nickel like they do today in drug stores?

Remember how you used to hand the clerk a dime and say, "five two-cent stamps, please?" And you got 'em with a smile and perhaps you'd buy a lemon soda that the druggist would make four cents on.

Them days has gone forever. Since the advent of the efficiency era the druggist has found that keeping stamps for accommodation does not pay the rent nor does it put coal in the heater.

So, for his stamp customers he has a patent stamp vending machine for which the customers pay for the privilege of buying stamps, or rather the accommodation. Now they put in their nickels for the stamps and buy their ice cream and candy somewhere else.

But as long as this method of selling stamps has been in vogue there are some people who have yet to learn about it. And it's their first experience that gives them their kick.

One of these persons who was still under the impression that stamps were sold across the counter at face value had her awakening yesterday. The result was that the druggist lost the profit on two prescriptions, a box of note paper and a tooth brush, but the stamp vending machine made two cents. 'Taint right.

'Seems this woman who is visiting here had some purchases to make in the drug store besides having a coupla prescriptions filled. But having written a few letters before leaving home she thought she'd get some stamps so she could mail the letters while her prescriptions were being filled.

So the first thing she asked for was five two-cent stamps and passed the clerk a dime. The clerk looks at her, as clerks will, takes the dime, rings up a "no sale" on the cash register, takes out two nickels and marches very efficiently around to the front of the counter.

Here he very carefully inserts one nickel after the other in the stamp machine and then with a bow, hands the stamps to the woman. The woman looks at the stamps, counts 'em, looks at the dapper clerk and says, "Isn't there some mistake, shouldn't I have some change?" "Oh, no," grins the clerk, "You see this is the only way we sell stamps now."

The woman is equal to the occasion so she just smiles back and thanks the clerk for his courtesy and leaves the store. Her prescriptions were filled at another drug store where there was no stamp vending machine.

And now who was the laugh on, the druggist or the woman who had never seen one of the stamp vending machines before?

Y. Athletic Activities

The Senior class will have informal apparatus tonight, consisting of the elephant and tumbling. The elephant and springboard are always popular with the class.

All-around athletics begin Thursday for the Junior B class. The first event will be the rope climb.

Get ready for the foul shooting contest which will be held during the week of Jan. 20th. There will be three prizes.

The girls basketball team will hold their final practice tomorrow night before playing Woodstock academy at Woodstock. The locals have a fine team considering the time they have to practice.

Y. Basketball Practice

All members of the Y. Seniors basketball team are requested to report tonight at the Y gym at 9 o'clock for practice.

SHAUGHNESSY RESIGNS AS MANAGER OF BLACKHAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Thomas J. Shaughnessy resigned tonight as manager of the Chicago Blackhawks. Shaughnessy said he no longer could spare time from his law practice and his resignation will become effective after the Blackhawk-Boston Bruin game at Chicago Thursday night.

This is Shaughnessy's first season with the Hawks and his methods have kept them in the race for a position in the play-off. After the team defeated the New York Rangers last night to move back into second place in the American group of the National Hockey league, Shaughnessy told Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the club that business affairs had made it necessary for him to resign.

Shaughnessy, a Notre Dame graduate, introduced new methods of handling the team which brought it from the weakest club in either group, to one of the most powerful. He put the squad torough a vigorous training season at Notre Dame, followed by a practice schedule in the southwest.

No successor has been appointed by Major McLaughlin, who said he would name a manager when the Blackhawks start on a long road schedule after the Bruin contest Thursday. Shaughnessy succeeded Herbie Gardiner as pilot of the Hawks.

SINGER KAYOES DAY IN THE THIRD ROUND

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Al Singer, brilliant New York lightweight, technically knocked out Georgie Day of New Haven in the third round of their ten round bout at St. Nicholas arena tonight. The referee stopped the one-sided struggle after two minutes and eight seconds of the third round to save Day from a worse beating.

Singer weighed 134 1-2 pounds, Day 136 3-4.

Singer was able to make his own fight from the start to the finish of the brief bout. He outboxed and outslugged Day, landing almost at will. The New Haven boy took a lot of punishment in the first two rounds and was in distress in the third when the referee intervened.

Gauvin Signed for New London

Honeyboy Ernest Gauvin of the Connecticut National Guard boxing team has been signed to meet Joe Gridano at the boxing show at New London on Friday night. The boys will box in the 125-pound class and both are stiff punchers.

ARMORY A. A. VS. FRANKLIN PROS TONIGHT

The Armory A. A. will stack up against the fast Franklin Pros tonight at the State armory in Danielson in what is expected to be a very fast game from start to finish. After a defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Colored Giants last week the Armory A. A. are out for revenge and they will have their strongest lineup on the floor at the start of the game. The starting lineup will be: Williams, center; Burke and Gaudreau, guards; Armington and Normandin, forwards, and Jones will be ready to replace any of these men.

The Franklin team will have in their lineup former college and high school stars who have played together for some time and are considered very fast.

There will be a fast preliminary game starting at 7:45 and the main game will get going at 8:30, then dancing until 12 by a very good orchestra.

The Danielson manager has booked a very good attraction for next Tuesday so watch the papers for announcement.

SWEDE OBERLANDER TO BE COACH AT WESLEYAN

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 13—(AP)—A. J. (Swede) Oberlander, assistant coach at Ohio State university and one time Dartmouth backfield star, today was named head coach of Wesleyan university football team, succeeding William W. Wood, who resigned last month.

He will assume his duties, including those of assistant professor of physical education, at once and will have a part in coaching boxing and wrestling. Wood was granted an immediate leave of absence to compete his studies at Yale Divinity school.

Oberlander, who in 1925 was mentioned on practically every all-American team for his outstanding play as Dartmouth's fullback, has been at Ohio State since 1926. He assisted in coaching both the backfield and line.

His first year at Hanover found him captain of the freshman football team, and the following year he played tackle on the varsity. He was shifted the next season, however, to the backfield where in his senior year, he became a notable figure for his adept hurling of the forward pass and line plunging. He was also a weights man on the track team and New England intercollegiate heavyweight wrestling champion.

Having already completed two years of work in the study of medicine, he plans to continue his studies at the Yale Medical school.

FAST GAME AT TAFTVILLE THIS EVENING

The basketball fans who journey to the Parish hall, Taftville, tonight should witness one of the fastest amateur games ever seen in this section when the Plainfield Buddies, without a doubt the best amateur team in the state, invade the mill village to clash with Manager Sullivan's newly-formed Shyma basketball team. The Buddies defeated the local team a few weeks ago in the locals' opening game of the season but the local mentor, after putting his team through a stiff practice session on Sunday afternoon, declared that he is sure that the Buddies will return to their home town with their first defeat of the season.

The Buddies will present the same team which has been going great guns so far this season. Lang, one of the best forwards to ever represent the Buddies, will team up with Mercer at the forward position, with Joe Eaton, who was a star at Plainfield high school, at center, and Bromley and Marriot will take care of the local forwards. Both of these men are considered as good as any now performing with any semi-pro team in this section of the state. Jette and Allard will be held in reserve.

Against this array of stars, Manager Sullivan will endeavor to send his best team so that he will be able to give the Buddies their first defeat of the season. S. Finn, Peltier or LaBarre will perform at the forward positions. P. Finn, who is proving that he is as good as any, will be at the pivot position while the backfield will be taken care of by Jim Murphy, Lemieux, Dugas and Phaneuf. Rabbit Gauthier has also been signed by the local club and will be seen in the next game.

In the preliminary game, the Shyma Juniors will play the Internationals of Norwich in what should prove to be as fast as the main event, as the visitors are reputed to be the fastest junior team in eastern Connecticut, holding wins over the Baltic Maroons and the Montville Aces. The Shyma Juniors will line up as follows: Benin and Captain Durr, forwards; Raymond, center; Wilke, Burelle and Bunk, guards.

BACON ACADEMY TO PLAY PHI DELTA NU FIVE

Manager Joseph Busel of Bacon academy basketball team announces that the Baconians will play Phi Delta Nu quintet of the United Congregational church of Norwich in Colchester January 25. The Norwich team is composed mostly of Norwich Free Academy students, although the team itself has no affiliations with N. F. A. It is understood that the Norwich boys have already played two games with the Robert Fitch high school of Groton and are an usually strong team. The Bacon team also has some fast and well trained players, so that a close and exciting game is looked for.

The Bacon boys will play the team from the School for the Deaf of West Hartford, in Colchester, February 1. A return game is to be played in West Hartford at a later date.

Huat Beaten by Gregorio

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Vidal Gregorio, flashy Spaniard, jabbed and slugged his way to a decision over Eugene Huat, France, in a fast ten-round bout here tonight. Gregorio weighed 117 1-4; Huat 118 1-4.

YALE HAS LITTLE TROUBLE DOWNING CORNELL QUINTET

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Yale had an easy time defeating Cornell in an inter-collegiate basketball league game here tonight. The score was 35 to 10. The triumph gave the Blue team a record of one victory and one defeat in league competition and established it in third place, behind Penn and Princeton which are undefeated.

Yale took a ten point lead at the opening of the game before Cornell tallied and kept going at the same pace until it sent in a second team and later most of the third team. The score at the end of the half was 21 to 6. In the second half Cornell did not score a field goal.

Horwitz, of Yale, was high scorer with a total of eight points.

KILLINGLY PLAYS CHAPMAN AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

The Killingly high school basketball team will travel to New London tonight to play Chapman Tech of that city. Little is known of the opponents' strength except that they defeated Essex by a score of 50 to 4, and therefore Killingly expects a hard game with Chapman as Essex is thought to be in the same class as Killingly.

Killingly has won four straight games, having defeated the Alumni, Tourtellotte, Groton and Putnam, but they are not over-confident and are practicing hard for this game. A victory over Chapman would be welcomed by Killingly fans as Chapman has beaten Killingly by large scores in the past games between the two schools.

Killingly will probably start the same line-up that has started the previous games this season: Slowik and Szafranski, forwards; F. Dascoll, center; Captain Young and Wood or Neilson, guards.

In the preliminary it is expected that the second teams will combat, and Killingly will start Hemmett and Anderson, forwards; Kimball, center; A. Dascoll and Glade or Knight, guards.

MARSTERS RECOVERED; TO TRY OUT FOR BASKETBALL

HANOVER, N. H., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Al Marsters, Dartmouth football ace whose gridiron career was cut short last fall by a serious injury to his back, worked out with the basketball squad today.

Marsters has discarded the metal brace he wore for the past two months. After working out today, he said he might report officially for the team, although he has not played basketball since his prep school days. Coach "Dolly" Stark said of him today, "If Marsters did not score a single basket for us all season I would consider him a valuable man merely because of his wonderful competitive spirit."

ACADEMY BASEBALL PRACTICE NOT TO START BEFORE MARCH

A later starting date than in 1929 for Academy baseball practice sessions at the state armory will be the rule this year, according to an announcement by Coach Earle E. Brigham of the Wildcat nine. It is probable that the batterymen will not get the call much before March 1 this season, whereas the first workout was held the second week in February, or immediately after mid-year examinations last year.

One reason given for this is that the indoor track team of the Academy is using the armory for practice and another that there is not so much worry about the battery prospects at the school this year as was the case one year ago. Coach Brigham has the veteran Butsy Weisgraber to rely upon for the mound duties and, in addition, has such promising newcomers, who will make a bid this year, as Boots Greene, Pop Richards, Ed Cotter, Johnny Caron and Bob Geer. With Bud Fontaine, Les Crowell and Pepin as catching standbys, holding over from last year, there is no worry in that department either.

With the first practice scheduled for early in March, that would leave about two weeks for indoor work and the rest of the time, weather permitting, for the entire squad to practice on the campus. The opening game of a 22-game schedule will be played April 5.

QUINN REFUSES TO LET HIS BALL PLAYERS BOX

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The fistic careers of two Boston Red Sox ball players die ablooming today, when President Bob Quinn served notice on the boxing profession that none of his players would enter a ring with his consent.

Quinn, who had refrained from commenting on what he termed the "boxing baseball player craze," until his own players became involved, said that Outfield Bill Barrett and Ed Morris, one of his best pitchers, had requested permission to battle Arthur (The Great) Shires for the Boston Garden.

Reilly Signs as Head Coach

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Carroll (Mike) Reilly, coach of St. Bonaventure's undefeated basketball team, today signed a one-year contract as athletic director and head coach. He succeeds Fred V. Ostergren, resigned.

Divodi Beats Purvis

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! . . . Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

GREENEVILLE

The regular Christian Endeavor meeting conducted by Elmer Maukin, was held Sunday evening at the Third Baptist church with a fairly large attendance. The members are showing keen interest in the membership contest which started the first of the year. A prize will be given to the member receiving the most points within the limited time. Music was furnished by the church orchestra and a quartet, composed of Clarence Parkhurst, Woodrow Sebastian, Christopher Wunderlich and Harold Kinne helped to make the meeting a success. Friday evening the C. E. executive meeting will be held and reports read on the work carried on during the past year.

The Bee Tee club meeting was held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Fred Thompson with Miss Florence Tilley as hostess. Cards were played, the first prize being awarded to Mrs. Charles Burton and the consolation to Mrs. Leroy Bannon. Light refreshments were served by the hostess. The meeting this week will be held with Mrs. Harry Goodale of Boswell avenue.

At St. Mary's Memorial church Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock, an anniversary mass of requiem was offered for the repose of the souls of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lajeunesse by the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe. The musical portion of the mass was in charge of the organist, Mrs. Michael J. Farrell. Relatives and family friends were present.

CLUB DEPARTMENT TEA FOR SEWING TEACHERS

The club department of the United Workers held a tea for the sewing teachers Monday afternoon in the rooms at 9 Washington street.

Mrs. Marcus Leith, chairman of the committee, presented Miss Alice Coggswell, who was supervisor of sewing for 14 years. She told of the value of the work to the children and how very often it was possible to cooperate with the other departments of the United Workers. She also spoke of the importance of regularity on teachers' part and expressed the need for a little more help on Saturdays.

Mrs. W. C. McKean, the present supervisor, expressed her appreciation to the committee and to the teachers for the hearty cooperation and help they have given her since the season opened.

Mrs. Harold E. Robbins presided at the tea table, while members of the committee served. The table was very lovely, the centerpiece being pink snapdragon, sweet peas and carnations. Silver holders held pink candles. Mrs. O. C. Wolfe is chairman of the teachers committee and was in charge of the arrangements.

Trustee for Laundry

At a hearing before Referee in Bankruptcy Henry L. McGuire at New London Saturday Constable Meyer Blumenthal of Norwich was named trustee for the Sunshine Laundry of Franklin street. Constable Blumenthal has been receiver for the laundry, which is bankrupt, the property of which is to be sold later at public aution.

Announce Daughter's Engagement

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Max Rosenberg of 160 Riverside drive, New York city, of the engagement of their daughter, Grace, and Jacob W. Rabvinovitch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Rabinovitch of 246 West Main street, this city.

Varicose Veins

If you or any relative or friend are worried or suffer because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that literally hundreds of people all over the country are using with complete satisfaction.

Simply ask your druggist for an original two ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins, rubbing gently upward and towards the heart as the blood in the veins flows that way. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. Emerald Oil is a powerful, yet harmless germicide, and results are guaranteed by its makers. You can get it at all good druggists.

366,450 MOTOR VEHICLE OPERATORS MUST RENEW LICENSES BY MARCH 1ST

Application blanks will be mailed Wednesday by the state motor vehicle department to 366,450 Connecticut motor vehicle operators who are expected to renew drivers' licenses during 1930. License certificates now in force will expire on February 28, and new licenses will be required March 1. The department will begin issuing renewals on Thursday, January 16.

Several changes have been made in the application form, principally by the elimination of questions. Applicants will no longer be required to state the approximate number of miles they have operated motor vehicles, nor whether they've read and are familiar with the motor vehicle laws and rules of the road in this state. Each applicant, however, must state whether he has been "in court for any violation of a state motor vehicle law within one year." On applications formerly in use this question was not whether the applicant had been in court because of a violation, but whether he had "been convicted of any violation of the motor vehicle laws within four years."

Persons now holding licenses will not be re-examined and applications may be made by mail and need not be sworn to if renewals of the previous year. Return addressed envelopes and full instructions for filling out the blanks have been enclosed with each application. The renewal fee is $3.00, and payment by mail should be by check, money order or express order, payable to the commissioner of motor vehicles. All mail applications must be sent to the main office of the department at the capitol, Hartford.

Applicants at the branch offices will be required to show a license for 1929, properly endorsed, when a renewal is desired, as all records of license certificates are on file at the Hartford office. Branch offices, where personal application may be made, are at Bridgeport; New Haven; New London; Stamford; Waterbury, and Danbury.

Those applicants under 18 years of age are notified by the department, when licensed, of the state law which makes it illegal for them to drive a motor vehicle upon the highways unless the owner of the vehicle, whether it be the minor or some other person, has established proof of financial responsibility with the commissioner of motor vehicles, in accordance with the statute. Renewal applications of minors must bear the written consent of a parent or guardian.

SYNAGOGUE DELEGATION WAS AT HARTFORD MEETING

At the Connecticut state conference of the United Synagogue, which was held Sunday at Emanuel synagogue, Hartford, the Norwich Community synagogue and its sisterhood had a large representation, and its president, Abner Schwartz, was elected a vice-president, and Mrs. Jacob R. Slosberg was chosen a member of the executive committee. Over 35 congregations of the state were present at the conference, which was in charge of Hon. Herman P. Koppelman of Hartford.

Each community gave a report of its conditions, of the synagogue and school activities. For the purpose of assisting and aiding each community in its work a state organization was formed which will meet once a month in the different cities of the state. Various inspirational addresses were delivered by several leaders of American Jewry, Rabbi Samuel M. Cohen, executive director of the United Synagogue, and Mrs. Samuel Spiegel, president of the Woman's league, both of New York, were present.

The delegates of the Norwich Community synagogue were Abner Schwartz, president; Charles Gordon, Jacob Slosberg, Louis Pollock and Barney Rubenstein. The visitors were Louis Goldblatt and Harry Schwartz. Delegates of the sisterhood were Mrs Samuel Rosoff, president; Mrs. Alex Pasnik, Miss Frances Dembo and a visitor, Mrs. Charles Gordon.

TOWN'S VITAL STATISTICS SHOW SMALL FIGURES

The vital statistics for the town of Norwich, for 1929, as compiled by Town Clerk Harold S. Burt, showed quite a decrease in the births, deaths and marriages, as compared with the preceding year. His report covering the 12 month period ending Dec. 31 shows that there were 721 births, 241 marriages and 523 deaths in the town. In 1928 742 births, 282 marriages and 563 deaths were recorded in the town.

Town Clerk Burt's report also showed that 38 local residents were married out of town, 41 Norwich residents died in other places and several children were born to local residents out of town; also 142 out of town persons were brought to Norwich for burial.

PAYS FINE FOR FAILING TO OBEY POLICE WHISTLE

At the city court session Monday morning Charles Barrington of Canterbury, charged with failure to obey an officer's signal, was fined $3 and costs of $10.26. He was arrested Sunday by Constable Louis Paquette of Taftville, after he had almost run down the officer near his home on Merchants avenue. The officer claims that while he was crossing the street, Barrington came along, did not sound his horn and almost struck him. The officer blew his whistle, but Barrington drove away and was not apprehended until later.

NATIONAL GUARD IS TO HAVE "PERSHING" CAPS

Connecticut national guardsmen will within a few weeks be the exemplification of what the "well dressed" United States soldier should wear. Word is received from Washington that orders have been sent to national guard officials of the state to requisition for "Pershing" caps for the entire enlisted personnel of the state guard.

The new cap, while of the same general type as the old style, resembles more the style worn by officers. The crown is wider and the visor is adjusted at a greater angle from the front of the cap. The visor is also larger and does not come close to the eyes as does the old style. The material used in the hat is also stronger and gives a more finished appearance.

Major General William G. Everson, chief of the militia bureau issued the order making the new cap standard equipment for the Connecticut national guard. It is understood that all guardsmen of the country will be so outfitted. The cap has been adopted for the regular army enlisted men.

Brigadier General William F. Ladd, adjutant general, said that he expected it would be a matter of perhaps two months or more before the new caps could be manufactured by the army equipment tailoring company, which will have the contract.

NORWICH TOWN

HOME CHAPTER RE-ELECTS ITS BOARD OF OFFICERS

The meeting for January, which also was the annual meeting of Home Chapter of the King's Daughters, held Monday afternoon, brought together a good attendance of members, at the Johnson Home. Mrs. William E. Manning who has served the chapter as leader so faithfully for several years presided. After the devotional exercises and the period devoted to the study of the Book of Exodus, 14th chapter, much time was given to business. Besides the leader's annual report, the annual reports of other officers and committees were submitted and approved. At the February meeting of the chapter the 15th chapter of Exodus is to be considered. It was announced that the next meeting of Home Chapter sewing circle is to be held with Mrs. Edward Briggs of Pearl street, Thursday next. At the close of the meeting, under direction of Mrs. David M. Dean, chairman of the entertainment committee, sandwiches and coffee were served. Mrs. John Olsen accompanied at the piano for the hymns.

The officers elected, all but one being re-elections are: Leader, Mrs. William E. Manning; vice leader, Mrs. Charles R. Cross; recording secretary, Mrs. Earle Christman; treasurer, Mrs. Herbert R. Branche; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Fred N. Clark; chairmen of committees—Membership, Mrs. Edmund A. Prentice; flower, Mrs. James Gilmore; entertainment, Mrs. David M. Dean; Silver Cross magazine, Miss Maria Briggs; chairman to succeed Mrs. William H. Whiteman, resigned, as first directress of the work committee, Mrs. Edward Briggs. The auditors for Home Chapter are Earl H. Christman and Edmund A. Prentice, who succeed themselves. The nominating committee comprised Mrs. Dwight L. Underwood, Mrs. Ernest Washington and Mrs. William Martin.

The leader's report follows:

Throughout the year the meetings have been well attended and there has been more or less interest in the Bible lessons. If each member would take part in this study, we should all enjoy it more. We mourn those members who have answered the Master's call to come home. We have materially aided several different persons. By the tireless efforts of the executive committee we held a very successful sale and supper. We have received two gifts of nice Bibles from members. We have purchased several necessary things for the Home which we hope will help to make the life of the Home members pleasanter. At five of our regular meetings we have had an entertainment; those who have been asked to help in these have graciously consented and several friends have kindly consented to aid us with charming music.

The membership committee has been especially active, with the result, that several have joined our ranks, and we now number some Sons also. We have sent flowers and cards to sick or shut-in members. Due to the efforts of the committee the picnic in July was a huge success. The chairman of the work committee accomplished a good deal of work in the ten meetings of the Sewing society, to say nothing of the sociability of the affairs. Every one always has a good time. It was pleasant to have so many chapter members at both the conference in May and the convention at Hartford.

The corresponding secretary; the chairmen of the flower committee, and the Silver Cross committee have done their work faithfully and well. The Christmas committee brought some cheer to the Home, and all know that the nominating committee did their work well. Whenever any member has been asked to do a certain thing she has responded willingly. It is this whole-hearted co-operation that will make the chapter a live society. Your officers need the help of every one. I thank again all those who have so faithfully and willingly helped this past year.

The January meeting of Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, is to be held at the parsonage, Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. William Weaver, has requested members to bring in the dollars they have earned during the past three months, to help swell the amount in the treasury.

During Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church there was on the pulpit a decorative basket of snap-dragon and red carnations. The pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey made mention that the flowers were in loving memory of Jessie Browning Peck. "A very beautiful tribute to a very beautiful character, and a truly Christian type of womanhood," Mr. Bailey said. At the close of the service, this basket of flowers was sent to Mrs. Charles Barber Jr., a patient at Backus hospital, following a serious surgical operation, Thursday last. The original thought was prompted by Mrs. John L. Browning, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Peck, who also is chairman of the supper committee of the League of Service, which presented the flowers, and of which league Mrs. Barber is a faithful worker.

When the Junior and Intermediate C. E. societies meet, this (Tuesday) afternoon in the Congregational chapel, the lesson for study for the juniors will be—Why We Should Obey Our Parents, and for the intermediates, What Are Some Good Life Rules For Us?

Miss Ruth Nye accompanied by her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Perkins, of Mansfield Center, motored to Norwich Town Sunday and all were dinner guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver of Huntington avenue. Miss Nye who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nye, has been passing several weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Nye, of Natick, Mass. After a visit with her parents in Mansfield Center, Miss Nye is to return to Natick, for the remainder of the winter.

Ernest Kennedy, of Danielson was the guest Sunday of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy.

Mrs. Frank Browning of Colchester, is passing a few days with her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Browning. Miss Elizabeth Browning, their eldest daughter returned home with her aunt Sunday afternoon, after a visit of a few days in Colchester.

ADVISES REVISING VIEWS ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

"If we, as individual citizens, have merely inherited our views about the league of nations, now is the time to re-examine them in the light of present day facts and problems. If we have neither inherited nor formulated any view on this vital public question, out of very shame at our political pauperism we should set to work to earn an opinion of our own."

This is the opinion of Prof. Henry Wells Lawrence, of the department of history and political science at Connecticut college at New London, who spoke before the student body and faculty Monday morning in commemoration of the founding of the league of nations ten years ago.

Professor Lawrence gave an outline of the achievements of the league during the ten years of its existence. He stated that it had handled nine controversies in which war was threatened or actually begun.

In actual progress toward disarmament the league has so far failed, he said, yet the disarmement discussions have not been wholly in vain because they have kept the question in the minds of the people of the world.

The league has brought help to many refugee exiles in western Europe and Asia Minor and through its public health organization is maintaining an effective warfare against epidemic diseases in eastern Europe, Africa and the Far East.

It is trying to stamp out the traffic in women and children, and to abolish slavery and the slave trade wherever it is existent. It has charted the roads of financial, economic and trade reconstruction, and has a central agency at Geneva for studying and improving the conditions of labor.

He said in conclusion:

"As a means for promoting peace and preventing war it peculiarly concerns citizens of the United States at this time because of its evident relationship to our own Kellogg anti-war pact. Just what that relationship is to be has not yet been determined."

Supplied Ice Cream At Sanatorium

The Hebrew Ladies auxiliary of Norwich again demonstrated their usual generosity to Uncas-On-Thames by furnishing ice cream for both the patients and staff on New Year's day.

SHAUGHNESSY SUIT IS GIVEN PARTIAL HEARING

Before Judge Isaac Wolfe of New Haven, a state referee, a hearing was held Monday in the superior court at New London on the civil suit brought by James K. Shaughnessy, now of Pomfret, against the Griswold company on a claim for $15,000 for breach of contract. After the case had been partially heard Judge Wolfe continued it until Tuesday, Feb. 4, which he made a tentative date, saying that he would give those interested notice in case he later found reason to change the date.

The case was referred to Referee Wolfe some time ago after it had been subjected to several continuances in the superior court. A criminal complaint against Shaughnessy by the Griswold company for embezzlement is also still pending in the courts.

Shaughnessy, who is represented by Attorneys G. Curtis Morgan and Edwin W. Higgins, was the only witness Monday. He testified to various accounts concerning his alleged contract with the Griswold Co. extending from February, 1924, until February, 1928. He claims that he had an agreement with the company whereby he was to receive half of any increase in stock during that time. This, the defendant contends, amounted to $21,801.

Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey, representing the plaintiff, asked for a continuance because he could not produce witnesses at New London Monday.

WILL SUPERVISE AVIATION FIELD AT POQUONOC

The state aviation field at Poquonoc plains will be supervised by Maj. Hubert E. Johnson, 118th observation squadron, 43d division, aviation, it became known Monday. The major will also be in charge of Brainard field, Hartford. Orders giving him the commands were issued from the adjutant general's office.

Held Perfect Pinochle Hand

Archie Spaulding, playing in a four-handed game in the rooms of the Duwell A. A., of which he is a member, held a perfect hand in pinochle here Saturday. He was dealt 12 hearts.

He got the bid, melded two straights and then took every trick, making a total of 570 points.

Not Claiming Credit

According to an official of the Central Labor Union, that body is not claiming any credit for the resumption of work at the new buildings for the county home on Laurel Hill road, for the contractor on the job had already arranged to resume work Monday before the special committee of the Central Labor Union had taken any action.

TAFTVILLE

When the members of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church hold their meeting this week the speaker is to be Henry F. Powers, president of the Uncas-National bank of Norwich, who will address the club on "Banking."

FUNERAL

Daniel McSheffery

Funeral services for Daniel McSheffery, who died recently at his home in Hartford but who was for many years a resident of Taftville where he had been employed in the mule spinning department of the Ponemah mills, were held at 8:30 Monday morning from the undertaking rooms of Dougherty Brothers on Merchants avenue, followed by a solemn high mass of requiem at Sacred Heart church at 9 o'clock. There was a large attendance at the service, including a delegation consisting of Joseph Dugas, James Nolan, Daniel Day, Frederick Dugas, John Donovan and Jeremiah J. Donovan from Ponemah Council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus, in which the deceased had held membership. Beautiful floral forms were grouped about the casket. Rev. Donat Jette was celebrant of the mass, Rev. Frederick R. DesSureault, deacon, and Rev. Omer T. Mandler, sub-deacon. Miss Alice Frechette, church organist, had charge of the music, and at the offertory, J. Omer Tellier, basso sang. The bearers were Bryan Hanlon, John Daley, Edward Kelly, William T. Delaney, Hormidas Gladue and David O'Brion, all members of Daniel Mullen assemby, fourth degree Knights of Columbus, of which Mr. McSheffery was also a member. Burial was in the family lot in Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike, where Rev. Father DesSureault, assisted by Rev. Father Mandler read the committal service.

It has been announced that the annual meeting of the Taftville Congregational church is to be held Friday evening at the church. At this meeting the election of officers for 1930 will be held and reports from the various parochial societies will be heard.

Charles Adams, Jr., of Danielson spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Adams and family of North Third avenue.

Mrs. William Shaw and her daughter Miss Inez Shaw of Mystic have been spending a short time recently with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kinder and family of North Third avenue.

Visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington and family over the week end were Harold E. Linderson of Centralville, R. I., and George S. Marthers of New London.

Due to the warm weather which preceded the present cold snap, youngsters of the town were gathering "nightcrawlers" for bait in the yards of the residences on the north side of the village. The big worms came to the surface and poked their heads skyward in exactly the same manner as they do on the balmy summer evenings. From other sections of the town came reports of sprouting tulip, daffodil and iris bulbs.

Speedy Relief For Sore Throats

This Doctor's Prescripion Requires No Gargling

No longer is it necessary to gargle and choke with nasty tasting medicines to relieve sore throat. Now you can get almost instant relief with one swallow of a doctor's prescription. This prescription was refilled so often and became so popular that the druggist who originally filled it decided to put it up under the name Thoxine and make it available to everyone.

The remarkable thing about Thoxine is that it relieves almost instantly, yet contains nothing harmful. It is pleasant tasting, and safe for the whole family, and is guaranteed to relieve sore throats or coughs in 15 minutes or money back. Just ask for Thoxine, 35c, 60c, and $1.00. Sold by all druggists.

COLDS IN CHEST CALLS FOR this soothing, safe ointment that frequently relieves in one application—and seldom fails when applied once every hour for 5 hours. All druggists.

MUSTEROLE

Sensible Way To Lose Fat

Start taking Kruschen Salts—that's the common-sense way to reduce—but don't take them with the idea that they possess reducing qualities in themselves.

This is what they do—they clean out the impurities in your blood by keeping the bowels, kidneys and liver in splendid working shape and fill you with a vigor and tireless energy you'd most forgotten had existed.

As a result instead of planting yourself in an easy chair every free moment, and letting flabby fat accumulate you feel an urge for activity that keeps you moving around doing the things you've always wanted to do and needed to do to keep you in good condition.

Then watch the pounds slide off!

Kruschen Salts are the up-to-date Fountain of Youth. Take one half teaspoonful in a glass of hot or cold water tomorrow morning and every morning—they're tasteless that way and if they don't change your whole idea about reducing, go back and get the small price you paid for them. Get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts—lasts 4 weeks—at Lee & Osgood or any progressive druggist anywhere in the world.

It's the Little Daily Dose that does it.

TWO BODIES, BADLY BURNED, FOUND IN WRECKAGE OF PLANE AT LAKE AMSTON

Initials on the Watches of the Victims, Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, was the Means of Identifying the Wreckage as that of the Fairchild Monoplane, Missing Since Last Friday—Plane Had Crashed, Deep in the Woods, After Collision With an Oak Tree—Fire Consumed All That Was Combustible in the Plane

(Special to The Bulletin)

AMSTON, Jan. 14. — The tragic deaths of Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick, test pilots for the Fairchild Airplane Mfg. Corp., was revealed here today with the finding of the twisted and charred skeleton of the six passenger cabin monoplane that disappeared in the fog last Friday morning while on an altitude test over Farmingdale, N. Y. Pinned beneath what had once been the fuselage of the plane was found the body of one of the pilots, while the other was entangled in the wreckage of the plane. Identification of the bodies, which were burned beyond recognition, was made through initials on the wrist watches that were found, Kirkpatrick's watch having stopped at 10:15, while that of Marra had stopped at 9:20. After examination by Dr. Cyrus B. Pendleton, medical examiner for the town of Colchester, the bodies were removed to the undertaking parlors of Avery and VanZandt in Willimantic.

About 11:20 o'clock this forenoon, Fred Rowley, superintendent of the Amston Game club with John Johnston, Jr. 16, came upon the wreckage. There was evidence that Marra, who was at the controls, had attempted to maneuver for a landing in a pasture adjacent to the lake. The plane had skimmed the tops of a grove of birch trees for some 300 feet. There was still a chance for a comparatively safe landing when the landing gear caught in a protruding oak some six inches in diameter. The impact sent the giant plane in a somersault and it came down with a great crash in a mass of small trees and underbrush.

The propeller and motor nosed several inches into the ground. Then the plane burst into flames. Whether the two aviators were thrown out of the cockpit in an unconscious state or whether they made a vain attempt to escape the fury of the flames, will never be known.

Upon discovery of the plane, Rowley notified the state aviation department at Hartford immediately and Chief Engineer George S. Pranaitis, of the headquarters at Brainard field, was dispatched to the scene. Other aviators and state police from the Groton barracks arrived a short time afterwards.

Later in the afternoon many persons, including newspaper and camera men, ploughed through ankle-deep mud to visit the scene.

Hidden from the earth by dense fog and lowering rain clouds, the two men must have encountered difficulties that to them, as trained aviators, must have spelled the greatest danger, Kenneth A. Fraser, technical chief of the aviation corporation, of which the Fairchild company is a subsidiary, said that the plane carried fuel sufficient for about one hour of cruising speed and about one hour and a half for making an altitude test.

Over various sections of Connecticut Friday forenoon the droning of the giant motor, that propelled the six-passenger plane, was heard. The plane could not be seen, however, as it roared through the blanket of fog. Residents of some localities felt that the fliers must be in distress and some reported that there was a distinctive "skip" in the motor. About 10 o'clock Friday forenoon, J. A. Isham, of Columbia lake, heard the plane on two occasions at intervals of about fifteen minutes. Then some ten miles to the south Julius Reinholtz, a farmer in the little town of Amston, was attracted by the roar of the low-flying machine. He heard the motor shut off, start again and then die down as if a landing was being made. He believed that the plane probably landed in the vicinity of Amston lake and, after notifying a neighbor, Fred Rowley, he started a search. Newspaper accounts of the lost plane and offers of rewards totaling $1,600 spurred on the search in that vicinity, leading to the gruesome find this morning.

TO REOPEN THE MEXICAN CONSULATE AT LAREDO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 14—(AP)—The Mexican consulate at Laredo, Texas, which has been closed since December 18, will be opened immediately, Enrique Santibanes, Mexican consulate general in San Antonio announced late today.

Santibanes announced that the consulate will be reopened Friday.

Rafael De La Colina, Mexican consul at Laredo when the office was ordered closed by his government, is in San Antonio and has been ordered by Santibanes to proceed to Laredo Thursday with instructions to resume his duties.

The consulate was closed following threats made by District Attorney John Valls of Webb county (Laredo) that he would arrest General Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico on a charge of conspiracy to murder in connection with the death of Lucio Blanco, former Mexican general. The latter's body was found in the Rio Grande in June, 1922. Calles, who was en route to Mexico from New York, was traveling on a diplomatic passport which the state department at Washington insisted should be recognized by Valls.

CONCERNED OVER MALADY CONTRACTED FROM PARROTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Federal health officials viewed with concern tonight the additional deaths and illnesses attributed to press reports to the strange malady contracted from parrots, psittacosis.

With three new deaths reported, the list mounted to five. At the same time, fifteen other cases of serious illness believed to be what is called parrot's fever were reported, bringing those on which the public health service has information almost to 50.

The malady appeared in several widely-separated cities shortly after the Christmas holidays. The deaths reported today were those of Miss Catherine Tierney, 67, housekeeper of a Toledo church pastoral residence; Mrs. William Burns, who died in a Baltimore hospital, and one person of a Hollis, Queens borough, New York, family, whose name was withheld.

The deaths of Mrs. Louis Schaffle, in Baltimore last Friday, and of Mrs. William Shields, in Pittsburgh last week, were attributed to the disease. The death in Toledo two weeks ago of Mrs. Percy Williams also was blamed on the disease.

TWO CIVIL WAR SOLDIERS APPLAUDED IN THE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Two Civil war soldiers stood in the box of Speaker Longworth in the house of representatives today and received the applause of the entire chamber. In return, each came to a smart salute.

The two old soldiers were General Edwin J. Foster, of Worcester, Massachusetts, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Past Commander John Reese of Broken Bow, Nebraska. They are in Washington in the interests of pension legislation, and were introduced in the house by representatives from their respective states.

THREE CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH IN HULL, QUE.

HULL, Que., Jan. 14—(AP)— Three children were burned to death today in a fire which destroyed their home.

The dead, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Parisee, were Jean Paul, 5; Paulette, 2, and Adrienne, 3 months.

Reports of the fire said Mrs. Parisee left the children playing in the kitchen while she went to use a neighbor's telephone. When she returned, she found the house was a mass of flames. She tried to enter, but was forced back by heavy smoke.

STATE PRISON OVERCROWDED; CONVICTS SENT TO CHESHIRE

WATERBURY, Jan. 14. — (AP) — Judge Frederick M. Peasley, of superior court today said the state prison at Wethersfield is overcrowded in explaining why he sent two men convicted of breaking and entering, to the state reformatory at Cheshire. The court said that men with sentences as high as ten years are being transferred to the reformatory from the prison. The comment was made in sentencing Ernest Shappy, 22, and Roy Choquette, 22, both of Waterbury, to the reformatory. During the past week the court has sat four days and 15 men have been sent to the reformatory, with only one receiving a state prison term.

COL. OSBORN SAYS PRISON IS NOT OVERCROWDED

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Col. Norris G. Osborn, president of the state prison board, said that possibly there was a misunderstanding on Judge Peasley's part as to conditions at the state prison.

"The prison is not full nor overcrowded, but conditions are approaching that point," said Mr. Osborn. "We have the power under a law of the last general assembly to transfer prisoners from the state prison to Cheshire and we did transfer six boys last week, not because the prison was crowded, but because being first offenders we believed they would be better off at the reformatory. On the other hand, the reformatory may transfer of its inmates such as prove unruly or who could be better handled in state prison."

RAIN ADDS TO FLOOD MENACE IN LOWER MISS. VALLEY

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 14—(AP) — Approach of a new rainstorm from the west to add to the deluge which already was sweeping down the Mississippi and its tributaries inundating thousands of acres of lowlands, added gravity to the high water situation in the lower valley today as the first levee dynamiting of the present rise was reported. Levees, however, were holding fast.

Interior streams already were at or near the flood stage, while the big river itself crept up to 31.5 feet at Memphis, only 3.5 feet below flood stage, with 33.5 feet predicted for Sunday. At Cairo, near the mouth of the Ohio, gauges showed 49.9 feet, 4.5 feet below flood stage, with 43 feet in prospect for Sunday.

A rainless day in the mid-section of the lower valley gave cheer to some of the area but the additional water forecast acted as a counterbalance.

WHERE MARRA'S PLANE CRASHED AT AMSTON

Will Proceed To Make Young Plan Effective

Reichsbank Will be Obliged to Subscribe to Capital of the International Bank.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Jan 14. —(AP)—The squall coming from the direction of Berlin which struck the second Hague conference yesterday, passed quickly and detailed work of preparation for putting the Young plan into effect went on today under a cleared sky.

Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, head of the reichsbank, who announced yesterday that the reichsbank could not participate in the international bank for reparations because of changes in the Young plan today was in conference with the principal delegates and members of the bank committee. Later it was announced that he would bow to the will of the majority.

He agreed to participation of the reichsbank under a procedure by which German law would be changed so as to oblige the reichsbank to subscribe to the capital of the international institution. Thereupon the members of the government and the members of the German delegation announced that they would amend the German law so as to make it obligatory on the reichsbank and Dr. Schacht decided that this would cover his responsibility in the matter.

An official communique to this effect was issued at noon and this was followed by a written engagement by Dr. Moldenhauer, the German financial minister. This document engages the government to see that the reichsbank does what is necessary.

The conference, again in clear water, is waiting to wind up its affairs only for a final report of the bank committee on the trust agreement to which eleven amendments have been proposed and for an understanding as to the amount of the first installment of bonds for commercialization of the unconditional annuities, the amount thus far mentioned was $200,000,000 but in some quarters, the question was raised whether this had not better be smaller.

FIVE CASES OF PARROT DISEASE IN NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Five cases of psittacosis, or parrot fever, were reported to the city health department today.

One of the victims, Mrs. Alice Hotchkiss, 50, was reported to be in a critical condition in a hospital from the fever which she is believed to have contracted from a parrot given to her by her daughter as a Christmas gift.

The four others, who are ill came into contact with the same bird and are ill at their homes. They are Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cronin, Sr., and Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Farrell.

The parrot, which was the gift of Mrs. John H. Cronin, Jr., was purchased in a local store and died eight days after Christmas.

These are the first cases to be reported in Connecticut.

Dr. John L. Rice, city health officer, ordered an immediate investigation of all pet shops in New Haven to ascertain if any more parrots imported from South America, are in the city.

Mrs. Hotchkiss was taken ill last Thursday, believed at first to be suffering from pneumonia. Her case was definitely diagnosed as psittacosis this morning.

MRS. HOOVER ABLE TO ATTEND MELLON DINNER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover had recovered sufficiently from a cold from which she has been suffering to attend the dinner given tonight by Secretary Mellon to the president.

Mr. Mellon's dinner was the third of the state dinners which the president attends other than those given at the white house.

The President and Mrs. Hoover attended a dinner given by Secretary Stimson in December and the president attended Vice President Curtis's dinner last week. Mrs. Hoover was unable to attend the latter function.

FORMER GOV. HOLCOMB CONSIDERABLY IMPROVED

SOUTHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Former Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb was reported at his home here tonight to be considerably improved, and it was said that his physician is confident of his complete recovery unless there are complications, no signs of which so far have appeared. The state's war-time chief executive, who is 85 years old, suffered a fracture of two ribs last Thursday when he fell in his home.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

MADRID, Jan. 14—(AP)—Miguel Fleta, the tenor, was ordered by the district court to pay the Metropolitan Opera company of New York $19,800 because he failed to sing for its patrons in 1925. Fleta was unable to fulfill his contract with the Metropolitan because he was in military service in Spain.

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 14—(AP)—The police launched a general investigation of communist activities as the result of a demonstration early yesterday morning in front of the Mexican embassy. They held under arrest 11 alleged leaders, only one of whom was described as a native Argentina.

STORIES OF WHOLESALE CANNIBALISM IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Jan. 14—(AP)—Harrowing stories of wholesale cannibalism were added today to the tales of horror recounted of famine and cold that are reported to have taken 2,000,000 lives in China within eight months. Another 2,000,000 persons are said to be doomed to die by starvation.

Typhus, grim sister of famine is charged with the death of unnumbered thousands and 2,000,000 Mohammedan fanatics are accused of massacring all adult males of numerous villages of Kansu province.

George Andrews, a missionary born in Kansu province and just returned from nine months of relief work there, said that famine, disease and exposure in Kansu, Shensi and Shansi provinces had caused one of the most terrible situations ever experienced in China in which plagues of disease and famine are common and life is cheap.

Failure of crops last year and no seeds planted for the coming season together with below zero weather in the Yangtse valley and north China were ascribed by Andrews as causes for the widespread suffering.

Reduced to the last extremity by starving, people in Kansu province Andrews said, are resorting to cannibalism. On many occasions he had witnessed flesh carved from bodies that lay in the roads and had seen it cooked and eaten by the desperately hungry.

The missionary told of authorities attempting at first to halt cannibalism and then abandoning efforts to stop it. One man, emaciated from hunger, said when brought before officials:

"Why should I be punished for eating only what dogs are eating?"

Continuing his recital, Andrews said that dogs and wolves were consuming unburied bodies.

"Thousands of such bodies lay untouched until dogs, wolves or whatever remained alive partially destroyed them," Andrews said. "All domestic animals have disappeared."

VICTIM OF AUTO ACCIDENTS IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Ray Leete, of Clinton, victim of two automobile accidents, remained in a serious condition in a hospital tonight.

An ambulance which was transferring him from the Guilford sanitarium, where he was treated early today for injuries suffered in a collision of his car with a truck, crashed into a large truck here this morning. In the second mishap he suffered a possible fracture of the skull. The ambulance driver was slightly hurt.

The first wreck occurred early this morning at Madison, and Leete's sister, Margaret, was burned to death. One of his legs was fractured and he was burned about the body.

KIDNAPERS OF SHERIFF SURRENDERED TO POSSES

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 14—(AP)—Two men and a woman who kidnaped a deputy sheriff from Florence, Arizona, last night, and wounded him and a second deputy in a gun battle at Chandler, a short time later surrendered to posses tonight near Laveen, Arizona, after a brisk exchange of shots.

The captured persons tentatively were identified by deputy sheriffs as Mrs. Irene Schroeder of Benwood, W. Va., M. Glen Cage and J. W. Crawford, all sought in connection with the slaying of a Pennsylvania state police patrolman in New Castle, Pa.

JUDGES BOOTH AND SIMPSON CONFINED TO THEIR HOMES

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Two superior court judges were confined to their homes here today by illness.

A cold prevented Judge John Rufus Booth today from going to Rockville where he was scheduled to hear several cases, while Judge Ernest C. Simpson is recovering from a kidney complaint which is expected to keep him from his duties for a week or two.

Butler Attacks Law Enforcement Report

Declares that 18th Amendment Must and Shall be Repealed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university and opponent of prohibition tonight issued a statement attacking the report of the Hoover law enforcement commission. He said it was "new and pathetic evidence that Washington, like the Emperor Nero, fiddles while Rome is burning."

Referring to the document as a "report on that form of impossibility which is popularly referred to as law enforcement," the statement said:

"The citizen deeply concerned about the foundations of our political and social order will find nothing in the report which indicates the slightest concern for the fundamental principles of the constitution or for the provisions and guarantees of the fifteen amendment, or for the provisions of the second section of the fourteenth amendment, or for the constant government-made violation of that fundamental law of God and man which reads: 'Thou shalt not kill.'

"Faced by the greatest and most dangerous emergency which has confronted our people and our government since the Civil war," the statement continued, "all that is now proposed is more laws. Even some of these appear to be directed at reducing still further the protection once afforded to civil liberties by the bill of rights."

The statement said that "the first practical and constructive step toward restoring our government to its original and well-tested form will be to clear out of the house of representatives in November next, those wretched creatures who sit there to cheer and laugh when murder is extolled in their presence, and to bring to a quick end those constant exhibitions of government-made lawlessness which outweigh a hundred times over all breaches by individuals of any law whatsoever."

"When the government ceases from lawlessness," Dr. Butler continued, "it will be easier, as well as more reasonable, to make appeal to citizens generally to do likewise.

"The eighteenth amendment must, and shall be repealed, and the revolution which it inaugurated thereby brought to an end."

FAMILIES IN OHIO MAROONED BY FLOODS

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14.—(AP) —Several hundred families at Ottawa, Ohio, and Mechanicsburg, Ohio, tonight were marooned in their homes as water surrounded the towns.

At Mechanicsburg police were on guard against a sudden rise which might imperil the lives of those marooned. In Ottawa, where the Blanchard river and Tawa creek has flooded a large part of the town as well as cutting off all forms of traffic, marooned persons were without bread but informed town officials that they had sufficient other food. Preparations were being made to transport food by boat if the water continues high tomorrow.

At Massillon, Ohio, a number of streets were under water and school children will be carried to school and returned by boats.

TO VOTE ON SUGAR TARIFF NOT LATER THAN THURSDAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Opponents of an increased sugar tariff and those favoring a bounty in its stead held the center of attention for another entire session today in the senate, which agreed just before recessing to vote on the question not later than noon Thursday.

While not coming out flatly for a bounty Senator Borah, of Idaho, a leader of the republican independents, disputed the arguments that a higher levy would benefit domestic cane and beet sugar growers. He contended that an increased tariff would bring no relief so long as existing American relations with the Cuban and the Philippines continued, and said he saw no prospects of these conditions changing for some time to come.

WOMN, CAPTURED, HAD BEEN SOUGHT FOR MURDER

PHOENIX, Ariz. Jan. 14— (AP) — Sheriff Charles W. Wright, of Maricopa county said tonight a woman captured with two men near Laveen earlier in the evening has admitted she is Mrs. Irene Schroeder of Benwood, W. Va., for whom a nationwide search has been made in connection with the slaying of a Pennsylvania highway patrolman near Newcastle, Pa., December 27.

FEDERAL DRY LAWS NOT TO CONFLICT WITH STATES

Drastic Changes Proposed Will be Carried Out With a View to Precluding Any Encroachment On Rights of States in Making Their Own Laws Effective—Bill in House to Transfer Enforcement to Treasury Department—Senate Has Not Taken Up the Hoover Recommendations

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Willing house leaders concentrated today on President Hoover's assignment to revamp the ways and means of enforcing prohibition.

The manifold program of the administration and the law enforcement commission submitted to congress yesterday, served to quiet the wet and dry talk as all sides sought to assimilate it; but by nightfall there were signs of new trouble.

Republican drys in the senate who have been critical of the Hoover policies were silent. It was pointed out privately by some, however, that no cognizance was taken in the reports received from the white house and the law enforcement commission of the demands for a cleaning out of personnel or of complaints against leaks of industrial alcohol.

While administration leaders in the house were introducing the first of legislative proposals asked by Mr. Hoover—transfer of the prohibition enforcement agency from the treasury to the justice department—a republican wet, Representative Sabath, of Illinois, was offering a measure for repeal of the 18th amendment.

Enactment of new laws as a result of the drastic changes proposed by the law enforcement commission is to be carried out with a view to precluding any conflict with states in making their own laws effective. That this is directly in the mind of those backing the revisions, was assured today in well informed circles.

The day's discussions at the capital centered largely on the question of the constitutionality of the commission's proposal to turn petty offenders over for trial by United States commissioners. Chairman Norris, of the senate judiciary committee, is one of those who has serious doubts of this proposal on the ground that it denies the constitutional guarantee to a trial by jury.

Taking stock of the prohibition situation after the storm of yesterday which veritably deluged congress with work, the leaders tonight settled back to await the transmission to the capitol by the administration of the legislation it recommended. Only one bill—transfer of prohibition from the treasury to the justice department—is definitely on its way. Representative Williamson, republican, South Dakota, the chairman of the house expenditures committee, introduced this today and he will hold hearings on it next week.

The house wet bloc gathered briefly to survey the situation. The law enforcement commission legislative suggestions and the suggestion by Bishop Cannon, of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, that as much as $250,000,000 should be spent on enforcement if necessary, were up for discussion. The meeting will be resumed tomorrow.

In the senate, where fierce debate on prohibition is expected, no heed whatever was given today to the Hoover recommendations as the tariff debate proceeded.

Senator Wagner, democrat, New York, has pending a resolution asking President Hoover to direct his law enforcement commission to report on the "suitability" of the prohibition laws. He probably will wait until the whole subject comes before the senate before pressing his suggestion.

TESTIMONY BY FATHER OF SLAIN CHILDREN

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 14—(AP)—Alan N. Rogers, father of the two motherless children for whose death Gladys May Parks is on trial for murder in the first degree, was the principal witness today. He told how he had been induced by the defendant to turn over to her the four year old girl and two year old boy for her to care.

He spoke in a calm monotone while the accused woman sat quietly and listened. She is charged with killing both children last August and dismembering their bodies and burying them in shallow graves. She admits burying the children but claims they died natural deaths and that she did not dismember them. The state has not produced a motive in the case.

Rogers testified that he let Miss Parks have the two children out of his motherless family of six so she could raise them. Miss Parks, he said, was a cousin of his dead wife.

The father of the children, who is 38, and is an insurance man in Woodbury, N. J., said his wife died in October, 1928; that he had a housekeeper and was getting along as best he could when in May, last year, Miss Parks suggested turning over the younger children to her to raise. She explained, he said, that she had been married less than a year before to a wealthy real estate man with offices in Florida, Atlantic City and New York. She told him her name was Baker. Rogers said he had never seen the husband.

DES MOINES UNIVERSITY HAS BEEN ORDERED SOLD

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 14.—(AP)— Des Moines university, Baptist fundamentalist institution which closed last fall after a long series of events rocked its student body and administration, today was ordered sold to satisfy a $225,000 mortgage held by the Boatsman's National bank of St. Louis.

The order was made by Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey, who directed that the real estate, buildings and equipment be sold, after the bank asked foreclosure and judgment for $207,070.

Claims of 29 intervenors will be satisfied out of property not covered by the mortgage, it was said. Certain endowment funds owned by the school were exempted from seizure but will be taken in charge by the receiver along with other unemcumbered property and accounts.

ROBBERY OF PAYROLL OF $5,634 IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 14.—(AP)—Waiting only for an armored truck to drive away after it had delivered a payroll of $5,634 to a downtown garment factory today, three robbers entered the office, threatened six employes with pistols and made off with the money.

Bookkeepers of the J. and S. Milberg Co. were placing the money in envelopes for the concern's 200 employes when a man with a handkerchief over his face dashed into the counting room, covered the clerks with a gun and swept the money into a black satchel. His confederates remained at the doorway. When he rejoined them a minute later the trio separated and walked rapidly away.

WARNING TO PEDDLERS OF LOTTERY TICKETS

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 14—(AP)—The state must impress upon the mere pawns in such endeavors as lottery ticket selling that they will not be treated leniently when brought into the courts, State's Attorney William H. Comley declared in criminal superior court today, in presenting Frank A. Rice, 24, of Long Hill, upon charges of possessing lottery tickets.

Rice entered a plea of guilty and was sentenced to thirty days in jail by Judge Allyn L. Brown.

HOUSE PASSED $457,043,386 WAR DEPT. SUPPLY BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)—Increased to $457,043,386 by amendments, the annual war department supply bill for the fiscal year 1931 was passed today by the house and sent to the senate.

The increases brought the total allotment for military purposes to $339,858,194, and the outlay for non-military activities to $117,185,192.

MANAGER GOVERNMENT IN CLEVELAND DEFEATED

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 14—(AP)—That the death knell of city manager government in Cleveland, the largest city where it ever has been used, was sounded last night in the ousting of City Manager W. R. Hopkins, was the belief expressed by numerous civic and political leaders here tonight. If they are right, within a year Cleveland may return to the mayor and ward council form of control.

Beaten last night by a 14 to 11 majority in city council, Hopkins at once began his plans for a "rear guard" action to regain his office, but had faint hope of success. Asserting his rights under the city charter, he demanded that the reasons for the ouster be explained in written charges and that he have the opportunity to answer them.

Council appointed a committee to prepare the accusations and within a week the deposed city manager will have their report and will make his reply.

Hopkins had been Cleveland's city manager ever since that form of government was introduced here six years ago. The general basis of the attack against him was a charge that he "played too much politics in a supposedly strictly business position."

MEASURES DESIGNED TO PROMOTE WORLD PEACE

GENEVA, Jan. 14—(AP)—The council of the league of nations today adopted three measures designed to encourage the cause of world peace and international good-will.

The first was a step in executing the assembly's decision to amend the league covenant and bring it into harmony with the spirit and purpose of the Kellogg-Briand pact, which renounces aggression in war.

The second was a summons for an international diplomatic conference on February 17 to consider a customs truce as a move for eliminating barriers to trade.

The third was a decision to name a special commission to determine the rights of Jews and Arabs at the wailing wall in Jerusalem, which have been sharply contested by the two parties.

LOBBYING ACTIVITIES DESCRIBED AS "GRAFT"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—(AP)— Lobbying activities in Washington were described to the senate today as "simple graft" by Chairman Caraway, of the lobby investigating committee, as he presented a report estimating that more than $400,000 had been expended by those interesting in the pending sugar tariff controversy.

"Businessmen might just as well go to a palm reader or a crystal gazer and have the future of legislation foretold," Senator Caraway observed after the committee's report was read, "as to put their money in the so-called publicity agents and these lobbyists we see here in Washington."

FLOOD WATERS IN OHIO BEGINNING TO RECEDE

CLEVELAND, Jan. 14—(AP)—Ohioans in scattered parts of the state were preparing to return to their homes tonight as flood waters from rivers and creeks began to recede.

Central and northwest Ohio, hardest hit by the high water, reported the larger rivers were returning to their banks and that the peak of the flood which has swept over the area for two days had passed.

Interurban and train service was being opened through the stricken territory tonight and it was believed highways would be cleared for traffic sometime tomorrow.

SHUNTING RUM ON CABLE ACROSS NIAGARA RIVER

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 14—(AP)—A report was made to Captain Lawrence E. Stephenson, customs border patrol commander, today that smugglers are using a spare cable to shunt liquor across the Niagara river from Canada. The scene of operations is a point below the power lines at Niagara Falls near Niagara university.

The apparatus consists of a specially made basket, capable of holding three or four cases of whiskey, controlling wires, pulleys and tackle. The cargo is pulled across by operators stationed on either bank of the river.

OBITUARY

Pierre Labonte

Pierre Labonte, 47, of South Willington, died in a Hartford hospital today after a few days' illness. He was born in L'Ange Gardien, Canada, April 22, 1882, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Delphis Roberts Labonte. Besides his wife he leaves one son, Alpheric Labonte; three daughters, Mrs. Lillian Ursin, Jeannette and Nita Labonte, all of South Willington; his mother, Mrs. Virginia Labonte of Putnam; two sisters, Mrs. Angelina Dubreuil and Mrs. Delia Sponcay of Putnam; five brothers, Hormisdas, Napoleon, Emile and Henry Labonte of Putnam, and Albert Labonte, of Woonsocket, R. I.

A bequest of $5,000 to the local Congregational church is made in the will of the late Miss Emelene A. Dunn of Rochester, N. Y. Miss Dunn was connected with the Willimantic State Normal school here for several years as instructor of children and teachers in training. Later under direction of the state board of education, she was a pioneer in developing art instruction throughout the state, doing this by lectures and conferences in normal training and summer schools through a published course of study.

Directors elected at the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Windham National bank held this forenoon were: Edgar E. Bass, Arthur I. Bill, William D. Grant, Attorney William A. King, Louis A. Kingsbury, H. Clinton Lathrop, Herbert D. Pollard, Joseph B. Riordan and George F. Taylor. The directors elected as officers: President, H. C. Lathrop; vice president, Edgar E. Bass; cashier, Herbert D. Pollard; assistant cashiers, Archibald W. Buchanan, Jr., Harold S. Maine; tellers, Earle K. Haling and Willis Ridgeway.

Home building in Willimantic was the subject of an interesting talk given by Oliver L. Willard, local contractor, at the meeting of the Willimantic Exchange club held with a dinner in the Nathan Hale hotel tonight. Mr. Willard, who is completing the erecting of a model home, described styles and materials used in modern home building and the advantages of home ownership. Another talk on the proposed membership campaign of the chamber of commerce was given by Secretary John J. O'Rourke. President George H. Curley was in charge of the meeting.

FUNERAL

William B. Elliott

The funeral of William B. Elliott was held at the home, 15 Oak street, this afternoon at 2 o'clock with services conducted by Rev. Arthur E. Wheelock of the Congregational church. Burial was in the new Willimantic cemetery. Officers of Obwebetuck lodge, No. 16, I. O. O. F. assisted at the services. Avery and Vanzandt had charge of the arrangements.

There was an attendance of about 60 men at a meeting of St. Vincent de Paul society held in the chamber of commerce rooms Monday evening with President William B. Sweeney. The society has organized to carry on extensive relief work and is prepared to co-operate with other similar agencies in the city. Affiliation with the national society is planned for the near future.

John J. O'Rourke, executive secretary of the chamber of commerce, gave an excellent talk on Practical Community Service at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon, with President Louis H. Arnold in charge. Chairman James B. Fullerton of the program committee, made the assignments of meetings to June 1. The next meeting will be a vocational service meeting in charge of Roland B. Jordan. Frank Leonard, member of the Norwich club, was a guest.

A lecture is to be delivered at St. Joseph's church Wednesday evening for the women and men of the parish, by Rev. John A. Lynch of New York city, a promoter of Catholic Medical missions. Rev. Father Lynch conducted a mission here 35 years ago. He has since traveled widely.

The position of starter at the local terminal and the one in Norwich will be abolished after next Sunday, it was announced today by the New England Transportation company. The work will be divided between the spare men.

Benedict O'Brien and Henry Harriman, recorders for the Cleminshaw Municipal Service company, left for Saybrook today to start the work of making a revaluation of property.

Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Handfield of 133 Pleasant street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Martha Louise, to Eugene Marrotte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marrotte, of 127 Card street.

Fred L. Avery, of the firm of Avery and Van Zandt, was discharged from St. Joseph's hospital today after receiving treatment for an infection of his left arm.

Dr. Charles H. Girard has sold to Dominick Menditto a tract of land, 66 by 110 feet, on the easterly side of Mansfield avenue and the south side of Valley street.

Miss Ethelyn Nichols, director of religious education at the First Congregational church, has been called to her home in Waterbury by the illness of her father.

Miss Margaret Danahey, local nurse in the rural schools, has returned from a visit with Miss Noreen McGurn of Bridgeport, formerly of this city.

Mrs. Wells S. Wilcox and family, of West Main street, have been entertaining her sister, Mrs. L. A. Gordon and daughter, Frances Gordon of Stamford.

Mrs. Donald A. French is substituting in the kindergarten department at the Natchaug school for Miss Cecile Desauiniers, who is ill at her home in North Grosvenordale.

COLCHESTER

DR. E. J. HOWLAND'S DOG FRIGHTENS AWAY BURGLARS

Burglars attempted to enter the garage at the home of Dr. Edward J. Howland on South Main street early Tuesday morning. Mrs. Howland was awakened by the loud barking of their large German shepherd dog which had been asleep in the garage. The garage doors were found open but the doctor's Cadillac coupe was undisturbed. It is thought that the burglars were frightened away by the dog before they had a chance to enter the building.

Fire Chief Brown, with the engine and squad of firemen, were out about 7 o'clock Monday evening to extinguish a bad chimney fire at the Isaac F. Gillette residence on Pleasant street. Quick work with the chemical tank resulted in the fire being extinguished before any damage was done.

Mrs. John M. Riley, Mrs. Robert S. Brown, Mrs. A. S. Neal and Mrs. Edward Jones were present Tuesday at the meeting of the Past Matrons' association, O. E. S., in Mystic.

Frank S. Rathbun, of Hartford, visited Tuesday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Rathbun.

At the January meeting of Colchester Fire Co. last week, a committee was appointed by Chief Brown to investigate the cost of elevating the large borough fire siren so that it can be heard a greater distance from the fire house. Several of the firemen have complained that they have been unable to hear the siren at their homes, a half-mile away, when the wind is blowing in the opposite direction. The fire company officials believe that if the siren is moved to a point at least fifty feet higher than its present location, its sound carrying-power will be increased seventy-five per cent. A considerable sum of money was expended several years ago for the purchase of this powerful siren and it is felt that steps should be taken to transfer the instrument to a location where the full benefit of it can be realized. The committee is to make a report of its investigation with recommendations at the February meeting of the company. Plans are under way for the fire company to hold dances, basketball games and entertainments during the coming months as a means of raising funds to cover the expense of the project.

AMSTON

Mr. and Mrs. O. Frank Porter announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Louise, to John Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Barrett of West Main street, Willimantic.

Miss Acsenath Jones has recovered from an attack of German measles and Master Milton Porter also was ill with the same ailment.

Miss Eunice Porter, youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clinton Porter, of the Center, died Jan. at Uncas-on-Thames, after a lingering illness, during which she exhibited great fortitude and cheerfulness. Miss Porter observed her 23rd birthday Christmas day and this was made more pleasurable by the kindly act of her devoted brother who carried a decorated tree down for her enjoyment. She will be sadly missed and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to the bereaved family.

The funeral service was held in the Congregational church, of which she was a devoted member, at two p. m. Thursday. Rev. John Dexter, pastor, officiated, assisted by Rev. Theodore Martin. Both dwelt with tender pathos on the beauty of the young life, her Christian character evidenced by her daily life. Extending deepest sympathy to the sorrowing family.

Mrs. Ina Turshen spent the week end in New York attending a mitzvah party in honor of her month-old nephew. Mr. Gross returned here with his daughter after spending a month in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nonnenbacher of New York spent the week end at their home here.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Friday evening was church night at the Congregational church. The program was in charge of R. E. Stearns. The speaker was Dr. Henry K. Denlinger of Storrs. Mrs. Ruth Herrick Williams of Willimantic was heard in soprano solos and there were selections by the local male quartette. Miss Mary Barrows recited the Battle of the Frogs and Widow Green. After the program doughnuts and coffee were served.

Horace I. Fenton gave a talk on The Golden Rule at the C. E. meeting Sunday evening of which R. E. Stearns was leader. Because of the storm those invited from Willimantic and Spring Hill were unable to come.

A "Square Meals of Health" demonstration will be given today (Wednesday) at the home of Mrs. C. H. Bosworth on Spring Hill beginning at 10.30. Mrs. R. E. Stearns and Mrs. A. T. Palmer will be the leaders.

The church guild will meet at the home of Mrs. David Clark Thursday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid society is to assist the church guild in a baked fish supper which the guild is serving this week.

CHAPLIN

George T. Crane of Bedlam is one of the first in town to fill his ice house.

Miss Edith M. Welch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merritt Welch, has returned from a visit with relatives in Hackensack, N. J.

The Ladies' Aid society met with Mrs. Ellen Russ Thursday afternoon with thirteen in attendance. Much patchwork was accomplished. At the business meeting a committee, Mrs. P. B. Sanger, Mrs. Merritt Welch and Mrs. Charles Perry, was chosen to confer with the prudential committee of the church in regard to improvements in the vestry.

Governor John H. Trumbull has ordered a special election in Chaplin for the office of judge of probate, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge B. M. Welch, who resigned his office Jan. 1. The special election is to be held Feb. 10.

Rev. Paul B. Sanger preached in exchange with Rev. Edward F. Smiley of Windham Sunday. Rev. Mr. Smiley took for his text Rev. 21:1; his theme was a New Heaven and a New Earth. The thoughtful and forceful sermon held the close attention of a stormy day congregation numbering over 30.

Ten from the local C. E. society attended the union endeavor meeting at South Windham Sunday evening.

RUNAWAY WILLINGTON CAR STRIKES CURB NEAR CHURCH

A Chrysler coupe, registration Z-6352, operated by Miss Pratt, from Willington, was left standing on the street in front of Stevens store Tuesday afternoon while Miss Pratt was in the store, the brake let go and the car rolled down the street until it struck the curb in front of the Congregational church. Luckily, there was no traffic and very few people on the street at the time. Harold Bruce attempted to stop the machine, but as both doors were locked he was unable to do so. Officer Mason next appeared after the car had got half way across the sidewalk and tried to remove it, but he also was unsuccessful. Miss Pratt was very much surprised a few minutes later when she came out of the store and found that the machine was missing from the place where she had parked it. She located it in a few minutes, unlocked the door and removed the machine without difficulty.

Orren Avery, badly injured while at work on the Harwood mortuary chapel several weeks ago, has almost entirely recovered.

FUNERAL

Miss Bridget T. Sullivan

Funeral services for Miss Bridget T. Sullivan were held at St. Edward's church Tuesday morning at nine o'clock, Rev. Felix J. O'Neil, the pastor, singing at the high mass of requiem. The bearers were: Patrick McCarthy, Phillip Taylor, Charles Ward, Wallace Day, Patrick J. Murray and Bernard Hanley. Burial was in St. Edward's cemetery. A number of out of town relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Charles Stevens is having several weeks' vacation from his duties at the store of George W. Stevens.

The wet weather of the last two days, followed by a heavy downpour Tuesday afternoon, was sufficient to insure people still short of water that they may expect a sufficient supply. The shortage of water in this locality has caused a good deal of annoyance and the recent heavy rain has been very pleasing to many people. The ice-men, however, do not feel quite so happy. A few days ago some of them were preparing for the harvest but most of the ice has disappeared.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Meyers, Jr., will leave Thursday for St. Petersburg, Florida, where they will spend the remainder of the winter.

The body of Miss Augusta Nickerson, public school teacher who died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan O. Ward, in Buff Cap, Saturday morning, was taken Tuesday to Morell, Maine, for burial.

Miss Sadie Kaba is ill at the home of her mother, Mrs. Samuel Kaba.

Willis H. Reed, clerk of the superior court, was notified Monday that Judge John Rufus Booth is ill and would be unable to hold court this week. All matters on the calendar were therefore advanced one week.

THOMPSON

At the scout meeting Saturday afternoon, Sara Rhodes and Grace Whittemore passed the second class scout test.

Miss Harriet A. Lewis has closed her home for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mills left last week for a southern trip.

Mrs. Mildred Pratt has been very ill at the home of her mother in Webster but has returned home and is convalescing.

The Thimble club is to hold a whist party at the home of Mrs. Robert Ware.

There were no church services here Sunday.

The three children at the parsonage have whooping cough as have also Henry Robbins' children and Edgar Johnson has scarlet fever and whooping cough.

DAYVILLE

Several residents here have received letters from Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pierce, who are spending the winter in Chicago. They are reported well and happy.

The Bridge club met last week with Mrs. N. Lorne Greig. Prizes were won by Miss Bernice Cogswell, Mrs. Orrin Alvord and Mrs. Kenneth Michie.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig, Mrs. William Swainson and son Greig, were in Hartford Saturday.

The service at the Congregational church Sunday morning was well attended. Rev. George Reese, of Central Village, preached a very helpful sermon.

Mrs. Mary Street and Miss Maud Street have gone to New York to spend several weeks with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brearley, Miss Opal Dummermuth and Ralph Brearley motored to Watch Hill Friday.

DANIELSON

DIRECTORS OF WINDHAM COUNTY BANK RE-ELECTED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—This morning the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Windham County National bank was held in the banking rooms to hear reports covering the past year and to elect directors for 1930. The directors named are in each instance those who served during 1929: Nathan D. Prince, Charles A. Tillinghast, Obadiah Butler, Andrew O. Bitgood, William E. Parker and William H. Putnam. The bank had a highly successful year during 1929. Its statement of condition, as of December 31, shows assets of $4,168,759.16. The general deposits are shown as $3,510,083.38. The directors are to meet next Saturday to elect officers.

Members of the Danielson W. C. T. U. have arranged a formal program for the observance of the tenth anniversary of national prohibition for Thursday night at the Methodist Episcopal church. Expression was given today to the hope that numbers of those in official life in the town and borough will find it possible to be in attendance. The observance here will be coincident to hundreds of such observances being held in various parts of the country this week.

Newly installed officers of Orient lodge, K. of P., are: Chancellor Commander, Raymond Humes; vice-chancellor, Wilfred Piuze; prelate, Philip Shafner; keeper of records and seals, Alton Eldridge; master of exchequer, C. H. Bacon; master of finance, Frank E. Young; master at arms, Arthur Chapdelaine; inner guard, William Behrens; outer guard, Walter Rider. Officers of Orient temple elected and installed are: Most Excellent Chief Edith Eldridge; excellent senior, Estella Young; excellent junior, Mat Sayles; manager, Hannah Haynes; mistress of records and correspondence, Olive Preston; mistress of finance, Catherine Piuze; protector, Lillian Eldridge; guard, Ella Lathrop.

John Reynolds of 57 West 49th street, New York, is seeking some information for the benefit of his brother, James Reynolds, who some forty years ago was a resident of Danielson. James Reynolds at that time was a British subject, having been born in Yorkshire, England, but became a citizen of the United States by naturalization. Some two years ago the man about whom information is wanted was employed by the New Departure Manufacturing company in Bristol, this state. He had occasion to spend a few days at a cottage in the hills, and during his stay the cottage burned down and a pocketbook containing his naturalization papers were destroyed. James Reynolds is now 76 years of age, his hearing is impaired and he does not write well. His brother's object in inquiring about him in this territory is to locate some one who may remember him and thus aid in identifying him that he may obtain a duplicate of his naturalization papers.

This evening the annual supper of St. Alban's church was served at the Parish house, with a large percentage of those who attend the church present. Ham, baked beans, rolls, coffee, pie and cake were served. The supper is held each January incident to the reading of the annual reports of the clerk and treasurer of the parish and of the heads of various organizations connected with the work of the church. Tonight these reports showed that the past year was a successful one.

It is understood that several persons have filed applications to be appointed as takers of the census of 1930 in Killingly. This work is to be undertaken the coming spring. There likely will be several appointees in Killingly, and some specifically designated for the villages of the town. An estimate is that the population will be shown in the neighborhood of 9500.

Hard and steady rain that set in just before one o'clock this afternoon and continued steadily until nightfall had the business section partly awash by four o'clock and was the means of slowing down business to a minimum. In many places pedestrians found difficulty in getting across the streets without wetting their feet.

Henry A. Johnson, manager of the Orpheum theater, is to give a talk on audible movies before members of the Employed Boys' Brotherhood of the Windham County Y. M. C. A., here in Danielson, Friday evening of this week. This brotherhood is newly formed and is composed of boys from 16 to 18 years of age who are in most instances employed in local mills or at other occupations. They are to meet at stated periods.

Projects being arranged for spring promise ample employment for local men in the building trades. If plans work out as it is hoped they may, carpenters, masons, bricklayers, plumbers, electricians and workmen in other lines should have one of the busiest and most profitable years since the early post war period. The beginning of this special activity may be looked for in about six weeks.

Again mention is being made of the plan to make a state highway through Broad street and Green Hollow road into the town of Plainfield; to connect up with the present Norwich-Danielson route at Central Village. This project is intended to relieve, for one thing, congestion through the business section of Danielson, in the interest of the general public using the highways.

For Wednesday afternoon Chairman Walter Anderson of a special committee appointed to organize the effort to sell 5,000 shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association has been called. Plans of procedure are to be discussed.

PUTNAM

SWINDLER HAD BEEN AT GAME FOR 23 YEARS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 14—The career of Harry Stone alias Harry Winslow of 14 Parker street, Everett, Mass., which went wrong yesterday when he was taken into custody by local police on charges of misrepresentation and obtaining money under false pretenses was ended today after twenty-three years when Massachusetts state police arrived in this city late this afternoon with a warrant for his arrest, and returned him to Boston where he will be arraigned in Middlesex county court to face serious charges.

Winslow's arrest in this city yesterday revealed many years of practice during which he had eluded the best sleuths in Massachusetts and Connecticut cities. Winslow's "racket," as he termed his means of livelihood, was the impersonating of an agent of the Plymouth Knitting mills of East Boston, Mass., going from house to house displaying a line of ladies' silk hosiery of a superior quality which he "sold" at an unusually low price. His proposition was most attractive. Offering the goods for sale at a price which could not be duplicated anywhere. An agent's deposit was required of the purchaser, who was given a receipt. The balance of the transaction was payable upon delivery of the stockings which were to be forwarded C. O. D. through the mails. With the deposit once in his possession, Stone made it his business to leave the neighborhood where he had been successful in conducting his so-called swindling "racket." Winslow told police that his winning ways with women with whom he dealt exclusively were largely responsible for his constant successes.

Putnam police gained the first inkling that Winslow or a confederate was operating in this city Monday when Mrs. Archibald Macdonald Jr., who had made a purchase with Winslow suspected fraud and immediately advised her husband of the salesman's presence in the city. Officer Joseph Page was assigned to the case and within an hour Winslow was arrested. Massachusetts authorities were communicated with and Captain Thomas E. Blight and two troopers came to Putnam and identified Winslow as the man who had swindled a large number of people in that state. Captain Blight told local authorities that Winslow was always a step ahead of the police. He said that one filing cabinet in police headquarters at Boston was filled with complaints describing Winslow and telling of his operations. Captain Blight said that sufficient evidence is possessed by the state to insure Winslow's receiving a stiff prison sentence when haled before the Boston superior court.

Officers and members of the American Legion post have been asked regarding the sales campaign being put on in Putnam for a book entitled "History and Rhymes of the Lost Battalion," written by Private McCullum. The local American Legion post has no interest in this campaign, is in no way sponsoring it, and is receiving no benefits whatsoever from the sale of the book. This statement is not made to in anywise detract from the sale of the book but to correct the impression that has apparently gained currency that its sale is in some way for the benefit of the American Legion.

The will and estate of the late Erwin E. Robbins, local realtor whose death occurred a few weeks ago, was admitted to the probate records at 11 o'clock this morning at a session of court at which Henry N. Benoit, judge of probate presided. Of interest is the fact that Miss Minnie B. Nuttall, who managed Mr. Robbins' household following the death of his wife two years ago was named as his sole beneficiary to receive the residue of the estate. Efforts to ascertain the appraised value of the estate were futile since appraisers to make an inventory were not appointed until this morning. They will be allowed six months to complete their duties. With an inventory record filed proceedings to settle the estate will be instituted.

Reminiscent of the war days of 1917-18 when Connecticut enlisted troops passed through this city aboard troop trains for preliminary training at Camp Devens in Ayer, Mass., will be the departure of the headquarters company of the 43rd. Div., C. N. G., the city's military unit for the same camp on August 2 for its 15 day tour of field duty. Captain John J. McGarry commanding officer of the company is in receipt of a general order issued by Brigadier General George M. Cole, former adjutant general of the state, ordering the local company to Camp Devens this year instead of Camp Trumbull at Niantic where the unit has spent its annual training period since its organization six years ago. The headquarters company will be accompanied by the headquarters detachment and the medical detachment of Danielson. Both of the Danielson detachments listed under special troops of the 43rd. division are under the command of Major E. L. Darbie of the borough.

Captain McGarry and the personnel of the company are elated over the general order. Their tour of duty at Devens will afford a new environment for the members of the company. Camp Devens is a home for a part of the regular army and it abounds in facilities for the training of military bodies. According to the terms of the general order received today many other Connecticut national guard units will entrain for Camp Devens this year rather than Camp Trumbull as has been the custom in recent years.

Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston has compiled one of the most comprehensive reports containing a complete review of the activities of the fire department occurring during the year of 1929. The statistics are contained on 12 type-written pages bound by a cover and stapled together. The work is complete to the most minute detail and the volume is representative of many hours of diligent labor on the part of the chief engineer of the department. A complement of 45 regular men constitutes the strength of the department. Its officers are besides Chief Thurston, two deputy chiefs, superintendent of fire alarm, six fire police. Three pieces of apparatus are contained in the department, two of which are stationed at the Central station in Union square and one at the Smith street station in the north end of the city.

The pay roll of the department for the year ending December 31, 1929 amounted to $4,170.00, the report indicated. Twenty-five fire alarm boxes are contained in the fire alarm circuit all of which are in excellent condition.

In his report Chief Thurston stresses the need of a new fire proof structure for the housing of down town fire apparatus and the fire alarm headquarters and also recommends that the city purchase at least a thousand feet of new hose during the coming year.

The fire loss per capita for the year 1929 was $2.35, which compares favorably with other years as shown in a table contained in the chief's report. 116 alarms were answered by the department during the year of which 54 were for chimney fires. The total loss for the year amounted to $13,183.01 and the total amount of insurance paid property owners whose premises were visited by fire was $11,849.51. Chief Thurston's report also contains tables showing loss per capita recorded during the past six years; tables showing fire losses by months in which the value of the property involved, loss encountered, insurance carried and loss paid on buildings and contents is given; a table showing the origin of fire alarms by months; a table showing the amount and location of 2 and one-half inch fire hose in possession of the department; a table showing the distribution of the payroll; a table furnishing statistics of time records of students of the various schools in the city established during official fire drills; a table showing material used in extinguishing fires; and a chart showing the results of investigations in which causes of fires were determined. The record will be submitted to the common council at the February meeting and will be published in the municipal register next month.

Charles A. Seder, who is constructing a modern business block on Main street on the site of the old Central block, anticipates that the structure will be ready for occupancy on or about March 1. The building contract expires on that date the realtor said and from rapid strides being made in building, indications are that the contract will be carried out exactly as planned. When asked if he were to begin the erection of the second block, upon completion of the first structure, Mr. Seder declined to comment saying that he has given little consideration to this matter. The building now in the process of construction does not occupy the entire site of the former block. There is a building lot with a frontage of about 25 feet on Main street extending to a depth of about sixty feet to Canal street, which will one day serve as a site for another contribution to the city's building list.

By virtue of their victory over the Masons Monday evening the Putnam lodge of Elks increased their lead in the indoor sports tournament by a margin of 10 points. The Elks were victors last night by a 10-5 score.

JEWETT CITY

TEXTILE NOVELTY COMPANY EXPECTING A BUSY YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 14—A meeting of the stockholders of the Jewett City Textile Novelty Co., was held Tuesday forenoon. The officers elected were: Andrew McNicol, president and superintendent; Earle E. Gilbert, vice president; Alex McNicol, secretary and treasurer. The three officers elected comprise the board of directors. Since the organization of this company, it has paid twenty-one consecutive annual dividends which figure to the creditable aggregate of two hundred and twenty-three per cent. The secretary and treasurer said today that the business outlook for 1930 was very encouraging. Orders were booked with steady requisitions promised, so as to insure full operation until June with further business propositions in consideration for advance dates.

The work was completed Monday night of pouring three short land piers, with another to be completed in the Pachaug river, which will make four of the low type. These piers are to be topped with concrete columns which will support the trusses at these four points. Operations are to be begun at once, on what will be a new phase of the big viaduct contract, which will be the carrying of the highway over the tracks of the New Haven railroad.

South of the present Pachaug river bridge, a temporary structure is to be built to support the tracks while the excavations are being made for the big piers, which will provide for the 70 odd feet of overhead clearance. One of these great cement supports will be erected close beside the main line, at a point now occupied by the one-time Standard oil spur. The south pier of this overhead plan will be the highest of the whole system, as it must rise from a foundation at the river level, some 20 feet below the grade of the railroad's right of way. Considering the important benefit of this considerably in excess of a quarter of a million dollar contract, to be the elimination of the Main street railroad crossing, it is now understood that the cost of the overhead highway requirements, is where the expense to the railroad is mainly figured.

FUNERAL

Adelard Kermunar

Funeral services for Adelard Kermunar were held at St. Mary's church Tuesday morning. Rev. Nicholas Carron was the celebrant of the requiem mass. James Olsen at the organ played Miserere at the offertory. Mrs. Aglea Serazin sang "Au Ciel," for the waiting hymn. The bearers were F. X. Casavant, Louis Bachand, Fred Cote, Frederick Cote, Louis Marcier and Joseph Desroche. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery in Lisbon, where Father Carron read the committal service. Hourigan Bros. were the funeral directors in charge.

Railroad Force Let Go

In the line of cutting down of operation expenses, Miss Nora Driscoll, a clerk for many years at the freight station, has been let go, also Frank Moriarty and John Leahy, the second and third trick operators. Now William Shagrue is the only operator on duty, his hours are from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Mrs. C. L. Howe is to entertain the Ladies society of the Congregational church at her home Thursday at half past two.

Jewett City Chapter American Red Cross has received two cards in acknowledgment of the Christmas bags sent to men in the service. One is from Robert E. Hogan, medical department, Fort De Lesseps, Canal Zone, and the other from Private John J. Bergin Co. I, 21st Inf. Honolulu, Hawaii.

L. M. CARPENTER RESIGNS AS TRUST CO. PRESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 14—The annual stockholders' meeting of the Jewett City Trust company was held in their banking rooms in the Rioux block Tuesday afternoon. The report of L. M. Carpenter, president, shows marked and substantial increases in both the savings and commercial departments of the institution. The report of Chester L. Dudkowski, treasurer, presented the gratifying figures to prove that the earnings account for the year 1930 has been practically doubled.

The Jewett City Trust company, has been in existence since 1911, and having been operated upon sound business principles, has received its marked rating in the list of leading banking institutions of the state. Its value to the daily business interests of the borough is best measured by the fact that it has successfully met the need that was so long a local commercial handicap.

The following directors were elected: Alex McNicol, Lewis M. Carpenter, James H. Shea, Chester L. Dudkowski, Andrew McNicol, Clayton C. Chase, Earle E. Gilbert, Willis C. Terry, Edmond J. Jodoin, Arthur D. Tripp, Dr. George H. Jennings, Earle M. Wood, James Q. Dolan.

Following the stockholders' meeting a meeting of the board of directors was held.

The first business was the acceptance with sincere regret, of the resignation of Lewis M. Carpenter as president. Mr. Carpenter, in the pursuance of the larger demands of his business, has found it mandatory that he move from Jewett City. Here again, in this another branch of the local business interests of the borough, is plainly seen what it has been for this end of Connecticut to lose such a fine citizen and efficient business manager.

The new board of bank officials was elected as follows:

President, Alex McNicol; first vice president and secretary, James Q. Dolan; second vice president, James H. Shea; treasurer, Chester L. Dudkowski. At the close of the business session, the board of directors presented the retiring president a beautiful desk set. Fixed to the onyx base, a bronze plate bears the inscription: Lewis M. Carpenter President 1921-1930.

In the evening at "Red Top" at the summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Alex McNicol at 394 Camp on the Quinebaug, a dinner was given in honor of Mr. Carpenter, with the board of directors as guests, President and Mrs. McNicol entertaining. The menu included: Grapefruit, roast native turkey, dressing with brown gravy, mashed potato, cauliflower, creamed Bermuda onions, stewed squash, sliced cucumbers, sliced tomatoes, dressed celery, Queen olives, apple pie, American cheese, coffee.

There were nut baskets as favors.

Alex McNicol, the newly elected president of the Security Trust company, is secretary and treasurer of the Jewett City Textile Novelty company, a man of proven business ability, with a long record for efficient and successful management of a rapidly growing industry. His training in finance has admirably equipped him to take over the duties of the presidency.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

While constitutional amendments always arouse plenty of protest before and after adoption someone is frequently advancing the idea that new ones ought to be added.

Just now it is Senator Capper from Kansas. It isn't exactly a new proposition that he is sponsoring, since he has advocated it before, but it is off for a new start and he is seeking an amendment to the constitution that will provide a uniform marriage and divorce law throughout the country.

At the present time it is realized that every state settles these matters to suit itself. It establishes certain restrictions or provides for certain freedom as it pleases. The result is that if those desiring to be married are unable to do so in their own state they proceed to the next one, where provisions are less strict, and have the knot tied. It is not so very different with divorce. When it would be impossible to obtain a divorce in one state it is almost possible to get one in some other state without great delay or trouble.

The situation is such that there has long been a demand for uniformity in regard to marriage and divorce, whereby there would be practically the same provisions in all the states, or at least in groups of them representing large sections of the country.

Because of this situation the senator from Kansas maintains that state control of marriages and divorces should be turned over to the federal government under the provisions of a constitutional amendment. That of course seems simple and the intimation is that it would be satisfactory but there is no more assurance that it would be than there is that prohibition meets the approval of the people of this country.

Most anything that is said against the present arrangement will have to be admitted and yet there is no certainty that congress would do any better. It is inevitable that the regulation of marriage and divorce in the District of Columbia, now under the control of congress, will be held up as an example of what can be expected from a federal marriage and divorce law and it is questioned whether states which consider their laws as reasonable now would sanction and accept the laws of the district.

A FRIGHTFUL RECORD

It is a commendable move that is made by organizations or individuals for the reduction in the number of automobile fatalities. When people are being killed at the rate of 28,000 annually, most of them needlessly, and the number increasing each year it is time that serious efforts were made to call a halt.

Opinions vary as to how it can be done. Figures disclose that more than 70 out of 100 accidents are caused by passenger cars, almost 20 by trucks and about five by taxis. Figures also show that about a third of all deaths are of children under 15 and nearly 60 per cent. of fatalities come from contact between a car and a pedestrian.

These figures tell their own story. They also show where concerted effort can be applied with a reasonable degree of surety that conditions will be improved. There has been and there continues to be great need of having the pedestrian participate in the movement for greater highway safety quite the same as the auto driver. Through better cooperation less accidents will occur. Both are flagrantly wrong at times and the need is to give due recognition to the rights of others in such a way that accidents will be prevented.

The high death rate among children emphasizes the need of impressing upon them the dangers of the road and the necessity of keeping out of the streets and away from machines as the best means of protection.

But while children need to be taught to have a greater regard for their own safety there is plenty of opportunity for more stringent supervision of auto operators. Out of the 48 states there are but 20 and the District of Columbia which require licenses for drivers of autos. Among the 20 there are but 12 and the district which call for examinations for the drivers. In seven states it is optional with certain officials whether there is an examination. In three states children of 14 are permitted to drive, the minimum age in others ranging from 15 to 18.

The prevention of automobile fatalities is one of the crying needs of the country today and it is more than the mere checking of the number that is needed.

FARM RELIEF

It can be expected that the farm board is being watched very closely by those who have been hollering their heads off for farm relief and by those who have insisted they needed it.

It is certain that the board has been in operation for too short a period for a final decision to be reached concerning its methods or results. Those who are watching it must be convinced, nevertheless, that headway is being made and favorable results are being obtained. The commission was given no easy task. It knew the difficulties it faced but it has not flinched. It knew the demands that it could expect but it has held to the even tenor of its way, with the farm problem ever before it and engaged in the task of administering relief.

Opposition has been plenty. It began immediately after the board was named, resulted in the withholding of confirmation for months, the subjection of members to the severest kind of investigation and persistent efforts to influence the policy of the board. The attacks were successfully met and without yielding to pressure. The board set forth its policies and it has continued to follow them.

As the result of six months activity the board is able to point to the fact that it has stood by its statement that it would not lend to cooperatives until they had exhausted the full facilities of the credit banks, that it would not buy surplus production and raise prices, that it has extended aid to cooperatives to the extent of $57,000,000 in a number of states and engaged in various lines of production and that it has aided in the organization of two large cooperatives organizations for grain growers and cotton raisers. These and other things have had their influence and now the board is concerned with a new year.

Much importance is bound to be attached to the declaration that supply and demand should be brought to a better balance. The board doesn't advocate unlimited production. Instead of urging constantly bigger crops it advocates diversified crops. It is endeavoring to prevent these crops which produce big surpluses and low prices, and it is calling for cooperation from the farmers in this respect. It recognizes that the farm problem to a large degree rests in the hands of the farmers themselves.

CROSSING MADE DANGEROUS

With the automatic flashing light at the Eighth street railroad crossing failing to work three times in a matter of ten days, it is apparent that it failed three times too many. These failures came at times when the highway was being used, and narrow escapes resulted. How many times the signal has failed to work when no one was watching it is a question. It is only fair to presume from the ten day test that it is defective and that as long as it remains, at least in the condition displayed during the ten days, it is creating a death trap at Eighth street.

There is a hazard at that crossing which cannot be minimized. There is no opportunity for the highway users to get a glimpse of the railroad track. A partial view is possible only to the north by the vehicle driver proceeding in a westerly direction. Buildings shut off the view to the south and for the driver going east down a sharp decline with the track at the bottom of the hill there is no chance to see what may be coming in either direction.

A signal that does not show a flashing red light must naturally be respected by the highway users provided the system is operating correctly. When that signal does not operate upon the approach or the passing of a train and continues to indicate safety when the most serious danger is right upon the highway user it is beckoning humanity on with the prospects of slaughter.

Who is anxious to take a chance with the locomotive at that particular crossing and who is going to be responsible in case someone is crushed under a train at that point? What does protection and care amount to when the signal says safe and the engine is ready to strike?

VICTIMS OF FOG

The crashing of the airplane carrying Marra and Kirkpatrick in the Hebron woods can unquestionably be attributed to the fog. Just what the reason was for their appearance in that locality when they were supposed to be headed for Clinton is uncertain. The presumption is that they had found it impossible to tell where they were and possibly they may have turned inland in the hope of finding a landing place away from the fog which was dense during the morning they were known to be in the air. Whether they ever reached the sound and came back or took a course that carried them across the center of the state will probably never be known except through inferences based upon the reports of those who claimed to have heard a plane flying low.

The finding of the plane and the bodies confirms the report of the resident of that vicinity who heard a plane and it seems probable that either they were flying low in an endeavor to find a landing place or were forced down when they struck the tree and were thrown to their death.

These deaths add to the list of those who have been killed in this state because of fog. Whether it is navigating the air or guiding a ship, there is a menace from the fog which cannot be ignored. Hopeful indications have been given that through new devices it will be possible to indicate to air pilots where landing fields are located, but even that assistance will be of little value if they happen to be located in territory where there are no landing fields and conditions make it impossible to remain aloft longer. When the day comes that fog can be controlled it will be a happy one on the sea as well as in the air.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Not much joy these days for the lad with new Christmas skates.

According to the plans for policing the Canadian border, it is going to be a cold job for somebody in the winter time.

Are your wells and brooks filled to the point where winter with longer days and greater cold can settle down to business?

No, Thomas, that $17,500 job which Mayor Walker of New York gave former Mayor Hylan isn't charity. He is just paying his predecessor for his support in the last campaign.

An Englishman expressed surprise at seeing American prisoners smoking. If he had chosen his time a bit different he might have been more surprised to see them revolting and escaping.

FIVE DOWN—ONE TO GO

"Good-night, everybody," called Alice as she tripped down the stairs in violet evening gown and rhinestones and was whisked out the front door by Fred, who'd been waiting forty-six minutes for her to appear.

"That girl!" exclaimed her brother Henry. "She gets more spoiled every day."

"She's too darn good looking," said her sister Mary.

"How's her affair coming along with Fred?" inquired her father from behind his newspaper.

"Her affair with Fred!" exclaimed her brother Martin. "Why not speak the truth and say her affairs with Fred, Jack, Ernest and Bill, not to mention Ed and Kingston? Each one of them is so hopelessly in love with her he's languishing to hear her say 'Yes' any minute. But Alice doesn't know her own mind well enough to know which one she likes best."

"I hope she doesn't choose Jack," said Mary. "His father's so rich that he's completely spoiled and will never earn his own living."

"I hope she doesn't choose Ernest or Bill," said Henry. "A girl would have a hard time being married to a twin."

"I hope it isn't Ed," put in her father. "He doesn't play golf and I demand a pal for a son-in-law."

"Well, I hope it isn't Kingston," said Martin. "He's studying to be a doctor and his wife will have a hard life, full of operations and accidents."

"The consensus seems to sift down to Fred," said mother, who had been listening attentively.

"Fred's the one!" "Fred's O. K." "Fred it is! Give us Fred," came a chorus of voices.

"I for one am very glad," said mother. "Fred is a fine young man. I should like nothing better than to see Alice married to a man as devoted and thoroughly worthwhile."

"Well, if that's settled," said father, "we'd better tell Alice our decision and have the thing settled for good and all." Henry looked up horrified.

"Tell Alice our decision!" he scoffed. "Do you think she'd let this family select a husband for her! Why, if she had any inkling we were calmly and deliberately plotting like this she'd marry anybody but Fred, just to prove her independence. Any woman would! Now, if you follow my advice—" Henry lowered his voice. "Come closer," he commanded, and pulling up their chairs the family went into a huddle while Henry divulged the signals for their next play.

It was five nights later. And it was the first night in five that Alice had not dashed out somewhere with one of her numerous admirers. The entire family, strangely enough, were having dinner together.

"I'm glad," observed Henry casually, "that you're not going out tonight, Alice, especially with Fred. Hasn't he been hanging around here too much lately?"

"I was so mortified," put in Martin, "to pass you on the street the other day riding in Fred's dilapidated little old car. And I had Phyllis Andrews with me too. She said, 'Martin, does Alice go around much with that Fred Boles? You know he was such an old grind at college.'"

"Never mind, boys," said Mary. "Alice has some real sheiks. I saw her yesterday having lunch with Ernest and Bill and I thought, 'My, what wouldn't I give to be seen with two such handsome young men at once.'"

"Ed's the only sensible young man you know," put in father. "He isn't always thinking of getting off to play golf or do some other silly thing."

"I read in the paper yesterday," said mother rather timidly, "that Jack's father has just donated a new public library to the city. And I also read Kingston's name among those graduating with honors from medical school."

"Well," said Henry, "I'm glad to hear it! You see, Alice, you don't have to go with an obscure person like Fred. Not with all the boys you know! Why, any one of them would be in seventh heaven if you'd only say 'Yes' and—"

But he got no farther. For Alice, white and trembling, had risen from the table.

"I'll thank you all," she said coldly, "to mind your own affairs. I can choose my own company perfectly all right." And with her head high in the air she marched from the room.

The next night the family, minus Alice, were eating their dinner and discussing the occurrences of the previous evening when a flushed and radiant Alice burst into the room. Right behind her appeared Fred.

"We're married," announced Alice triumphantly.

"Married!" shouted her family.

"To Fred!" said Alice challengingly. "In spite of you all. So there!"

"Touchdown! Hurray for our side!" cried five happy voices as they swarmed around with kisses and congratulations.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 14—For a little $3,000 affair lacking human casualties, the fire at the capitol was about the best advertised blaze of which the Bystander ever heard.

The story hit front pages across the country. Probably it cost far more to tell of it telegraphically than Uncle Sam was out of pocket.

Eye witness accounts say the news and sound reel movie adjuncts to the show were much more spectacular than the fire itself. Why not? Here was opportunity for the camera squads, and they made the most of it.

They had the vast and picturesque capitol building for a background. The east plaza, the American Place d' Inaugurations, you might call it, was filled to the brim with fire fighting equipment r'arin' to go. It all was framed by the faces of thousands upon thousands of onlookers.

Was Great Show

Battalions of firemen not needed in subduing the fire soon were galloping up and down ladders under the urge of the movie directors. Movie light flares kicked up much more fuss and turned out a deal more smoke than the fire. The talkie operators even got a few folks to shout, "Save them thar documents," or words to that effect, to add to the general hubbub. It was all very fine.

But seriously speaking, the capitol and white house fires may prove to be blessings in disguise. They may serve to get action after 50 years of agitation on proposals to create, and adequately house, the national archives which organizations like the American Historical association and the Council of Learned societies have been urging all that time.

There is to be sure, definite provisions for a national archives building as a part of Washington's grandiose building project now advancing with giant strides. It is duly planned and fits into the scheme nicely if you look at the models. But what is to go in it? That, apparently, still is to be thought out.

Bills Pending

Senator Smoot has a bill pending to create "an establishment to be known as the National Archives," also an "Archivist of the United States" as custodian, and a council to "define the classes of material" to compose the archives.

And until that, or something akin to it, is done there are just the government files some 150 years of them. They now are scattered in attics and dingy basements all over Washington. A student needs a search warrant to find them if he seeks documentary historical background.

Some government historians have been hopeful that those now famous Stanfordites, Herb Hoover and Doc Wilbur, would take a hand to urge the archives matter along. They recall that the doctor put a very elaborate and successful indexing system into the Stanford library which bears Mr. Hoover's name.

Maybe they will, now that fire has chased the President out of the sacred seclusion of the white house offices.

YOUR HEALTH

Your Valuable Heart.

By J. C. Anderson, M. D.
Austin, Texas.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The heart is about the size of the closed hand of the individual to whom it belongs. It acts as a force pump, pumping blood about 72 times a minute out into the big blood vessel, the aorta. This vessel soon divides into smaller vessels, and these in turn split up into still smaller ones, and finally we have tiny vessels, called capillaries, that are so small that the minute blood cells have just room to get through them in single file. The veins collect blood from the capillaries and return it to the heart. Each half of the heart has two chambers. One half takes care of the blood carried to the heart by the veins laden with waste, which makes the blood dark or bluish under the skin. This is then pumped to the lungs to be aerated and purified. The other half receives the purified bright red blood coming from the lungs and distributes it to all parts of the body.

Every muscle, every vital organ and especially the brain depend upon the circulation of the blood for nutrition and for that other important function, the collection and disposal of waste material.

The blood pressure is meant to insure an efficient circulation. Now there are many factors in influencing the circulation, such as sleep, muscular exercise, digestion, mental work, the condition of the heart, the emotional state, and so forth. Certain muscles during exercise must have a little more blood. The proper capillaries in those organs must relax a little to let more blood through, and the other capillaries in the body must tighten up a bit in compensation. It's all very intricate and we don't know much about how this business is managed; but we do know that the little muscles in the walls of the capillaries which enable them to squeeze on the contained blood are, in turn, tightened or relaxed through the action of nerves that run to them. And we know that there is one part of the brain that forms a telephone central for this part of the body's automatic control.

Furthermore, our emotions have fully as much to do with variation in blood pressure as does our muscular activity. Fear and anger, especially, and anxiety and worry and impulsiveness—all these tend to send our blood pressure up. Smoking and a hearty meal both raise it. Rest, especially sleep, lowers it. So it goes all day long, the blood pressure rising and falling according to the varying needs of the body. It is a marvelous mechanism.

In addition, our bodies must have an even temperature, neither too hot nor too cold, and the circulation of the blood by the heart help to maintain this. Therefore the importance of a heart that functions perfectly is apparent.

In the heart are four valves to keep the blood from flowing backward. It is these valves and the muscular walls of the heart that often become diseased or defective. The way to keep your heart in good shape is to have an occasional examination just to forestall any tendency for it to go bad.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Time To Do Something About Dirt Roads.

Mr. Editor: Isn't it pretty near time for a new crop of editorials about the condition of the dirt roads?

It isn't too early to start thinking about the state elections to be held this year with an object in mind to elect men to place a fair portion of the "gas" tax where it will be of some benefit to those who pay the tax.

The outlook for relief from the state highway department under the present dictatorship, judging from past performances, seems very gloomy and I think an effort should be made to place a man in charge of the highway department who will think of the highways as useful necessities and not as beautiful luxurious ornaments. To a driver of an auto ten yards of gravel in a mud hole means more than a landscaped roadside and what we want is a highway commissioner who can take our "gas" tax and spend it for road building material and not for artificial beauty marks. If roadsides need beautifying let the local community be the Santa Claus. Fair driving conditions on dirt roads would be a great deal more attractive to nature lovers than all the landscaping any highway commissioner can think up and would drain quite a little traffic from the main roads which might reduce the accident list.

This is the year to select a new governor. Perhaps a change there might improve rural conditions on roads and otherwise. Dr. Higgins, the present secretary of state, worked hard four years ago to get the legislature to pass a bill to improve the dirt roads. His proposed bill, evidently, was too effective to meet with the approval of the committee on roads, etc., which consults the present highway commissioner before it can decide anything, so a substituted bill was entered and passed over the protest of Dr. Higgins and the reward for his labor was a bill which meant nothing at all to the highway commissioner and a lot less to the dirt road traveller. Two years ago another dirt road bill was passed which puts the towns to an additional expense in maintaining the roads, to get a little improvement for a few users. This improvement means an added expense to the auto user who already pays plenty for the privilege of satisfying the whims of a highway commissioner with an artistic temperament.

Dirt road improvement is not only for the benefit of rural communities. It would benefit the telephone company, power companies, who have rural lines to maintain, rural mail carriers, doctors, grain stores and city merchants, making rural deliveries, and city dwellers with friends and relatives on the farms and I hope all these people, the farm bureau, grange and farmers' organizations, will take an active interest in the coming election and try to place men on the ballot who can hear the folks at home above the sweet talk of the lobbyist and see to it that the taxes are spent for the benefit of those who pay the taxes.

Now is the time for the rural road improvement boosters in the cities to look around for representatives to push the road improvement program along. The rural vote will back up any improvement they don't have to pay twice for.

Yours truly,
GILBERT HAGEN.

The Read Balm Of Gilead Tree.

Mr. Editor: A friend of mine, J. E. Phillips, of Jewett City, sent me The Bulletin of Jan. 9th, in which is an account of Fannie Read of Hancock, N. Y.

Here is a story that I heard when a boy: There was a relative, a young lady, that visited the Read homestead in Lisbon, when a girl on horseback (wouldn't be surprised if Fannie Read was the one), and she had for a whip a sprout of a Balm of Gilead tree. My great uncle, Asher (whom I was named after), had heard that if you stuck the sprout of a Balm of Gilead tree in the ground it would grow. So he tried it. Not seeing any results for quite a while he pulled it up and he found it had sprouted, and he put it right back and it grew up to be a monster as any of the older residents in Lisbon and Jewett City can tell you. People from all the country around used to go there and pick the buds to make liniment of which was done by filling a bottle with the buds and then filling it up with rum. Believe me, it worked wonders, and I don't believe there are many liniments that can beat it to this day.

When I was a boy in my teens Uncle Augusta and Anut Lovira used to have some wonderful reunions at Thanksgiving and Fourth of July. I don't believe anybody in southeastern Connecticut ever had any such. I have wondered since, many a time, how she ever did it. During the Fourth of July reunions they used to bring the organ out of the house to in under this tree and have a sing. Aunt Mercy used to play the organ and one of the pieces they sang (I don't think of the piece now) but they sang the chorus, Balm of Gilead, Balm of Gilead that grows on Tom Read's farm. When this tree got so old that dead limbs used to drop into the road, Uncle Augustus chopped it down, being afraid some one would get hurt. He tried many a time to sprout some branches but without success. (I suppose the tree was too old.) But lo and behold, a sprout did come up from one of the roots a little further from the road. This sprout was guarded, now I tell you. A fence was built around it to keep off cattle, horses, boys or anything else till it got to be a pretty good sized tree. Today it is a great, big tree, almost like the original.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

The Telltale Snow

A footprint seems a harmless thing,
But endless trouble it may bring.
—Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

It began snowing in the night. It was one of those quiet, gentle snows, with no wind. Once Chatterer the Red Squirrel woke up in the night and he heard the gentle sound of the snow as it sifted down through the branches of the trees. When morning came the Green Forest and the Green Meadows were carpeted with white. It was a light snow and not a deep one. When Chatterer poked his head out he saw right away that it wouldn't interfere with him at all. It was only just a light carpet and he could run about as usual.

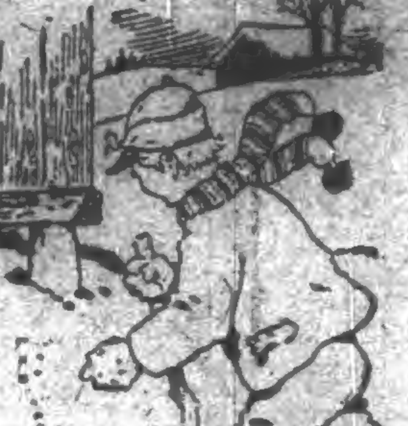
As usual, Chatterer's first thought was of the corn over in Farmer Brown's corncrib. He had become so accustomed to having corn for breakfast that he didn't think of anything else. So, as usual, he scampered over to the old stone wall, along the old stone wall to the end, across Farmer Brown's dooryard to the tree near the corncrib, and so finally by means of the broken branch hanging over the corncrib he reached the ladder. Two minutes later he was inside making his breakfast of corn.

As usual, Farmer Brown's Boy came to get the corn for the chickens. Later he went into the house for breakfast. Chatterer had by this time had all the corn he wanted. It was time to go back to the Green Forest. He squeezed out, as usual, between two of the boards on the side of the corncrib, ran down to the bottom and from there jumped to the ground. Then he scurried away home. All this time he had forgotten one very important thing. He had forgotten that he was leaving tracks in the snow.

After breakfast Farmer Brown's Boy went out, and as he made his way to the barn he noticed tracks crossing the dooryard. He stopped to look at them. There they were clearly outlined. One glance was enough to tell Farmer Brown's Boy who had made them.

"So," said he, "Chatterer has been over here early this morning. I wonder what he has been doing. I'll follow his tracks and see what I can find out. Sometimes one can learn a great deal from tracks."

So Farmer Brown's Boy followed the tracks of Chatterer back to the corncrib. There was the story written in the snow. He could see where Chatterer had jumped down from the corncrib. He rubbed his nose thoughtfully. "So," said he, "it has been



"So" said he, "Chatterer has been over here early this morning!"

Chatterer all the time. This is where he left the corncrib, but how under the sun did he get into it? There must be some more tracks around here. If he left tracks getting away, he must have made tracks coming."

So Farmer Brown's Boy began to walk in a circle around the corncrib. Presently he once more came to the tracks left by Chatterer the Red Squirrel. This time he did not follow them backward. He went in the direction that the tracks led. They ended at the foot of the maple tree growing near the corncrib. Farmer Brown's Boy looked up. Almost at once he saw the broken branch hanging down. He had noticed that branch before, but had given it no thought. Now, however, he looked from the tip of the branch to the roof of the corncrib, and on that roof he saw tracks again. It was all perfectly clear now. He understood how Chatterer had reached the corncrib.

Farmer Brown's Boy chuckled. "If it hadn't been for this telltale snow," said he, "I guess Chatterer would have fooled me for the rest of the winter. This is the time he made a mistake. He forgot all about the tracks he was leaving. Well, now we know how he gets into the corncrib, we know how to stop it. I wonder if he'll be able to find another way in?"

Quick Relief From Constipation

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache, torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

ADVISES HEAT OF RED PEPPERS FOR RHEUMATISM

Brings Almost Instant Relief

When the intolerable pains of rheumatism or aches or neuritis or lumbago drive you nearly mad...don't forget the marvelous heat nature put into red peppers. For it is this penetrating heat that relieves all pain as it soothes and gets down under the skin, seeming to clear up inflammation instantly. It is this genuine red pepper's heat that is now contained in an ointment called Rowles Red Pepper Rub. You rub it on without fear of blistering or burning. As you rub you can feel relief come. There's nothing better for breaking up a dangerous chest cold, either. All druggists sell Rowles Red Pepper Rub in convenient jars.

LEAVE DECISION TO JUDGE WITHOUT ARGUMENTS IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

Before Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court here Tuesday, trial was held in the $10,000 suit brought against George A. Emin of 42 Cedar street, Fair Haven, Mass., an automobile dealer, and Clifton H. Whitaker of 51 Brackman street, New Bedford, Mass., one of his drivers, by Noyes Main of Stonington, for the death of his 8-year old daughter, Constance, on June 14, 1928 when she was struck by one of Emin's car which Whitaker was driving.

The testimony was concluded and Judge Avery reserved decision.

The little girl was hit in front of her own home by the new Chevrolet coupe which Whitaker was driving just after she had alighted from a Ford touring car in which she had been brought home from school by Mrs. Caroline Gavitt. Mr. Main brought suit as administrator of his daughter's estate, and had Attorneys H. W. Rathbun and Gallagher as his counsel. Attorney D. S. Pelgrift of Hartford was counsel for the defendant insurance company, which carried the automobile dealer's risk.

A blue print of the location of the accident at the Main house on the Boston post road was shown and explained by Civil Engineer Lewis J. Rosai and two photographs of locality were explained by H. Russell Burdick.

According to the testimony of Joseph E. King, formerly a state police officer but now a coast guardsman at Fishers Island, the Chevrolet coupe Whitaker was driving carried the little girl 87 feet before she dropped into the highway and the car went on about 15 feet more before it was brought to a stop.

State Policeman Daniel C. Browne testified to his conversation with Mr. Whitaker who said he was driving at 35 miles an hour as he came over the brow and didn't see the girl until she was struck by the fender. The witness described damage which he saw on the left front end of the fender of the Chevrolet car. There were dents in it and two marks on it, he said, like the enamel from teeth. The foot brake on the car was defective and wouldn't lock the wheels.

Mrs. Caroline Gavitt of Wequetequock, who had driven Constance Main from school on the day of the accident with two other children, told of letting the girl out of the car and watching traffic until she told the girl it was safe to go across the road, as the girl stood back of the left rear fender. She said she didn't see the Chevrolet car until just before it hit the girl and it was traveling fast.

Mrs. Florence I. Main, mother of the little girl, testified to the visible marks of injury on the child's face and body, which included two broken front teeth. These, the witness said, were found in the mudguard of the automobile that hit her. The child's body was picked up in the center of the road and she lived about 2 minutes after the accident. Mrs. Main was followed on the stand by her husband, Noyes Main.

After the plaintiff rested, Dr. Herman Atwood of Stonington was the first witness called for the defense. He said he saw Mrs. Gavitt's car parked as he was approaching it from the rear in his automobile and saw the little girl dart out from behind it and run into the Whitaker car. At the time the little girl ran out into the road, the witness said, the front ends of the Gavitt car and the Whitaker machine were opposite each other. The witness said he did not believe it was possible to park a car entirely off the road at the point of the accident. He was the first to reach the girl as she lay in the highway after she had been hit.

On cross examination he denied that he told Officer King the Chevrolet car was "coming down that hill at a terrific rate of speed."

Mrs. Clara Atwood, wife of the doctor, who was with him in the automobile, riding in the front seat with him, said that she did not see the accident, having been looking off to the right, and she testified to getting out and helping to pick the girl up and take her into the house.

Miss Adeline E. Baxter of Mystic, who was in the back seat of Dr. Atwood's automobile, testified that the little girl came out from behind the parked car and ran into the other machine. She said she shut her eyes and next saw the little girl's body in the road.

Clifton H. Whitaker, 33, driver of the machine which hit the child, testified that he was driving a new Chevrolet car from the assembly plant at Tarrytown, N. Y., one of a string of four, and that he was fourth in the string. He said he saw the Gavitt parked car and the first he knew of any accident was when he felt a bump, stopped the car and looked back and saw the little girl lying in the road, about in the center.

On cross examination he said his first impression upon feeling the bump, was that some one had thrown a bundle out from the side of the road and that he had hit it.

James Marsden of Beverly, Mass., who was driving the car ahead of Whitaker, on the trip from Tarrytown, and George A. Emin, one of the defendants, who was driving another car in the string, also testified. The latter told of tests of the brakes made before they left Tarrytown, all seeming to be in proper working order. These drivers all noticed the Gavitt parked car with a woman sitting in it, but saw no children.

After cross-examination of these two witnesses, the defense rested and the plaintiff's attorneys recalled State Policeman King and Mrs. Gavitt for rebuttal testimony.

Judge Avery reserved decision, after the attorneys on both sides had waived arguments.

Court adjourned to the next morning at 1 o'clock.

MOOSUP WOMEN'S MEETING HAD INTERMITTENT LIGHTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

MOOSUP, Jan. 14.—The women's meeting in connection with dedication week at the Moosup Baptist church was interrupted by the flashing on and off of the lights through some line failure early this evening. The power of both the Cranska mills and the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., failed. The Cranska power was finally turned on for the remainder of the evening but the Danielson power was off most of the evening so that there were no electric lights for the service, except at intervals and the program was seriously interrupted, because of lack of power to play the organ.

Mrs. Alfred Hyde, president of the Ladies' Aid, presided. Mrs. Charles Burgess led in prayer. Mrs. Hyde read a composite scripture, bearing on the faith and works of women in the new testament. Mrs. Charlotte Kitchen sang My Faith Is Thee, by Wells and Mrs. Louis A. Hoar sang Sheep and Lamb, by Homer. There were four very beautiful selections by the Flagg trio from Danielson. Amid candle light Miss Alma J. Noble of the World-wide guild, the girl's missionary organization of the Baptist denomination, who came from Buffalo, N. Y., spoke to the girls and young women.

She gave instances of missionary workers and others interpreting God to those around them. A practical application of the idea of every person as an interpreter of God, needing to understand God's point of view as well as the point of view of the people about whom each one lives, was made when Miss Noble asked such questions as what sort of an interpreter of God are you in the home, the school, the office or in whatever relationship you come to in every day life. In a radio program recently, the people listening in complained of a great deal of fading and it was found that it was caused by the tick of a watch near the microphone. It had interfered with and spoiled the message.

Miss Noble said that with the new beautiful church the people in Moosup should better interpret Christ to the community, doing new things for Christ, seeking modern and varied opportunities to accomplish this. Don't let the tick of trivial things interfere with the transmission of the revelation which God is making through you to your community and to the world.

A second address was given by Mrs. William A. Hill, former Moosup girl, now of New Rochelle, N. Y. Her subject was Our High Calling As Women. Mrs. Hill said that there were definite things that women could do in a church. They could care for the sick, the aged and the lonely, visiting and cheering them, they could inspire by giving visions outside of self to the boys and girls growing up, they could give definite Bible, ethical, social and missionary education as well as much that would be of secular help to boys and girls. Mrs. Hill emphasized the joy of such a service and pointed out the fact that life needs us all.

There is a place for every one. Every woman must see that she is in her place.

Thursday night at 7.30 there will be a house-warming in the church vestry. This is to be a social evening in charge of Thomas Hope. Mrs. John Baker and Miss Ruth Wilson will play a violin duet. Greetings will be extended to the community by Rev. R. W. E. DeWolfe and Lucius B. Cranska will show motion pictures of the construction of the new church and of the explorations of Byrd at the south pole.

C. L. Class Elects Officers

The C. L. class of Trinity Methodist church met at the parsonage on Williams street Monday evening. The annual report was read and accepted and the following officers were elected: President, Miss Eleonore Fenton; treasurer, Mrs. Elizabeth Biorn; recording secretary, Mrs. Eva Ide; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. Louise Crowe.

The hostesses were Miss Helen Cooper and Mrs. A. Louise Crowe. Dainty refreshments were served to fourteen members present.

LECTURE ON RODIN FOR ART ASSOCIATION

The Norwich Art association held its regular meeting Monday evening at Slater hall and was presided over by the newly-elected president, Joseph H. Hall, Jr.

The usual reports were rendered by Mrs. Austin E. Goodyear, secretary, and Mrs. Fred Sudlow, treasurer, after which there was discussion of amendments to the constitution.

Prof. Carola Ernst of Connecticut college was the speaker of the evening and brought a discriminating address upon "The Art of Rodin," which was illustrated with lantern slides.

The recent inauguration of a Rodin museum in Philadelphia by Jules E. Mastbaum is the justification for the choice of subject.

Prof. Ernst asked what was Rodin's place among his contemporaries and in the history of sculpture, contrasting him with the academic school and with the reformers, impressionists, secessionists, and post-impressionists. These schools have lost sight of the great traditions of the past. Rodin, following the example of Rude, Carpeaux, Barye, steeps his art first in the Greek, later in the Gothic traditions. He thus helps to re-discover the undying path of true art by re-discovering men and nature.

A second question is, "Where did Rodin's heart lie, with classical antiquity or with the Gothic?"

Discussion of the development of sculpture from the Egyptian to modern times shows the opposition which separates pagan from Christian inspiration, and corresponding differences in technique.

Rodin is shown as an excellent modern representative of the accretion received by the mind of man since the beginning of art, and as a modern he owes more to the Gothic than to the Greeks.

These points were illustrated by slides showing "Age of Bronze," one of the "Burghers of Calais" and "The Gates of Hell."

A third question was "How does Rodin produce the sensation of intense life?" One answer is found in his treatment of surfaces. His works are never formed from the outside but are conceived as growing outward from inner necessity.

(Illustrations, "Adam" and "Eve.")

Another answer is found in the movement of his figures. He produces the sensation of movement by giving simultaneously two successive positions. (Illustrations, "St. John," "Daphne" and "Proyne.") This idea is extended to sculptural groups where a single sculpture dramatizes successive scenes. (Illustrated by the "Burghers of Calais.")

Rodin is noteworthy in his choice of subjects. He has a predilection for vigor and health; he regards the feminine form as a synthesis of all forms and his realism is wonderful in the presentation of old age. (The latter illustrated by "La Belle Heaulmière"—The old Courtezan.)

The culmination of this discussion brings forward the question "Is there such a thing as ugliness for art?" "What does he mean when he says that whatever possesses character is beautiful?" The artist must present truth; he cannot tell a lie.

Rodin is further notable in the subjects taken from literature, as witness some of the illustrations.

A final point of excellence in Rodin is found in his portrait busts. He may be compared with the famous Houdon, whose portrayal of character in the figure was equal to written biography. Similar characteristics are revealed in Rodin and illustrations shown were the Victor Hugo Monument, Balzac, Puvis de Chavannes, Dalou, Laurens, Madame Morla Vicuna and Madame X.

The slides for the lecture were loaned by the Metropolitan Museum of New York and the lantern was operated by Louis H. Walden.

Annual Event For Church.

One of the great gatherings for the year of the Central Baptist church is to take place Thursday evening with the annual supper at 6:30, which is followed by the annual church meeting. Adequate provision for serving the supper is made by the women according to the number who notify the church office of their intention to attend.

FORESTERS VOTE HONORS TO TREASURER CALLAHAN

Court City of Norwich, No. 63, F. of A., had its officers installed Tuesday evening at Foresters' hall at a meeting attended by about 75 that proved a very interesting session. Deputy Grand Chief Ranger James H. Casey was in charge of the installation exercises and was assisted by Past Grand Chief Ranger Henry A. Congdon. The officers installed follows:

Chief ranger, Michael Duggan; sub chief ranger, Louis Sauter; recording secretary, Henry Clement; financial secretary, William H. Ryan; treasurer, William H. Callahan; senior woodward, John Ginese; junior woodward, Harry Lasch; senior beadle, Maurice Garvey; junior beadle, Angelo Pomo; lecturer, Peter Barber; trustee, Albert Thorp.

By a unanimous vote of the court, past chief ranger honors were conferred upon Treasurer William H. Callahan, who has held this office continuously for 38 years, and Financial Secretary William H. Ryan, who has served the organization in that capacity for four years.

Following a group of vocal selections rendered by Maurice Garvey, Harry Lasch, John Ginese and Michael Duggan, a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

The committee in charge comprised Henry A. Congdon, Louis Sauter, Harry Lasch, Charles Lasch, Joseph Cormier and Roy Bolduc.

OBSERVED THEIR 60TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dowsett, of 12 Whittaker avenue, this city, quietly observed their 60th wedding anniversary on Sunday last. The happy couple, who were married at the Falls by Rev. House, Jan. 12, 1870, were the recipients of many choice gifts including gold, silver, household articles and flowers.

Both are enjoying good health with no impaired faculties, have a happy outlook on life, and a splendid knowledge of the joys of companionable happy comradeship through the years.

Mrs. Dowsett, who was Elsie A. Rudd, is a direct descendant of Gov. William Bradford, and Lieut. Nathaniel Rudd, of Bride Brook fame, while Mrs. Dowsett descended from the sturdy Spicer stock, conspicuous in Ledyard history. Two sons, Charles A. Dowsett of this city, and W. Irving Dowsett, of Groton, were born to this couple, they also have a granddaughter, Dorothy I. Dowsett, of Groton.

Mr. and Mrs. Dowsett's countless friends wish them many more years of wedded joy. Their wedding was called over the radio Monday morning and many congratulations by phone and telegraph followed as a result.

BREAKS ARM IN FALL AT CITY POWER PLANT

Richard T. Driscoll, 40, of No. 34 Central avenue, an employe of the Norwich gas and electric department, was seriously injured about 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, when he slipped and fell from a ladder on which he was working at the plant on North Main street. Mr. Driscoll was engaged in washing windows in the interior of the plant and in some unexplained manner fell to the floor 25 feet below.

He was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital, but was later removed to his home on Central avenue. It was found after an X-ray was taken that he received concussion of the brain, a wrenched back, lacerations about the eyes and a broken left forearm. He was attended by Dr. John Suplicki.

PROTECTING STERLING SCHOOL CHILDREN AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

During the past few years, the state of Connecticut has been making an extensive drive to wipe out diphtheria, the most dreaded disease among children.

Owing to immunization, the number of cases throughout the state has been greatly reduced during the past year. In the town of Sterling, 130 children received immunization against diphtheria during the latter part of December.

Diphtheria, being principally a child's disease, once the child is inoculated, he has practically been made immune from the disease for life.

CLEANERS and DYERS

DRINK WATER IF BACK OR KIDNEYS HURT

Begin Taking Salts if You Feel Backachy or Have Bladder Weakness

Too much rich food forms acids which excite and overwork the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Flush the kidneys occasionally to relieve them like you relieve the bowels, removing acids, waste and poison, else you may feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headaches, dizziness, the stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get irritated, obliging one to get up two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste, begin drinking water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine and bladder disorders disappear.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help prevent serious kidney and bladder disorders.

Nelson J. Ayling, George R. Bradford, Joseph P. Connor, Herbert F. Dawley, Calvin H. Frisbie, Herbert W. Gallup, Benjamin T. Hall, James C. Henderson, Alexander Jordan, Charles E. Lamb, Ebenezer Learned, Jacob Munz, Frank E. Palmer, Rutherford C. Plaut, Henry F. Powers, C. Morgan Williams.

At a later meeting of the directors these officers were re-elected: President, Henry F. Powers; vice president, and cashier, Charles D. Greenman; vice president, Herbert F. Dawley; assistant cashier, Dwight L. Underwood; assistant cashier, W. Manley Eastwood, Jr.

The third meeting of the parliamentary law class of the Woman's City club was held Monday at the Wauregan hotel. Mrs. William H. Dawley presided.

Judge Arthur F. Libby reviewed the points of the previous meeting, which were motions and amendments. The topic for the afternoon was "to refer" or "to refer the subject to a committee." Committees and their workings, majority and minority reports, reception and adoption of reports, were discussed. The meeting was [illegible] formal questions being asked by the members.

H. R. BOND, JR., NATIVE OF NEW LONDON, DIES IN NEW YORK TUESDAY MORNING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—Henry Richardson Bond, Jr., 65, a native of New London and formerly residing on Pequot avenue, died early today at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian hospital, New York, from pneumonia, with which malady he was stricken last week. When his condition did not improve, Mr. Bond was taken to the hospital and until the end came it was believed that he would recover. Only yesterday Mr. Bond's heart action was believed to be stronger and every hope was held out for his recovery. However during the early morning hours, his condition took a turn for the worse. Mr. Bond is survived by his wife, who was Mrs. Harriet Learned Howland, of Norwich and a step-daughter, Mrs. Carl Foster of New Bedford, Mass. He was a member of the Thames club and New London lodge of Elks. Mr. Bond was a former member of the city council, having served one term as alderman and for several years was secretary and treasurer of the former New London Ship & Engine company. He terminated his connection with the Groton company several years ago and went to New York and entered into business with Thomas A. Scott and James E. Barlow, the latter formerly city manager in New London, the business being the manufacture of automatic refrigerators. Mr. Bond was a member of Northwest Hose company and Pequot Hose company. He was a graduate of Yale university.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Bond. Two of Mr. Bond's sisters, Mrs. Alfred Tyler, of Anniston, Ala., and Mrs. Robert Thorne, of New York, died during the past year.

Mr. Bond was a trustee of the New London Public Library and during his residence in New London, gave generously of his wealth. He was grandson of Rev. Dr. Alvin Bond, for years pastor of the Second Congregational church, Norwich.

COAST GUARD SAILORS TRY TO WRECK A TRAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—United States Coast Guard sailors attempted to wreck a train of the New Haven railroad last night by placing construction material on one of the main line tracks. As a result of the act, Archie L. Vines, a member of the crew of the cutter Legare is under arrest and two others, Louis J. Angelo and Maxine Grenier, also members of the Legare's crew will probably be taken into custody. Vines, who has made a complete confession of the part he played in attempting the train wreck, has implicated Angelo and Grenier. Vines was in the police court this morning on a technical charge of intoxication and his case was continued until tomorrow, when the more serious charge of attempted train wrecking will be made against the prisoner. In default of a surety on his bond of $300, Vines was committed to jail to await a hearing for by tomorrow the police will have concluded their investigation.

Vines, Angelo and Grenier were among many of the bluejackets that had shore liberty last night. They left their boat early in the evening and after roaming about the streets and attending a picture house performance they went to Main street, then to a North Bank street drinking resort. At the latter place, the sailors drank freely and remained there the greater part of an hour. When Vines, Angelo and Grenier departed they went to John street, to Water street and to the tracks of the railroad. While walking along the tracks between Douglass and Federal streets, the sailors came upon a huge pile of lumber about 20 feet away from the tracks. Vines, according to his confession to Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, with the assistance of one of his companions, whether Angelo or Grenier he claims not to remember, assisted him in removing one of the heaviest of the timbers from the pile and carrying it to the west bound tracks across which it was laid. They then continued to Douglas street, then to Main street, where Vines hurled a stone through the plate glass window of the National Economy store, corner of Shapley street. On the crash of glass, the three sailors fled, but Vines did not continue to run after he reached Hill street. Patrolman John Clifford, who was on a trolley car, observed the sailors as they ran and alighting from the car, arrested Vines, who was retracing his steps. Vines was locked up on a charge of intoxication and later when Lieut. David Marks, of the force of special agents of the railroad, reported the finding of the timber on the tracks, Vines was questioned and he finally admitted participating in the attempted train wreck. A youth, Linwood Farrell, of 585 Main street, identified Vines as the sailor who smashed the Main street store window.

FUNERAL

William F. Damas

The funeral of William F. Damas, former well known marine engineer, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at his residence, 221 Crystal avenue and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth, pastor of the First Church of Christ. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Herbert Coates, of Groton; Mrs. Henry Siegal and infant daughter, 610 Ocean avenue; Miss Annie Shea, 85 Walbach street; Robert Page, 197 Montauk avenue; James O'Donnell, 859 Main street; John Stewart, Groton, Mrs. Edward Stockford, and infant son, 309 Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Rev. Raymond J. O'Callahan, assistant pastor at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, is confined to the rectory by illness.

An automobile carrying Connecticut markers of the issue of 1929, which had been parked since Jan. 8 on Linden street, was taken in charge by the police today. The car was ordered towed to a garage and placed in storage until such time as the owner appears and claims it.

FINE OF $200 AND COSTS FOR HAVING BOOZE TO SELL

Dennis Shaughnessy, employed at the drinking resort, 108 Howard street, was in the police court today charged on one count, keeping with intent to sell, in violation of the liquor law. Shaughnessy pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs and paid. It was the first time that Shaughnessy had been prosecuted for violation of the liquor law. He was arrested last night by Patrolmen Dennis Murphy and Louis Pine. Evidence that liquor was being sold at the house had been obtained and that information being presented before Deputy Judge John McGarry a search warrant was issued. The raiding officers however were surprised at the small quantity of liquor found, for instead of uncovering a storehouse, but five one-gallon containers of bacardi rum, two quarts of gin and a very small quantity of whiskey was found and seized.

Joseph Verdi, 18 Brewer street, was charged with non-support in failing to provide for his wife, Rose and five children, Jesse, 17; Josephine, 18; Catherine, 16; Joseph, 3 and Francis, aged two months. The charge was nolled. Verdi was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer.

Two cases of intoxication were also tried. One man was discharged and the other, a stranger was given a suspended sentence of 10 days in jail.

LAWRENCE HALL BALLROOM FIRE WAS INCENDIARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—The police and Fire Chief Thomas Shipman today are engaged in investigating a fire that was discovered late yesterday in Lawrence hall ballroom, 17 Bank street, for the circumstances attending the discovery and extinguishing of the fire, indicate that the fire was the work of an incendiary. When the fire, which was located in the coat room, was discovered a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters. Fire Chief Thomas Shipman responded and subdued the blaze, which was beneath the floor boards, with chemicals and before damage of consequence resulted. The investigation by Chief Shipman resulted in numerous matches being found in the coat room and that information was turned over to Detective-Sergeant Nelson Smith.

Malicious youths last night went to the entrance of the Armour Beef company's quarters and finding a crate of eggs there, amused themselves by opening the crate and hurling its entire contents against buildings and other similar targets until every egg had been destroyed.

WSHEMAN HAD SKULL FRACTURED BY BLOW OR FALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—The New London police have a murder investigation on their hands, for this morning Jacob Waheman, 25 Chapley street, where he is a lodger in the home of Mrs. Kate Schultz, died from a fractured skull, sustained Saturday night on Main street. The circumstances connected with the death of Waheman are such that the police have little or nothing to work upon, but one or two clues that they have been able to gather may result in valuable information being secured. Detective Sargeant Nelson Smith is at work on the case. This afternoon Linwood Farrell, more familiarly known as "Peanuts," colored and but 17, son of Mrs. George Bates, 585 Main street, and William Franklin, also colored, known as "Rattle Snake Peter," were arrested and are being held on suspicion.

Waheman, about 38, and a Lithuanian, was on Main street Saturday night last and he is known to have entered a restaurant. In the restaurant was Charles Williams, also colored, who has been employed as a barge cook, together with Farrell. When Waheman left the restaurant he was followed by Williams and Farrell and when near Shapley street, Waheman was attacked by Williams and beaten, the Lithuanian being felled by a blow on the jaw, and being allowed to remain in the gutter where he was knocked out. The following day Waheman complained of feeling ill, but a physician was not summoned until the following day when Dr. Thomas Soltz was called. By that time Waheman was unconscious and he failed to respond to medical treatment, expiring this forenoon about 9 o'clock.

It then developed that Williams was employed as cook on the barge Northern 39, of which John Goatling is master. Detective Sargeant Smith went to the barge and ascertained that Williams appeared aboard the barge Sunday morning, declared that he would not work longer and was paid off. That was the last seen of the cook.

Farrell, who is of the type of youth that is out at all hours of the night, has made a statement to the police that he witnessed Williams hitting Waheman a blow that knocked the latter into the gutter. This afternoon Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman conducted an autopsy on Waheman and determined that death was caused by a fractured skull. Williams' home is in Norfolk, Va., and it is presumed that he has gone to that city.

Josh Hubbard, colored, and with a police record as long as one's arm, was arrested tonight by Patrolmen John Clifford and Dennis Murphy, charged with breach of the peace and intoxication. He will be in court tomorrow.

A Fair-And-Square Driver

Salvatore Impelleteri, Montauk avenue, tonight reported to the police that while driving his automobile on Bank street it collided with another auto that was parked and caused some damage, the extent of which he did not know. Impelleteri said that if the identity of the car owner was made known, he would willingly pay for such damage as was occasioned.

Dr. Julian Ely, of Huntington street, this afternoon notified the police that the automobile that he was driving, struck a bicycle on Shapley street and damaged it.

An employe of the Shore Line Express bus that handles freight, reported to the police late today that a box of smoked shoulders had been delivered at the entrance of Wilson & Co., Railroad avenue and that three of the shoulders had been stolen. The driver also said that a tub of butter that had been left at the entrance of Armour's, also on Railroad avenue, had been taken. The drivers of the trucks leave their freight at the point of destination and without anyone to receive it. In the meantime thieves happen along and steal the edibles.

HOW A BROWN BOTTLE DISAPPOINTED A PARTY

When the town was shaking with cold Saturday, a mean wind sweeping across Noank harbor and heavy sheepskin coats were in style, the fishing fleet tied up at the dock. One could hear everybody say, "Gee, it is cold!" Bishop Jerome Mace, a small young man but heavy built, with shoulders like a wrestler, was standing on the dock in a green bathing suit ready for a swim. Cold weather doesn't bother this swimmer; the colder the better for him. So standing on Roger's dock, ready for his cold dip, the small man Mace jumped into the water. A row boat was behind him. Stretching his long arms, the human fish was on his way to Mason Island, a distance of three-fourths of a mile. The man at the oars was Billie Barry. Little Billie had on a heavy coat and fisherman's mitts but even then was shaking with cold while the human fish, Mace, was pawing the thin ice before him and claimed the water was great. He reached Mason's Island in 45 minutes—good time for this kind of weather, taking a rub down. Both men rowed back to the dock while a small crowd cheered the human fish for his dip in the ice water. His legs were red as a sugar beet from the cold. One fellow said, "Are you afraid of getting a bad cold in that ice water?" "No," the happy swimmer told his little friend. "I have been doing this for the last 10 years—in my home town in Canada where a real winter came and 14 below zero. I cut holes in the ice so I could go over my head for about 10 minutes. I also shovel snow in my B. V. D.'s, go around without a hat on. I never get cold, go in my bare feet. I walked a mile to my uncle's house for some tea for our breakfast. The snow was waist high but when the snow got between my toes it sure did tickle! And a cold wave went up my back. So when I got back home with the tea, I soaked my feet in cold water so not to freeze a toe or two and they never bother me any."

His fellow workers at the Socony station have nicknamed him Bishop; he is always talking on baseball or when he lost the wad of greenbacks in the stock market in Wall street, when the bottom fell out, that was heard all over the world. That roll was as large as a watermelon. But he has to be a good loser—like a poker player losing with a full house, when he plays the stock market. "A funny thing happened to me about a year ago. I was standing on the Crescent beach dock and saw a long brown bottle so I took off my white trousers and shirt and dove down and brought the bottle to the surface. It read 'Old Crow Whiskey.' At one time that name was heard all over the world, but now it has been rubbed off the list as the law 18 in Washington is in force, meaning no more. O Boy! It was good to see Old Crow in action. So I took home the bottle. In the meanwhile some rich guy with a 25-cent cigar between his two gold teeth said, 'I will give you $20 for that bottle!' But I turned the offer down, for I wanted to pull a party for the Socony drivers with their lady friends or wives. So the party took place at my cottage at Crescent beach. The fireplace was going with a large log that lit up the room like a forest fire. Two tables were in use, there being eight in the party. A good game of bridge was started and for two hours the cards were hot. Mrs. Nellie O'Shaw won the prize, a yellow bird cage with a painted sparrow as a canary. They wanted the bird to sing but it would not move and they found out it was a stuffed one put in the cage as a joke. The cook, Miss Alice River of New York, put on a Broadway dinner, from a steak up to a large red lobster. It was a swell feed. After the chicken Bishop Mace brought out the deep water bottle—a picture of a crow and the words 'Old Crow.' So each one was given a wee bit in a glass by the steady hand of Miss River. The human fish, Mace, said a toast as the glasses were raised to the lips to drink with a cheer. But they found out the good stuff of over 50 years was only salt water. The gang was disappointed. Being there under the water so long it must have leaked out and have given the fish a little cheer—made them do tricks.

Bishop Mace said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I am sorry it turned out to be salt water. It makes me feel bad to have everyone come here to try my Old Crow to find that he flew away to some unknown part! I was offered $20 for that bottle of salt water and never sold it, just to have a party and a good time. So you all see I did my best." "But how did that bottle get to the bottom of the ocean?" was asked by Fred Do Less. "Well," the human fish, Mace said, "Many years ago some rum runners tried to get a load into the dock and they lost a few bottles of the 1877 whiskey but got away with the rest. That was told to me by an old sea captain who watched and saw every wave on the ocean for the last 60 years. Well, we will have some circus pink lemonade with sponge cake! Then play the radio and let's all have a good time even if the brown bottle turned out to have salt water inside! But think of the kidding I am going to get from my fellow workingmen. But it is all in a life time."

More and More COLDS treated externally
A GENERATION ago when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated this modern way, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."
Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs. Of course it is equally good for adults. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.
To keep pace with the ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds, the famous Vick slogan has again been changed, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

STATE REFORMATORY SENTENCE FOR CAVINK

John L. Cavink, 36 1-2 Pleasant street, was before Acting Judge Herbert P. Clark Monday noon in a special session of Third District court, charged by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown on Jan. 13th with being a disorderly persons. The accused pleaded guilty. Solicitor John Ferguson informed the court that for some months complaints from parents had come to the police department that some person about Westerly was accosting their daughters. Chief Brown stationed an officer in Wilcox park and Monday morning the accused was found attempting to hide behind a tree. At the time Police Patrolman Leroy Norman was on duty in the park and when approached the young man attempted to escape but was apprehended by the officer.

Mr. Ferguson said a 12-year-old girl on her way to Mrs. Cottrell's school the past week was passing by the bandstand in the park when she was stopped by Cavink, who made an improper proposal and offered to give her 5 cents. She ran and was pursued, but was able to identify her accoster after his arrest. A 13-year-old girl was eating her lunch in the bandstand when Cavink came to the bandstand and took hold of her hand and played with the rings on her finger. He then took hold of her shoulder and leg, but allowed her to leave the bandstand when she shouted to some persons passing by. Later this girl from Potter Hill was on Main street and seeing Cavink crossed the street and when followed by him recrossed the street and then ran to the Briggs building and by reason of her pursuit missed the bus to return home. Reports of the practice of the young man had come in for a number of months and upon being confronted by the parties he had confessed to the police.

Solicitor Ferguson stated that Cavink was arrested in Stonington and presented in Stonington town court June 21st charged with the same identical offenses, attempting to seduce and to break down morale. Cavink then was given a 30-day sentence in jail with six months' suspension.

The accused declared that he was born in Stonington, his father and mother being in the courtroom, and said, "What he said, I done it. I admit. I simply lose my head. I promise I'll not do it again."

Clark Clark, in passing sentence said the offense was a serious one and imposed six months in the reformatory for men. In case of appeal the bail was fixed at $1, with Calvatore and Annie Morosso, as surety, if the case comes before the Washington County Superior court the third week in February.

BISHOP S. G. BABCOCK RUN INTO BY AUTOMOBILE

Rt. Rev. Samuel B. Babcock, 79, suffragan bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Massachusetts, a former Westerly merchant and native of Newport, R. I., was critically injured by being run into by an automobile in Boston Monday night. During the past summers he has been a familiar figure on the streets of Westerly and Watch Hill, when he has been a guest at the Ocean House, following his disposal of a summer cottage owned by him at Watch Hill. His first wife, was Abbie Green Miller, of Westerly whom he married in 1875, and who died in 1922.

Police report on the accident in Boston which happened as the bishop was crossing the street to the University club to attend a meeting, was due to the inattention of the operator, Harold S. Stone of 27 Stearns road, Brookline, who was accompanied by his son.

Gavitt's Case Nolled.

Before Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck in Stonington town court Tuesday morning Charles H. Gavitt, truck driver, of 308 West Broad street, Pawcatuck, was charged with the operation of a motor truck without a reflector as required by Connecticut law. The hearing developed the fact that he had transferred the body of a truck to another chasis and had neglected to transfer the reflector. In this condition the truck had only been operated a short time in the day-time. Prosector Henry P. Hammacher of Mystic recommended an absolute nolle which was granted by Judge Wilcox.

Franklin lodge, No. 20, F. and A. M., John Albert Pawson, master, held a stated communication Tuesday evening. This is the last regular session before the 73rd annual meeting on the birthday of Benjamin Franklin, for whom the lodge was named, and this will be held Saturday evening next. Right Worshipful Deputy Albert Knight, a member of What Cheer lodge, No. 21, F. and A. M. of Providence, will preside.

State Senator Howard E. Thorp of Potter Hill, was in Providence Tuesday night in attendance at the testimonial home-coming dinner tendered by legislative colleagues to Senator William Vanderbilt, of Portsmouth, R. I., who has returned from his honeymoon trip.

Arthur L. Perry, President.

The annual meeting of the Washington Trust company, successor to the Washington bank, founded in 1800, was held Monday afternoon by the directors in the Washington Trust banking rooms. Arthur L. Perry was elected president, having been filling the unexpired term of his father, the late Charles Perry, who died recently. Other officers elected were: Chairman Board of Directors—Charles P. Cottrell; vice president—Thomas Perry; secretary—Harold D. Livingstone; treasurer—Everett Barns; assistant treasurer—James W. Shaw. The directors re-elected were: Charles P. Cottrell, Arthur L. Perry, Edwin R. Allen, William Segar, Edward E. Bradley, Arthur M. Cottrell, Charles E. Sherman, Harry R. Milner, Thomas Perry, Harvey C. Perry, Everett Barns, Calvert B. Cottrell, H. Vernon Foster, Thomas F. Moore, Frank A. Sherman, Cornelius W. Middleton, F. Samuel Uardone, Daniel F. Larkin, Arthur E. Trotman and Joseph Coduri.

FUNERAL

Daniel J. Whalen.

The funeral of Daniel J. Whalen was held Tuesday morning at 8:30 from his home, 16 Summer street. In the high mas of requiem at the Immaculate Conception church at 9 o'clock, Rev. Julius Cassagne sang the mass. Father Cassagne read the committal service in St. Michael's new cemetery. After the mass Thomas V. Clancy sang Rodney's "Calvary." The bearers were A. T. L. Ledwidge, M. Walter Flynn, James McKnight, Michael Toscano, William Martin, and John Murphy, members of the Elks. The services were largely attended by relatives and friends of Mr. Whalen, with a delegation from the Westerly Lodge of Elks. There were beautiful floral tributes.

OBITUARY

Mrs. John H. Thompson.

Tuesday, following a lengthy illness Mrs. Martha Jane Thompson, 83, died at her home, 40 School street. She was the wife of John H. Thompson, and was born in Avondale, Sept. 18, 1847, the daughter of William and Martha Frances Sisson Murphy. She was a member of the Broad Street Christian church. In 1870 she married Frank Prevost and some time after his death became the wife of John H. Thompson, in 1908. Besides her husband, Mrs. Thompson is survived by Mrs. Harry Coyle, Westerly, Mrs. Arthur Chapell, Danbury, Conn., and Mrs. Fred Chapell, Providence, also by a son, Edward F. Prevost of New London, a brother, Charles H. Murphy of Ashaway, a sister, Mrs. Elwood Clark of Westerly, and five grandchildren.

SHORT SELLING AND PROFIT-TAKING CUT DOWN GAINS IN THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Bullish forces continued in control of the price movement in today's stock market but again lacked sufficient punch to lift the market out of the narrow trading area within which it has been floundering since the turn of the year. Prices of scores of issues were marked up 2 to 6 points in the early trading but a renewal of short selling and profit-taking cut down the gains at the close.

Trading showed a tendency to increase on the rallies and turn dull on the declines, which was widely accepted as evidence of a strong technical condition. The day's sales of 1,333,440 shares were nearly 450,000 shares above those of yesterday, the dullest full session since July 1928.

Business and financial news continued mixed in character, but favorable developments appear to be increasing. Germany's acceptance of the Young plan was hailed as one of the day's most constructive achievements although its immediate market effect was negligible. A further increase was noted in steel mill operations, plants of the United States Steel corporation being reported at 67 per cent of capacity and those of the independents at 54 per cent, as against 61 per cent and 58 per cent, respectively, a week ago.

Application for a receiver for the Kolster Radio corporation, already foreshadowed in the sharp decline of the stock in the past few months, testified to the highly competitive nature of that industry, which has been among the hardest hit by the stock market decline last fall. The increase of more than 44,000 tons in the stocks of copper at refineries last month was about in line with expectations and showed that consumers were still pursuing a "hand to mouth" buying policy. Preliminary estimates also indicated another sharp increase in crude oil production last week, while private California dispatches indicated the possible failure of the state's restriction plan.

The railroad shares failed to follow through on the rally which started yesterday, although moderate gains were recorded by Delaware & Hudson, Nickel Plate, Great Northern preferred, Atchison and a sprinkling of other issues. Expectations of a series of poor January and February earnings statements are militating against an extended advance in the rail group. Pennsylvania ran into some profit-taking after its sharp advance of yesterday. The rights to purchase Pennsylvania stock at par on the basis of one new share for each 8 shares held expire tomorrow.

Public utilities, which have attracted increased buying support since the recent supreme court decision defining "a fair return" on property investment, moved irregularly higher. American Telephone, American Power & Light, United Corporation and Consolidated Gas all closed a point or more higher, strength of the last-named being accompanied by reports of heavy purchases by the Brady interests in connection with merger plans to be announced later in the year. Western Union fell back 5 1-2 points presumably in reflection of disappointment over the failure of the directors at their meeting today to authorize a stock split-up which had been expected in some speculative quarters.

Motor shares continued rather sluggish, although the declines in the leaders were held to fractions. Oils also failed to make much headway. Merchandising shares, some of which are reported to harbor a large short interest, were mixed. Several of the food shares, notably Kraft-Phenix Cheese and Snider Packing preferred, showed outstanding strength. Active coppers showed only narrow fractional changes. Equipments were quiet although Pullman extended its recent gain 1 3-8 points.

There was only a moderate demand for call money, which held steady at 4 1-2 per cent all day. Other monetary rates were unchanged.

A further easing in sterling cables to 4.86 3-4 and renewed heaviness of Spanish pesetas, which dropped 16 points on profit taking, featured the mixed foreign exchange market.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat advanced fractionally on reports that the farm board was buying the commodity, and corn lost ground. Cotton declined 60 cents to $1.25 a bale in sympathy with an earlier decline in foreign markets.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—Federal farm board moves to bring about curtailment of wheat acreage in domestic spring crop territory did a good deal to lift wheat values today. In this connection, statements today from Alexander Legge, president of the farm board, indicating that the board is doing everything in its power to remove danger of overplanting served to stimulate buying of future deliveries here. There was also considerable buying based on announcement that seaboard clearances of wheat and flour were larger, 753,000.

Wheat closed firm, 1-8c to ⅞c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed unchanged to 3-4c off, oats a shade to 1-4 at 3-8c up, and provisions showed 20c to 27c gain.

At first, the Chicago wheat market displayed a downward tendency today, owing more or less to early setbacks in Liverpool quotations and to reports of pressure of Argentine offerings overseas. One the other hand, revised official estimates showed that wheat production this season in Roumania is insufficient for home needs. Besides, the foremost unofficial European trade authority was quoted as predicting increased buying abroad, and as explaining that purchasing heretofore on the part of trans-Atlantic countries has been kept very low on account of a combination of circumstances which are now being modified.

By far the outstanding incentive today, though, helping to encourage speculative buying of wheat here appeared to come from reports about farm board activities looking toward a reduction of United States spring crop acreage this season. Strength shown by northwestern wheat markets today was also given particular notice here, and so too was the fact that Seaboard clearances of wheat and flour were the largest in some time, as well as that world's available stocks of breadstuffs had decreased 711,000 bushels for the week. On the other hand, late German cables said import duties on wheat would shortly be raised to maximum figures. New export business in North American wheat today totaled only 400,000 bushels.

Increased rural offerings of corn to arrive here led to late downturns in corn values. Oats averaged higher, sympathizing with wheat strength.

Provisions were firmer, responsive to upturns in the value of hogs.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Revival of bullish operations in a few public utility stocks featured an otherwise dull and colorless curb market today. The day's sales ran over 700,000 shares with four power and light stocks supplying about one-fourth of the day's entire volume of business. While late profit-taking checked the early advance, final quotations again disclosed a preponderance of net gains.

United Light & Power A, responding to reports of a sharp increase in earnings, was the leader of the public utility group, closing with a gain of more than 3 points. American Superpower, Cities Service and Electric Bond & Share, the three next most active issues improved fractionally. Bell Telephone of Canada jumped 7 points and American Light & Traction 6 on small turnovers.

United Gas, which recently reported a sharp increase in production as a result of the discovery of new wells in the Refugio field, climbed more than 4 points and closed near the top. Standard Oil of Kansas advanced slightly on the publication of a statement showing earnings of $4.78 a share in 1929 as against only 91 cents the year before. Indian Territory Oil and Cumberland Pipe Line each advanced 2 points and Standard of Nebraska dropped 1 1-8 while Gulf, Humble and Vacuum showed little change.

Application for a receivership for Kolster Radio was held responsible for the renewed weakness of De Forest and Dubilier, the former selling close to the year's low despite the institution of a patent suit against the Grigsby Grunow company.

Columbia Pictures and General Theatre Equipment showed moderate gains but a renewal of selling pressure against Fox Theatres carried that issue close to the year's low level of $5 a share. Investment Trust and Trading Corporation shares displayed a firm undertone, Fourth National Investors, Insull Utilities Investors and Third National Investors gaining a point or two.

Great Lakes Dredge and Dock and Murphy Co. broke sharply to record low levels on a few transactions.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Bonds moved narrowly higher today, reflecting an improved investment demand for listed securities which have been meeting successfully the increased competition from new offerings. Inquiry was along rather conservative lines, as it has been since the demoralization of security markets late last year, and the trend in investment tastes, already well demonstrated by the ready absorption of recent flotations, was toward the best rated obligations.

Prices were irregular during the forenoon and only a few bonds showed a disposition to move. Late in the session, however, a distinctly better inquiry appeared, especially for the rails, with the result that the averages for all groups rose. Only a comparatively small number of issues traded in more than average volume.

The new American Telephone 5s, when issued, had the largest turnover, touching 101 1-2 before encountering profit taking that led to a net decline of 1-8. North American Edison 5 1-2 and 5s dropped 1 to 1 1-4 respectively, on the news of a forthcoming $25,000,000 5 per cent loan for the company at 98 1-2.

A handful of the high priced rails pushed beyond their 1929 highs on active accumulation. Union Pacific Refunding 5s rose 1 1-2 to 110, Rock Island Refunding 4s advanced 1-4 to 96; and Southern Railway Consolidated 5s gained 2 points to 110 1-2, all new peaks for the past year. There was also a good market for Cleveland Short Line 4 1-2s, Erie 5s, St. Louis & San Francisco 4 1-2s and the Pennsylvania listings. The last named Read's General 4s rose a full point.

Active utilities included Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, May maturity, Pacific Telephone 5s and Utah Power & Light 5s, all up about a half, the group as a whole was rather dull.

In the industrial division, small buying of Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s forced the price up 1 1-2. Reading Coal & Iron 6s, Republic Iron & Steel 5 1-2s, Wilson First 6s and American Smelting 5s were firm. Liggett & Myers Tobacco 5s sold off 1-4 to 106. However, none of the industrials was particularly active.

Convertibles were again colorless. American Telephone 4 1-2s and Chicago & Northwestern 4 3-4s led in volume, but had slender price movements for small net gains.

Among the United States governments only the Fourth Liberties got much attention and that loan lost 5-32. Changes in the group were mostly on the down side.

There was increased buying in a number of foreign bonds. Belgian 6 1-2s and 6s, Berlin 6s, Brazil 7 1-2s, and several of the Argentine 6s made an upward move which in the case of the Brazilian bond amounted to 3 3-8 points. Buenos Aires 6s, April maturity, dropped 3 points.

The Associated Gas & Electric company's $30,000,000 issue of 30-year 5s is being sold by a syndicate tomorrow at 90. Each $1,000 bond will be convertible between March 15, 1931, and March 15, 1933 into 18 shares of Class A stock.

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Production of steel ingots continues to increase, Dow, Jones & Co., reported today, adding that this trend was contrary to the situation a year ago when operations declined after the spurt following Christmas and New Year holiday curtailment. The industry is now averaging between 66 1-2 and 68 per cent of rated capacity, as against 59 to 60 per cent a week ago, and 38 to 39 per cent during the holiday shut-down.

Gross sales of all refined products of the Standard Oil Co. of Kansas in 1929 were the largest in the company's history, exceeding 1928 by approximately 28 1-2 per cent, according to A. S. Hopkins, president. The company's 1930 business, he said, would surpass last year's.

A new issue of $30,000,000 Associated Gas & Electric Co. convertible 5 per cent gold debentures, due in 1950, will be offered tomorrow for public subscription. The bonds will be offered at 90 and interest yielding 5.85 per cent, and will be convertible between March 15, 1931, and March 15, 1933, into Class "A" stock at the rate of 18 shares for each $1,000 debenture.

Consolidated net income of the Auburn Automobile Co. for the year ending Nov. 30, 1929, approximated $3,500,000, equal to about $21 a share on 169,686 shares, compared with $1,423,238, or $5.40 a share on the same amount of stock on Nov. 30, 1928.

Consolidation of all water service subsidiaries in California of the American States Public Service Co., recently approved by the California railroad commission, has been effected and the merged subsidiaries are now known as the American States Water Service Co. of California.

NORTH LYME

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis and Sherwood Davis, of New Haven, Mrs. Charles Emily and Miss Frances Emily, of Moodus, were callers at W. M. Sisson's, Mrs. Mary Sisson's and G. H. Strong's Saturday.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Charles Sweet

There was a large attendance last Wednesday at the funeral of Mrs. Charles Sweet, including Herbert and Archie Sweet of New Haven, Joseph and Howard Rix, Mr. and Mrs. William Darling, Messrs. Austin, Leon and Clyde Rix, also many members of Lyme grange and townspeople, showing sincere respect for the deceased and sympathy for Mr. Sweet and son, Arthur Sweet, in their bereavement. Burial was in the Griffin cemetery near their home. Rev. Herbert Morrell officiated at the funeral.

Mrs. Caroline Bill and Mrs. Mary Reynolds expect to leave New York next week for a trip around the world; another sister, Mrs. Van Vleck is on a year's trip around the world.

Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Strong, Miss Emily Stark and Mrs. W. M. Sisson were in Norwich, shopping, Friday.

J. W. Stark is attending the meetings of the State grange held in Hartford this week.

But when a memorandum was read accusing him of attempted blackmail he declared, "I haven't a record of blackmail." Well there's a limit to any man's versatility.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

HOPKINTON, R. I.

The January meeting of the town council was held at the town hall Monday afternoon with four members present. In the absence of the president, Leverett A. Briggs, Councilman Barber presided. Bills to the amount of $1,373.97 were ordered paid.

The following officers were appointed: Town forest warden, Eldred F. Collins; town tree warden, Elisha B. Bitgood, both subject to approval by the chief of the bureau of forestry; inspector of buildings, Ernest F. Barber. The town sergeant was instructed to notify the proprietors of the Strand theatre in Hope Valley to close the same until he has obtained a license therefor.

The will of Emma J. Wells was allowed and ordered recorded and the Washington Trust Co. of Westerly was confirmed as executor with Thomas W. Lanahan, appraiser.

Mary E. Lewis, executrix of the will of Elizabeth E. Jagger, was ordered to render an account of her administration Feb. 2, next, notice having been given and citation served according to law.

Receipts from the heirs-at-law of the late William M. Lewis in distribution of the estate were presented by Everett P. Mathewson, administrator, received and ordered recorded.

John N. MacDougald, administrator of the estate of Gertrude A. Buck, was granted permission to sell all articles of inventory, except deposits and cash, at private sale at not less than inventory price.

A petition for appointment of an administrator of the estate of Calvin A. Main was referred to Feb. 2 next, with order of notice.

Harold E. Maine, of Newport, was appointed guardian of the person and estate of Mary Loretta Maine, of full age, with Herbert E. Lewis, appraiser.

Inventories of the estates of Sarah S. Wade and Sue Thurston Brown were received and ordered recorded.

Mrs. Hoxie Bill is assisting Mrs. Harry Lewis in the closing days of her service as postmistress at Ashaway. Lloyd R. Langworthy has received notice from Washington, D. C., of his appointment as acting postmaster at Ashaway.

The ground here was covered with a light fall of snow Sunday morning, which disappeard with rain later in the day.

Rev. Lewis Walker, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, Waterly, was the preacher at the First Hopkinton S. D. B. church Saturday morning.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Kelley have been entertaining Mr. Kelley's brother from Cape Cod.

The Hilltop Community club met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. A. Coolidge. After the business hour during which two new members were received rags were sewed for Colonial rugs.

A. A. Jacques captured a fine fox last week.

A party of friends from Providence spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Crowley.

George Slater and son, Grant, were in Danielson Saturday.

In the general exchange of ministers Sunday Rev. M. A. Coolidge occupied the pulpit in Brooklyn, Ct. and Rev. James F. [illegible] of the Congregational church in Putnam conducted services in the local church.

Town crews are carting gravel and making needed repairs on the Moosup road, also some places on the north road, near the residence of Charles Young.

George Coolidge is employed by Raymond Barlow, who is building a garage for Dr. Nathaniel Hibbard of Danielson.

A. E. Hall and Leon Dexter of Moosup Valley were business callers at Escoheag Hill, R. I., Tuesday.

CHRYSLER INSPIRES A PRIDE ALL ITS OWN
Copyright 1929 Chrysler Corporation

New Chrysler "77" Royal Sedan, $1725 (Special Equipment Extra)

CHRYSLER proves what it IS by what it DOES!

A motor car proves what it is by what it does. For performance is tangible, definite—something you can easily check for yourself.

When we say the new Multi-Range Chryslers are swifter in pick-up than other cars—smoother in flight—faster in climbing hills—easier to drive—we are simply stating facts you can prove.

Gears can be shifted back and forth between forward speeds at any car speed without clashing.

In the midst of all today's claims and counter-claims, Chrysler suggests a demonstration, in order that you may learn for yourself why Chrysler inspires a pride all its own.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Old Gold Cigarettes

Those of our readers who fancy themselves in the roles of Lotharios, handsome ne'er-do-wells and old-fashioned heroes of romance, will do well to study the helps and hints contained in Mr. John Held's series of Old Gold advertisements now appearing in this paper.

The inimitable Held object lessons in successful courtship are among the most humorous things we have ever seen in print. That they should appear as sales persuaders for Old Golds subtracts nothing whatever from their funniness.

We make no bones about the fact that any advertisement in our columns gives us something of a thrill. Business is business, even to a newspaper—but, when an advertiser gives us his money and a hearty laugh to boot, we feel we are playing the game, on velvet.

Long may John Held continue to portray his melodramatic villians and touch-em-not maidens of long ago—and may his heroes and heroines never find a cough in a carload!

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

What becomes of the children in these days of easy divorce? That problem formed the basis of Edith Wharton's sensational novel "The Children," one of the twelve best sellers of '28, and Paramount seized the opportunity to screen it as "The Marriage Playground," releasing it for a Norwich showing at the Broadway starting today. The six Wheater children of the novel, typified on the screen by six of the most adorable youngsters in pictures, took things into their own small hands, and worked out a surprising and sensational solution, which gains rather than loses in its transfer from the printed page to the talking screen. Mary Brian is the eldest child, the ringleader in the revolt, and is aided by Fredric March, a "friend of the family." Huntley Gordon and Lilyan Tashman are the deluded parents, dazzled by modern society at its worst, and Kay Francis is a clever and sophisticated divorcee, with William Austin as her next victim. The scenic backgrounds are beautiful, showing the famous Lido Venice beach, Deauville and Palm Beach, with all the exotic costumes and lack of costume displayed on the "playgrounds of the rich." The youngsters, who will positively win everyone, range in age from nine months to twelve years, with Mary Brian, as the elder sister, nineteen. The surrounding bill is clever, with Ford Sterling and Bert Roach in a featured comedy, "The Fatal Forceps," Stanley & Ginger, a peppy pair of vaudevillians, Roger Williams, the "one-man band," "Sympathy," the sad story of a married man making whoopee directly against the orders of his ball-and-chain, and concluding with the Fox movietone news. Ruth Chatterton's daring success "The Laughing Lady," rated as more sensational then "The Lady Lies," will follow the engagement of "The Marriage Playground," starting on Saturday.

Palace Theatre

Thunder of flying hooves, turf spinning, crowds cheering as the silks flash by. The roar and tumult and mad excitement of the racetrack—these are all reproduced in the smashing success, "Little Johnny Jones," which the Palace theatre is presenting today and Thursday and Friday as part of a new double-feature program. The other great hit on the program is "Second Choice," starring Dolores Costello, Jack Mulhall and Chester Morris.

Little Eddie Buzzell is the hero of "Little Johnny Jones." He is starred in this Vitaphone film with Alice Day, Edna Murphy and others. It is a gorgeous panorama full of life and zest and the joy of living and struggling, as tangy as a breath of clear cool autumn air or the smell of sweet turf and green leaves. It is refreshing by the breeze of its action and the tenderness of its romance. Here is life as we would all love to live it—life as few of us, however, are able to live it, unfortunately.

Yet if we cannot have this wild, free sweet spirit of excitement, if we cannot visit the race tracks, watch the flying turf and the flashing hooves and the wind whipped silks, we can at least do almost as well by dropping into the Palace to watch this fiery panorama of emotion and adventure as it unfolds upon the screen. Nobody should miss this picture. It is superb, almost beyond description in its vim and vitality and its zestful qualities. It has everything from beautiful song hits to a well-knit and amazing plot.

"Second Choice" is the tale of a girl who married a man for spite. How this marriage works out is a telling story. If you want to see what happens when a girl does this, come and see the beautiful Dolores Costello, now the wife of John Barrymore, play her part. Miss Costello is now famous in her own right, after a dazzling movie career in which her great beauty and superior talents were recognized internationally.

Breed Theatre

One of the hilarious episodes in the all talking Fox Movietone production "The Cock Eyed World," directed by Raoul Walsh of 'What Price Glory' fame, deals with a little red book, given by "Top Sergeant Flagg," played by Victor McLaglen, to his pal and arch enemy "Sergeant Quirt," played by Edmund Lowe, when the latter decides to leave the service.

The little red book contains names, addresses and descriptions of Quirt's various former flames, a goodly number, to say the least.

When the transport carrying the marines docks in New York, "Flagg" hurries to the nearest telephone booth and calls the ladies listed in this little red book. He only locates "Fanny," played by beautiful Jean Bary. She is dated for a rollicking trip to Coney Island.

All goes well until they meet the last person in the world they expected to find, Quirt and then trouble begins. Quirt makes a sly effort to get the girl.

"The Cock Eyed World" is now packing them in at the Breed theatre. It is from the story by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson. Billy K. Wells wrote the dialog and lovely Lily Damita is also featured.

As he himself recalls it, Mr. Shearer has been an actor, a prize fight promoter, an impressario, a Florida realtor, a lecturer, an author, an artist, an inventor, a patron of racing, proprietor of London's first cabaret, a naval authority, and finally assisted the Republican National committee in its task of electing Mr. Hoover.

POETRY

January

The birthstone for January is the garnet, the flower the orchid.

January comes in gorgeous gown,
With Orient Garnets richly decked;
They gird her waist, her arms, her neck;
Soft snow upon her form is flecked;
Her hair—a bronzed veil—doth protect Against the wilful wind;
Clinging about her lovely face,
Accentuating all its grace,
A silken veil—a scarf unlined.

January's Birthbloom—Orchids rare,
Of pink hue and purple on her breast,
Entwined with Snowdrops frail and sweet,
Bring to the wearer peace and rest;
Aye, peace and rest, and power blest
To win the deepest love;
Joined with a Garnet Birthstone's charm
Fair January's safe from harm
As those who dwell in realms above.

January's mate—a God—is lithe,
He cometh on lightning limb and strong;
Impatient he to reach her side;
What matters that the way is long?
Upon his lips there lies a song,
That breathes expectant joy;
Knowing he'll clasp within his arms,
Fair January's peerless charms,
Her constant heart, without alloy.

—Florence G. Ruthven, in Detroit News.

Mystic Tryst

Never fear the phantom bird
Meditating in the Fens;
Night will come and quench your eyes,
Blind at last like other men's;
Never fear the tales you heard
In the rhetoric of lies.

Nothing here will challenge you,
Not the heron, tall and white,
Countersign upon the edge
Of the waterfall of night.
This is Avalon's canoe,
Eden murmurs in the sedge.

Here, My hand is pledge of rest,
Drift at random, all is well.
Twilight is a slow lagoon,
Dark will be a citadel.
Travelers who know the west
But report the waning moon.

In the citadel of peace
Hang the trophies of the world,
Yet no barons don their mail,
And no pennant is unfurled.
Daily robe, the Golden Fleece,
Daily cup, the Holy Grail.

—Robert Hillyer.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Reporter: There were eight marines and a sailor killed.

Old Salt: The poor guy!—Boston Transcript.

"How is the bride making out?"

"Well, she had so much success in heating a can of soup that she is going to try a canned pudding next."—Louisville Courier.

Miss Yellowleaf—Yes, I know my face does show premature lines, but I'll have to bear that affliction with fortitude.

Miss Peachblow — Fortitude! I should say at least fiftytude.—Detroit News.

Absent-minded Professor—"What's the date, my dear?"

"My dear—I don't know, grandpa, but you've got a newspaper there."

Professor—"That no good—it's yesterday's."—Exchange.

"Their engagement was rather romantic, wasn't it?"

"Yes, quite. They went in bathing, got beyond their depth, and were completely carried away with each other."—Boston Transcript.

The Groom—I understand your daughter has gone out in service.

The Butler—You have been misinformed, my man. She has accepted the management and control of a private household.—Vancouver Province.

A local veterinary recently was called to treat a parrot which appeared to be ailing. He reported the bird was suffering from laryngitis. "It was so severe," he said later, "that the parrot could not swear above a whisper."—Kansas City Star.

DENNY SHUTE WINS FIRST PLACE IN LOS ANGELES OPEN GOLF TOURNAMENT

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

RIVIERA COUNTRY CLUB, Los Angeles, Jan. 14—(AP)—Over the same flooded fairways and rain-soaked greens that proved a golfers' graveyard for America's greatest, there triumphed today a little-known disciple of the royal and ancient game to win the championship of the $10,000 Los Angeles 72-hole open.

Young Denny Shute, from Columbus, Ohio, whose brief two-year career as a professional hardly rated him the honor of a gallery, hunched his shoulders into the wind and braved the torrential rains to post the respectable and winning score of 296. It exceeded by four strokes the efforts of such notables as Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., star, and Bobby Cruickshank, of New York, winner of the Los Angeles open in 1927. They tied for second place with 300.

Smith and Cruickshank started today's first round three strokes behind Shute but failed to make up the lead. Cruickshank saw his hopes shattered on the morning nine—Smith's chances faded away on the incoming stretch when on three holes he went over par figures.

Not brilliant golf but rather a steady game that clung close to Riviera's par 71 figures brought Shute laurels in the fifth open championship here, one of the biggest money events of the winter season.

For four rounds the mid-westerner posted scores of 73-74-75 and 74, and for his efforts Shute pocketed tonight $3,500, the winner's share.

Thus unheralded and unnoticed, the 25-year old Ohioan came to the Pacific coast for the first time in a golfing role to club his way to top honors over a field that numbered all the stars of the game. His only excuse for matching strokes with the "big time" players was that he tied for fifth place in the 1928 national open, took third place in the same event a year later and also held the professional and open titles of his native state.

Tonight Shute was as thrilled as any rank outsider should be in winning a major event. "I was a little shaky going into the last nine today," he said, "but when I sank that 22-footer for a birdie two on the fourteenth, I regained confidence. Now I'm going after the Agua Caliente, Mexico, championship next week." The Agua Caliente event, to be played for the first time, is the richest tournament in the world with $25,000 total prize money listed.

Shute's victory was as remarkable as it was decisive. To top the field he conquered most adverse weather conditions in three of the four days and maintained his same unfaltering pace during the one round that was not played in rain.

His 73 on the opening day put him in a tie for third place along with Horton Smith and Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente pro. Adding a 74 in the second round he went into a two-stroke lead over Smith. From that time on he was never headed. A 75 for the third round brought him a total 222, three strokes better than Smith and Cruickshank.

The trying conditions that failed to bother Shute spelled the doom of such luminaries as Walter Hagen of Detroit, one of the world's most prominent golfers, and Bill Mehlhorn of New York. Hagen picked up in the second round, the first time in his competitive career that he had failed to finish. Mehlhorn dropped out in today's final round after a poor start.

MacDonald Smith of Long Island, N. Y., winner of the title for the last two years and one of the pre-tournament favorites, was unable to meet the climatic test and tied with Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Calif., for eighth place. His final score was 306.

Al Espinosa of Chicago posted a 303 for fourth money while Tommy Armour of Detroit, former national open titleholder, had a 304 for fifth position. Leo Diegel, winner of the Professional Golfers association for the last two years, tied with Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., with 305.

Johnny Farrell, of St. Augustine, Fla., also a former national open champion, chalked up a 310 while Harry Cooper of Buffalo, N. Y., first Los Angeles open winner, was forced to be content with 312.

Only two amateurs fought their way to the select fifty that placed in the 36-hole finals but neither showed the form they usually are capable of. Fay Coleman of Culver City, Calif., toured the four rounds in 319 strokes while George Von Elm of Detroit, former national amateur champion, had a 324.

The way they finished and the prizes:

Denny Shute, Columbus, Ohio, 73-74-75-74—296—$3,500.

Bobby Cruickshank, New York, 74-77-74-75—300—$1,312.50.

Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 73-76-76-75—300—$1,312.50.

Al Espinosa, Chicago, 73-79-75-76—303—$600.00.

Tommy Armour, Detroit, 74-77-76-77—304—$400.00.

Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente, Mexico, 73-80-75-77—305—$275.00.

Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, Wash., 75-81-76-73—305—$275.

MacDonald Smith, Long Island, N. Y., 77-82-71-76—306—$187.50.

Chet Beer, Bakersfield, Calif., 78-74-75-79—306—$187.50.

Willie Hunter, Los Angeles, 78-78-77-75—308—$125.

Tony Manero, New York, 80-78-74-76—308—$125.

Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., 79-80-73-77—309—$100.

John Rogers, Denver, 79-82-77-71—309—$100.

Frank Walsh, Chicago, 76-77-77-79—309—$100.

Johnny Farrell, St. Augustine, Fla., 76-81-76-77—310—$125.

Olin Dutra, Santa Monica, Calif., 76-77-78-79—310—$100.

Harold Long, Denver, 76-80-78-77—311—$100.

Harry Cooper, Buffalo, N. Y., 81-77-74-80—312—$100.

Billy Burke, New York, 74-80-77-81—312—$100.

Clarence Clark, Tulsa, Okla., 80-78-74-80—312—$100.

Tom Kerrigan, New York, 79-75-76-84—314—$100.

Leonard Schmutte, Lima, Ohio, 77-82-81-74—314—$100.

John Black, San Francisco, 77-79-80-78—314—$100.

Sonny Rouse, Chicago, 77-82-74-81—314—$100.

Tom Racklets, Youngstown, Ohio, 77-75-77-85—314—$100.

Neil Christian, Portland, Ore., 79-73-83-80—315—$50.

Waldo Crowder, Cleveland, 78-78-79-80—315—$50.

Jack Forrester, Hackensack, N. J., 77-82-77-81—317—$50.

Johnny Golden, Paterson, N. J., 77-79-81-80—317—$50.

Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 75-83-79-81—318—$16.66.

Joe Kirkwood, Philadelphia, 78-79-78-83—318—$16.66.

Tom Stevens, Los Angeles, 78-79-78-83—318—$16.66.

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, failed to finish within the money in the Los Angeles $10,000 open as his score for the 72 holes was 322, four strokes outside of last money. Miller after an auspicious start of 74 fell back into the 80s in his next three rounds, getting 74-83-82-83—322. Miller leaves the last of the week for Agua Caliente for the $25,000 tournament, the world's largest money tournament. Miller played the Los Angeles open under the most trying weather conditions, high winds and driving rains keeping the scores very high.

PLENTY OF ACTION IS PROMISED AT N. L. SHOW

Bouts that will abound with thrills have been secured by Matchmaker Pop Connelly of the East End A. C. for the New London state armory Friday night. They will consist of three eights, a six and a four round bout bringing together featherweights, lightweight, welterweights and middleweights.

The middleweight bout of eight rounds will be between Bob Marriot of New London, who kayoed Eddie Dowd at the last show, and Patent Leather Kid of New Bedford, who created a sensation at Boston a few weeks ago when he knocked out Steve Ketchell, stablemate of Jack Sharkey. Ketchell was being groomed for the middleweight championship of New England and his K. O. at the hands of Patent Leather Kid boosted the Kid's stock skyhigh. Matchmaker Connelly was able to secure this boy due to the fact that he is managed by H. E. Finnell, manager of Bobby Mays. Both boys depend upon their punch to win and it is expected that this bout will be a regular old-fashioned slugging bee.

The second eight round go between welterweights is a return bout between two of the hardest hitting boys in their class, Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Worcester and Danielson, the boy that puts the majority of his opponents to sleep in short order, and Joe Russo, Westerly's K. O. king. This bout has all the earmarks of a grudge fight as Russo is anxious to reverse the K. O. pinned on him by Brouillard at Taftville a couple of weeks ago.

The third eight brings together Vic Darz of Norwich and Young Pearson of New London. Pearson made a hit at the Boston arena and the Boston Garden, boxing in Boston two weeks in succession. This bout should produce lots of action as both boys are willing mixers.

In the six round bout Ero Peterson of Worcester, who was a sensation in the amateurs and who since turning Pro has won twenty-one out of twenty-two bouts will be opposed by that ever-pleasing battler Julio Rossi of Westerly. This bout is sure to be full of thrills as both boys are fast, shifty and snappy punchers.

A four round bout will open the show.

TOBIN TO BE MANAGER OF CHICAGO BLACKHAWKS

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—Bill Tobin, for several years business manager of the Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey league, today was placed in charge of the team by Major Frederic McLaughlin, the owner. Major McLaughlin also announced Dick Irvin would direct the team on the ice.

Tobin, a former goalie in amateur hockey, will supervise the Black Hawk campaign until the end of the season, while Irvin, who has acted as coach, will direct actual play.

Sonnenberg Wins.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 14—(AP)—Gus Sonnenberg defended his world's wrestling title successfully here tonight against Cowboy Jack Wagner, local favorite, throwing the latter in one hour, 18 minutes, 30 seconds. The flying tackle was his winning weapon. It was the longest match of the champion's career.

Count Zarynof threw Freddy Myers in 20 minutes, 18 seconds, and Joe Malcewicz of Utica, defeated Jack Ganson when the latter fell from the ring onto the auditorium floor and was unable to continue.

ZACHARY BEST OF A. L. HURLERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—While Robert Moses Grove, angular pitching ace of the champion Philadelphia Athletics, was generally conceded to be the class of American league moundsmen, in 1929, Jonathan Thompson Zachary, veteran New York Yankee southpaw, dished up just enough of his effective side arm slants to win the mathematical championship.

Final, official averages tonight revealed that Zachary, who in his even decade of service in the American league, has been with Washington, St. Louis and New York, not only won 12 games without a defeat but topped all pitchers in the circuit with a low earned run average of 2.47 for each nine inning game.

However, he toiled but 120 innings whereas Grove pitched 275 innings, distributed over 42 games, winning 20 and losing six and compiling an earned run average of 2.82. The Philadelphia club star was strikeout king of the circuit for the second successive year, whiffing 170 batsmen. In 1928, he struck out 183 batters and was second only to Herb Pennock of the Yankees with 24 victories and eight defeats.

Edwin Rommel, a teammate of Grove's who was employed mostly as a relief man, was the only other pitcher in the league to hold his opponents to less than three earned runs a game. He worked in 32 games, pitched 114 innings and won 12 while losing two.

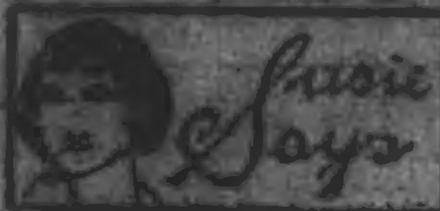
Other leaders and their records for 1929:

Fred Marberry, Washington, 19 won, 12 lost, earned run average 3.06; Alphonse Thomas, Chicago, 14 won, 18 lost; earned run average 3.19; George Earnshaw, Philadelphia, 24 won, 8 lost; earned run average 3.24; J. Walter Miller, Cleveland, 14 won, 12 lost; earned run average 3.58; George Walberg, Philadelphia, 18 won, 11 lost; earned run average 3.59; Wesley Ferrell, Cleveland, 21 won, 10 lost; earned run average 3.59.

Earnshaw was second in strikeouts with 149 and gave the most bases on balls, 125 in 255 innings. Sam Gray of St. Louis, worked the largest number of innings, 305 and 23 of his 43 games were complete. Thomas of the White Sox pitched 24 complete games out of 36.

Not a single no-hit game was pitched in the American league during 1929, but Urban Faber, of Chicago, Walberg of the Athletics, Wells and Pipgras of the Yankees came close with one hit performances. Howard Ehmke, one of the Athletics big heroes in the 1929 world series, pitched but 55 innings and but two complete games all season.

Zachary and Charlie Ruffing of the Boston Red Sox, had the alpha and omega of pitching streaks, Zachary winning 12 straight and Ruffing losing 12 straight.



Well, we must all take the bitter with the sweet.

Yesterday I received a letter from a miss whose initials are B. H. B. in which she landed on me like a ton of brick from a ten story building. And all because I spoke of a four-post bed with slats.

Seeing how we're among friends I'll let you read her letter and see if you get the same kick out of it that I did. Here it is:

"I have just finished reading "Susie Says" in today's paper and think that it is time that you omitted that column. An antique four post bed with slats! All the genuine four-post beds were either rope or canvas and rope as I think everyone knows. At least everyone knows that there were no four-post beds with slats, if they know anything at all about antiques."

Well that's that. But I still maintain that that four-poster had slats. That's my story and I'm going to stick to it. I know it had slats because I have seen them, but I don't say it always had em.

You notice she says, "All the genuine four-post beds were either rope or canvas and rope." I suppose she means to say that rope or rope and canvas was used to hold up the feather-ticks, and not that the beds were rope or canvas.

Well, this bed, which I had reference to, had slats, and it had slats because the owner of that bed put them there. If Miss B. H. B. never saw a four-poster with slats she's missed something. I think slats are an improvement over ropes anyway.

Those ropes had a mean way of breaking at most inopportune times and always on a night when the thermometer was below zero, or so it seemed. And how they used to stretch, and how the knobs would sometimes break. Slats may fall out but they seldom break.

This bed, which has caused Miss B. H. B. so much worry, is a real antique four-poster and has been handed down from generation to generation until it got to the present owner.

The present owner is a sort of an ingenious fellow and he just thought he'd improve on that bed so he rigged up a set of slats for it, so that the bed, or rather its occupants, would be more comfortable.

He says that in its youth the bed sported ropes and canvas of Ye Olden Days, but it doesn't any more. But anyway, I wasn't thinking about the antiquity of the bed when I wrote about it. I was more interested in what happened to those who slept in it.

If I neglected to state that the old four-poster was somewhat modernizer, I am verry sorry. I am very glad that Miss H. B. H. reads the column if only to pick flaws in it. That's something anyway.

If you think the column ought to be omitted, why, omit it yourself, just turn over to the stock page or any other of the other departments, they probably would be correct about antique beds.

TIGERS TO DEPEND ON SPEED AND HITTING POWER

DETROIT, Jan. 14—(AP)—Speed and hitting power will be the chief assets of the Detroit Tigers in the 1930 American league baseball campaign. If their pitching is improved and the hole at shortstop is plugged they may finish in the first division. Changes have been made since September to improve the club's morale.

George Uhle, Vic Sorrell, Owen Carroll and Earl Whitehill are the veteran pitchers on whom Manager Stanley Harris will depend to do a large share of the mound work. Elon (Chief) Hogsett, Art Herring, Whitelow Wyatt, Charles Sullivan, Phil Page, Kyle Graham and Joe Samuels, are included in the list of recruit pitchers.

Raymond Hayworth, recalled from Toledo American association club last August, is expected to develop as the regular catcher. Marvyn Shea, Pinkey Hargrave, Bill Steinke, recruit from Seattle, and George Remsa, obtained from Toronto this winter, will be available.

Dale Alexander will play first again. Alexander batted .343 in 1929, his first season with the Tigers, to lead American league rookies, and collected 25 home runs.

Charlie Gehringer, who led or tied for first place in the league last season in games played, stolen bases, runs scored, three base hits, doubles and total hits, is expected to have another great year at second base. The veteran Marty McManus will play third.

The shortstop problem is believed solved with the acquisition of Bill Rogell, purchased from St. Paul. Bill Akers who was purchased last summer from Beaumont club of the Texas league, will contest with Rogell for the regular job, as will George Westling, another rookie last year.

Roy Johnson, Jonathan Stone and Elias Calvin Funk seem slated for the outfield positions.

Robert (Rhino) Fothergill, league leading pinch batsman, will be there to swing a wicked stick and fill in at any outfield position when needed.

Manager Harris has before him the task of developing this group, largely recruits, into a baseball team. Bucky will get a big hand if the Tigers finish anywhere near the top.

TILDEN AND HUNTER TO ENTER IMPORTANT TOURNEYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter are not yet ready to hang up their racquets and retire from the courts although both are definitely committed not to engage in another Davis cup campaign, Hunter said today at his office in New Rochelle.

These two old soldiers of the court who hold first and second places in the national ranking list will appear in all the big American outdoor tournaments this summer and fall including the United States championships, Hunter indicated.

When Tilden won his seventh national singles championship at Forest Hills last September beating Hunter in the final after fightin this way through a pack of youthful contenders, it was not expected that he would return to defend his title in 1930. But Hunter, Big Bill's closest friend, revealed that Tilden hopes to add an eighth championship to his string. Big Bill will be 37 next month and Hunter is a year younger.

There is not the slightest chance that either of the veterans can be persuaded to play another season of Davis cup tennis, Hunter declared, as they feel they have "had enough" and should withdraw to permit the development of a team of younger players.

PLAINFIELD PROS CLASH WITH FAST LONG ISLAND TEAM THIS EVENING

Tonight's Lineups

Plainfield	Long Island Pros
Kasper, lf	Cerboskey, lf
Brusso, rf	McDermott, rf
Conway, c	Dunne, c
Bernot, rg	Franks, lg
Williams, lg	Yerkes, rg

When these two teams clash this evening at the Plainfield Community house the Plainfield team will be facing one of the strongest professional basketball teams in the country. The Long Island Pros boast a remarkable record of having won all but one game played this year, this defeat coming at the hands of the Visitations of Brooklyn by a 35 to 32 score. Besides having this remarkable record the Long Island club lays claim to being the world's basketball champions. They base their claim on the fact that last year they played a three-game series with the Original Celtics and won two games while the third resulted in a tie.

Included in the Long Island lineup is the famous "Baldy" Yerkes who is said to be the only bald-headed basketball player in America. Others of note on the team are Dunne, the rangy center, and McDermott, who is classed as a deadly basket shot.

Plainfield will depend on the same team that has been representing the village in the past. This aggregation has played some brilliant basketball and last week's game was a real thriller the same as tonight's contest is expected to be.

The preliminary game which starts at 8 o'clock finds the Buddies clashing with the Putnam Whirlwinds. The Buddies have lost but one game this season, that of last night to the Taftville Shymas.

Dancing will follow the game as usual.

SHYMAS HAND BUDDIES FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON

The Taftville Shymas administered the first defeat of the season to the Plainfield Buddies, Tuesday evening at Parish hall, 23 to 21, in a rough game. In the preliminary the Internationals won from the Shyma Juniors 40 to 38. The summaries:

ARMORY FIVE WINS EASILY FROM FRANKLIN PROS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 14—The Armory Five defeated the Franklin Pros in a one-sided game here tonight after the first few minutes of play, 31 to 20. The Armory Five took the lead at the start and was never headed, only once did Franklin threaten to tie the score. There was some very nice passwork and shooting on Danielson's part with Normandin, Armington and Burke sharing the honors. For the visitors Mohan was the outstanding star of the evening with 11 points. Next week the Armory A. A. plays the Phi Delta team of Indiana.

In the preliminary game the Radio Five defeated the Corticelli team of Westerly 42 to 26. The summary:

KILLINGLY HIGH LOSES TO CHAPMAN TECH, 34 TO 22

At New London last night the Killingly high school basketball quintet lost to the fast Chapman Tech outfit, 34 to 22. The Chapman team got away to a big lead in the first half of the game but in the second half Killingly battled them on even terms. Dascoll and Capt. Young were the star performers for Killingly while Bucke of Chapman Tech accounted for 20 points of the Chapman score.

Reiselt Takes Second Place

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Otto Reiselt, of Philadelphia, overwhelmed Allan Hall, of St. Louis, 50 to 32, in a playoff tonight of their tie for second place in the national three cushion billiards championship.

Reiselt's victory earned for him a salary of $3,000 for the year as runner-up in the national tournament, and a cash award of $1,000. Hall gets a cash award of $800.

Glick and Loayza Matched

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 14—(AP)—Joe Glick, of Brooklyn, and Stanislaus Loayza, of Chile, lightweights, were matched tonight for a ten round bout here January 23.

Winter opened up a new offensive in the Rocky mountain region yesterday as a climax to a tenacious cold spell that has lasted more than a week. Basin, Mont., the coldest point in the state, reported a reading of 32 below zero.

INVESTIGATING DEATH OF BOXER AT ST. BONAVENTURE

OLEAN, N. Y., Jan. 14—(AP)—Officials of the fight at St. Bonaventure college last night in which Evan Eugene Gustafson was killed by a blow on the jaw landed by his opponent, August Carlson of Jamestown, will be called for examination before the district attorney next week, Sheriff Elmer Miller announced today.

The sheriff's announcement was made immediately after the findings of Dr. William M. Smith, Cattaraugus county coroner were made known. Dr. Smith found that the boxer died of a broken neck. The first vertebrae in Gustafson's neck was dislocated and the second fractured.

The blow that killed Gustafson was delivered in the second round of a four round bout. It was a sharp right jab which to the spectators did not seem to carry much force. Gustafson keeled over slowly and was caught in the arms of John C. Dempsey, chief of police of Olean, who was the referee.

Chief Dempsey said tonight that he asked Ray Graham, boxing instructor at the college, if he had a permit to conduct the fight and that Graham replied that he had the sanction of the A. A. U. and that everything was all right.

REDS HAVE MUCH BRIGHTER OUTLOOK FOR 1930

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Jan. 14—(AP)—Prospects of the Cincinnati Reds landing in the first division in the 1930 campaign appeared brighter as club officials line up the players for spring training after a disastrous 1929 season.

New faces on the bench, new faces on the field and a new face in the president's chair present a picture which stirs the imagination of the most critical fan.

Sidney Weil, wealthy young Cincinnati business man, purchased control of the club at the close of the 1929 campaign and was elected president.

His first move was to sign Dan Howley, who piloted the St. Louis Browns last year, as manager. The Browns, under Howley's guidance, finished two games out of third place, with a team batting average of .276, while the Reds with .281 were seventh. The teams fielded on a par, and though the Browns had better pitching Weil believes an added scoring punch will make Red moundsmen show better.

With this in mind, Weil bought Harry Heilmann, Detroit outfielder, who hit .344 last year; Bob Meusel, Yankee outfielder, who took more than one-fourth of his hits in extra bases and 10 per cent in home runs, and Earl Webb, from Los Angeles.

This trio with Evar Swanson, Curt Walker and Ethan Allen, Red regulars, will make the outfield. Heilmann, Meusel and Swanson probably will carry the burden. The hitting average of the six is above .300.

Tony Cuccinello, who batted .358 in the American association for Columbus last year, will be given a tryout at third base and will get the assignment over Joe Stripp and Charley Dressen if he delivers. Horace Ford at short, Hughie Critz at second and George Kelly at first, last year's regulars, undoubtedly will retain their posts. Harry Riconda, Kansas City third sacker who hit .320 last year, and Clarke Pittenger will serve as utility infielders.

Additions to the pitching staff led by Red Lucas are Archie Campbell, who showed the way to American association hurlers in a St. Paul uniform last year, Bennie Frey, Nashville recruit, and Si Johnson, recalled from Columbus. Jakie May, Pete Donohue, Ray Kolp, Eppa Rixey, Kenneth Ash, Rube Ehrhardt, Marvin Gudat and Adolfo Luque, make up the remainder of the pitching staff.

Johnny Gooch and Clyde Sukeforth again will divide the catching burdens.

JUDGMENTS GRANTED IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

At the motion list of the common pleas court here Monday morning with Judge C. B. Waller presiding, judgment by default was given for $675.24 in favor of Coffey and Co. Inc., of New London against Thomas J. Enright and George Bizinski both of this city. Enright was in the meat and grocery business and Bizinski was his guarantor for bills for meat.

Jacob Bucovetsky was given judgment for $109 against David Bernstein, whom he sued for rent due for premises on North Thames street.

Mrs. Victoria Ruzenas, of Jewett City, secured foreclosure judgment against one Malak for $1,939.81 on real estate in Jewett City on which the Jewett City Savings bank has a first mortgage for $1,800. The place is a farm on the Jewett City-Pachaug highway, which has been appraised at $3,000. The second Monday in March is the redemption date.

The Niantic Lumber Co. of Niantic obtained a judgment for $141.33 against Edward W. Dayton. Judgment was in accordance with a bill of particulars for lumber and building materials.

Judgment in accordance with a stipulation to be filed was granted in the case of Allen E. Wilber, trustee, against James Varderotian, which suit is a foreclosure action.

Other matters were disposed of as follows:

Daniel O'Connell vs. William Wilczakowski and others, more specific statement to be filed within ten days or judgment.

Charles W. Caulfield vs. Meyer Blumenthal, plea in abatement, granted.

M. L. Mason vs. Gustave Anderson, to allow case to remain on docket, granted.

Joseph Falcone vs. Peter Duca, motion to re-open default, granted.

Pierce, Butler & Pierce Mfg. Co. vs. Tetreault, default for failure to plead, postponed two weeks.

Motions in the following cases went off the list:

N. E. Equity Corp. against Augusta Betting and others, judgment; Cora Brush against Giocchino Grillo and others, disclosure of defense or judgment; George F. Ring against Rose Chioda; Sam Chinigo against Michael Ceccarelli, disclosure of defense or judgment.

LEGHORN HENS LEAD IN SEVENTH WEEK AT STORRS

For the first time in seven weeks the hens in the Storrs contest have exceeded their customary 1 per cent. variation from the 60 per cent. level of production. The trend is upward. This is as it must be if the birds are to measure up to the expectation that they will lay more eggs in January than in either of the two preceding months.

In the tenth week the total lay for all pens was 4,419 eggs or a yield of just over 62 per cent. This is a gain of 262 eggs over the preceding week and it is 240 eggs better than for the corresponding week a year ago.

The outstanding pens for the week were closely bunched. Two pens of White Leghorns tied for first place with 64 eggs each. Both are Pennsylvania pens; one is the entry of Tolvonen Leghorn Farm at Girard and the other that of Steelman Poultry Farms at Lansdale. In view of the geographical distribution of the Leghorns some readers will doubtless feel that Pennsylvania got all the break to which she is entitled.

Harold G. Colt of West Hartford, Conn., was nosed out by just one single solitary egg. His pen of Rhode Island Reds did 63 eggs for the week. Then followed a New York state pen of Leghorns entered by Bournedale Farm of Millerton. These ten pullets scored 61 eggs in the tenth lap of the race. Four pens tied for fourth place with 59 eggs each. These included two pens of Rhode Island Reds and two pens of White Leghorns. Donald I. Goodenough of Torrington, Conn., and F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass., sponsored the Reds, while Leighton Orchards of Kingston, R. I., and Geo. B. Ferris of Grand Rapids, Michigan, are the Leghorn breeders.

The leading pens to date in each of the principal varieties are as follows:

White Wyandottes: The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 537. Fisher P. Farm, Ayton, On., Canada, 424.

Barred Rocks: R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 524. Spring Brook P. Farm, So. Wethersfield, Conn., 470. Westfield Poultry Farm, Westfield, Mass., 466.

White Rocks: Harold F. Barber, Valecroft, Dover, Mass., 492. Harold F. Barber, Valecroft, Dover, Mass., 493. Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass., 480.

Rhode Island Reds: Harold G. Colt, West Hartford, Conn., 616. F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 566. Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 564. Donald I. Goodenough, Torrington, Conn., 564.

White Leghorns: Tolvonen Leghorn Farm, Girard, Pa., 604. Steelman Poultry Farms, Lansdale, Pa., 559. Geo. Lowry's P. Farm, Inc., West Willington, Conn., 535. Hanson's Leghorn Farm, Corvallis, Ore., 551. Tom Barron, Catforth, Preston, England, 511. Mountainside Farm, Sterling Junction, Mass., 551.

CROPS IN CONNECTICUT VALUED AT [illegible]

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 14—Connecticut crops were valued this season at [illegible], which was 12 per cent. greater than last year's estimate and approximately the same as the five year average, according to Dr. E. A. Perregaux, marketing specialist at the state college, in a radio talk delivered over station WCAC. The main increases were in tobacco and potatoes. While fruit and feed crops decreased in value, with the exception of those growers who suffered from the hail storm on August tobacco producers received fairly good prices, the economist said.

The dairy situation is in an uncertain state due to severe overproduction in manufactured products and a general surplus in the fluid milk areas, Dr. Perregaux stated. Butter prices are lower than any December since 1914 as a result of stocks nearly 50 per cent. greater than last year. The fact that butter was stored during the summer at prices two to three cents higher than the December prices indicates how unexpected was the present situation, the state college economist pointed out. Condensed and evaporated milk stock in dealers hands are nearly 50 per cent. greater than last year.

Estimates of production for the year by the U. S. department of agriculture show no great increase in production in all dairy products on the basis of milk equivalent, but does show an apparent decrease in consumption. The only manufactured milk product to show an increase in consumption is canned milk. November trade being about 20 per cent. greater than a year ago. Whether this dairy slump is only temporary is still uncertain, Dr. Perregaux said. In Connecticut, 20 per cent. fewer cows were dry on December 1 and production per cow greater than either last year or the five year average figure. This may mean relatively less surplus than usual in a few months, the economist said. With cow prices apparently starting downward and beef still high it is now possible to get rid of unprofitable cows without too great loss, and at the same time to aid in relieving overproduction.

Receipts of eggs at the four leading markets, Boston, Chicago, New York, and Philadelphia were eight per cent. lower than last during the month of December, in part due to extremely cold weather. From January 1 to 10 receipts have been about 28 per cent. lower than last year's during the same period, Dr. Perregaux stated. This shortage of receipts, combined with a shortage of stocks in cold storage has served to keep prices up slightly higher than last year but lower than in 1928. While storage stocks of eggs have been moving out rather slowly the remaining supply is small and should help strengthen the market for at least another month, the economist said. Another factor which will be soon felt is the use of eggs for incubation purposes which should help to reduce receipts.

The expected drop in price in December due to larger receipts expected from the increased number of pullets on farms did not materialize, Dr. Perregaux said, and the prices were higher than during December last year. Imports of frozen and dried whole eggs from January to November 1929 were less than last year, while imports of frozen and dried yolks were greater. Receipts of poultry at the four markets during the last half of the year were much heavier than last year or the five year average.

There has been some improvement in potato price during the last two weeks, Dr. Perregaux stated. Prices at Presque Isle, Maine, the center of the Maine commercial area, were 15 cents a bushel higher than at Christmas. Prices at Boston have increased about 20 cents a bushel during the same time.

Mrs. James L. Harroun of Willimantic has been a guest of Miss Anna Beardow in Taftville.

ANNUAL MEETING OF ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH

The annual parish meeting of St. Andrew's Episcopal church was held Monday evening, Jan. 13th with a very large attendance of the communicants and Rev. E. J. Norris, the rector, presiding.

Favorable reports were heard from the Women's guild, Women's auxiliary, Altar chapter, the Church school, Girls' Friendly society, Men's club, Missions, Church choir, and Church Choir social fund. All showed progress and finished 1929 with a balance on hand. The church treasurer reported every bill paid, with a substantial balance in the treasury.

The following officers were elected for 1930: Senior warden, William J. Banfield; junior warden, James Johnson; clerk, Charles Erwin; treasurer, Arthur Fitch; assistant treasurer, John E. Evans; vestrymen, William H. Taft, William Andrews, John T. Evans, Fitch A. Dolbeare, Albert Andrews, William Winterbottom, Fred W. Fitch, W. H. Haden and Charles Perry. Delegates to the Diocesan convention: Fred W. Fitch, Charles Erwin; alternates, James Johnson, John T. Evans; archdeaconry delegates, William Andrews, William H. Haden; alternates, William H. Taft, F. A. Dolbeare.

The Rev. E. J. Norris, rector, congratulated the congregation on the fine showing by each society and for the progress made during the past year and thanked the vestry, members of the societies and workers, and the congregation for their fine co-operation. He urged persistent endeavor with an aggressive spirit, to meet the changing conditions in the district with the resultant problems and bid them notice what a united church with a people "intent on a mind to work," had accomplished in the past which encourages us to trust God and look forward to even greater success in 1930.

The Rev. E. J. Norris completes one year of service as rector on Jan. 28th, and hopes to speak on Sunday, Jan. 19th, on how to strengthen the work at St. Andrew's.

W. J. Banfield, J. Johnson and Charles Erwin and others, made brief and helpful speeches.

The ladies served a dainty lunch which concluded a very enjoyable evening.

The Greeneville N. M. sewing circle held their weekly meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. William Day on Boswell avenue with a large class present. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Alvin Barrows and Mrs. Thomas Harrington. The dining room was prettily decorated in pink and white.

Miss Ida Marshall has returned to her home on Prospect street after spending a few days in New Haven.

The Girls club of St. Mary's Memorial church held the first card party of a series to run during the remaining winter months Monday evening in the assembly hall of the church with 180 taking in the evening of cards. There were 20 tables of whist, 15 tables of pinochle and 10 tables of bridge in play. The hall was decorated in blue and white, the club's colors.

The winners at whist were: ladies, first, Mrs. Sarah Brennan, second, Anna Connelly; gents, first, Edward Sullivan; second, Harold Wickham; pinochle, ladies, first, Mrs. J. Fitzgerald; second, Mrs. Joseph Burke; gents, first, W. Welton; second, A. Patterson; bridge, ladies, first, Amy Berracree; second, Alice Derosier; gents, first, Mr. Anderson, second, John Mara. Members in charge of the successful affair were as follows: Committee on whist, Margaret Fahey, chairman, Miss Mary T. Barry, Miss Mary Mahoney, Miss Dorothy Herrick, Miss Madeline Daley, Miss Alice Nutter and Miss Marion Constandi; pinochle, Miss Margaret Barry, chairman, Miss Mary C. Barry and Miss Margaret Barry as [illegible]. Bridge was in charge of Miss Veronica Roberts as chairman; Miss Teresa Connelly had charge of selling tickets while Miss Mary Kirby and Miss Agnes Kilcollum took tickets at the door. The ticket committee was Miss M. Keeley, chairman, Miss Helen Carroll and Eileen Ryan. Committee in charge of candy were: Miss M. Welton chairman, Miss Marie Daley, Miss Alice Nutter, Miss Rose Derosier, and Mary Fahey; committee in check room, Miss Drescher chairman, Miss M. Shea, Miss A. White and Miss M. Crowe.

Mrs. Emily Copeland Booth, 87, who died Monday at her home at Brimfield, Mass., was a native of Hampton, this state. She was the wife of Melvin Booth, [illegible], who is a Civil war veteran. They lived in the town of Union until [illegible], when they moved to Brimfield.

WESTERLY MAN SHOT IN STOMACH; POLICE HOLD MAN HE ACCUSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 14— Atwood Gardner, 25, a half-breed Indian and Negro, son of Mrs. Victoria Gardner of Hunter terrace, lies at the Westerly hospital tonight in a critical condition with a bullet wound in his stomach alleged to have been inflicted by James Derrico, 58, of 58 1-2 Oak street. Derrico is being held pending the outcome of Gardner's condition.

Gardner was found in a semi-conscious condition on a doorstep on Mountain avenue by Charles Bilven who heard the man groaning and made investigation. Gardner was rushed to the Westerly hospital where he was questioned by police officials and the medical examiner. In short installments he moaned out the story of the shooting, accusing Derrico of it. He claimed that he was walking along the railroad tracks near Fraser's bridge about 10:30 tonight when he was accosted by Derrico who was coming from the direction of his home.

The wounded man claims that Derrico asked him to throw a stone through the window of a house near the tracks and when Gardner refused, Derrico pulled a revolver and fired three times, the first two shots missing but the third hitting Gardner in the stomach. Gardner said that he was about 20 feet away from Derrico when he fired the first shot and that he (Gardner) ran at Derrico to take the gun but when he was about five feet from him Derrico fired for the third time. Gardner then tried to walk to his home while Derrico made his escape. Gardner collapsed when on Mountain avenue.

Police found Derrico at his home, preparing to retire, but took him to the hospital where Gardner identified him. Derrico was silent and would admit no part in the shooting.

Gardner is in a very critical condition and little hope is held for his recovery.

BENOIT AND AL DUGAS TIED IN PRACTICE SHOOT

Benoit and Al Dugas were tied for first honors in a practice shoot conducted Tuesday evening at the state armory on McKinley avenue by the Taftville American Legion rifle team, their score being 175 each. E. Dugas had second high score with 174, one point behind the leaders. The results:

	OH	K	S	P	TLTS
Benoit	39	44	46	48	175
Al. Dugas	41	42	46	46	175
E. Dugas	44	44	40	46	174
Stebbins	41	43	39	48	171
Ad. Dugas	44	38	40	48	170

In a novel match called the big game hunt, the feature of the evening, John Lucia of Norwich was the winner with a score of four out of five. The idea of the match is to shoot off the animal crackers mounted on a piece of paper. One point is received for each one dislodged from the paper, while one point is deducted if the tail of the animal is broken off.

SCHOOL BOARD DISCUSSES JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

The question of the establishment of a junior high school in this city to relieve the congested conditions in the public schools and Norwich Free Academy was again discussed at great length at the monthly meeting of the Norwich school board at the superintendent's office in the court house Tuesday evening. The chairman, Walter F. Lester, presided at the session, at which matters of a routine nature were transacted preceding the discussion.

How the individual members of the board stood on the junior high proposition could not be ascertained, but it was announced that a special meeting is to be called in the near future when the committee will go on record.

A second class for defective children is to be established in the Greeneville section of the city, it was voted. The first class is at the Bishop school on Main street in the East Side section.

BALTIC CLUB JANITOR TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Joseph Rondeau, 48, janitor at the Baltic Social club, committed suicide by hanging himself Tuesday afternoon in a room on the lower floor of the building.

Rondeau was found about 6:40 in the evening by his son-in-law, Lionel Fournier, who came to the building and, when he discovered the body, immediately notified Deputy Sheriff John J. McGuire who cut the body down.

Dr. George Thompson was summoned and gave it as his opinion that the man had been dead about two hours when he was found.

Mr. Rondeau, who is said to have been in poor health and despondent for some time, had lived in Baltic about 15 years. He is survived by four sons and four daughters, all grown up.

WILL VOTE ON SALE OF COMMUNITY HOUSE

According to the call for the annual meeting of the United Congregational church, an item of business there will be a vote upon authorising the church trustees to sell the former Second Congregational church edifice on Church street, which for several years past has been styled the Community house and used in various ways for social and entertainment purposes.

It is understood that the recently organized Norwich Community synagogue, which held some of its early meetings in the Community house, stands ready to purchase the property to be used for synagogue purposes. When authority has been given by vote of the church meeting, the sale can be consummated.

JUNIOR WINNERS IN EGG LAYING CONTEST

During January the number of boys in this county taking part in the junior egg laying contest increased from 35 to 60. They had 37,786 birds in their flocks, according to Randolph Whaples, county club agent.

The class winners for January follow:

Class A—John Benker of Occum, Floyd Armstrong of Norwich and William Wilcox of Norwich Town.

Class B—Milton Chasnoff of Uncasville, Harold Hemboldt of Lisbon and Donald Waterman of Norwich Town.

Class C—Micheal Hracyk of Montville, Meyer Weisler of Uncasville and Harry Schadiak of Colchester.

The average number of eggs per bird for the month was 10.92.

FINED IN CITY COURT FOR MOTOR LAW VIOLATION

Daniel W. Coulopoulos of 68 Oak street was fined $10 and costs in the city court Tuesday morning by Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis, when Coulopoulos pleaded guilty to the charge of failure to grant right of way.

This charge was made against him last Friday night when he was arrested after the machine he was driving had been in collision at Park church corner with a machine driven by Mrs. W. F. Bogue of 108 Broad street. Her machine was upset but she was not injured, although she was pinned under the car, and both machines were considerably damaged.

Organizing 4-H Clubs

NORWICH TOWN

WOMAN'S DEPARTMENT IS TO OPEN 1930 SEASON

The Woman's department of the League of Service is to hold its opening meeting for 1930 Friday afternoon at three o'clock in the Congregational chapel. Following the meeting there is to be a brief program in charge of the program committee, and a social hour. This meeting is for all women of the parish and friends. Suggestions for new year activities have been solicited.

Rev. A. N. Foster, pastor of the Church of the Good Shepherd, (Universalist), is to occupy the pulpit of the First Congregational church in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Sunday morning, January 19th.

The Congregational Young People's C. E. society held an installation service Sunday evening in the chapel. The annual business meeting took place first, in charge of Crosby Peck. Prayer was offered by Clyde M. Beebe. "What A Friend We Have In Jesus," was the opening hymn. Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, who installed the officers and committees, briefly addressed them and extended the right hand of welcome, also offered the installation prayer at the close. The officers are: President, Miss Eleanor Smith; vice president, Henry Counterman; recording secretary, Miss Rose Durr; corresponding secretary, Miss Jessie E. Hyde; treasurer, Mrs. Burton Jopson; stewardship superintendent, Burton Jopson. Committees: Prayer meeting, Misses Louise Sterry and Helen Schwenk, and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, Karl Nylen and Luther Whaley; lookout, Robert Stott, Miss Grace Wheeler, Miss Esther Durr, Mrs. Howard Lucy and Miss Mabel Corrigeux; missionary, Misses Dorothy Waterman, Bessie Whaley, Arthur Avery, and Mr. and Mrs. Burton Jopson; music, Misses Elinor Moore, Bernice Underwood Ruth Hyde, Grace Wheeler and Theodore Sterry; flower, Misses Eleanor Smith, Rose Durr and Louise Sterry; social, Charles Barber, Ralph Barber, Robert Stott and the Misses Louise Sterry and Dorothy Waterman and Mrs. Charles Barber; good citizenship and information, George F. Hyde, Henry Counterman and Ernest and Oliver Nylen; junior, intermediate, Misses Jessie E. Hyde and Marion Buckley and Mrs. Charles Barber and Mrs. Ernest Washington.

At the close of the installation service, the meeting was turned over to the leader, Mrs. Burton Jopson, who closed it with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction. This society has an active membership of 35, with seven associate members and 12 absent members, several engaged in teaching or taking a college course. The general themes for each month to be considered during 1930, are: January, World Friendship, Missions; February, The Bible; March, Sharing Christ With Others; April, Vocational Choices and Easter; May, Good Will and Peace; June, Leadership; July, Recreation; August, Service; September, Planning New Work; October, Christian, Citizenship and Fellowship; November, Stewardship and Thanksgiving; December, The Christmas Season.

At the meeting of Wolf Cub Packs of Scouts connected with the Methodist Episcopal church Tuesday afternoon, two more members were initiated and two new members were admitted to the pack. There was an attendance of 25 including the visitors. It was a story telling meeting. Following the opening ritual in charge of Cubmaster Rev. George Warren Potter, inspection was held. Boy Scout Earl Robinson acted as inspector. The cubmaster read an installment of the story of the early west which is proving of great interest as it brings out so many things a Cub Scout should learn of woodcraft. A story telling game in charge of the Assistant Cubmaster Donald Olsen was enjoyed for the next period. The meeting closed with the playing of Taps, by Bugler Ellis Bentley.

The Congregational mid-week service of conference and prayer Thursday evening the chapel, will have a half-hour devotional period, followed by the church corporation meeting.

SUGGESTS PUBLIC FORUM FOR MEN AND WOMEN TO INTERCHANGE IDEAS

The regular monthly luncheon meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club was held Tuesday noon at the Wauregan hotel, with many of the members present. The speaker at this meeting was Rev. Dr. Theodore M. Shipherd, pastor of the Park Congregational church, his subject being "Woman in Industry". He spoke of the change in the standing and attitudes of women in the present day world but emphasized the fact that an entirely masculine mind and an entirely feminine mind would always move in parallel lines, never meeting, no matter how closely they are associated.

When women attempt to become masculine by casting aside those powers of thought and activity with which their constitutions are best equipped, they become futile he said.

Dr. Shipherd suggested the idea of a public forum—a place where men and women in the community might come together and express their opinions on any subject openly. Here their convictions, so important to themselves, could be discussed, approved, criticized, or even ridiculed, but in any case, so reconstructed as to be of real worth to the community. Through contracts and discussions of this kind men and women might come to a better understanding and work together more constructively.

MAKES APPOINTMENT OF COUNTY CROPS COMMITTEE

Appointment of the county crops committee was announced Tuesday by President W. W. Service of the New London County Farm bureau, the duty of which is to meet and discuss the county crops programme, ratifying and criticizing what is being done. Those on the committee are: Milton Beckwith of Franklin, Elmer Geer of Lebanon, Avery Gallup of Norwich, A. E. Shedd of Preston, George Norman of Griswold, Roland Allyn of Salem, Arthur Beebe of Niantic, Harry Lewis of Stonington, George La Croix of Sprague and Hugh Whitman of Waterford.

Professor J. S. Owens of Connecticut Agricultural college will be a speaker and take part in the discussion when the committee holds a dinner meeting Thursday at the Wauregan hotel.

ADJOURNS CRIMINAL COURT TILL LATER IN WEEK

When the adjourned session of the criminal superior court, with Judge C. L. Avery presiding, was opened here Tuesday morning, Judge Avery at once made a further adjournment to Friday morning as no criminal business was ready for the court.

On Friday morning it is expected that the reputed ringleader in automobile and dress goods thefts at Colchester last June, Samuel Bushinger of Newark, N. J., alias Sammy the Jew, will be ready to plead guilty.

It is understood that he has already made a confession of the Colchester burglaries and thefts of about $20,000 in value in dress goods and motor cars.

On Motor Law Violation Charge

William Goodman of No. 24 Elizabeth street was booked on a charge of violation of the motor vehicle laws at police headquarters Tuesday afternoon. State Police Officer Murphy of the Groton barracks summoned the accused into court.

Broadway Stars
pass merciless CLOSE-UP TEST

Like 9 out of 10 screen stars, they have long kept their skin at its best with Lux Toilet Soap . . .

THE moment the talkies "arrived," many of the most famous stars of the Broadway stage were signed by the great motion picture studios. Then, under the glare from the huge incandescent close-up lights, they faced the cruelest test a skin can possibly meet.

Unless their skin showed alluringly smooth and fine on the screen, they could scarcely hope to "get across" in talking and singing pictures.

These Broadway stars passed the test, needless to say. Theirs was the flawlessly smooth skin demanded for the innumerable close-ups of sound pictures. And never were they more appreciative of the gentle care Lux Toilet Soap has given their skin.

For long ago the famous women of the theater made Lux Toilet Soap their own. Long ago it was made the official soap in 71 of the 74 legitimate theaters in New York alone—and in other leading theaters throughout the country.

Hollywood found out years ago that no girl ever becomes a motion picture star unless her skin shows perfect on the screen. That is why, of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps the skin lovely and smooth as a flower petal.

It was at the request of the actresses themselves that all the great film studios have made this white, delicately fragrant soap official in their dressing rooms.

• • •

You will be delighted with Lux Toilet Soap, too! You can keep your skin attractively clear and smooth just as the famous women of the stage and screen keep theirs—by using it. And it does lather so very generously, even in the hardest water! Order several cakes—today.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE (Candle Light) says: "I'm enthusiastic about it."

MARILYN MILLER (Sally) says: "It keeps my skin satin-smooth."

BEATRICE LILLIE, delightful comedienne, is devoted to Lux Toilet Soap.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT (See Naples and Die) "Keeps my skin so smooth!"

WINNIE LIGHTNER says: "It cares for my skin so perfectly! I love it."

BOBBE ARNST says: "It is certainly a marvelously delicate soap."

RUTH CHATTERTON, much beloved star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap leaves one's skin so smooth!"

MARY EATON, charming star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin always beautifully fine and smooth."

LENORE ULRIC (The Sandy Hooker): "It keeps my skin always exquisitely smooth."

HELEN MORGAN (Sweet Adeline) says: "—a wonderfully satisfactory soap."

ANN PENNINGTON, adorable star, says: "I wouldn't be without this lovely white soap!"

JOAN BENNETT says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so smooth. It is certainly a joy!"

JEANETTE MACDONALD says: "I consider it a real find. It keeps my skin lovely."

HELEN CHANDLER says: "I'm devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. It's delightful!"

NORMA LEE says: "It is so soothing and it leaves your skin just like velvet."

HELEN KANE says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so very softly smooth and clear."

PEGGY WOOD (London production of Bitter Sweet) says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap."

VIOLENT EARTH SHOCKS IN LOS ANGELES AND VICINITY

In Hollywood Shoppers In Stores and Office Workers Rushed Into the Streets—Severe Vibrations Continued For More Than 30 Seconds—At Pomona Telephone Service Was Temporarily Disrupted.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—(AP)—An earthquake shook Los Angeles at 6:26 today. It was severe and vibrations continued for more than 30 seconds.

The quake was severe in Hollywood where shoppers in stores and office workers rushed into the streets. No damage was reported.

A second shock was felt here at 6:35 p. m.

At Beaumont and Banning two distinct shocks were felt, rattling windows and shaking down pictures. No reports of damage had been made there, however.

The shock appeared to move in northeast and southwest directions.

Redondo beach felt it but without damage.

The quake did not extend to Santa Barbara or into Owens valley. Imperial valley also escaped.

Buildings Swayed

POMONA, Calif., Jan. 15—(AP)—Telephones temporarily were put out of commission by two earthquake shocks here late today. Buildings swayed and many residents ran into the streets. The interruption to telephone service lasted only a few minutes and no other damage except broken bric-a-brac was reported.

FIRST ANNUAL REPORT OF THE UNITED CORP.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—The first annual report of the United Corp., Morgan-Bonbright Utility Holding company, formed Jan. 7, 1929, issued today, disclosed that market value of its holding on Dec. 31 was approximately $10,000,000 above their cost to the corporation, despite the crash of the securities markets in October and November.

Total securities held as of Dec. 31 were carried at total cost of $804,-818,947, compared to an estimated market value of $814,070,677 on that date. Cash on hand and working accounts totaled $18,390,229, making total assets of a book value of $823,-807,177. Income for the period from Jan. 7 to Dec. 31 totaled $9,037,067, of which $1,372,417 was realized from profit on sales, commissions, etc., while the remainder came from dividends and interest.

After all costs and dividends on the preferred stock balance carried to surplus totaled $3,555,676, which is equivalent to about 49 cents per common share of 7,553,515 shares outstanding. This, however, does not include stock dividends on securities held, which dividends on Dec. 31 had a market value of $506,639.

NEARING CREATION OF NEW TRANS-CONTINENTAL ROUTE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The creation of a new trans-continental route, for years the subject of controversy, is nearing realization, Dow, Jones & Co. reported today.

This new route, it was said, will be the outcome of an agreement between the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad with the controlling interests of the Denver & Salt Lake, a Moffat road, which would settle the question of trackage rights over the Denver & Salt Lake, and the construction of a 41-mile connection from Orestod, on the Denver & Salt Lake to Dotsero on the Denver and Rio Grande Western.

Construction of the cut-off will permit use of the Moffat tunnel and effect a reduction of about 12 hours in running time on through business.

The Denver and Rio Grande Western is controlled jointly by the Missouri Pacific and the Western Pacific.

15 PARACHUTE JUMPERS LEAPED IN SUCCESSION

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Fifteen parachute jumpers leaped in rapid succession from a giant transport airplane as it circled over Miami today in the feature event of the closing day of the second annual All American Air meet.

Within a minute and a half after the last man jumped, all of the 15 were floating downward. Immediately afterward three others quit the cabin of the Goodyear semi-dirigible defender floating above the path of the plane. All of the 18 jumpers landed safely.

More than 125 fliers participated in a series of exhibitions of speed and skill.

Freddy Lund, of Troy, O., in a Waco plane took the day's honors in acrobatics. Navy and marine corps fliers did a series of difficult formation flights.

CHURCH REJECTS OFFER FOR COMMUNION SERVICE

STRATFORD, Jan. 15.—(AP)—By an almost unanimous vote, members of the First Congregational church rejected the offer of Francis P. Garvan, head of the Chemical Foundation of America, wealthy collector of church silver, for its Colonial communion service, at the annual meeting of the church tonight. After William A. Hart, chairman of the trustees, had read a lengthy history of the individual pieces which make up the collection, Charles K. Stagg moved that a letter be written to Mr. Garvan's representative stating that the service "is not for sale at any price." Several members immediately seconded the motion and it was passed.

TESTIMONY BEFORE THE SENATE LOBBY COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Representatives of two New York importers associations testified today before the senate lobby committee that they had collected $38,000 to support their claims before congress in connection with the pending tariff bill.

The witnesses were Peter Fletcher, a linen importer, and president of the National Council of American Importers and Traders, Incorporated, who collected $30,187, and Samuel Kridel, commercial banker, who raised $18,000 for the "silk defense committee" of which he was chairman.

HUSBAND'S YACHT CHRISTENED BY DOLORES COSTELLO

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The 120 foot steel yacht "Infanta," built for John Barrymore, featured film actor, was launched at Long Beach Harbor today. Dolores Costello, actress, wife of Barrymore, christened the craft, which was estimated by shipbuilders here to have cost $150,000.

The yacht is said to be the largest of the steel type and has two 275-horsepower motors. It was designed for a crew of six and eight passengers.

TWO MEN AND A WOMAN SULLEN AFTER ARREST

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Sullen and defiant, two men and a woman, captured by a posse after an exciting chase through mountainous Arizona country, were in jail here today and were interrogated in connection with the slaying of a Pennsylvania policeman, a Texas bank holdup and a series of robberies in Pennsylvania and Arizona.

The woman, who said last night she was Irene Schroeder, blonde "trigger woman" of Benwood, West Va., alternately admitted and denied her identity today. She said today her name is Mildred Winthrop and she has no son in West Virginia named Donnie. Soon afterward she expressed a wish to see Donnie, "my son."

Examination of the woman revealed a flesh wound in the neck, caused by a rifle bullet when she and her companions attempted to fight it out with the posse.

The two men are M. Glen Dague, alias Albert Winthrop, and Joe E. Wells. The latter has a bullet wound in his right leg, and officers pointed out that one of the robbers who held up a Coleman, Texas, bank recently had been shot. Dague and the woman are suspected of slaying Corporal Brady Paul, of the Pennsylvania highway police, last December 27.

POLICEMAN HELD FOR LIQUOR TRANSPORTATION

HARTFORD, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Evidence establishing an instance in which a policeman's automobile was used in the transportation of liquor and another in which a minor city official is said to have used the name of someone "higher up" in an effort to secure "protection for a bootlegging friend from a liquor detail sergeant has been included in the information presented to the grand jury in connection with alleged reports of corruption in local liquor traffic. It was reported today. No official confirmation was forthcoming today on reports that the grand jury had been investigating financial affairs of a number of men, including several members of the police force. The grand jury, it was reported today, is ready to report Friday without taking further testimony.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY CONNECTICUT GRANGE

HARTFORD, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Louis G. Tolles, of Southington, was elected state master of the Connecticut grange, at today's session of the annual state convention here. Frank H. Peet, of Kent, was chosen overseer. Other officers elected are: Lecturer, Mrs. Sarah L. Curtis, Plainville; steward, Charles M. Adams, Groton; chaplain, Mrs. Nellie E. Blakeman, Stratford; treasurer, Darius A. St. John, New Canaan; secretary, Ard Welton, Plymouth; gatekeeper, Sherman K. Ives, Litchfield; Ceres, Mrs. Lucretia Bailey, East Haven; Pomona, Mrs. Laura M. Pike, Brooklyn; Flora, Mrs. Bessie R. Moshier, Waterbury; lady assistant steward, Mrs. Bessie R. Case, Collinsville.

These officers will be installed at tomorrow's meeting, the closing session of the convention, by National Lecturer James C. Farmer, of New Hampshire. Reports of several committees were given today, with more to be heard before the adjournment tomorrow.

WOULD HAVE U. S. TROOPS DO BORDER PATROL DUTY

SANTE FE, N. M., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Governor R. C. Dillon of New Mexico today recommended a rigid enforcement of prohibition laws, with use of the United States troops as border patrols, with a view of proving "whether the people of the United States do or do not want prohibition."

"The army is under government pay," Governor Dillon said. "And it could be used in peace times without an additional cost to the United States.

"I am a strong prohibitionist myself, but I am anxious, like countless other executives and people of the country, to see some early and definite solution of the prohibition question."

POLICY OF FRANCE FOR NAVAL CONFERENCE

PARIS, Jan. 15.—(AP)—France's policy in the forthcoming naval conference, it was learned in authoritative quarters today will be based on a determination to maintain fleets commensurate with her needs at home and abroad and at the same time to insist upon naval strength which properly expresses her importance as a world power.

ANSONIA WOMAN WINS $5,000 IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Mary Zabowsky, 33, of Ansonia, today was awarded $5,000 in her breach of promise suit against William Kozak, of Shelton, in civil superior court.

The girl told the jury that on the day she was to wed Kozak last July, he married another. Kozak denied he had offered marriage.

May Bar Parrots From Importation

Federal Health Officials Are Considering Placing An Embargo On the Birds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The first official reports on deaths and serious illness due to parrot's fever or psittacosis in widely separated cities reached federal health officials today and led them to give further consideration to placing an embargo on importation of the birds.

The reports were meagre, and did not cover one new death and two suspected cases reported unofficially today, nor all of the eight deaths and 47 cases that public health officers said they had information about yesterday. They brought information, however, that is expected to aid in tracing the origin of the outbreak.

Surgeon General Cumming called in Dr. T. S. Palmer, assistant director of the Bureau of Biological Survey, for what was understood to be a conference on means of banning the birds. It was said later, however, that no steps in that direction would be taken immediately.

Dr. Palmer said after the conference that "a most effective embargo already had been placed on importations by press reports of the spread of the disease."

Not one parrot has been imported from South America, during the last 30 days, added Dr. Palmer, and the only shipment of which "clues are sufficiently definite to connect illnesses" was one of 289 parrots that arrived on December 8 from the port of Cartegena, Colombia.

City Health Commissioner Wynn of New York reported today that sales of birds in this shipment have been recorded for the following points: Centralia, Pa.; Portland, Maine; Hartford, Conn., and Detroit.

WOMAN WAS STRANGLED BY HER PEARL NECKLACE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Apparently strangled by her pearl necklace, Mrs. Harriet Adler, 38, wife of a bond broker was found dead today in the Penthouse apartment of Dudley Murphy, 28, a motion picture director, in East 41st street.

There was an imprint of the necklace on her neck and police believed she might have caught the strand on something in falling. An autopsy will be performed tomorrow to determine the exact cause of death. Officials said the imprint of the necklace was not deep and that Mrs. Adler's face did not show the usual signs of strangulation.

Murphy told police he did not know how the woman, a casual acquaintance, had died. She said she had come to his apartment at 1:30 this morning, apparently intoxicated, after making several telephone calls.

He said he did not arrive at the apartment until about 2 o'clock and that Mrs. Adler refused to leave. So he and John Barbour, who shares the Penthouse with him, went to bed, leaving her on the sofa.

Today a Negro maid, discovered the body and aroused Murphy. The movie director could not revive the woman and called a physician, who pronounced her dead.

Murphy and Barbour both told Assistant Medical Examiner Henry Weinberg that they had been drinking last night. They were not held.

GERMANY AND CREDITOR POWERS FINALLY AGREE

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Germans and the creditor powers today finally settled the difficult question of sanctions which has been one of the chief stumbling blocks in the way of adoption of the Young plan for reparations.

Texts of declarations were adopted by both parties recognizing the principle that the creditor powers will recover liberty of action against Germany whenever the court of international justice may, on complaint of the creditors, find that the German government has committed an act tending to destroy the Young plan.

BEQUESTS IN THE WILL OF FANNIE A. BOWERS

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15—(AP)—Among bequests made in the will of Fannie A. Bowers, daughter of Caleb B. Bowers, filed for probate today, were three to the Visiting Nurse association, Y. W. C. A., and Yale Hope Mission. These organizations will divide about $100,000 of an estate valued at from $250,000 to $300,000.

There is only one heir, Mrs. Katrina B. Shephard, of Berlin. She will receive one-half of the estate after minor bequests, and the other half goes to the first named organizations.

EXPECT CLOSE VOTE IN SENATE ON TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The sixth day of debate on the sugar tariff brought forth further conflicting views in the senate today and the contesting factions agreed that the vote to be taken not later than noon tomorrow probably would be close.

Democratic advocates of retention of existing rates looked to eastern republicans to decide the issue, while the republican regulars favoring high protection believed enough democrats and western republicans would go over to their cause to put through an increase.

THREE ARRESTS IN NEW BRITAIN FOR SHOPLIFTING

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 15—(AP)—Three women and a man, all of Springfield, Mass., were arrested here today on charges of shoplifting. They were Madeline Biardi, Francesca Vudliese, Grace Lazarus and Dominico Giovanni, who gave his address as 743 Worthington street.

Police found a wide variety of merchandise in an automobile which the quartet abandoned when they saw police approaching. They were later rounded up, one by one. The value of the stolen goods was not estimated.

MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL WITH HIS THROAT SLASHED

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The body of Frank D. Austin, 36, president of Laporte and Austin, advertising agency, was found in a room in the Hotel New Yorker tonight. His throat was slashed and beside the body lay a strait-edge razor. Police expressed the belief that Austin had killed himself.

Convention Of The Anti-Saloon League

Hopeful Predictions Made In Addresses Of Leaders At Opening Session.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 15—(AP)—Calls for unrelenting militancy mingled with songs of conquest and hopeful predictions in addresses of national leaders at the opening session of the Anti-Saloon league's biennial convention here, tonight.

The league has "enlisted for the duration of the war," F. Scott McBride, general superintendent, declared in his address, and it must continue "an aggressive, militant fight until country and city submit to the law."

A similar spirit permeated the address of the Rev. A. J. Barton, of Atlanta, chairman of the national executive committee, who spoke on "dry strategy for 1930."

Mr. Barton asserted that the league is the most hated and feared organization in America. "The wets," he added, "are more and more amazed at the strength of our organization. In a pitying and patronizing way they announce that we are dead, or at least moribund. The wish is farther to the thought."

A "well-organized, happily-co-operating, gloriously militant body," is the "imperative demand of this hour," Mr. Barton declared. As one point of strategy to this end he suggested that state leagues be given a larger autonomy, that they may "function more effectively, each in its own sphere and may give larger support, both moral and financial to the national league; and then we will see to it that the state leagues give this moral and financial support x x in such abounding measure that the national league an function and fight as never before."

Keeping prohibition "out of and above party politics and party contention," was another point stressed. Responsibility for the presence of the prohibition issue in the last presidential campaign was laid by Mr. Barton upon "the nominee of one of the parties, who felt himself big enough to bully his party, to jump its platform and make his own."

"I predict," Mr. Barton continued, "that never again will any party allow itself to be so bullied and so led to certain political slaughter x x and that hereafter both of the major parties will frankly espouse prohibition as a dearly bought and highly fruitful American achievement."

"We must, we will give wholehearted support to our president and all others charged with responsibility for enforcement of law who are faithfully doing their duty," Mr. Barton said in summing up the final point of his programme. "The whole situation as to prohibition and prohibition enforcement has been changed and is being changed more and more by the example and influence and straightforward course of the president. Three years more—shall I say seven years more?—of the present order of things at the white house, and the whole country will be dry, both in law and in fact."

COMPLETING PLANS FOR THE NAVAL CONFERENCE

LONDON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—While the American naval delegation neared Plymouth harbor aboard the S. S. George Washington and final plans for opening the naval conference were being rushed to completion in London, Prime Minister MacDonald outlined today to journalists of all nations the program that Great Britain will pursue during the coming weeks of the conference.

Speaking with the full authority of the government he heads and with the frankness that characterized his utterances in the United States last autumn, Mr. MacDonald gravely declared that failure of the conference would meand that the world would have to face ten or twenty years of competitive building of fleets.

He is not overwhelmingly enthusiastic about the prospects for the conference, but he is confident that a treaty that will be immediately effective in reducing navies to the lowest level commensurate with national security, will result from it.

THE "ARTICHOKE KING" PLACED UNDER ARREST

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Ciro Terranova, so-called "artichoke king" arrested today, was charged tonight with acting in concert with others in a conspiracy to hold up the "welcome home" dinner given for Magistrate Albert H. Vitale by the Tepecano club in the Bronx the night of December 7.

The police theory of the holdup, revealed in the departmental trial of former Detective Arthur C. Johnson, a guest at the dinner who was robbed of his service pistol, is that it was engineered by Terranova to recover a written "contract" with a Chicago gunman, signed by Terranova and calling for the slaying of Frank Marlow and Frankie Yale.

Terranova was taken into custody by a policeman who saw him near police headquarters. Terranova said that, after reading newspaper accounts of accusations against him, he was on his way to find out whether the department really wanted to question him.

BRIAND OF FRANCE AND GRANDI OF ITALY HAVE TALK

GENEVA, Jan. 15.—(AP) — Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy, attempting to reconcile the divergent attitudes of their countries on respective naval strengths, held a private talk in their hotel today between routine sessions of the league of nations council.

The French and the Italian delegations declined to disclose the result of the conversation. In well informed quarters, it was reported, however, that little, and perhaps no progress had been made toward an agreement about their naval needs.

CHILDREN TRAVELED FROM CZECHO-SLOVAKIA

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Three small children who traveled without adult escort all the way from Czecho-Slovakia to join relatives in this country arrived tonight aboard the liner Aquitania.

The children are Michael Carney, 10, who will go to the home of his father, John Carney, in Bridgeport, Conn., and Pavel and Emily Madar, 9 and 7 respectively, who will join their father, Pavel Madar, in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The children remained aboard the vessel tonight because it arrived too late for the third class passengers to be cleared.

TO CONTEST $15,000,000 DRY LAW APPROPRIATION

Point To Be Raised By Representative LaGuardia Of New York—Based On the Ground That Only Ten States Ratified the Amendment After It Was Enacted—Wet Block In the House Will Endeavor To Build Up Sentiment Against the Dry Law—Leaders In Congress Plan To Expedite Legislation To Carry Out President Hoover's Proposals To Strengthen Enforcement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A decade of prohibition closed tonight with leaders in congress planning to expedite legislation to carry out President Hoover's proposals to strengthen enforcement.

House leaders decided to grant legislative right of way to the Williamson bill to transfer the prohibition unit from the treasury to the justice department as soon as the house expenditures committee reports it.

Representative Snell of New York, chairman of the rules committee, said the drafts of four or five other bills to carry out the recommendations of President Hoover probably would reach the house early next week and that quick committee action had been assured.

While these developments were under way, Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, announced that he would raise a point of order during consideration tomorrow of the treasury-postoffice annual supply bill on the $15,000,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement that the 18th amendment was null and void. It will be based on the ground that only ten states ratified the amendment after it was enacted.

He said that three-fourths of the states had ratified the resolution creating the amendment but not the article itself.

Both Senators Sheppard, democrat, Texas, author of the amendment, and Borah, republican, a dry of Idaho, expressed the opinion that the New Yorker's efforts would come to naught and cited the supreme court's decision upholding the article.

At the same time the wet bloc in the house prepared an aggressive campaign to build up public sentiment against the dry laws. The executive committee of this group of about 106 selected Representative Linthicum, democrat, Maryland, to continue as chairman. His nomination will be considered by the group Monday.

Linthicum was renominated after Representative Beck, republican, of Pennsylvania, announced he would not accept the leadership. The Pennsylvanian said, however, that he would support the movement because "prohibition is a cancer that is slowly eating out the moral fibre of the American people." A former solicitor general and recognized as a constitutional lawyer, he predicted that the "legislative expedients" submitted by President Hoover would not result in the enforcement of the law.

An attack on the report of the Hoover law enforcement commission launched on the floor by Representative Black, democrat, New York, a wet, relative to empowering federal commissioners to handle misdemeanor cases was met by a contradicting statement from Chairman Wickersham of the commission.

Senator Norris of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, previously had questioned that portion of the commission's report, as had Representative LaGuardia, republican, of New York. Norris said he wanted to study it further and was interested in the views expressed by Mr. Wickersham.

The commission chairman, in a formal statement, said the recommendation to facilitate dealing with minor prohibition violations involved no departure from well settled constitutional principles and constituted no violation of any constitutional right.

Black contended that the recommendation not only would result in an invasion of constitutional rights if enacted, but would fail to relieve congestion of the federal courts because offenders would ask for jury trials.

Early action by the house expenditures committee on the transfer proposal was planned by Chairman Williamson of that group, who today asked Secretary Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell for reports on his measure. Hearings probably will begin next Tuesday and the bill may be reported before the end of the week.

The LaGuardia resolution will be introduced tomorrow. It charges that a joint resolution prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors was ratified by three-fourths of the states Jan. 16, 1919, and became known as the 18th amendment.

Section three of the resolution, however, the measure says, provides that "this article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the constitution within seven years from the date of the submission hereof to the states."

More than seven years have elapsed, the measure continues, and only ten states, Minnesota, Wyoming, Wisconsin, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, Iowa, Vermont, New York and Pennsylvania have ratified it.

LaGuardia said he intended to make a test case of the claims of his resolution in event no action is taken by congress. The measure probably will be referred to the judiciary committee, of which LaGuardia is a member.

PROHIBITION ENTERS ITS ELEVENTH YEAR TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Ten years old at midnight, and a child of controversy all its life, prohibition will enter its 11th year tomorrow facing another period of tumult.

When Nebraska's legislature ratified the 18th amendment, giving the three-fourths vote necessary to change the constitution of the United States, it made the document a living law on Jan. 16, 1920. From that date it has had no peaceful moment. Its opponents concentrated from the beginning to tear it apart; its supporters organized and have fought successfully to prevent its weakening.

TO USE GUNS AND TEAR GAS ON RUM RUNNERS

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Michigan state police will use machine guns and tear bombs in a determined effort to stop rum running between Detroit, Chicago and the southeast, according to plans announced tonight by Oscar G. Olander, state commissioner of public safety.

PROHIBITION RAIDS ARE CROWDING JAILS

COLUMBUS, Ga., Jan. 15.—(AP)—City and county jails were taxed to capacity here tonight with 71 persons taken in a sweeping prohibition raid conducted by federal, county and city officers last night and today. The warrants charged selling and possessing intoxicating liquors.

The raids, begun last night, were carried out under the direction of Fred Dismuke of Macon, district prohibition administrator, and continued until past noon today, when 11 of the 8 warrants sworn out by W. K. Johnston, local federal agent, had not been served.

LIFE SENTENCES FOR DRY LAW VIOLATORS COMMUTED

LANSING, Mich., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Gov. Fred W. Green today commuted the sentences of five Michigan violators of the prohibition law now serving life terms under the provisions of the state's former criminal code.

By this act the governor finally ushered into oblivion that clause of the Michigan criminal code which provided a mandatory life sentence for any prisoner guilty of four liquor law felonies or whose fourth felony happened to be a violation of the liquor law. The sentences were cut to from 7 1-2 to 15 years, complying with an amendment to the code passed by the 1929 legislature.

COLD WEATHER LESSENS MENACE OF FLOODS

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP) — Fickle winter stretched a cold hand over the flood-perilled Ohio and Mississippi valleys tonight and brought at once a blessing and a menace.

The January thaw that had spilled icy waters of swollen streams into the farms and cities of the central states was at an end. But the rivers still were rising in many parts of Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, Kentucky and Missouri and the bitter cold only served to sharpen the misery of farmers and townsmen driven from their homes.

Thus far there has been no loss of human life, but property damage swelling into the hundreds of thousands of dollars was expected as the rising waters swept over a broad expanse of farm lands and destroyed corn crops left standing in the fields. Highways were undermined or washed away at many points, and a threat to dynamite approaches to the Hazleton bridge over the White river on U. S. Highway 41 in Indiana to relieve the flood in Knox and Pike counties provoked the posting of a national guard unit at the bridge.

RAIN OR SNOW ALONG ENTIRE PACIFIC COAST

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(AP) — Rain or snow fell today along the entire Pacific slope of the U. S., and the weather bureau said more stormy weather was on the way.

No further fatalities from the cold weather were reported although a number of snow bound parties still awaited rescue. An improvement of highway conditions in one section was matched by further snow in some other parts.

The heaviest snowfall of the past 24 hours, aside from the strictly mountain districts, was in southwestern Washington and northern Oregon. The Columbia river, the lower part of which is Portland's highway to the ocean, was the scene of an ice jam which stopped the ferry service between Long View, Wash., and Ranier, Ore.

$200,000 ALIENATION OF AFFECTIONS SUIT

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 15. — (AP) — Charging alienation of the affections of his wife, Oliver G. Martin, of this city, director of the William Martin and Son company, contractors and builders, today filed suit to recover $200,000 damages from Arthur L. Clark, president and treasurer of the Arthur L. Clark, automobile dealer of this city.

Martin was married on December 26, 1921, in Stamford, to Helen Louise Joyce and claims in his action that in 1927, Clark stole the affections of Mrs. Martin.

HOUSE LEADERS AT DINNER AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP) — A dozen or more house leaders were invited to dinner at the white house tonight.

With Speaker Longworth and Representative Tilson, the republican floor leader, heading the list of guests, the president had around the dinner table the chairman of virtually all the former important house committees.

The house leaders brought their wives with them.

GASOLINE TAX IN STATE LAST YEAR $4,072,048.42

HARTFORD, Jan. 15—(AP)—Collections on the gasoline tax in Connecticut for the year 1929, will total approximately $4,072,488.42, it was announced by the state department of motor vehicles today. The figure establishes a new high record for the state's collections of this tax, exceeding the previous year's total by $602,-737. Collections of gasoline taxes have increased yearly since the tax was first imposed.

INSPECTORS COMPLETE THEIR INVESTIGATION OF PLANE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 15. — Upon concluding an official investigation into the fatal crash of the Fairchild monoplane near Amston lake Friday morning Inspector Hinds of the United States department of commerce said tonight that he felt assured that no criminal negligence was involved. Inspector Hinds found that the Aviation corporation of which the Fairchild Corp is a subsidiary had provided all equipment and taken every precaution for the safety of Daniel Marra, pilot, and William Kirkpatrick, observer, who were killed in the crash. This official report would leave the foggy weather conditions as the main factor for the mishap.

Lieutenant Kenneth A. Fraser, technical engineer of the Aviation corporation, returned to New York tonight after completing his unofficial investigation and securing affidavits from persons eligible for reward money, which totals $1,600. Lieut. Fraser said that the parachutes had remained fastened to the men and that there was no indication that they had been thrown out of the cabin at the time the big machine somersaulted through the air after hooking the landing gear in the top of an oak tree.

Chief Inspector George S. Pranaitis, of Brainard field, Hartford, also left tonight, indicating that all official and unofficial probes into the accident were completed.

Lieutenant Fraser also secured affidavits from persons connected with the discovery of the plane. Among these persons were Fred Rowley, 45, superintendent of the Amston Game club, and John Johnston, Jr., 15, also of Amston, who found the plane and the charred bodies of aniel Marra, 22, pilot, and William Kirkpatrick, 37, observer, while on a search Tuesday forenoon. Julius Reinholts, Amston farmer, who heard the plane at the time the motor was shut off suddenly and who notified Rowley of the incident, was also questioned today. The arrival of a United States department of commerce agent was momentarily expected to conduct the official inquiry into the crash.

Daniel Marra, 22, pilot of the plane, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 12, 1907, the son of Rocco and Philemina Moneremarano Marra. He was unmarried. Arrangements were made with the undertaking firm of Avery and VanZandt today for the removal of the remains to the home in Brooklyn, N. Y., Thursday. Officials of the company considered him one of the best pilots in their service.

David T. Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield, N. J., brother of William Kirkpatrick, who was also a resident of that place, arrived here about noon today. The dead observer was a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He was born in Newark, N. J., April 16, 1902, a son of William and Jane Anderson Kirkpatrick. Besides his brother, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Jane Kirkpatrick, of Bloomfield; two sisters, Mrs. John W. Moffatt, of South Orange, N. J., and Miss Jean Kirkpatrick of Bloomfield. Miss Kirkpatrick accompanied her brother here today. The remains of the observer were removed today to the home of Mrs. Moffat in South Orange. Services are to be held Thursday, with burial in the Rosedale cemetery, Montclair, N. J.

David T. Kirkpatrick today described the anxiety of the family since the disappearance of the plane Friday forenoon. He said that about 125 planes were in readiness to soar over Connecticut in search of the missing flyers but the very fog that sealed the fate of the men kept the searchers from taking to the air. He said that Marra was a graduate army flyer from Kelley field, Texas.

A descriptive folder of Willimantic's model home is about to be issued by the chamber of commerce. The home, an English style cottage, will be open for free public inspection next Saturday, January 18, at 2 o'clock. All of the equipment and furnishings of the house will be provided by local merchants.

During the nine days of the inspection members of local women's organizations will act as hostesses. The house will be open daily from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m. The free inspection is designed to give everyone an opportunity to see modern cottage and gain information on a financing plan of home-ownership.

A well-attended membership party was held by the Catholic Welfare council in St. Mary's hall Tuesday night. Reports were read by the committee chairmen, indicating that the council has done effective work during the year. Mrs. Joseph B. Riordan, president, commended the members on their work. During an entertainment there were readings by Mrs. Charles H. Beebe and solos by Mrs. Mary Mathieu, Miss L. Monica McKean, Miss Florence Coutu and Miss Claire Mathieu. Mrs. Edmund R. Portelance was accompanist. Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Rathbun and members of the hospitality committee.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. Emily Copeland Booth, 87, at her home in Brimfield, Mass., Monday. She was born in Hampton and was the wife of Melvin Booth, 90, veteran of the Civil war. They resided in the town of Union until 1885, removing to Brimfield during that year.

At a session of the Ashford town court this forenoon Melvin Harrington of that town was charged with nonsupport of his three minor children. He pleaded not guilty through Counsel Arthur T. Kelley. Testimony for the state was given by Mrs. Gertrude Harrington, the complainant, Otto Hattin and State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Stafford Springs barracks, who made the arrest. Harrington and a boarder, H. Stevens, testified for the defense. Justice of the Peace Clarence H. Barlow found Harrington not guilty and ordered his discharge. Grand Juror Justin Burrill prosecuted.

The Hampton fire company is expecting to receive a report soon from a committee on the cost of a motor pumper. Since the company organized some time ago with Robert McDermott as acting chief, Hampton has been free from fires.

NEW TELEPHONE BUILDING TO HAVE MODERN SYSTEM

The new building of the Southern New England Telephone company which has been in process of erection for twelve months has been completed and a new system will go into effect Friday afternoon at two o'clock. It will no longer be necessary for patrons in this exchange to use a hand generator. Many improvements in quality, speed and convenience of service will be possible when the new system is in operation. The present four units system will be reduced to two—the telephone instrument and unit box and the elemination of the hand generator will make it easier to place calls and signal the operater that the conversation is ended. The new switch board will provide positions for eight operators to work at one time. The test board is equipped with the most recently developed instruments to prevent as well as locate trouble which interrupts the service. Electricity will be supplied from a modern power and battery plant located in the new building on High street.

COLCHESTER

THEORY THAT A FIRE BUG BURNED COHEN SUMMER HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

COLCHESTER, Jan. 15—Fire of undetermined origin caused an estimated loss of $2,500 when a story and a-half house on upper Hall Hill avenue, owned by J. Cohen of White Plains, N. Y., burned to the ground about 3 o'clock Wednesday morning. Chief Brown with the engine and squad of firemen responded to a call but the fire had gained such headway when discovered that the house was a raging mass of flames when the firemen arrived. A small quantity of furniture stored in the house was destroyed in the blaze. The house had been unoccupied for several months, its owner, Mr. Cohen, having used the place as a summer residence. Older Colchester people know the house as the former Patrick Flynn residence. It is understood that the loss is partially covered by insurance. The question has been raised as to whether the fire was not the work of a suspected fire bug who is thought to have set fire to several empty houses and dairy barns about the town, during the past year.

At the public Bible and prayer meeting to be held this (Thursday) evening at the Congregational church, William E. Adams is to be leader.

The meeting of the S. S. S. C. 4-H club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of its leader, Mrs. H. H. Tompkins. Miss E. Elizabeth Grover, assistant county club agent gave the girls many helpful suggestions for the advancement of their club projects. Mrs. Tompkins reports the girls enthusiastic over the coming years program which will include the making of a complete summer outfit.

Joseph I. Bailey of East Haddam called on friends and relatives here Wednesday.

The Colchester Men's club held a well-attended banquet and social gathering Tuesday evening at Stanley's. The menu included roast turkey, mashed potato, turnip, peas, pie, cake and coffee. Judge Charles F. Brown of the local justice court was toastmaster. Following the dinner there were musical selections and a social good time. About thirty-five local and out-of-town people were present, including Deputy Sheriff Nelson Brown of Mystic, Deputy Sheriff Martin of New London, Deputy Sheriff George H. Hoxie of Lebanon, Charles Hickey, assistant clerk of the superior court, New London, Attorney Coffey, New London, Fire Chief H. F. Brown, Colchester, James H. Hyde and Benjamin P. Davis, Franklin and Herbert Sweet of Lebanon. Similar social gatherings and banquets are to be held by the club at frequent intervals during the coming months.

Mrs. E. J. Jodoin is remaining in Brooklyn, N. Y., where her father, E. J. Davan is recovering slowly following an operation for appendicitis. At one time there was but scant hope for his recovery. Mr. Davan has been a visitor here every summer and when he is able to make the journey, it is expected that he will come here to recuperate at the home of his daughter.

Fifty-four years ago, Jan. 28, 1876, the question for debate in the Jewett City lyceum was: "Is it wise to contend against quackery, either in politics, medicine or religion?" The affirmative speakers, who were given the decision, were H. I. Mathewson, Joseph Roode and J. Audobon Webb; the negatives were Dr. William Soule, Lafayette Kinney and John C. Bromley. Of these men, Mr. Webb is the sole survivor.

OBITUARY

Dr. William Appley

News has reached the borough of the death January 9th, of Dr. William Appley of Cochecton, N. Y. He was for half a century an Erie railroad surgeon and was at one time secretary of the American Society of Railway surgeons. His grandfather was Dr. Luther Appley, a native of Canterbury. Besides relatives in Norwich there are several in Jewett City of the same family, George Geer, of Hopeville and Lewis Gill of Griswold, married two appley sisters. Miss Emma Gardner, a Jewett City girl, is now Mrs. Milo Appley of Canterbury.

Walter Appley, a one-time Norwich trolley conductor, is well remembered by local patrons. All these are descendants from the first Appley settlers, in Canterbury.

The man who caught the big pickerel Wednesday, fishing with a hand line off the edge of the partly melted ice at Dorrville, gave rather vague information in the borough when he declared that it weighed "Oh, 'bout a pound, pound and a half, two pounds or so."

Passers-by on Main street early Wednesday afternoon were interested to learn about the call of the Backus hospital ambulance in town. It was learned later that a patient from Voluntown had been taken to that institution for treatment.

Fred Gilbert is the other fortunate Jewett City man to receive as a Christmas gift from Mrs. Gilbert, a high class Rochester barometer. He studies its mystifying scales night and day, and said Wednesday that he could now tell how many eggs his close to a thousand White Leghorn pullets would lay from one to two days in advance.

FUNERAL

Lafayette Albro

Funeral services for Lafayette Albro were held Tuesday afternoon in the Methodist church at Voluntown. Rev. J. W. Carter of Jewett City, pastor of the church, officiated. Mrs. William Liberty sang several selections. There were beautiful flowers. Burial was in Robbins cemetery; the bearers were Frank Gardiner, Herbert Burdick, George Nichols, Edgar Clarke, Albert Dupont and Edward Eccleston. Relatives and friends were present from Moosup, Riverpoint, R. I., Jewett City and Voluntown. Undertaker H. E. Gilbert was in charge of the arrangements.

Walter Gray is confined to the bed at his home on Aspinook street, as the result of an injury to his knee.

PROJECT TO ORGANIZE LOCAL BRANCH OF Y. M. C. A.

This (Thursday) evening there is to be an open meeting in the interest of forming a Y. M. C. A. here. The meeting will be held in the Congregational vestry. There will be several reels of motion pictures, showing Our National Parks, Blue Monday and Queen of the Waves, a story of the growth and improvement in sea craft. Windham County Secretary L. Edwin Hill will talk over the details of organizing, and it is expected that a number of boys, already members, will accompany him. Parents of boys between nine and fourteen have been asked to attend, and anyone else who is interested in such an organization.

The annual meeting of Dorcas circle of the King's Daughters was held Tuesday evening with Mrs. Alice Anthony, twenty-one being present. A delicious covered dish supper with various surprises was served by Mrs. Anthony, Mrs. E. B. Cheney, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Miss S. K. Adams and Mrs. F. I. Ray, each member present bringing an article of food. The blessing was asked by Rev. G. F. Goodenough. The business meeting followed, conducted by the leader, Miss M. A. Burdick. The annual report of the secretary, Miss Sadie Thompson, was read by the secretary pro tem. The circle has done many deeds of kindness and service during the year. Plants, flowers and fruit have been sent to sick and shut-ins, with baskets of fruit at Thanksgiving. At Christmas, forty-three scrap books were sent to the New London County home at Norwich, and forty-seven gifts to the Seaside sanitorium, at Crescent beach. The old purple band box netted a good sum for the treasury. This circle has always had charge of the sale of tuberculosis seals and this year the net receipts were $175. The circle has 39 members, a King's son and an honorary member. A social programme has been enjoyed at nearly all the meetings. Miss Adams, the treasurer, read her annual report. The nominating committee reported the officers to serve next year, and they were elected: Leader, Miss M. A. Burdick; vice leader, Mrs. F. E. Robinson; secretary, Mrs. Alice Anthony; treasurer, Miss Bertha Davis. The leader appointed as sick committee, Mrs. J. W. Carter, Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot, Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Bessie McCluggage. Work committee, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. L. D. Howe, Mrs. Harry Davis, Mrs. Edith Soule; social committee, Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst, Mrs. W. H. Payne, Mrs. F. I. Ray, Mrs. E. B. Cheney. At the meeting of Pachaug grange, this (Thursday) evening, a part of the program will consist of a roll call, the men to discuss the topic, Why I am a Farmer or Why I am not a Farmer, and the women, the question, What is the best investment, a radio, victrola or piano? A report of the State grange meeting will be given by Worthy Master George Frink.

SAN DIEGO AIRPLANES AMAZE LOCAL TOURISTS

From No. 2305—Ave., San Diego, Calif., under date of Jan. 6th, comes the following from Mr. Ross:

It rained here yesterday. One-half inch fell and the natives have been rejoicing. Blizzards in the high Sierras insured a water supply for irrigation. I think the very dry weather has caused people to cough and appear to have bad colds on account of the dust. This rain will relieve this condition.

During the rain yesterday we did not hear airplanes. There is a constant drone of the planes all day long. There are four or five airports in the city—one each for the navy and army, a private field (where I saw a triple motored ship) and a city airport.

There is talk of another to be called the Col. Lindbergh field. The latter field is near the water. I have seen from our windows a vessel, (Barketine), schooner-rigged aft and square rigged forward. We drove down to the harbor Saturday to see this ship which we thought near shore. We found her alongside a wharf and near this wharf will be the Lindbergh flying field. This vessel stood very high out of the water and no doubt was used for a passenger ship of years ago as she had three or four decks. She was called "The Star of India." This vessel, I was told had been given to the city of San Diego and she will lie where she is and will be part of a park and airport named for Col. Lindbergh.

We went over to the navy airport on Coronado Island and before going on the field they demanded our camera. Here we saw hundreds of airplanes of all kinds. We were interested in a 2-motored hydroplane that was being launched into the bay. She was let down into the water over a steep incline by about twenty sailors. There were two wheels under her which were raised by those aboard as soon as she was in the water. She taxied down among the war vessels and soon turning with a terrible roar, headed into the wind and for thirty seconds skipped (bounded) along the waves and soared very gracefully aloft.

I spoke of the terrible roar she made and a sailor said "You ought to have heard the noise that was made by 163 airplanes in the air at one time last week."

We went to the Coronado hotel after visiting the navy airport. This hotel was built about forty years ago. It is built around a court. In this court are palm trees, flowers, orange and lemon trees. The ball room was the largest I ever saw except when one of the rooms in the Ponemah (Taftville) mills was used one evening for a ball, Gurdon Cady prompting.

The circular ball room in the Coronado hotel was larger than any church or theatre I ever saw.

The hotel is right on the shore of the Pacific Ocean. There is a very heavy breakwater in front of the hotel and the waves were breaking twenty feet high over the outer wall.

As we left the hotel, driving east, we passed through the Tent city. There are 2,000 tents in this city, each renting for $30 per month. These tents are roofed with tule, a very hard fibrous growth like tall spindling cornstalks.

The shore season begins soon. There was a good many in bathing; I was told the temperature of the water was 60 degrees.

Going east, we drove along the ocean side for 14 or 15 miles over a good paved road, called the "Silver Strand." This road was straight for many miles and the waves off shore were breaking miles long.

On our left was San Diego bay; toward the east end of the bay was a place called the "Bone Yard" where we were told there were 74 obsolete war vessels and they expected more this week.

I hardly think they were all warships as some of them looked like vessels built at the time of the war.

At the extreme end of the bay or harbor were salt beds. These beds are walled with clay. They may have a core of concrete. These beds are two or three acres in extent, some larger. Very little water in a few, and these along the edges looked as if the snow (salt) had drifted against the wall.

In another letter I will tell you of a grave yard (cemetery) and from this graveyard we saw a beautiful valley called Paradise. Very appropriate name—so near the last resting place of so many.

Thank Goodness! He Exclaimed My Last Pound of Fat Is Gone

It Will Never Come Back While "That Kruschen Feeling" Lasts

"A year ago I was 30 pounds overweight—I was fat and no one knew it better than my own indolent self.

"I was told of lots of drugging ways to get rid of it, but I would not sacrifice my health for the sake of losing weight.

"To tell the truth I was getting lazy—didn't have much energy—and very little ambition.

"Just then I heard so many good things about Kruschen Salts that I started to take them and never missed a morning.

"Well! In a couple of weeks I commenced to feel like doing something and in six weeks I was as active as I ever was in my life—that tired, indolent feeling left me and has never come back.

"But that's not all! My energy is like a youth's—I get up in the morning thoroughly refreshed after a sound sleep and am ready and anxious to get to work.

"It's a great feeling, 'that Kruschen feeling,' seems as if I never get tired. I can walk for miles and enjoy every mile of it.

"That's how my fat left me—fat cannot exist long when a man's active, energetic, ambitious and full of joy of living. But I haven't stopped taking Kruschen Salts, not for one day. I would rather go without my breakfast than my Kruschen."

Kruschen is six salts—not just one—these salts act on stomach, liver, bowels and kidneys and soon keep pure, fresh blood coursing through the veins—a jar that will last 4 weeks costs but 85c at Lee and Osgood's and druggists the world over. It's the little daily dose that does it.

DANIELSON

GRAND LIST SHOWS GAIN OF $6,000 OVER LAST YEAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15.—Notwithstanding some necessary heavy reductions in assessment values of properties of the town, chiefly in the second district, the new grand list of the town of Killingly as compiled by the assessors, A. M. Thompson, L. S. Barstow and Fred E. Miller, shows a gain of something more than $6,000 over the last grand list. The total this year is $6,921,532. There is the likelihood now that the next grand list will be well over $7,000,000.

Figures compiled by the assessors show that there are 1,665 dwellings in the town, 865 of these in the first district, of which Danielson is a part, 565 in the second district and 239 in the third district. The assessed value of these is $2,587,300. The 1,472 barns, sheds, store houses, ice houses and garages that are taxed show a valuation of $326,710. In the list are 118 buildings used for commercial or mercantile purposes, and of a valuation of $675,200. House lots to the number of 2,195 are assessed for $726,090. The 15 mills of the town are taxed for a total of $1,071,875.

The town of Killingly has 26,492 acres of land of an assessed valuation of $345,326.

Horses do not figure as largely as in years gone by in the possessions of the people of the town, yet there are 236 of the animals, valued for taxing purposes at $6,320, and the 1,126 neat cattle listed are valued at $48,955. Sheep and poultry are taxed for $20,120.

The town is strong for motor vehicles, however, with 1,768 cars and trucks listed for taxation. The value of these machines is set down at $431,703. It would appear that the townspeople care little for diamonds, watches and jewelry as a whole, as only $175 worth are listed for taxation. Stocks of merchandise are valued at $463,995, furniture, libraries and musical instruments at $55,840, and cables, conduits, underground mains, wires, etc., at $204,000.

Property in the town that is not taxed has an assessors' valuation of $1,200,000. This includes both public and privately owned properties.

The publicly owned and untaxed properties include the state armory and its equipment, the town hall building and its equipment, the fire stations, schools and library, Davis park, the borough farm and the cemeteries.

The untaxed private properties include the churches, the Old People's home, private schools, parsonages and transportation company holdings.

Properties of non-resident taxpayers are assessed for a total of $587,566.

Aside from its continued value as a guide to housewives, a volume of "Tried and Tested" cooking recipes "by the ladies of the Methodist Episcopal church of Danielsonville, Conn." is of interest in showing how many firms doing business in what is now Danielson when the book was published just 40 years ago have passed out of the mercantile lists of the community.

The book contains advertisements by Miss M. E. Low, milliner, whose place of business was in the Music Hall block, a building known to this generation as the town hall. Woodward's drug store and Witter's coal yard were other advertisers.

Back in January, 1890, when the book was published, A. D. McIntyre of Putnam had a photographic studio here, W. S. Brown was operating the Depot express, Walter L. Dixon was in the furniture business at 209-212 Main street, Abner Young had a furniture store at 184 Main street, C. P. Card was selling groceries at 202 Main street, and A. Dewing was in the same line in the Exchange block. In the Winkelman block where the Berris and Del Pesco stores are today, W. H. Wheaton was also dispensing groceries. C. E. Woodis was advertising candy, his place of business being where the Danielson Taxi office now is. M. Ames was selling teas, coffee and spices at 186 Main. Fred H. Browne was in the ice cream business at 147 Main street.

Back in those days, the Aspinook Knitting mill was manufacturing hosiery here. M. P. Dowe & Sons were telling the public about having a full assortment of worsted yarns and fancy goods. C. F. Chapman was in the meat business. Keach and Johnson were doing a general contracting and building business. Another advertising contractor was M. E. Fisher. Milton A. Shumway, later a justice of the supreme court of errors of Connecticut, inserted a card as an attorney-at-law. C. H. Bacon was in the furniture business, and still is. Another purveyor of furniture was Edward Dexter.

Dr. O. C. Sharpe was practicing dentistry. John A. Paine was in the lumber business, and Charles Phillips, agent at the Quinebaug Co. general store. Preston & Carpenter had a jewelry store, and Sidney W. Crofut was in the insurance business. J. F. Winkelman was dealing in footwear. W. O. Jacobs was in the hardware business and J. E. Logee in the bakery business. G. A. Graves was a fish dealer. William Burrows & Son were selling footwear and James J. Dunn was in the plumbing business. Dr. Perkins and Dr. W. E. Hyde were practicing dentistry. A. H. Armington was another grocer who advertised. George N. Potter was selling greenhouse products. J. W. Gallup was in the market business, as he still continues to be. Dr. W. H. Judson was practicing medicine here and still is. George Leavens was in the dry goods business and J. Alfred Pluse had a barber shop.

Of this list only a few remain in business here.

The preface of the cook book was written by Mrs. Charles H. Keach, and states that no recipes were allowed in the book without being thoroughly tested, and it may be added that the book contains some excellent ones.

There will be no waste by most firms and individuals of any variety of printed forms carrying the date line 192— because this is 1930. Here in Danielson alone thousands of forms have been used in the past fortnight that were intended to be used before the end of 1929. The present practice is to write in 30.

Officers elected last evening at the annual meeting of St. Alban's parish are: Clerk, Alfred L. Reed; senior warden, James E. Milner; junior warden, William Shaw; treasurer, Hubert Taylor; collector, John Bamford; auditor, E. J. Ingamells; vestrymen, for three years, John Bamford, Frederic O. Armington, Sidney P. Marland, Francis E. Storer; additional vestrymen, John Marland, Judge W. Fenner Woodward, Charles F. Alexander. The various reports submitted showed that that parish was very successfully administered during the past year. An increase in salary for the pastor, Rev. J. Ross Jones, was authorized.

Newly installed officers of Dorcas Rebekah lodge are: Eva Bradford, noble grand; Delia Weeks, vice-grand; Pearl Horton, corresponding secretary; Annie Page, financial secretary; Grace Ennis, treasurer; Ella Young, warden; Annie Long, conductor; Lillian Bailey, chaplain; Hattie Gallup, past noble grand; Belle Anderson, right supporter to noble grand; Geneva Ryder, left supporter to noble grand; Ella Wheeler, right supporter to vice-grand; Grace Ames, left supporter to vice-grand; Minnie Colvin, inside guard; Mary Short, outside guard; Maude Keech, musician; Hannah S. Haynes, press correspondent. The indications are that this lodge will be prosperous in 1930.

Manager William Sangster said today that Voluntown, territory that is in the Danielson division of the Connecticut Light & Power Co., will have electric lights within a few days. Some time since a high tension line was run by the company from Jewett City to Voluntown, an area from which the kerosene lamp and other lighting devices seem soon destined to disappear. Areas never before having electric lighting and other electrical facilities have been gradually penetrated and brought within the territory of the Danielson division within the past four or five years. Now the service is available to and taken advantage of on many farm properties, as well as in the towns and villages of this section of eastern Connecticut.

Rev. Henry Coolidge, pastor of the Congregational church at South Killingly, will be the speaker at Thursday evening's meeting of the Danielson Rotary club at Paco lodge on Morin avenue.

John Butler, who has been manager of the Woolworth store here for nearly three years past, left this afternoon for Albany to be assigned to some new post with the concern.

Members of the missions of St. James' parish of Danielson in Brooklyn and Hampton with a considerable number from this town were at the town hall in Brooklyn last evening for a farewell gathering in honor of Rev Joseph Bergin, M. S., of Danielson, who is to be transferred in a few days. There was a program and Rev. Fr. Bergin, who has ministered especially to the parishioners in Brooklyn and Hampton, was presented with a purse.

Mrs. Lena Bassett of Dayville will entertain the members of the Roundabout club on Friday afternoon of this week.

John W. Gallup has been appointed administrator of the estate of Adelaide Call, who died recently at her home in Elmville.

The next games in the Killingly Inter-Church Basketball league are scheduled for Monday evening of next week.

Announcement is made that the Windham County National bank, the Danielson Trust Co. and the Brooklyn Savings bank will, on and after March 1, be open from 9 a. m. to 3 p. m. on each week day excepting Saturday. On Saturdays the hours are to be from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. At the present time the banks, excepting on Saturdays, have been keeping open until 4 p. m. One reason for shortening the afternoon hours of opening is to allow the bank to clear up all transactions of the day on the day which they are made. The commercial banks have found it difficult to do this, with their increasing business, on some occasions, without working overtime.

WAUREGAN

The funeral of George B. Ferguson was held from the home of Mrs. F. T. Johnson, Grove street, Saturday afternoon. The services were conducted by the Rev. William Williams. Henry Leach, John Westcott, Addison Tracy and Alfred L. Reed were bearers. Mrs. Gertrude Tracy and Robert Bethel sang "Asleep in Jesus" as a duet. The committal was in Westfield cemetery, Danielson.

An excellent sermon was delivered Sunday morning at the Congregational church by Rev. Albert Abbott, Danielson M. E. church, who was exchange preacher for the day.

The annual meeting of the Congregational church was held Tuesday evening, with a good attendance. After a short service of song, scripture reading and prayer by the moderator, Rev. W. Williams, reports were heard from the clerk, treasurer, deacon and standing committee. All reports revealed a healthy condition of affairs. From the auxiliaries of the church, Miss Ethel Davis reported for the Earnest Workers; W. T. Burns as president of the Men's class; Wallace Burns as secretary of the Sunday school and Scoutmaster W. Williams for the Scout troop. The following officers were elected: Clerk and treasurer, Addison M. Tracy; deacon for two years, F. T. Johnson; member from the church to the standing committee, John Stones; deaconesses, Mrs. F. T. Johnson and Mrs. Charles Benham; ushers, Wallace Burns, David Williams, Earl Leach; music committee, Robert Bethel.

The following officers, elected by the church school were ratified by the church: Superintendent, W. T. Burns; assistant superintendent, Rev. W. Williams; secretary and treasurer, Wallace Burns; teachers, primary dept., Mrs. John Stones and Mrs. Harriet Tillinghast; junior dept., Miss Ethel Davis, Mrs. Gertrude Tracy, Miss Mabel L'Heureux; intermediate dept., Mrs. Addison Tracy; adult dept., Mrs. S. H. Williams and W. Williams. The clerk called the roll and the responses were many and happy in spirit. The pastor's report was read and recommendations made for work the ensuing year. After the acceptance of all reports and an interchange of views and suggestions a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments served by a committee, Miss Dorothy Atwood, Mrs. John Stones, Mrs. Charles Robinson, Mrs. Charles Benham. The evening closed with a period of hymn singing, and benediction by the pastor.

A black on white seed or kiva jar, unearthed in fragments in a Mesa Verde cliff-dweller ruin and restored, has been pronounced the finest thing of its kind found in the southwest.

PUTNAM

SEVERAL LOCAL BUSINESS PLACES CLOSING OUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 15—The commercial center of this city is undergoing a setback in business. At least this is the aspect presented in the down town business section where signs expressing the merchants intentions of going out of business unless, "cash can be raised to meet creditors demands" are hung above doors of the business houses. At another store a sheriff's writ of attachment is displayed and at another merchant house the management informs its patrons that they are to close before February 1 for reasons which are, "Rent too high, business depression, unseasonable weather, exerting best efforts to overcome a robbery of $2,500 committed a year ago."

The facts cannot be denied, one merchants has announced to the public in a printed statement. To add to the alleged direness of the situation in Putnam the National Rhea company, rayon manufacturing plant on Canal street has closed its doors until a new board of managers assumes control. Even with this accomplished it is expected that some time will be required before manufacturing operations commence again since the plant must go through a period of re-organization.

Still there is an optimistic side which undoubtedly will offset the present condition. A new mill, the silk manufacturing concern of M. Salzberg & Sons Co., is nearly ready to begin operations at the plant on Canal street formerly occupied by the Manahansett Mfg., company. Employment will be given to a large number. Bank officials on January 1, reported business conditions to have been the best ever and anticipate a profitable year in 1930 which means that the surrounding environment must be the same. The past few months have been periods in which construction undertakings have been carried on extensively and plans are being formulated for additional business block building projects. While the outlook at the present time tends to show that business conditions in Putnam are not good, there is every indication that the boom time will arrive, just as was predicted by business men and the city's chief executive in messages on January 1.

Following the annual meeting of the directors of the Citizens National bank held Tuesday morning in the banking rooms on Main street it was announced that all present officers were re-elected to serve in their present capacities for another year. Samuel B. Reynolds of Center street who has been an active member of the board of directors of the bank since its organization in 1924 was re-elected president. The following subordinated officers were re-appointed to office: Mahlon H. Geissler, Alexander Gilman, Whitman Danielson, vice presidents; Arthur E. Smith, cashier; James E. Murray, assistant cashier. The following were re-elected directors: Alfred L. Bonin, Edward H. Burt, Whitman Danielson, Arthur E. Smith, Ethel Mae Goodridge, Subbor Nickoloff, Alexander Gilman, Mahlon H. Geissler, Louis P. Faucher, Samuel B. Reynolds, Earl C. Rogers, Asa M. Ross, John W. Whipple, William B. Warren, Albert H. Williams and Charles D. Tatem. A statement of condition printed in the Bulletin on January 1, showed the bank experienced a prosperous year during 1929 and looks forward to the new year with optimism.

Dr. Benjamin T. Marshall of Worcester, well known educator and first president of Connecticut college was the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution held yesterday afternoon at the Odd Fellows hall on Pomfret street. Miss Bertha L. Sargent, daughter of a former Putnam pastor and assistant to Dr. Marshall, accompanied him on his visit here. A musical programme was presented following the address.

Judge Mahlon H. Geissler of city court is confined to his home on South Main street suffering from a cold and slight touch of grippe. Judge Geissler's condition is not serious and it is expected that he will be back at his office this week.

Albert E. Day, commander of the local post of V. F. W. says that the members of the Albert J. Breault post No. 1523 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars desire to bring the following facts before the people of Putnam and vicinity. The post is sponsoring a campaign of the sale and distribution of a book known as "History and Rhymes of the Lost Battalion," by Buck Private McCollum. The book contains the history of the 77th Division along with poems and narratives of the Lost Battalion. The Albert G. Breault post feels that people of this city in purchasing this book, will receive full value for their money as well as aiding the post in their relief work. Persons desiring additional information can communicate with the following post officials: Albert E. Day, phone 1078-3; John Simonsi, phone 706-5; or Mayor Charles A. Richard, phone 496.

James F. Mahoney, resident manager of the Putnam Theatres corporation of which the two local movie houses are part, was the speaker at today's meeting of the Putnam Rotary club held at noon at the Putnam Inn. The history, development and growth in popularity and other phases of the talking motion picture was the subject discussed by Mr. Mahoney. To further enlighten his group of listeners Mr. Mahoney exhibited a disc recording used in the reproduction of voice and small portions of the photophone films. These bits of the talkies drew from the audience many questions which Mr. Mahoney answered most clearly. A delegation from the Danielson Rotary club, consisting of Henry Dubuc, Thomas Hope, Henry Johnson, Sidney P. Marland, A. M. Thompson and William Sangster attended the luncheon and session. On next Thursday evening the Putnam club with a complement of thirty members will meet jointly with the Danielson club at the Westfield Congregational church in Danielson.

L. Edwin Hill, a member of the committee of the Putnam Rotary club sponsoring the interscholastic basketball league for boys and girls in the Putnam public and parochial schools, announced the schedule of the various teams which will compete for the banner to be given to the winning team by the Rotary club. Six teams will be represented in the tournament which will open on January 20 at the Putnam high school gymnasium. A Rotarian will be in charge of the activities at each meet. L. E. Hill will be in charge on Jan. 20, assisted by L. E. Beebe. On Jan. 27, Arthur E. Smith will direct assisted by Rev. U. O. Bellerose, on February 3, Ray Bosworth will officiate assisted by Fred Maryott. On Feb. 10 Alexander Maitland and Howard C. Bradford will be in charge with Rev. J. F. English and Leon M. Farrin directing the affairs on the closing meet February 17.

The members of the Hook and Ladder company at the Central fire station held their biennial election of officers Tuesday evening at the company rooms at the engine house. Two candidates for the foremanship of the company were placed in nomination, Foreman Edmund Keane securing the election by a majority of three votes over Elzear Guertin, first assistant foreman. Guertin was re-elected first assistant foreman and Euclid Faverteau was re-elected second assistant foreman. There were no contests for these officers. Robert Ramspott was reelected secretary and Elzear Guertin was re-named treasurer. The officers elected are subject to the confirmation of a vote of approval of the common council.

Earl Sargent is the real name of Harry Stone, alias Harry Winslow, Everett, Mass., who was arrested by Putnam police Monday on a charge of misrepresentation and obtaining money under false pretenses. Local police said today that "Winslow's" name was revealed late last evening after Massachusetts state police had departed from this city with Sargent in their custody. Sargent, previous to his arrest in this city had conducted a solicitation "racket" in New England towns for almost twenty-three years during which time he swindled scores of people out of money with his attractive scheme.

Martin B. Robertson, former supervisor of rural schools in the towns of Eastford, Pomfret and Woodstock and former resident of this city, was the speaker at a banquet held Tuesday evening at the Putnam Inn. Mr. Robertson, who is now a member of the educational board in the city of Willimantic, spoke interestingly on "Modern Educational Methods in the Rural Schools." The gathering was attended by about thirty teachers and school officials from the various towns surrounding this city.

The methods of delivering mail for this city and other points along the Norwich and Worcester branch of the New Haven railroad are proving unsatisfactory and the Putnam chamber of commerce is furthering a plan to bring about a better service. A week ago the government discontinued the delivery of mail via the boat trains on the branch and inaugurated an overland truck delivery service. Since the route was instituted trucks have failed to live up to their schedules and consequently important mail matters being delayed have greatly inconvenienced business men. The effort to return the mails to the railroad is combined with another effort to restore train passenger service to the branch, discontinued several years ago. An appeal is to be made to the New Haven road officials which undoubtedly will result in the bringing of the matter before the board of public utilities. Two trains a day, one north and one south are to be asked for. The effort of the local chamber of commerce, coupled with the cooperation of similar organizations in other communities without passenger or mail service will perhaps result in the return to the trains on this line which is now devoted to the hauling of freight.

Charles M. Killam, a lifelong resident of East Woodstock died at his home in that village Tuesday evening. He was in his 78th year. Mr. Killam was born in Woodstock, the son of Edward and Hannah (Child) Killam. He obtained his education in the schools of the town and attended Woodstock academy in Woodstock hill. He was a farmer and conducted a large agricultural enterprise in the tow for many years. His death was due to a stroke of apoplexy which he suffered recently. Surviving him are his wife and a son John Killam of Woodstock.

Armand J. Lizotte local business man is in Boston this week attending the annual show of the New England shoe manufacturers.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

The Auction Bridge club was entertained Tuesday evening by Mrs. Alfred Hill. The guests were Miss Genevieve Violette and Mrs. Michael Conneally. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Abby Hopkins. The prizes were won by Mrs. Lorrell Salisbury of Moosup and Mrs. E. Irving Cutler.

Mrs. Arnold Mathewson is visiting her daughter, Miss Ruth Mathewson, in Boston.

Willis Stone remains ill at the Backus hospital, Norwich, but is showing some improvement.

Mrs. Bertha Wilbur is in Putnam at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kent, on account of the illness of Mrs. Kent.

Mrs. Abby Hopkins was in New London Tuesday to attend a meeting of telephone employes.

Charles Bragg has been a business visitor in New York.

Jerome Lafrance's new automobile is attracting much attention.

Miss Helen Street has returned to Westfield, N. J., having visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Street, for a few days.

The church meeting and roll call is to be held Jan. 20.

MOOSUP

Moosup Boy Scouts, Troop No. 3, are going to Jewett City tonight to see motion pictures taken by the Byrd expedition to the south pole and shown by the Windham county Y. M. C. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Paranzino entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Baker, Miss Rose Paranzino, of Providence, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Del Pesco and daughter, Beverly, from Danielson, at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. George Granger is a patient in the hospital at Willimantic.

Mrs. Elmer Johnson of East Greenwich, R. I. and her daughter, Mrs. Roscoe Mathewson, formerly of Moosup, are visiting Mrs. H. A. Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Mott of Manton, R. I. were guests Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Mack Mott on High street.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mathewson of East Greenwich, R. I., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hyde.

Mrs. Richard Russell of New Bedford is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Everett Codlin. Mr. Russell was formerly overseer of weaving in the Aldrich Bros.' mill.

Mrs. John LeBeau, formerly Mrs. Joseph Ouelett of Moosup, is in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

Eugene T. Bellavance, Mrs. Edward Bellevance and Mrs. Albert Degrizer were calling on Edward Bellavance in St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic, Tuesday night. He is recovering following an operation for appendicitis.

Robert Besette has been very ill with tonsilitis.

New London district cable department men are in town in charge of L. C. Meeker, removing obsolete telephone equipment, splicing in new cables. The men have been at work the past three weeks. The new cables provide more adequate telephone facilities for present needs also for future expansion.

Dr. Joseph C. Robbins of New York city, Mrs. William A. Hill of New Rochelle and Miss Alma C. Noble of Buffalo have been entertained at the Cranska home this week.

Edward Bellavance, Jr., was operated on Sunday at 2 a. m. for appendicitis, at St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic.

The Girls' club had a whist party at the club rooms Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Henry Besette is ill.

Moosup Lions club met Wednesday at 12:30 at Moosup hotel. At present the club meets every two weeks.

The meeting of the stockholders of Moosup Trust Co. is to be held Thursday next, Jan. 21st.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bellavance, Eva and Beatrice Bellavance, were in Willimantic Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Marchessault were also calling at the hospital.

Mrs. George Gregoire is expected home from St. Joseph's hospital within a few days.

WESTFORD

Miss Lightie Morse is visiting at the Armitage home.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Dawley from Norwich, visited at C. D. Chism's Saturday.

To All Who Suffer Stomach Agony, Gas and Indigestion

All Druggists Make This Offer

Money Back If One Bottle of Dare's Mentha Pepsin Doesn't Do You More Good Than Anything You Ever Used

Why bother with slow actors when one tablespoonful of this splendid and pleasant liquid remedy will cause gas, bloating heaviness, heartburn or any upset condition of the stomach to speedily vanish.

And why should any man or woman suffer another hour with indigestion or any stomach misery when the remedy that acts almost instantly can be easily procured?

Dare's Mentha Pepsin not only quickly relieves stomach distress, but it also conquers stubborn indigestion and dyspepsia, and puts an end to dizziness, nervousness, headache, sleeplessness and despondency which distressing troubles are nearly always caused by chronic stomach disturbance.

Dare's Mentha Pepsin is pleasant to take, has a delightfully refreshing taste and after it has put your stomach in a clean and healthy condition, just notice how much better you look and feel, for besides correcting chronic stomach disorders this supremely good remedy that druggists everywhere guarantee, is a fine tonic that builds you up and makes you work with vim, eat with relish and sleep soundly.

"Now she's always hungry,"

. . . says HARTFORD mother!

"IRENE is absolutely the picture of health again," says Mrs. L. Shonty, 38 Asylum St., Hartford, Conn. "A few weeks ago we had to force her to eat; now she's always hungry.

"I knew what to do, when she became bilious, half-sick and listless, because we've always known about California Fig Syrup. Irene's coated tongue and bad breath cleared up with the first few spoonfuls; and in just a few days her stomach and bowels were acting perfectly. She is gaining right along now."

California Fig Syrup has the full endorsement of the medical world. A pure vegetable product, loved by children. A gentle, but thorough cleanser of a youngster's system and a gentle energizer for sluggish bowels. A stimulator for lagging appetites and digestions; a help in building sturdy limbs and robust bodies.

CLEANER STREETS

What will become of it no one knows, but just at the present time there is a strong effort being made in behalf of cleaner streets in New York city. The metropolis has anti-litter ordinances, which seem to be quite generally disregarded, but the idea of organizing a squad from among the police to work for the enforcement of the ordinances, for the cleaning of the streets and for better means of garbage collection and disposal is now under consideration.

How high the goal has been placed can be realized from the statement made to the police commissioner that a model community be established at some place in the city where the streets will be kept clean that other districts will follow the example.

That is a worthy ambition but it would seem that the existing contrast between present conditions in the streets and those which ought to prevail would be sufficient to bring about a rush for improved conditions if anything of that kind were possible.

It must be realized sooner or later that cleaner streets depend to a large degree upon the people in general. If they are imbued with the idea of clean streets and will refrain from littering them with all kinds of rubbish there will be no such cry for cleaner streets in the big city. Dirty streets in big or little cities exist because people regard them as the common garbage can. Anything that isn't wanted is immediately thrown into the street. Out into the gutter go tins, papers, store sweepings, in fact, anything one wants to get rid of quickly, and if a crumpled-up piece of paper doesn't promise discord enough it will be torn up into small pieces and tossed up as a snowstorm to make more trouble for the street sweepers.

The desire for cleaner streets is nothing new. It breaks out every so often in most every city. It is well founded but it never gets that cooperation from the general public that is needed, or the problem would be solved. It cannot be expected that streets are going to be clean if those who are responsible for them and use them are constantly engaged in making them dirty and unsightly.

CLEVELAND'S CITY MANAGER

Whenever the matter of city manager government is brought up it is pointed to as the method of getting a municipality out of the grasp of politics. It is considered to be the vehicle for running a city on business lines and, therefore, operates to the advantage of the community which adopts it.

There are times when this seems to work out in practice and there are other times when it seems to be only a beautiful theory.

In the city of Cleveland there has been a city manager for the last six years. That form of government hasn't produced entire satisfaction. In the last two years there have been three efforts made to abandon it, and in the last test it was retained by what, in view of the size of the vote, must be regarded as a very small majority. What seems fair to presume was a reaction from that large vote in opposition to the city manager government less than six months ago was the vote of the Cleveland council this week in ousting the city manager. This doesn't change the form of government but it means a new manager. It means that the council was not in sympathy with the policies being followed, that harmony did not prevail between the council and the manager.

The explanation by the ousted city manager, for whom big things have been claimed at various times, is that politics is at the bottom of it. The surprising thing is that politics should be permitted to show its head in city manager government. That had been regarded as an impossibility. Politics and city manager government were supposed to exist with each other even as oil and water, and yet politics is put down as having gotten control of the council and the city manager's job.

This all gets back to the oft made claim that it all depends upon the men who are put in office. It depends more upon the men than upon the form of government. Good men can make a success of a poor form of government while poor men can wreck any form of government. And when it comes to the choice of men, the responsibility always rests upon the voters of any community. The indications in regard to the situation in Cleveland are that if politics are at the bottom of the ousting of the city manager it is because the people there have given their support to it. If this change doesn't represent their desires they have it in their power to correct it.

RESTRICTING ALIENS

If there is anything more unsettled than the weather it is the immigration question. No sooner do we adopt new laws than efforts are at once started to modify them or make them more restrictive.

In the belief that the time had come to put up the bars and reduce the number of immigrants, this country decided upon a plan of admitting new aliens upon the basis of those of their nationality in this country in 1890. It worked for a while and then it was considered that there should be further restrictions and the present national origins plan was put in operation. This has not been tested very long but objections are being raised against it and it is claimed that we are receiving more from the countries which send the least desirable citizens than from those whose subjects make the better citizens.

At the same time, efforts are being made to put the immigration bars up higher through fixing quotas for countries in North, Central and South America. There has been no restraint upon immigration from these countries in the past and there will probably be much resistance to anything of the kind now but the effort is, nevertheless, underway.

When restrictions of that character are established it is inevitable that it should create feeling. We have no objection to Canadians coming to this country and yet if we try to bar them and admit Mexicans, or vice versa, there is certain to be resentment. Even if a quota basis should be arranged for all countries in the western hemisphere there would be those countries which would consider they had been discriminated against. To try to reduce the Mexicans from coming into the United States at a time when this country is endeavoring to create a better relationship between the countries will tend to undermine the diplomatic efforts. In changing immigration laws we cannot very well overlook the effect which they may have upon the countries involved.

PARHAM'S FAILURE

When Alonzo S. Parham was named to West Point by Congressman De Priest of Chicago, much was made of the fact because he is a Negro. Nevertheless, he passed his examination and was admitted. He has since been given all the opportunities to maintain himself in his studies, but he has failed to keep up to the requirements.

The circumstances are such that had he been the only member of his class, this being his first year, to fail in his examinations there would have been the opportunity for the claim being made that he had been discriminated against because of his color. Nothing of the kind was, of course, the case and nothing of the kind is claimed by Parham. He has declared that he was given a square deal all the way through, notwithstanding those who have tried to stir up a feeling in his behalf.

Parham was one of 64 cadets at West Point who were honorably discharged for deficiency in scholastic standing. He recognized that he could not meet the requirements in his studies, the same requirements as others had to meet and which floored many others besides himself, but he would not tolerate the thought that he had not been treated fairly. He declared that he had not suffered or been flunked because of his color and that means much for himself and his race. He shows that he is well equipped to deal with the school of hard knocks even if he wasn't able to master the requirements at West Point. Perhaps through his experience at the military academy he is better able to serve as a leader of his people than some of those who are striving to make martyrs of them when there is no occasion for martyrdom. Parham hasn't hurt West Point and he certainly hasn't hurt West Point by his effort to make the grade there. Parham fails at West Point, but he wins in the estimation of fair-minded people.

MEXICO'S RESENTMENT

It is a month now since the Mexican consulate at Laredo was closed and entrance of freight and visitors from this country at that point stopped. This state of affairs is causing great inconvenience. Laredo is the common port of entry and much trouble is caused by the forced sending of goods to other ports and the denial of entry to those desiring to enter Mexico at that point. It probably is true that some inconvenience is also being suffered by Mexico, but it is not easily being turned from its purpose.

The whole situation was created by the district attorney at Laredo threatening to arrest ex-President Calles of Mexico on his return to Mexico from this country after coming from Europe. The claim of the district attorney was that he had evidence that Calles was connected with two murders. Such plans as he had for making the arrest were nipped in the bud by the government authorities who extended the necessary immunity to the former president of the republic to the south of the Rio Grande, but Mexico was, nevertheless, much disturbed. Efforts to indicate that Laredo did not feel as the district attorney did, by arranging for a big reception for Calles just before crossing the line, were ignored and no stop was made at that city. The closing of the consulate soon followed.

The purpose is to spank the district attorney and those who may have encouraged him. Resentment is doubtless felt toward Texas, but it is apparent that more of the inconvenience is coming on shippers, railroads and those doing business in Mexico. Efforts now being made by the department of state give promise of an adjustment of the situation and the reopening of the Laredo consulate, but the lesson of that unwise and bothersome threat cannot be overlooked in the Lone Star state.

AU MATIN

The lovely lady in pale-green lace dropped the closing words of the poem as softly as rose leaves falling from a stem.

A long breath of appreciation stirred the crowded hall of the Elmdale Woman's club. For an hour the women had sat entranced before the graceful speaker's polished diction, her choice bits of verse and the beautiful garden pictures which were thrown upon the screen.

"Oh!" exclaimed a plump matron in bright red sport clothes, "didn't you just love her voice when she quoted that exquisite thing about 'silver shadows falling past a veil of rose'?

"And the pictures of that little sunken garden with the purple iris! I'm going straight home and measure to see if we can get space in our garden to try that. If we can Billy will just have to make me one. I've always dreamed of a sunken garden."

Through the buzz of comment and the clink and tinkle of glasses and spoons pretty Sally Grant was rather quiet. Her big dark eyes were dreamy. She was still back in the gardens, walking past fragrant freesias with the lovely lady and for the first time in her long married life of eighteen months she was mentally criticizing her handsome young husband.

As she drove slowly home she recalled phrases that the speaker had used. "Men who grew stout and dull could be reborn in the grime and glory of gardening!" Sally shuddered. Bob, slim and erect as an Indian, laughed at her attempts at gardening and his only exercise was occasional golf. How could she bear it if he grew stout and dull?

She set her soft chin grimly. Every other young husband in Elmdale worked in the gardens; she would save Bob from stout middle-age in spite of himself. He simply must work with her in their little garden.

"Oh, she was wonderful, Bob; she made you realize that there's nothing like gardening for exercise; it makes people over."

"Fine, darling," Bob beamed at his wife's lovely face admiringly. "Glad you enjoyed it. Another muffin, please, Honey." Sally absent-mindedly handed him the sugar. Then she shocked him to attention by her next remark.

"And so, deal, I want you to promise to work every morning, and perhaps at night; we'll have such fun, and it will keep you in good condition. Please don't laugh or fuss. Billy Graham does it, and Ed Wallis and Jack Billings—"

"Say, those fellows are bankers or dentists or teachers. They quit at 3 or 4. I never leave the factory until 6. All the fun I get is golf once or twice a week. You enjoy the garden. Besides old William needs the money we pay him every week. Why pick on me, darling?"

The battle waged all evening. At bedtime Sally winked away the tears and Bob was beaten. He thumped to sleep. Darn gardening! He'd have to try it or hurt Sally dreadfully, unless he could cure her some way, show her how silly it was. A half hour later he chuckled, sat up and waved a cheerful hand at his reflection in the mirror.

"That's it! I've got it! If it only works!"

Two days later he showed Sally his schedule for gardening, and he was almost ashamed of himself when he saw her delighted surprise. They went to a party that night and Sally announced to the crowd the great news. Bob was to make her a sunken garden! It was 3 o'clock when they reached home. Bob, with an inward chuckle, set the alarm at 5 o'clock.

Sally blinked, frowned, tried to cover her ears, shook herself awake; then realized that the fiendish noise of "Clickity-Clack-Click-Clack!!" was the lawn mower, straight under her window. For two hours she endured it, tried to sleep, tried to forget it. Then she tumbled out of bed, her eyes heavy with sleep. She tried hard to beam at Bob's happy face across the table, and she went to bed as soon as he left. The next morning, at 5 o'clock, a hideous "Tap-tap-tap" brought her at last to the window. She blinked at Bob, sitting astride a rail, merrily driving nails into a lattice frame.

"For heaven's sake, Bob, I'm dead for sleep. Can't you do that somewhere else? He surveyed her in injured surprise.

"Why, dear, I've got to fix this. When will I do it?"

Muttering something, Sally wavered back to bed but not to sleep. The scrape of tools over cement proved the last straw the following morning. Sally set her teeth, then capitulated.

"I've been thinking, Bob, dear, it's sweet of you to try gardening, but old William was here today. I thought it was best to tell him to come tomorrow. You don't mind, do you, dear?"

Bob bent over, kissed her, and said in the tender voice of a well-trained and understanding husband: "No, darling, I don't mind."

He winked at his golf bag, standing in the corner.—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—To say that newspaper Washington was surprised at selection of Frederic Mosley Sackett for the Berlin embassy job being vacated by Dr. Schurman is to put it mildly.

In all the guessing his name never was mentioned. And there was only one explanation the wise ones could dope out, aside from the fact that Sackett, a Rhode Island Yankee by birth but a bluegrass Kentuckian in business and politics, was food administrator of that state under Hoover in war days. It was the struggle he might face in gaining reelection for a second term.

Confronted by the probable competition of that republican war-horse of the border state, John M. Robsion, who is serving his sixth term in the house from the eleventh Kentucky district, Sackett's shift to diplomatic life could conceivably ease the republican situation in the by-elections.

Cases Are Similar

Curiously enough, somewhat the same political problem was presented in New Jersey when Senator Edge got the post at the Paris embassy, vacated by Myron Herrick's death.

So politically minded Washington will go right on being convinced that both the Edge and Sackett ambassadorships represent administration efforts to smooth things out in trouble-some spots in advance of by-elections to insure, if possible, a continued republican majority in the senate. To remove by promotion to diplomatic honors central figures in state intraparty conflicts is one way of bidding for party harmony.

Also, with Dawes in London, Edge in Paris and Sackett in Berlin, three stout G. O. P. veterans of the senate will be again associated more or less; this time on diplomatic assignments.

Assuming that mutual knowledge and understanding of each other's ways will add to their effectiveness as diplomats the arrangement might be termed highly satisfactory from that point of view. The Dawes-Edge-Sackett trio certainly ought to know each other well after four years together in the senate.

Sackett's Record

Looking back into Sackett's senatorial record, about the only thing the Bystander could find suggesting any special interest in foreign affairs, or diplomacy, was during the seventieth congress, when he introduced twin bills aimed at safeguarding motor traffic from drunken drivers.

One would have ousted automatically, with no appeal to political influence, any federal official or employe convicted of driving while under the influence of liquor.

The other would have recorded "the sense of congress" that the president should immediately ask the recall by his government of any diplomat or attache who pleaded his immunity to dodge a charge of driving while drunk.

Sackett was careful to say the bills were just motor safety measures, not "prohibition bills" when he put them in. They died in committee.

Sackett came to the senate in 1924.

YOUR HEALTH

Weight and Food.

Emery R. Hayhurst, M. D.
Ohio State University,
Columbus, Ohio.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

One's weight for his height and age is chiefly determined by five things:

1. His parentage, or heredity.
2. Infections lurking in the body.
3. Glandular disturbances which may be congenital but often are due to deficiencies in diet, such as the absence of iodine in food as the underlying cause of goiter.
4. Diseases of metabolism, i. e., disturbances in the body chemistry which again seem to be more closely associated with the diet than any other factor.
5. Under-eating or over-eating.

Hence one dieting himself in an attempt to change his weight must consider seriously whether he does not take after father or mother or some grandparent through whom his condition of underweight or overweight is hereditary. It is foolish to try to change the course of nature which has clearly predetermined one's weight. In fact it may be dangerous to do so.

Infections usually decrease one's weight but they may actually increase it, as in the case of heart disease, tonsillitis and some other afflictions. Infections can be sought out and probably eliminated, and the annual health audit will usually detect them.

Weight disturbances due to the glands of internal secretion will be noted by the family physician and should be referred to specialists. By no means tamper with the diet until so instructed.

Likewise, metabolic diseases are for specialists to treat. Some of the treatments may be dietetic, but their nature can rarely be determined by the sufferer himself so that he may only be adding "fuel to the fire" in dieting himself.

In short, the only form of underweight or overweight in which one can with safety and without medical advice resort to more eating or less eating, is the form in which there has been too little eating or too much eating.

Many people are making trouble for themselves today by tampering with their diets. The notional person who avoids certain articles of diet as well as the faddist who pursues one plan of diet, is truly jeopardizing his or her health and should consider what the effects may be after months of years. Primarily the human race is omnivorous and man's digestive and assimilative apparatus are of the kind that demand a wide inclusion of food stuffs. Yet, like the lower animal, experience shows he does best when the food is served "as is" without previous selection, trimming or cooking except to render it safe from germs and parasites, or more digestible when poorly selected. A good many weight cures, anemia cures, even skin, rheumatism and diabetic cures are now being affected by returning to the same thing—a sensible, natural form of diet.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Chatterer Feels That He Has Been Wronged

A wrong, you'll very often find,
Exists nowhere but in your mind.
—Old Mother Nature.

Chatterer the Red Squirrel had passed the day as usual. He had spent part of it in the Green Forest and part of it up in the Old Orchard. He had quarreled with Sammy Jay, scolded Black Pussy, tormented his big cousin, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and altogether had had a very satisfactory day. He went to bed early. That day the sun had been bright and the snow that had fallen the day before had melted. The next morning when Chatterer started out to visit Farmer Brown's corncrib there was snow in which to leave tracks.

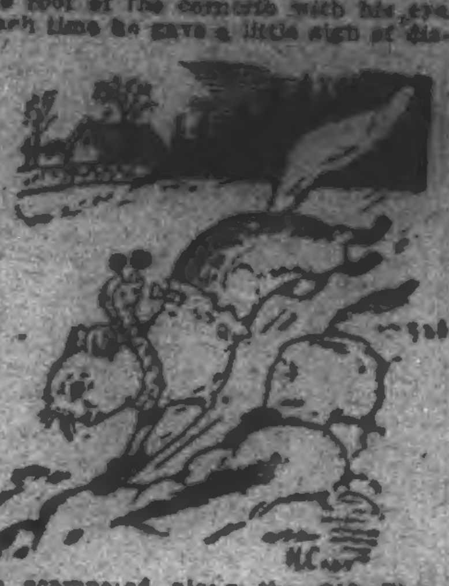
He scampered up along the old stone wall, as usual. He left the old stone wall and scampered across the dooryard, as usual. He climbed the maple tree that grew near the corncrib, as usual. But right then and there he stopped doing things as usual. Something queer had happened. Chatterer didn't know what to make of it. There was no broken branch hanging down over the corncrib. No, sir, there was no broken branch for him to climb and drop from onto the roof of the corncrib.

At first he couldn't believe it. He raced around over that tree in a most excited way. At first he couldn't even find where the branch had been. Three times he ran right past it without seeing it. You see, Farmer Brown's Boy had cut that branch off close to the trunk of the tree and he had covered the place with a little paint. So Chatterer went right past it without seeing it.

But the fourth time Chatterer found the place. He sniffed at it. He smelled paint. That told him all he needed to know. That told him what had become of that branch. He knew then that Farmer Brown's Boy had been up in that tree and had cut off that branch. For a wonder, Chatterer didn't lose his temper this time. He wasn't so angry as sorrowful. He had a feeling that he had been wronged. Even then it didn't occur to him that Farmer Brown's Boy had discovered how he had been getting into the corncrib.

"He saw that branch hanging up there and so he climbed up and cut it off," thought Chatterer. "I don't see what he had to notice it for. I don't see why he couldn't have let it hang there. He has let other broken branches hang far longer than he did this one. Now what am I going to do? Now, how am I going to get into that corncrib?"

Chatterer carefully examined every branch that hung over the corncrib. He went way out to the tip of each one, and from each one he looked down and measured the distance to the roof of the corncrib with his eye. Each time he gave a little sigh of disappointment. It was too great a distance. Yes, sir, it was too great a distance. He didn't dare drop all that distance. He knew that if he dropped as far as that he would be likely to be hurt. Finally he climbed back and sat in a big crotch with his back against the trunk of a tree and sulked. He sulked and sulked, because he felt that he had been wronged. He didn't know just how he had been wronged, but he felt that he had been wronged. At the same time, while he was sulking, he was doing his best to think of some way whereby he might get into that corncrib once more.



He scampered along the Old Stone Wall, as usual

Stories That Recall Others

Overlooked

Mother had been reading to Ellen all about the tiger in the jungle, what it ate, how it lived and what it did. It was a very lovely story of animal life and mother thought Ellen was getting a lot out of the tale.

When mother finished Ellen's only comment was a question:

"Where is that tiger's garage?"

Just Leave It To Bobby

Bobby, the pet dog, was comfortably napping in the living room where a group of boys were being entertained.

"Bobbie, come on and catch a rat," called the head of the house from an adjoining room. A surprised young man among the group reluctantly left the room, saying:

"I'll do my darndest."

POETRY

TODAY

Sure, this world is full of trouble—
I ain't said it ain't.
Lord! I've had enough an' double
Reason for complaint.
Rain an' storms have come to fret me,
Skies were often gray;
Thorns and brambles have beset me
On the road but, say,
Ain't it fine today!

What's the use of always weepin',
Makin' trouble last?
What's the use of always keepin'
Thinkin' of the past?
Each must have his tribulation,
Water with his wine,
Life ain't no celebration;
Trouble? I've had mine—
But today is fine.

It's today that I am livin',
Not a month ago,
Havin', losin', takin', givin',
As time wills it so.
Yesterday a cloud of sorrow
Fell across the way;
It may rain again tomorrow,
It may rain—but, say,
Ain't it fine today!

—Irene Schriever, in The Pathfinder.

Flood

The rain comes, and the river overflows,
And land and water strive for mastery,
As in the far-off ages when the sea
Was king, and the usurping land arose.—
And now a sortie, and the booty shows
In sudden islands snatched from husbandry,
Lagoons and coast-lines of no pedigree,
And transitory archipelagoes.

And, with the vision of a child, we take
Delight to see the old world made anew—
To find the meadow's path an alien strand
And dream we sail with Frobisher and Drake
Through furrows of unvisited blue,
Where every [illegible] conceals a wonderland.

Three people were injured and both cars were wrecked.

The rush of radio waves through the ether has not made Paris hotter or colder, dryer or rainier than in the years before the invention of wireless, Joseph Sanson, French engineer and meteorologist, has concluded as a result of a study of weather records for the last two centuries. To determine the validity of assertions that radio influences weather he traced unusual weather and found that for France, at least, the same sort of irregularities were present in past years as have been evident in the decade since the wide use of wireless.

The fossil skeleton of a giant hog which stood seven feet tall has been mounted in Morrill hall at the University of Nebraska. The terrible pig in his prehistoric day was as high as the tallest automobile and had a wheel base of about 140 inches. The fossil was dug up in Sioux county, Nebraska. Only two of the giants have ever been discovered, the other one smaller than the university's specimen. The pig, scientifically termed dinohyus hollandi, lived during the late Oligocene or the early Miocene age, which would give him an antiquity of some 12,000,000 years.

OBITUARY

Dr. James L. Gardner

(Special to The Bulletin)

CENTRAL VILLAGE, Jan. 15—Dr. James L. Gardner passed away at his home on Main street today at 12:30 o'clock. He had been ill for several weeks with chronic Bright's disease and complications. He was born in Montville, May 5th, 1854, a son of Lucius and Maria Etheridge Gardner. He spent much of his early life in Groton, Montville and vicinity. He was a graduate of class 1881 of University of Vermont at Burlington. He was the first noble grand of Fairview lodge of Odd Fellows at Groton, which was instituted in November 1893, and had since been a member of that lodge. He was a member of the Windham County Medical association, Ancient Order of United Workmen and of the Methodist church in New London, also a member of the Volunteer Medical Service corps.

He came here in 1897 and has practiced medicine since. He was married three times. His first wife was Miss Mary Lewis, his second wife, Miss Edna Stetson, both of them deceased. His present wife was Miss Carrie E. Burdick, of Moosup.

He leaves one daughter, Miss Dorothea Gardner, a nurse in Middletown, two sons, Judson E. Gardner and Sergeant George L. Gardner of Danielson; also two grandsons, Robert Gardner of Bridgeport and George L. Gardner, Jr., of Danielson. He leaves few other relatives, one niece, Mrs. Ethel Gardner Burr of New London, and two cousins, Mrs. Belle Worthington of Norwich and Mrs. Ida Etheridge of Hartford. Dr. Gardner was a man faithful to the duties of his profession and was interested in the educational and town affairs and was a financial helper for the betterment of church and village. He was a good friend and neighbor and very sympathetic toward unfortunates and will be greatly missed not only by the local people, but the whole town, where he had a large practice.

Mrs. Frank A. Arnold

Following a long illness Ida A. Towne, wife of Frank A. Arnold, died at 9:45 o'clock Wednesday morning at her residence, No. 8 Sherman street, where she has resided for the past year and a half.

Mrs. Arnold was born in Kennebunk, Me., May 7, 1882, the daughter of Frank E. and Myra Towne, and at various times has lived in Danielson, Jewett City and this city. She was united in marriage with Frank A. Arnold in Lowell, Mass., on July 7, 1904.

Besides her husband she is survived by three sons, Howard, Chester and Ralph W. and three daughters, Doris, Ida and Marion Arnold, all of this city, four brothers, Fred of Kennebunk, Me., Arthur of East Braintree, Mass., Edgar and Frank Towne of Manchester, N. H., and four sisters, Mrs. Fannie Livingstone, Mrs. Ruth Glidden and Mrs. Sylvia O'Leary of Haverhill, Mass., and Miss Marguerite Towne of Concord, N. H.

News of Mrs. Arnold's death was received with sincere regret by her friends, who extend their heartfelt sympathy to the family in their time of bereavement in the loss of a loved one.

WEDDING

Johnson-Rice

Miss Gladys H. Rice of New York, formerly of Norwich, and Elmer E. Johnson of No. 52 Carver avenue were united in marriage at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. August Ernest of No. 201 Maple street, by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of the Greeneville Congregational church.

Miss Mildred Francis and Joseph Wellington attended the couple. The bride was beautiful in white satin and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet. The bridesmaid was dressed in orange chiffon and her bouquet was of yellow carnations.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home, which was decorated in potted plants and cut flowers. There were 40 guests present. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson are to make their home on Johnson place after a two weeks wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and Virginia.

Mrs. Johnson, was at one time employed at the Dime Savings bank, and her husband, who is a plumber, have many friends in the city, who wish them every happiness in their married life.

BEGAN ALIENATION SUIT TRIAL, SETTLEMENT ATTEMPTS FAILING

Trial was begun here late Wednesday afternoon in the superior court before Judge C. L. Avery in the $35,000 suit brought by Mrs. Helen Antzis, wife of Samuel Antzis, against Mrs. Rose Beckley Frink, wife of Charles W. Frink, on the allegation that since December, 1928, she had alienated the affections of Mr. Antzis and caused him to abandon his wife. Court adjourned for the day after hearing one witness and the trial will be resumed this (Thursday) morning.

Antzis has been manager of Frink Dairy, Inc., of which Charles W. Frink was president, the largest dairy business in the city with a pasteurizing plant at 40 Town street, Norwich Town.

Trial of the case was not begun until after conferences between counsel that continued all day in efforts to make a settlement, but were finally fruitless. The case was assigned for trial in the morning and when court came in and the case was called, the attorneys for both sides gathered in front of the judge for a short discussion, after which he declared a recess.

Attorney Edwin W. Higgins is counsel for Mrs. Antzis and the defendant is represented by Attorneys C. V. James and G. C. Morgan.

All through the morning and the afternoon there was a succession of conferences, sometimes between the attorneys and the judge in chambers and at other times between the attorneys and the principals in the suit in the anterooms of the court.

Finally at 4:35, Judge Avery returned to his place on the bench, convened court and had the attorneys called in. Addressing them, he said that he presumed the attempts to reach a settlement had been unsuccessful, and asked if they were ready to proceed with the trial. Attorney James responded that it seemed there was no hope of reaching an agreement and Attorney Higgins said he was ready to go ahead with the trial. Before that was taken up, however, Attorney Morgan requested a few more minutes delay and, after a brief talk with his associate counsel, he spoke briefly to the court, saying that he desired to have it understood that counsel had made concerted and conscientious efforts to adjust the differences, but there seemed to be so many angles that their efforts had been fruitless.

When the trial eventually began and while one witness was on the stand for about 30 minutes, there was a fair number of men and women in the spectators' seats, many of whom had been around the court room almost all day.

Frank N. Gardner, a Norwich attorney, was called to the stand by Attorney Higgins as the first witness for the plaintiff. He testified to knowing Charles W. Frink for about 30 years, also knowing Mrs. Frink, and knowing Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Antzis. When he first became acquainted with the Antzis couple, their relations appeared to be friendly, he said, but after Antzis went to work for the Frink dairy there was a decided change in their relations. Mrs. Antzis, he said, had requested him in July of this year to bring a suit against Mrs. Frink for alienation of affections.

On cross-examination by Attorney James witness said he did not bring such an action. Shown a paper by the attorney, the witness said that last spring he prepared, at Mr. Antzis' request, a petition for divorce from Mrs. Antzis. The petition wasn't signed, the witness said. He recalled that the couple were in his office some time afterwards when he told Mr. Antzis he thought he wasn't entitled to a divorce on the grounds alleged and he wouldn't sign the writ. The grounds for divorce in the petition were cruelty.

Asked if he told Mrs. Antzis he would serve this paper on her if she didn't behave herself, Mr. Gardner said he didn't remember that.

Asked what was done with the unsigned divorce writ, he said he gave it to Mr. Antzis at the latter's request.

BOZRANVILLE SECTION IS SIGNING ANTI-WAR MEMORIAL

The local organization of the Bozrahville Section National Council of Jewish Women has been very active getting every member of its section to sign a memorial addressed to the conference on naval reduction at London, which is being sent by the 11 largest women's organizations in the United States, that comprise the national committee on the cause and cure of war.

Each national organization has been sending out sheets for signatures of their respective branches. When the sheets are assembled each organization will bind them in book form. A committee possibly of three women will be commissioned to carry these books to London. A woman's hearing at the naval conference is being arranged by the British women. The American commission will sail Jan. 24th with the memorial.

The memorial reads as follows:

We, the undersigned members of the National Committee on the Cause and Cure of War, composed of 11 of the largest women's organizations in the United States of America, namely:

American Association of University Women.

Council of Women for Home Missions.

Federation of Woman's Boards of Foreign Missions of North America.

General Federation of Women's clubs.

National Board of Y. W. C. A.

National Council of Jewish Women.

National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs.

National League of Women Voters.

National Woman's Christian Temperance union.

National Women's Conference of American Ethical union.

National Woman's Trade Union League believe ourselves qualified to estimate the status of public opinion in our country as far as it concerns the question of disarmaments, because;

Our combined membership includes one-fifth of the adult women of the United States,

Our branches are established in every city, town and village,

Our workers carry our causes into every neighborhood, home, church, and school,

A combination of conditions which gives us opportunity to ascertain what masses of our people are thinking and saying. Therefore, speaking confidently on behalf of that public opinion, we have the honor to present to the distinguished delegates to the conference on naval reduction the following memorial:

Memorial.

To the Conference on Naval Reduction at London:

It is our firm belief that the majority of the population in the U. S. is in steadfast agreement with the Paris pact renouncing war and they are prepared to acclaim and support all acts of the conference which meet with their expectations.

We, therefore, entreat the honorable delegates not to stay their deliberations until effective means have been found

To relieve the citizens of the Great Powers from the enormous and burdensome cost of the building and maintaining of naval armament no longer required,

To reduce naval armament among the Great Powers to a point so low that our own and other nations may feel secure against attack,

To end forever the competition in naval building among the Great Powers,

And thus—

To bring the relations of these powers into more genuine accord with the principles of the general pact for the renunciation of war.

GAVE FARMING TALK BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

Illustrating his talk with stereopticon slides showing the various farm activities and relative increase in the farming industry in the past ten years, B. W. Ellis, director of the extension service at Connecticut Agricultural college, was the speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club held Wednesday noon at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Ellis said in part:

In each county there is a farm bureau which is an organization of the leading farmers and other interested people of the county formed for the purpose of improving agricultural and rural life, particularly by cooperating with the Connecticut Agricultural college and the United States department of agriculture in carrying on extension work.

The county farm bureau organizations and the county extension agents are the distributing agency for extension work in the county. Under this plan the extension service is able to reach a much larger number of people than would otherwise be possible.

Each county in Connecticut has at least three agents—an agricultural agent in charge of the agricultural program, a home demonstration agent who develops the home making program, and a club agent who works with boys and girls—and there are also assistant agents in most of the counties.

One of the first objectives of the extention program is to help the farmer make more net profit in order that he may purchase more necessities and conveniences for his family. However, we are just as much concerned with helping the home maker to lighten the problems associated with preparing three meals a day, clothing the family and the many other household duties in order that rural homes may be such as to provide the conveniences and comforts that are necessarily the basis of a successful and satisfied agriculture. The investment in the agricultural industry in Connecticut is $250,000,000. This business produces products valued at $60,000,000 annually. Of this amount $15,000,000 is in tobacco and the balance, $45,000,000, in food stuffs. Our dairy products, largely milk, are valued at about $20,000,000 annually and our eggs and poultry at $10,000,000, vegetables and fruits at about $10,000,000 and miscellaneous products $5,000,000.

Connecticut produces enough milk to supply the consumption in the state if it was all used in Connecticut. We produce about one-half of the poultry consumed and one-half the potatoes.

The yield of potatoes has increased from 60 to 100 bushels per acre by those who use certified northern seed. Since 1923 when we started a campaign to interest a large number of farmers in the value of the pure bred sire, county agents and extension specialists have helped place nearly 2,000 pure bred animals.

Our poultry results for the past three years are especially convincing. In 1926 we started a Grow Healthy Chicks campaign, to help poultrymen avoid disease and grow better pullets. Nearly 1000 poultrymen signed up and agreed to follow instructions in 1926 and 1927 and the enrollment in 1928 was 1419, an increase of almost 70 per cent. Over 1,000,000 chicks were brooded, annually by these men, or in other words our program influenced the raising of about one-quarter of the total chicks brooded in the state. The records returned to us show a decrease in loss from disease each year and about one-half the average loss experienced by those who did not enroll in the campaign. Still another very interesting point is the fact that the average production per bird in our home egg laying contest in 1926 was 142, while in 1928 it was 161—a gain of 19 eggs per hen.

During his most interesting talk Mr. Ellis related a number of interesting statistics regarding the work of the extension department and touched on the work of the women's department and the work being done by 4-H clubs.

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Ellis was given a hearty vote of appreciation.

The business session of the meeting was conducted by President Frank R. Murdy with Drs. Campbell and Agnew acting as songleaders. Among the musical features of the meeting was a solo, "Louise," by Henry J. LaFontaine and another solo, "On the Road to Mandalay," by John Richardson, secretary of the Norwich chamber of commerce.

Two new members, L. Goff Briggs and John Richardson, were extended the right hand of Rotary fellowship by President Murdy.

Henry H. Vignot of the New London Rotary club announced that the New London Ladies' night would be held at the Mohican hotel in New London on Feb. 11 and extended an invitation to Norwich Rotarians to attend.

Ward T. Alling, also of New London, announced a dinner to be given by the New London club for students at Connecticut college, who are daughters or sisters of Rotarians.

Announcement was made by President Murdy of the recital of Prof. Frank Farrell, under the auspices of the League of Women Voters. Mr. Murdy urging a large attendance of Rotarians.

Secretary Emory H. Davis was congratulated upon the acquisition of a son and Mr. Davis supplied the Rotarians with after dinner cigars.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

ORDER CORNSTALKS DESTROYED IN CORN BORER QUARANTINE

All cornstalks within the Connecticut area under quarantine for the European corn borer must be destroyed on or before April 10, according to announcement Wednesday by Dr. W. E. Britton, of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, who is in charge of state quarantine and control work.

Orders effective Wednesday have been issued by William L. Slate, director of the station, in accordance with a new Connecticut law which gives him the power to require such a cleanup. The order reads:

"Pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 171, Public Acts of 1929, I, William L. Slate, director of the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, do hereby issue orders, rules and regulations as follows: That in the quarantine area all cornstalks shall be disposed of on or before April 10, by feeding to livestock, burning or plowing under cleanly, and that all of the larger weeds in and around the cornfields be likewise destroyed.

"Effective January 15, 1930."

(Signed) "WILLIAM L. SLATE."

Violations may be punished by a fine of not more than $100.

"The insect is now present over nearly half the area of Connecticut," Dr. Britton said, "and corn growers must soon practice cultural methods of control or they will be unable to grow corn at a profit."

Experiment station forces will do cleanup work in isolated infested regions which are not under quarantine. The line of general infestation extends roughly southwest from Woodstock on the Massachusetts border to Branford, Long Island sound. All territory eastward and certain towns outside are restricted. No corn on the cob may be shipped out and certain vegetables and flowers are also forbidden.

The regulated areas include all of Middlesex, New London and Windham counties and the following towns:

Hartford county—Berlin, Glastonbury, Manchester, Enfield, Suffield and Marlborough.

New Haven county—Branford, Guilford, Madison and Meriden.

Tolland county—Andover, Bolton, Columbia, Hebron, Mansfield, Tolland, Willington and Coventry.

Litchfield county—North Canaan and Salisbury.

PETTIS, BAILEY, BOYNTON PINOCHLE CLUB WINNERS

Pettis, Bailey and Boynton, in the order named, took the prizes Wednesday evening when the West Side Pinochle club closed its second series of the season. Peckham, who was ahead when play opened for the evening, had a bad night and dropped down to fourth place.

The scores on the evening's play were the following: Peckham 5120, Pettis 7840, Bailey 7415, Lewis 6625, Boynton 7060, McNaught 6835, Parker 6365, Ellsworth 5870, A. Jordan 6745, Underwood 6920, J. Jordan 7085, Schuler 6800.

No More Piles

Pile sufferers can only get quick, safe and lasting relief by removing the cause—bad blood circulation in the lower bowel. Cutting and salves can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. Dr. Leonhardt's Hem-Roid, a harmless tablet, succeeds because it relieves this blood congestion and strengthens the affected parts. Hem-Roid has a wonderful record for quick, safe, and lasting relief to Pile sufferers. It will do the same for you or money back. Lee & Osgood Co. and druggists anywhere sell Hem-Roid with this guarantee.

Men! Banish Those Pimples Right Now

Isn't it a pity to see a fellow with good-looking features—but his whole appearance is ruined by a pimply face?

People shun him—those ugly blemishes are so disgusting to them, girls even hate to dance with him.

How would you like to have a person say to you, "To-morrow morning when you wake up you will notice that your pimples have started to disappear—in three days they'll be gone—in a week you'll have a clear, velvety skin."

This is exactly what Peterson's Ointment offers you and if your skin isn't marvelously cleared your money will be returned.

Thursey Pentecost of Springfield, Tenn., says: "I had used several kinds of Ointment but they did not help. I used Peterson's 3 or 4 times and my face was at last cleared of pimples."

Put your faith in Peterson's Ointment and be free from pimples and blackheads in a week's time—one 35 cent box will prove it—all drugstores.

End Eczema Tortures Forever

No Need to Suffer Another Day

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to stop the itching and torture of Eczema instantly, and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning and people who suffer from any embarrassing or disfiguring skin trouble would be wise to banish it before it reaches a more or less chronic stage.

Ask any first-class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore, if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunches are reduced to normal.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Gerard L. Parker, of Brookline, Mass., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Henry F. Parker. On her return at the week end she will be accompanied by her cousin, Miss Matilda B. Randall, who will be her guest for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Haring are in New York for several weeks, guests at Hotel Manger.

Mrs. Thomas E. McClenathan, of The Osgood, Church street, will arrive home Friday, following a visit over the holidays with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene L. Schellens, of Ridgewood, N. J.

The Sandpipers and friends were entertained Wednesday at a luncheon bridge for twelve by Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, of Sachem Terrace. The prize winners were Mrs. Alfred M. VanWagenen, Mrs. George L. Ingalls and Mrs. William H. Oat.

Relief from Gas
Stomach Pains
Dizziness

The doctors tell us that 90 per cent of all sickness is due to stomach and bowel troubles. You can't be well if your digestion is bad; you are likely to get sick unless you relish food and digest it properly.

Tanlac has a wonderful record as a relief from digestive troubles, even those of years' standing.

Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. For example, Mrs. Ellen White says: "For years I suffered from indigestion. I got no relief from anything until I took Tanlac. After my fourth bottle, I feel like a new person and have a fine appetite."

If you suffer from gas, pains in the stomach or bowels, dizziness, nausea, constipation, or torpid liver; if you have no appetite, can't sleep and are nervous and all run down, you need Tanlac. It is good, pure medicine, made of roots, herbs and barks. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Money back if it doesn't help you. Accept no substitute.

PASSENGER SERVICE SUSPENDED ON NEW LONDON STEAMER LINE TO N. Y.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15.—The passenger service on the New London line has been discontinued. When it will be resumed is not known, although officials of the line in this city stated this afternoon that the discontinuance is not permanent and was made imperative because of the steamer New Hampshire being damaged in collision with another boat yesterday. The New England Steamship Co. is without a boat to substitute for the New Hampshire, which is now at a New York drydock for repairs. The line will continue to transport freight between this port and New York and freight steamers have been substituted for the passenger steamers. The New Hampshire was badly damaged while trying to make her pier in New York harbor.

SEARCH FOR CHAS. WILLIAMS AS CAUSING WSHEMAN DEATH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15.—The police today are exercising every effort to apprehend Charles Williams, colored, barge cook, whose home is in Norfolk, Va., charged with the murder of Jacob Wsheman, 36, of 35 Shapley street. The autopsy of Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman has proved that Wsheman, a Lithuanian, died as a result of a fractured skull. The police have information that Wsheman was beaten and left unconscious in the gutter on Main street Saturday night by Williams, who, it is believed, has fled from the city. He was employed on the barge Northern 89. According to the master, Captain John Goetling, Williams was not on the barge Saturday night, but when he went aboard Sunday he was paid off and had not been seen since.

Under arrest on suspicion are Linwood Farrell, 17, of 585 Main street and Ernest Johnson, waiter, of Potter street. Both are colored and at least one of them saw Williams attack Wsheman. Farrell has admitted being with Williams when Wsheman was struck down and Johnson, who has a police record, it is believed also has knowledge of the assault. Both are locked up pending the investigation by the police.

Two more material witnesses were arrested tonight when William P. Franklin and Irving Gilliam, both colored, were taken into custody. Franklin was arrested yesterday, but was liberated, only to be re-arrested this evening. Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich, will come to New London tomorrow to interrogate the witnesses. This afternoon a general request of departments throughout the country was made to arrest Williams.

Mrs. Arthur Greenleaf and infant daughter of 14 Church street, Groton; Mrs. Herbert Derry and infant son, 346 Ledyard street; Mrs. Elvin Byers, Westerly; Alfred Harvey, 444 Williams street, the last named driver of Konomoc truck No. 1, who was operated upon several weeks ago for appendicitis, were patients discharged today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

OBITUARY

Joseph Gardner

Joseph Gardner, 60, died last night at his rooming house, 57 Federal street, death resulting from a brief attack of acute indigestion. He is survived by four nephews, Edward, Joseph, Walter and Robert Caughey, and a niece, Miss Agnes Caughey. Mr. Gardner, who was born in Ireland, had resided in New London since a young man. He was for many years employed by the former firm of C. D. Boss & Son and for about ten years had been employed at the mill of Palmer Brothers.

Daniel P. Carroll has sold two building lots on Bank street to Emilio and Constantino Recine.

Perry T. Shafner has sold to Sarah Markoff Shafner a house and lot on Pleasant street.

Plant Realty Co. has sold a house and lot and a second parcel of land on Plant street to Isadore Serinsky.

The estate of Georgie Reeves has sold an undivided one-half interest in a house and lot on Blinman street to Jennie Lester.

VINES AND ANGELO IN JAIL—BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR CT.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15.—Archie L. Vines and Louis J. Angelo, members of the crew of the U. S. coast guard cutter, Legare, state pier, were in the police court this morning charged with placing an obstruction on tracks of the New Haven railroad for the purpose of wrecking a train. Vines was arrested Monday night and Angelo was taken into custody this morning. Probable cause was found and the two men were bound over to the next term of the superior court, although it is possible that they may be arraigned on a bench warrant before the present term of court. In the meantime, the sailors were locked up at the county jail in default of a surety on their bonds. Vines and Angelo, with a third sailor, Maxine Grenier, were about the streets Monday night and went to a North Bank street resort, where they purchased liquor. When they left, about 11 o'clock, they walked to Water street and to the tracks of the New Haven railroad, where they found a pile of lumber used principally on bridge construction work, carried one of the huge timbers to the west-bound tracks and placed it there. The sailors then went to Main street where Vines hurled a stone through a store window. Angelo and Grenier escaped, but Vines was arrested by Patrolman John Clifford. A short time after Vines' arrest, the crew of a switch engine found the timber on the tracks and removed it. A report of the attempted train wreck was made to the police and when Vines was questioned the next day he admitted carrying the timber to the tracks and implicated Angelo. The latter was arrested just before court convened today.

Hyman J. Pumerantz of Brighton, Mass., was charged with violation of the city's parking laws. As he failed to present himself in court his bond of $3 was declared forfeited.

Josh Hubbard, who has a police court record, was charged with breach of the peace and intoxication, but both charges were nolled.

The only other cases, and there were but two, were for intoxication. One man was given suspension of judgment and the other was fined $10 and costs.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the suspension of the driver's license of Frank Delaporta, 9 Archer court.

A stone wall, corner of Denison avenue and Shaw street, collapsed during the night, causing a large accumulation of stone and earth to be deposited on the sidewalk.

PROVIDENCE AUTO THIEF IN TOILS AFTER HECTIC NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15.—William Gray, 82 Central street, Providence, colored, was arrested in New Haven early today at the request of the New London police, charged with the theft of an automobile. He was brought back to New London this evening and will be in the police court tomorrow.

Gray stole a Ford auto, the property of John W. Dorsey, in Providence last evening, and drove to New London. For some unknown reason, Gray guided the auto from Main street into Hallam street and, being unfamiliar with the streets of the city, he did not realize nor observe that the gates of the railroad crossing on the latter street were down. The auto crashed into one of the gates and smashed it. Realizing that his chance of detection for the theft of the car were good if he remained with it, Gray abandoned it. However, a description of Gray was obtained by Special Agent James Daly, New Haven railroad, and when the Negro went to Lee avenue and stole an Overland car owned by George Schner, who is a guest of Charles Allen, 42 Lee avenue, the police throughout the state were requested to be on the lookout for Gray. When the Negro arrived at Saybrook his supply of gasoline had become exhausted and he was forced to abandon the second auto. He succeeded in reaching New Haven and a patrolman arrested him, for he answered the description sent out by the New London police. He has admitted the theft of both automobiles. Dorsey came to New London this afternoon and claimed his car and Schner went to Saybrook where his auto had been taken to a garage by state police and returned with it this afternoon.

WEDDING

Sheedy—Buckley

Purchasing Agent John W. Sheedy, son of Mrs. Catherine Sheedy, Lower Boulevard, and Miss Catherine McDonald Buckley, daughter of Mrs. Mary Buckley, of Broad street, were married at 9 o'clock this morning at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley solemnized the marriage with a nuptial mass. Deputy Judge John McGarry was best man and Miss Mary Buckley, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Garde ballroom. Mr. and Mrs. Sheedy left for a wedding trip this afternoon and upon their return will reside on Lower Boulevard.

A business meeting of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association, Star of the Sea branch, held this evening in the Harris building, was followed by the annual supper.

The Hudson-Essex automobile sales station, corner of Main and Church streets, was entered last night. The crook was not rewarded by finding money, which was the loot he sought, since none of the stock was disturbed. The crook gained entrance by breaking a window, which act permitted him to unlock it. He went to the cash register and attempted to open it, but being unfamiliar with the operation of a register was not successful. No money could have been obtained for the cash was taken from it and put in the safe when the station was closed for business Tuesday night.

MYSTIC

The prayer meeting of the Methodist church was held Wednesday evening. This (Thursday) afternoon, the Ladies' Aid society will meet to sew. Friday evening, the Mohican Trail Epworth league mid-year institute will be held in the church. There is a series of six of these meetings. One was held in New London last week. All persons having perfect attendance at all meetings will receive a certificate. The meeting, Friday evening, will open with a supper at 6:45. At 7:45, all will have the choice of two simultaneous classes, the first one on "International Problems of World Peace," to be in charge of Rev. William H. Newton, pastor of the local church, and the second, "The First Three Gospels," in charge of Rev. J. Marley Shaw. From 8:30 until 9:10 there will be an address by H. W. Hicks. From 9:15 until 10 o'clock, a Fourth department demonstration, in charge of Rev. J. F. Pennypacker of Niantic.

The Friendly league of the Union Baptist church met Monday evening with Mrs. Artis Stoddard. The meeting opened by singing several hymns. The yearly reports of the various committees were read and approved, showing the society has done a great deal of good, and sent a great deal of material, etc., overland and overseas. The election of officers shows: President, Mrs. Ruth Shepler; vice-president, Mrs. Ada Sweet; secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Butler; treasurer, Mrs. Elsie Thorpe. The leader of Monday night's meeting was Mrs. D. M. Bennett, who read an article on "American Indians." This was followed by more singing, short prayers and the meeting ended with the Covenant. Refreshments were served by the committee: Mrs. C. R. Chapman, chairman; Mrs. Ruth Shepler, Mrs. Doris Potter, Mrs. George Richmond and Miss Dorris Bindloss. A committee was appointed to arrange about changing the meeting night from the second Monday evening to the third Monday evening.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

Again the Palace theatre, in accordance with its expressed promise to the public of Norwich, is bringing here a great double feature talking program. Now playing at the popular local playhouse are two first run, first rate pictures. One is "Second Choice," starring lovely Dolores Costello, Chester Morris and Jack Mulhall. The other is an epic of the race course full of salty good humor—"Little Johnny Jones," featuring Eddie Buzzell, Alice Day and Edna Murphy.

Either of these pictures would be a hit by itself. In fact each of them has played alone to big houses in New York and other metropolitan centers. As is so often the case it is one community theatre which gives the real bargains in entertainment. What people pay $2 top prices to see in New York can be enjoyed here almost at the same time and at the popular Palace prices.

Little need be said about Dolores Costello. Both in her own right as a star of the first magnitude, and as the wife of the great John Barrymore, she is well known wherever motion pictures are shown. She is one of the most talented of the Warner Brothers actresses, and whenever she appears in a picture, that picture must be a success. Here is the story of a girl who married for spite, and the consequences of that rash-seeming act. Chester Morris, who appears with the star, is famous for his part as the crook in "Alibi," while Jack Mulhall has been seen and heard too often to need introduction to a city audience.

Flying turf spurned by flying hooves, colorful silks floating to victory and the mad hue and cry of the race track are captured immortally in "Little Johnny Jones," one of the real great pictures of the season. To miss the excitement of this picture would be like lying abed while the house next door was burning up. You must see it.

Beginning Saturday the Palace will present the new Warner Brothers classic, "Show of Shows," with a galaxy of 100 famous stars. No matter what movies you have seen, please be assured that you have seen nothing till you see this, of which more will be written shortly.

Broadway Theatre

"What to do about divorce" in this age of careless marriage and carefree separation is the problem which six of the most charming kiddies ever met in life or on the screen, solve in their own way in "The Marriage Playground", that fast-moving comedy drama of modern society life now playing at the Broadway. Mary Brian is the eldest child in a family disrupted by divorce, with the other children ranging from 12 years down to nine months, the helpless puppets in a game of put-and-take between the parents, living here, there, anywhere at the idle behest of either. Tired of it all, the youngsters revolt, and led by their older sister, and aided by Frederic March, a "friend of the family," wage open warfare on the situation and demand a home. How they achieve that seemingly impossible task makes the most delightful and surprising story ever brought to the screen.

MARY BRIAN
IN PARAMOUNT PICTURES

In addition to Miss Brian and Mr. March, the cast includes Huntley Gordon, Kay Francis, William Austin and Seena Owen, and those wonderful children, Phillipe de Lacey, Anita Louise, Little Mitzi, Billy Seay, Ruby Parsley and Baby Donald Smith. The surrounding program includes Ford Sterling and Bert Roach in a screaming comedy, "The Fatal Forceps," Stanley & Ginger, a peppy pair of comedians, "Sympathy," a sketch that no married man should miss, and Roger Williams, the one-man band, with the Fox Movietone news.

Breed Theatre

Local film fans have but one more opportunity after today to see the most amusing picture ever, the Fox Movietone special feature, "The Cock-Eyed World," which ends a successful run tomorrow night at the Breed theatre.

The story, by Laurence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, co-authors of "What Price Glory," reveals the further loves and adventures of the two hard boiled leathernecks, "Top Sergeant Flagg" and "Sergeant Quirt."

No picture has yet shown three more beautiful women than Lily Damita, Leila Karnelly and Jean Bary, the three principal loves of the two leathernecks. See it yourself, at the Breed theatre and be convinced, today and Friday.

ASHFORD

William Sawyer who is employed by William Poole as carpenter, while working in an ice house, came across a large lot of honey. The bees were between the honey and outside the covering.

Miss Phelps who has been boarding with Mrs. Greene, has returned to Bridgewater, Mass.

Mrs. Walter Clark of Gurleyville, is staying with Mrs. Frank Grover for the present.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brown were in Willimantic this week.

Louise Kovronics of Willimantic spent Sunday with her parents.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

WESTERLY

LOTHESOME DISEASE FOUND AMONG PUBLIC SCHOOL PUPILS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 15—Conditions at the West Broad Street Grammar school, Mrs. Carl Crandall, principal, the Pawcatuck grade school of Stonington town schools have developed a menace to the public health especially among the school children.

Thomas R. Platt, Pawcatuck member of the Stonington school committee, other members being Judge Lorenzo D. Fairbrother, Stonington, and Miss Josephine M. Dickenson, Mystic, from reports made to him has determined to bend every energy to prevent the spread of venereal disease, similar to conditions found to exist in public schools in East Providence a short time ago. Mr. Platt said Wednesday that conditions were brought to his attention for the first time the past week and by the Westerly visiting nurse, Miss Wilhelmina Kososchke, who stated that she had conferred with Miss Lucy Crowley of Wequetequock, Westerly Red Cross executive secretary and social worker. He promised to give it his attention Monday and a visit was made by him to the school and the Stonington school superintendent. W. R. Snyder was called upon for action. The Stonington town health officer, Dr. D. E. G. Taylor was requested to come to Pawcatuck and make a thorough examination. Wednesday afternoon Health Officer Taylor and Supt. Snyder were in conference to report on what action was to be taken to protect the health of the 700 pupils attending the school.

This week Mr. Platt had pupils interviewed at the principal's office at the West Broad street school. As a result he visited a West Side home on Farley avenue, off Liberty street. Here in a two-tenement house he found that three children, in school in unkempt condition, suffering from pediculosis, slept in a small bedroom, while in an adjoining room a step-brother, 27, born in Gloucester, Mass., and returning to Westerly recently from Norwich, was nearly bedridden with tuberculosis and suffered from an advanced venereal disease. Questioning brought out that he had been sent from a Rhode Island state institution when it was found that he was a Connecticut resident. Receiving financial assistance, he had been attended by Dr. Taylor. There was no woman in the family of the father, who is employed during the day, his first and second wives having died. A neighbor had come in the past to clean and pick up, until she found that conditions were so bad she had ceased her visits. Mr. Platt had the woman again come in to clean. A child was sent out of school and made presentable for school by the visiting nurse.

Wednesday Mr. Platt had brought to his attention the condition in an adjoining home on Farley avenue from which last Thursday the deserting mother, Mrs. Olive M. King, wife of John King, was sent by Town Court Judge William A. Wilcox to the Connecticut State Farm for Women, that she might not become a menace to public health. The children of the two families have played together, but recently the children in the latter family have been removed to a home on Liberty srteet.

Chickery Moussie, father of a family of thirteen living children and who stated that he has lost six by death, lives in a house on the same short street. He also fears for the health of his children, and more especially since he has observed sores on the hands of his children.

Mr. Platt declares that he will consult with the other members of his committee and if thought necessary, state or even federal help will be asked to restore health to the community.

JAMES DERICCO'S GUN IS SOUGHT BY POLICE

Following the arrest of James Derlcco, of 8 1-2 Oak street, father of a family of nine, charged with the shooting of Atwood Gardiner, who continues in a critical state at the Westerly hospital and gradually growing weaker, the Westerly police bent every energy until 2:30 a. m. Wednesday in a vain endeavor to locate the revolver used in the shooting. Officer Frank E. Knight did find a shell between the tracks on the New Haven road where Gardiner said he was hit by the third bullet.

Wednesday morning Officers Kessel, Knight, McCarthy and Norman combed the ground to locate the gun. Tuesday night Gardiner's coat, having been run over by a passing train was found on the main line tracks. His gloves were picked up on the spur track leading to the old Sweeney quarry.

STOLE SAMPLES FROM CAR— ALBERT HALE ARRESTED

A letter in his pocket indicating that he had been recently in the Connecticut Capital city, the arrest of a thief was accomplished Wednesday morning through the co-operation of Westerly and Pawcatuck patrolmen. The man gave his name as Albert Hale of 12th street, Los Angeles, Cal., who recently came here from Hartford. He was placed under arrest by Officer George Madison of the Westerly police and is being held on a charge of larceny of goods said to be valued at $100. The police claim they were stolen from an automobile parked on High street. About 10 a. m. B. E. Power, a traveling salesman for F. H. Sprague, Inc., Fitchburg, Mass., left his car in front of the P. H. Opie company store on High street while he was paying a business visit to that concern. Upon going to his machine Power found that a quantity of sample goods consisting of boys' suits and blouses were missing. Power reported the matter to Officer Madison and almost at the same time a report came from a girl clerk in the McLellan stores on High street that a man acting suspiciously had been seen in that place carrying a bundle which answered the description of the one taken from the automobile. A hunt was made for the man, but he was not to be found on this side of the river. A report came from Officer A. R. Sheldon of the Pawcatuck police that he believed the man was in a tenement over a paint shop belonging to John Daisan on Coggswell street. Officers Madison and Sheldon went to the place where they found Hale with the stolen property. He was taken to police headquarters, where the goods were identified by the salesman. The officers upon searching the man found a bottle of liquid marked "70 per cent alcohol."

The annual meeting of Christ Episcopal parish was held Tuesday evening when the annual reports showed the church in good financial condition. The meeting was held in the vestry, Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, the rector presided. The guild report was presented by Mrs. Angus Chesebro for Miss Elizabeth Haswell. In the absence of Mrs. C. Charles DeBiasi of Willimantic was a recent caller on his mother, Mrs. Philomena DeBiasi.

SLEEPING MARATHON WON BY DE BIAISI, IN 27 HRS.

Arthur De Biaisi and H. Bracci were telling how long they could sleep without getting up—straight sleeping. The record is held by Bill Craushury, 22 hours and 12 minutes. Both young fellows were getting hot under the collar about their beauty sleep; so a little bet was made. Longshot DeBiaisi claimed he could outsleep his pal, and he put up $20, while Happy-go-lucky Bracci covered it, meaning that he could not do the Rip Van Winkle stunt. The money was put up and held by William Banks and the judges were to be Carlo Bracci, brother of Hammer Bracci, and Eddie Ellis who was the man to look after DeBiaisi. Both shook hands at 9 o'clock. Saturday night they went home to put on the race, putting on their sleeping suits and getting under the army blankets at the hour of 10 o'clock, closing their eyes to the world, to see who would be the sleeping champion of the Fishing Village.

How they slept! Nothing only a fire siren could wake them. A record was put on the phonograph "Sleepy Head," but that failed to wake them and the radio was going full force at the home of Bracci, so it could be heard at the shipyard; but on Happy-go-lucky Bracci slept, pounding his ear like a roaring bear after a lunch of 40 pounds of beef steak.

Judge Eddie Ellis came from the home of his rival chief, Sitting Bull DeBiaisi and made his report. "Well, that guy could sleep on a 12-inch gun and would not wake up on a hornets' nest! It looks if he had got a shot in the arm! Well, all I can tell now is that he is still snoring away and by now he ought to have six cords of wood all done. That gave the crowd a laugh at the news store of Mrs. Jane Carson. "In a few hours, I will make a visit to his home to see if he is cheating or sleeping with both eyes open!" Down came the other judge, Carol Bracci to break the news of his brother, but it was good news, for Never-give-up H. Bracci was still going strong and dreaming what he was going to get with the 20 dollars he would win—a spring overcoat, or wedding suit, or two pairs of shoes. The judge said. "He had the night mare, scared us all and the house cat, Honest George, ran up the window, tore a curtain down that cost $2. At first I thought the sleeper had fallen out of bed, but it was a safe bet, for he turned over on his lucky left side, good for many more hours of dreaming!"

The crowd gave a cheer, for it was like an election crowd, waiting up to see who was the next president of the good U. S. A.

Down to Riverside avenue to see if his man Sleep-head DeBiaisi was waking up, with his coat collar around his ears, went Judge Ellis on the run. It was Sunday morning at 7.30 but he found his old side kick in the bed of roses, like a kitten under a stove. Not a move—still giving his rival, Shoot-again Bracci, a battle for the 20 bucks and the championship. His mother claimed that he could sleep for a week. "When he sets the Big Ben clock to get to work on a week day, that does not move him! I have to pour ice water on his head! Sometimes I feel like calling out the fire company to wake him up!"

Both judges had some job to keep track of their men, to see if the sleeping race was won honestly. Every one would ask, "who won the race?" or "Did they wake up yet?" But they were sleeping, with no signs of waking. It came Sunday night at 10 o'clock. Making 24 hours passed in the bed of roses. Champion Bill Crausbury's record was broken; he held the belt for six years.

Both judges went back, they hoped for the final time to see if their men were fast asleep when the cuckoo clock and the little bird said "peep!" twelve times. It was 12 o'clock in Noank, mid-night.

Babe Bracci woke up and wondered where he was and what time it was. He said "Can I make the dance at Odd Fellows' hall on time?" But his mother said it is Sunday night, mid-night and you have slept the clock round and two hours to spare!" He was all smiles, thinking he had won the bet.

Judge C. Bracci had got it all down on paper, when about 50 were there to see who was the winner. But he was not going to tell until Judge Ellis came back from Riverside avenue. At 1.15 Monday morning, Eddie Ellis carried back with him a paper longer than a soap order list, all smiles to break the news to the crowd at the little news store on East Main street, where they lost some sleep to see who was the lucky one to win the 20 dollars in gold.

Judge Ellis read from it that Red Arthur De Biaisi woke up at 8 minutes past 1 o'clock Monday morning, making 27 hours and 8 minutes of straight sleeping—not getting up at all, sleeping the Big Ben around with a few hours to spare.

When Beauty Sleeper DeBiaisi woke up he rubbed his eyes and looked up to the ceiling and in a loud voice said "Where am I? Have I got whiskers like Rip Van Winkle had? It seems as though I've been in dreamland for a long while! Can I catch a train to Stamford for a visit over the week end?"

His mother laughed until her sides ached, then told him he could catch his dinner pail for New London and get to work, for it was Monday morning, time for the birds to sing. "Well, I am surprised to sleep that long!"

Eddie Ellis said "Gentlemen that is the story of Mr. Sleepy-haed DeBiaisi and he was given an ovation that made the cigars stand up in the boxes on the show case. Then up stepped judge No. 2, Carol Bracci. "Well everybody, here comes the news of Red DeBiaisi's rival, turn over H. Bracci! As the bird in the clock on the shelf sang the midnight carol, Babe woke up and wanted to go to a dance in Mystic to shake a leg. But it was too late for the sheik found out it was Sunday night. He slept for 26 long hours without getting up for his English breakfast, tea, and it was all straight sleeping!" But it was not long enough sleep for his rival. DeBiaisi pulled a few more hours ahead and won the greatest sleeping race the village ever heard of between two young men at the age of 20. So you can tell everybody who won the race and that's all I've got to say now!" H. Bracci got a hand from the crowd for being a good sport, to try the race so, we hail, our new sleeping champion Arthur DeBiaisi, who won 20 new one dollar bills for closing his eyes to the world for 27 hours and 8 minutes, so broke the record that has been on the book for six long years!

Both men put away a big feed. Champion DeBiaisi had for lunch, seven pork chops, mashed potatoes, turnips, four pieces of bread, a dish of pineapple, and three pieces of cake with two cups of coffee. His rival, Good Loser H. Bracci had three pounds of round steak, French fried potatoes, five pieces of bread, a dish of peas, and four pieces of raisin cake, with a pot of English breakfast tea.

If they should sleep for a week the meat market would go out of business, for they sure can eat after being dead to the world under the blankets and missing a few meals.

IT WILL When we say Pazo Ointment will relieve any form of Piles we mean it. If you want to experience the comforting relief this thoroughly tested formula will give, try a few applications. Money back if it fails. Get the handy tube with pile pipe—75c, or in the tin box—60c, at any drug store.

Stops That Tough Hang-On Cough That Racks Your Whole Body

For simple coughs any simple sweet sugary cough syrup will probably do.

But when you want to throw out of your system one of those old timers, that simply won't be conquered, but lingers on and on causing sleepless nights and days of torment then you've just got to have a real cough medicine.

Then you must ask your druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion for the harder and tougher and tighter they come the more joy Bronchuline gets in knocking them out.

Bronchuline isn't a cheap cough conqueror, mind you, for first raters are never cheap. But if you are one of the unlucky ones that a persistent, health destroying cough is pushing towards the grave, get a bottle today and notice how the first dose takes right hold and soothes the terrible soreness.

Often three or four doses bring blessed relief and half a bottle forces the most stubborn cough into submission.

"A bottle of magic" one old man calls Bronchuline Emulsion. He was all worn out and ready to give up when a friend brought him the good news about Bronchuline.

Don't let a cough hang on — it's dangerous company—Get rid of it quick. Ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any up to the times druggist for a bottle of Bronchuline Emulsion.

Who in Your Family Coughs From a Cold?

If they have a cough from a cold that hangs on, they are in constant danger. Many a serious illness follows neglected colds. If a cold is permitted to persist, it can lead and often does lead into dangerous complications.

Don't let them trifle with colds. Suggest fresh air, lots of sleep, a simple diet, clean intestines and—Creomulsion. Colds are infectious. They endanger all of the family. If there's a cough from a chest cold or bronchial irritation in your family, go and get Creomulsion.

Creomulsion taken promptly will help you avoid dangerous diseases and the expense and loss of time when sick in bed. We guarantee relief for coughs from colds, or we'll refund your money. Adv.

LUCKY STRIKE "IT'S TOASTED" CIGARETTES

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

You men who would keep trim and fit : : : you women who covet the tantalizing curves of the truly modern figure—when tempted to do yourself too well, light a Lucky instead. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately. When your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! : : : Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

CONTEST IN STOCK MARKET ENDED WITH BULL CROWD GAINING THE UPPER HAND

NEW YORK, Jan. 15. — (AP) —The most spirited clash between opposing speculative forces experienced in nearly two weeks today moderately disturbed the comparative idleness in which the stock market has languished since the holiday's, and ended with the bull crowd gaining the upper hand.

On the whole, however, the bull victory was not particularly decisive, and operations were not violent enough to shake the market out of its narrow trading rut. Sales for the day totaled 3,630,060, the largest since Jan. 3, but the price index of 90 leading stocks showed a net gain of less than a point.

The advance was aided by renewed talk of a decrease in the New York federal reserve rediscount rate tomorrow. Such action will undoubtedly depend upon whether the Bank of England reduces its rate tomorrow morning. A large shipment of gold from Spain to London enhances the prospect of such action, but sterling exchange has weakened so decisively of late that the prospect is not regarded as particularly promising.

Money at this center cheapened considerably. Call loans declined to 4 per cent, after renewals at 4 1-2, and funds were offered in the outside market as low at 3 1-8. Time money also was easier. The federal reserve bank of Philadelphia reduced its rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent, placing it on a level with the New York rediscount rate, and in some quarters this was interpreted as clearing the way for a lower rate here. The Guaranty Trust Co. announced that it was importing $5,000,000 in gold from Brazil.

Business news and statistics coming to hand were not of a character to clarify the outlook to any extent. Freight car loadings for the New Year's day week showed a marked increase over the Christmas week, and were somewhat better than for the like week two years ago, but failed by a substantial margin to reach the total of the like period of a year ago. Copper statistics for December showed a large accumulation of stocks, but announcement of a further curtailment of production by Anaconda reflected determination to protect the price structure. Crude oil production last week again expanded and today a sharp cut in Texas crude prices was announced. The latter development, however, was regarded as a part of the larger refiners campaign to discourage excessive output. The weekly steel trade reviews reported a moderate gain in production, but a weakening of prices. Foreign trade figures for December showed a substantial contraction in exports.

Heavy selling of Montgomery-Ward was the outstanding feature of the day's trading. The issue was depressed 5 1-4 points to a new low for the present stock at 38 5-8, but a general rally in the last hour carried it up to 40 3-4. Rather unsettling rumors were heard during the decline, but President Everitt issued a statement during the afternoon saying the company was in the strongest financial position it has ever enjoyed, and condemning "organized use of misleading rumors." The selling was generally regarded as a bear drive, although much of it appeared to come from Chicago.

The amusement shares, which have been depressed by the Fox tangle, were bid up spiritedly, presumably in response to the fairly favorable earnings statement published by Loews for the year ended Nov. 22. Utilities and an assortment of rails were also notably strong. Shares closing about 3 to 4 points higher included American Tobacco B, Atlantic Coast Line, Chesapeake and Ohio, Consolidated Gas, Delaware and Hudson, Electric Power and Light, Stone and Webster, Loews, National Biscuit, North American, Paramount, and Warner Bros. Fox Film A and Radio Keith closed up more than a point. U. S. Steel closed up 1 3-8. In the low priced group, Transcontinental Oil rose to 10 in a large turnover.

Soft spots included American Locomotive, American Woolen Preferred, Gulf States Steel, Hudson, Mengel Co., Pierce Arrow A and Worthington Pump, closing off 3 to nearly 4 points. Colorado and Southern dropped 6 points in a small turnover, and Midland Steel Preferred, 12.

Commodities generally sagged. Wheat futures lost 1 1-2 cents and more, reflecting reduced estimates of the export movement. Corn declined as much under pressure of large offerings. Cotton was dull and closed slightly lower. Coffee futures, however, rallied on short covering.

Leading foreign exchanges were mostly firmer, with Sterling cables quoted at $4.87 7-8, up 1-8.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 15—(AP)—Slashing of 25,000,000 bu. from estimated world imports needs for wheat this season led to a sudden downward swing of wheat values today. The curtailment brings the estimated total as low as 672,000,000 bu, the smallest since 1925-26, and 240,000,000 bu. less than actual clearances in 1928-29. An additional disturbing influence was the fact that export purchases of North American wheat today were reduced nearly to the vanishing point, aggregating only 200,000 bu.

Chicago closing prices on wheat were unsettled, 1 1-2c to 1 3-4c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-2c to 1 5-8c down, oats 3-8 at 1-2c to 5-8 at 3-4c off, and provisions varying from 10c setback to a rise of 12c.

Unlooked for sharp downturns in Liverpool wheat quotations today went hand in hand with announcement that the leading British grain trade authority was curtailing his figures on world import needs. News of the action of the Liverpool market and of the reduction of the world's estimated import requirements gave a decided jolt to Chicago wheat traders, and the resulting pressure to sell carried the market here to the lowest level reached since Dec. 20. Giving momentum to the downward trend of the Chicago market was a statement from one of the largest grain houses here that export competition is sharpening.

This country's three principal rivals in the wheat export trade—Argentina, Australia and Canada—were depicted in this statement as being all in a position where sale of their wheat is necessary because of their general financial position. The balance of trade in each of the three countries named, and exchange conditions which flow from that balance, were represented as forcing export sales of wheat and thus giving additional competition in the disposal of the United States wheat surplus. On the other hand, it was noticeable that the Winnipeg wheat market today showed relatively more weakness than Chicago did, and that farmer cooperative spokesmen in Minneapolis announced that they would buy immediate delivery No. 2 northern wheat at $1.22 a bushel regardless of the course of wheat prices on May delivery contracts.

Corn and oats prices gave way owing largely to wheat market weakness, sales of corn to come here from Kansas City acted further as a weight on the corn market, and so too did colder weather favorable for corn handling.

Provisions were unsettled by irregularity of hog values and by the breaks in cereals.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—A large or prolonged depression in business is not expected, Percy H. Johnston, president of the Chemical Bank & Trust Co., told stockholders at the annual meeting today. Owing to mergers and accompanying changes in the bank's capital during the year the value of comparison of earnings with previous years was destroyed, he said, adding, however, that earnings for the last six months of 1929 were $2,367,677, equal on an annual basis to 3.16 a share.

The price of heavy melting steel scrap at Youngstown has been increased from $16.50 to $17 a ton.

Two additional contracts for supplying gasoline to the Army Air Service have been received by the Richfield Oil Co. of California. One calls for the delivery of 326,000 gallons to March Field, Riverside, Calif., before June 30, and the second for 154,000 gallons to the air depot at San Diego.

Copper buying was quiet today both for export and for domestic use. Reports from the trade state that orders are coming in in somewhat better volume to wire mills, but that business in brass plants is very quiet.

It was learned at the meeting of the directors of the White Rock Mineral Spring Co. today that while conversations relative to a merger of White Rock with Canada Dry Ginger Ale have been held, they were only elementary and that nothing further has developed today.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Treasury receipts for January 13 were $5,577,543.19; expenditures $15,659,372.32; balance $112,602,080.43

COTTON

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)— Cotton futures closed steady, unchanged to 5 points lower. Spot steady; middling 17.45.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan 15—(AP)—Prices on the New York Curb market continued to flounder around within a narrow trading area today although major speculative activity was again on the up-side. Trading was largely in the hands of professionals, although some outside participation was apparent in a few public utilities, theatres and specialties in which pools are operating.

Electric Bond & Share, one of the recognized leaders of the public utility group, continued to creep upward, closing at 85 1-4 for a net gain of 1 1-4 points. Cities Service improved fractionally. Niagara & Hudson has made only a slight response to the power agreement reached by opposing political factions at Albany. United Light & Power A advanced about a point but United Gas, which is being spoken of as the nucleus of a natural gas merger in the southwest, lost about a point on profit-taking.

Oils were slightly reactionary on the announcement of a cut in Texas crude oil prices by the Humble company. Venezuela Mexican broke 3 1-2 points on a few sales.

Theatre stocks gave a fairly good demonstration of group strength. General Theatres Equipment added a point to its recent gain. Columbia Pictures advanced 3 points and Consolidated Theatres moved up about a point.

Heavy trading in Transamerica "rights," which advanced 2 points, featured the investment trust and trading corporation group, which did not appear to be effected by the introduction of a bill in the state legislature to regulate those corporations, and place them under the supervision of the state banking authorities. Third and Fourth National Investors advanced a point each and Pennroad improved fractionally.

Utah Radio broke 16 1-2 points to a new low at 4 1-4 on a small turnover. Stutz Motor company bonds dropped 3 points to a new low at 35, which contrasts to a high of 116 5-8 last year.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Investment sources were asked today to take more than $90,000,000 in new Loan offerings, including one railroad and two utility issues, with the result that a small scale-down occurred in quotations on listed securities, new flotations so far this week approximate $270,000,000, which is regarded as a large amount for the present market.

Averages for all groups shaded off in the largest turnover of the new year. Forenoon prices were firm to slightly higher, but toward the close easier tendencies appeared and small net losses proved to be numerous. The rails and utilities inclined to heaviness.

Dealers report no relaxation in the demand for bonds of the best grades, which receive most of the inquiry from private investors.

New issues of this type have found a ready absorption because of their more attractive yields and there consequently has been a slight tendency to neglect listed bonds meeting the most conservative tastes. In view of the extremely cautious nature of the present investment demand it is believed that many prospective purchasers however, are waiting for a definite demonstration of the market's ability to advance after the new flotations have been taken.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway $35,000,000 offering of 35-year 4 1-2 per cent mortgage bonds was reported over-subscribed soon after the books opened. This was the first large rail issue of an old-fashioned lien type since the deflation in stocks and its reception was watched with interest. Traded on a when issued basis, a few of the bonds sold at 94, the offering price.

Among the listed rails there were losses in Baltimore & Ohio 5s, Rock Island 4 1-2s and 4s, Central Pacific First 4s, Erie 5s and General Lien 4s, Missouri Pacific 5s and General 4s, and Western Maryland 4s. St. Louis San Francisco 4 1-2s and Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s each lost a point.

The industrial group was marked by a 2 3-4 point rise in Illinois Steel Debenture 4 1-2s to 100 3-4, exceeding the 1929 high. It was reported that the United States Steel Corporation, which guarantees this bond, was planning to complete its program of retiring the funded debt of the subsidiaries. The issue is callable at 105.

Other industrial changes included a decline of nearly 2 points in Fisk Rubber 8s and fractional improvement in Goodrich 6 1-2s, Hudson Coal 5s, U. S. Rubber 5s and a few others. The group was generally stronger than the rails and utilities.

American Telephone 35-year 5s, when issued, turned over vigorously, meeting with further profit-taking for a tiny net decline. International Telephone debenture 4 1-2s rose 3-4, but there was little activity in the power and light company issues.

A few convertibles moved rather briskly, but without much effect on prices. New Haven 6s lost 2 points and Missouri Pacific 5 1-2 declined 1-2. American Telephone 4 1-2s rose 3-4.

United States governments eased. Most of the business was in the treasuries. An unusual feature was the complete absence of trading in the Liberty 3 1-2s. In the stronger foreign group French 7 1-2s surpassed their 1929 peak on good buying.

WARRENVILLE

Mrs. Henry Church, of Hartford, spent last Thursday at the Church place.

Miss Burgess Racicot, of Scotland, is staying with the MacWay family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry MacWay have named their daughter Gloria May.

Mrs. Lena Durkee, with relatives, called on her brother, A. J. Lamphear, at Mansfield Hollow, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gardner and children visited Mr. and Mrs. Ariel Green at Eastford, Sunday.

Mrs. Norman Baker is working at Storrs college.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Benjamin have named their daughter Louise May.

Rev. E. S. Verney preached to the young people Sunday morning, about guarding their lips. The text for the sermon to the older congregation was the first verse of the fifty-third Psalm. Rev. Verney pointed out that our chief sin is worry. The remedy is an absolute trust in God.

Miss Henrietta Taller and Miss Dorothy Barlow were among Windham high school students who attended a party at Storrs Tuesday night.

MANSFIELD CENTER

Robert W. Gardiner has been confined to his bed since Christmas. He is suffering with muscular rheumatism and is scarcely able to move.

Rev. Florence Jones of Mansfield Center church, pastor intended to preach at Warrenville in exchange with Rev. Elliot B. Verney, but the latter was unable to come as planned.

The home economics committee will be in charge of the program at the next meeting of Echo grange Tuesday evening. Mrs. Sara Dimock, home demonstration agent for Tolland county, will be one of the speakers and there will be special music.

The Ladies' Aid society held an all-day meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Davoll, when two quilts were tied. A covered dish dinner was served at noon.

Mrs. H. J. Fenton had charge of the library recently.

At the annual meeting of Willimantic Exchange club Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones, pastor of the Center church, was re-elected chaplain.

GURLEYVILLE

Robert Walker and family have moved to Knowlton Hill.

A joint fourth-quarter conference of the Methodist churches was held Tuesday evening.

Henry Douda is now living at Willington.

A supper was held at the conference room Tuesday evening.

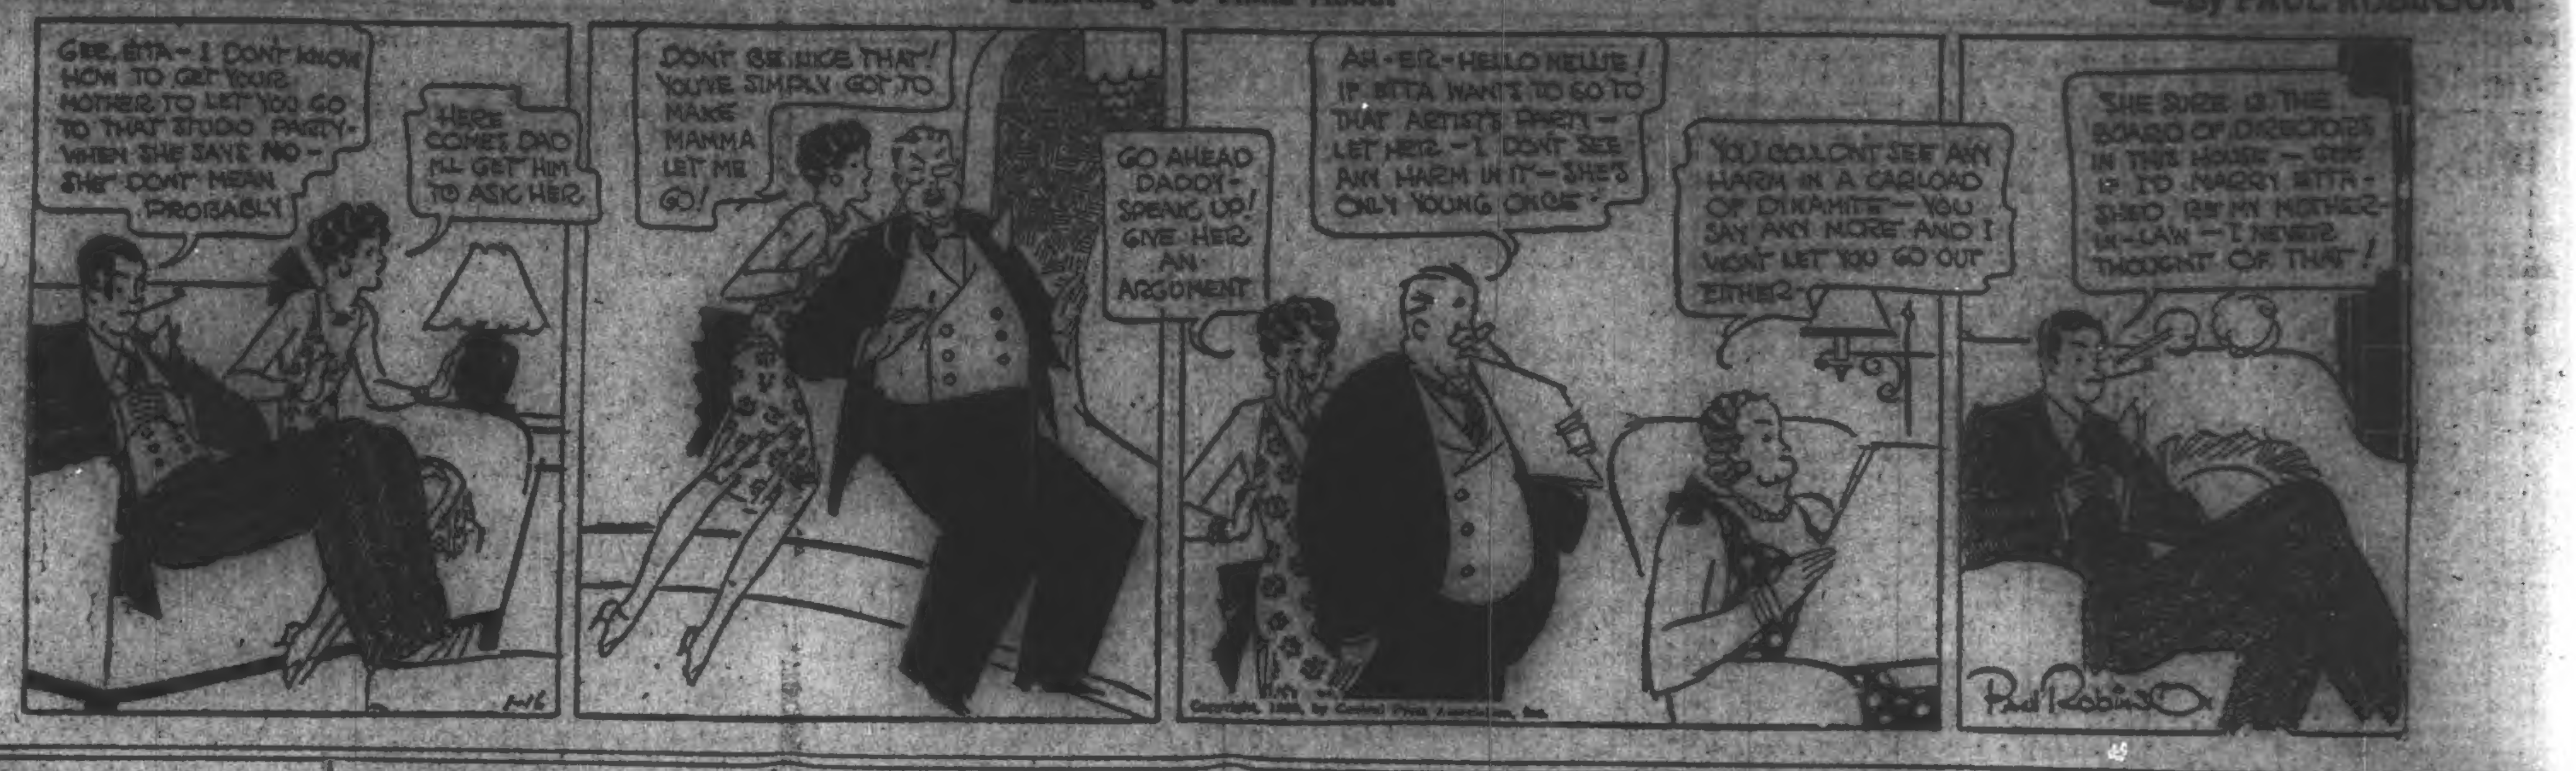
Something to Think About

—By PAUL ROBINSON



GEE, ETTA – I DON'T KNOW HOW TO GET YOUR MOTHER TO LET YOU GO TO THAT STUDIO PARTY – WHEN SHE SAYS NO – SHE DON'T MEAN PROBABLY
HERE COMES DAD I'LL GET HIM TO ASK HER
DON'T BE LIKE THAT! YOU'VE SIMPLY GOT TO MAKE MAMMA LET ME GO!
GO AHEAD DADDY – SPEAK UP! GIVE HER AN ARGUMENT
AH – ER – HELLO NELLIE! IF ETTA WANTS TO GO TO THAT ARTIST'S PARTY – LET HER – I DON'T SEE ANY HARM IN IT – SHE'S ONLY YOUNG ONCE –
YOU COULDN'T SEE ANY HARM IN A CARLOAD OF DYNAMITE – YOU SAY ANY MORE AND I WON'T LET YOU GO OUT EITHER –
SHE SURE IS THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS IN THIS HOUSE – GEE IF I MARRY ETTA – SHE'D BE MY MOTHER-IN-LAW – I NEVER THOUGHT OF THAT!

SHIRES TO BE IN CONFERENCE WITH BASEBALL COMMISSIONER LANDIS TODAY

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(P)—Charles Arthur Shires is about ready to make his peace with baseball and lay aside his boxing gloves.

The "Great Man" was summoned today to appear before Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, next Monday. Although Commissioner Landis declined to say so, he intimated the battling White Sox first baseman would receive a lot of fatherly advice and that he would be urged to quit his ring activities.

Shires still is on the suspended list, following his second insurrection against the White Sox in which he engaged in a fist fight with Russell "Lena" Blackburne, then manager of the club, in a Philadelphia hotel room last fall. He has not been removed from the suspended list by the White Sox. Neither has he been tendered a contract for the 1930 season.

Commissioner Landis may straighten out the suspension, thus permitting Shires to discuss terms with his club.

Offers to box still are pouring in on Shires after his success in drawing 13,000 customers to the Boston arena last week. He has an offer of $7,500 to box "Duster" Mails, former major league pitcher, in Los Angeles, and also is wanted for a four-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York.

Mutual Arrangement

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(P)—Charles Arthur Shires said tonight that he expected to confer with K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, in Chicago next Saturday concerning his prize-fighting activities. He denied that he had been "summoned" to Chicago by the baseball commissioner, declaring that the conference had been "mutually" arranged.

Shires said he was anxious to get Commissioner Landis' views concerning his ring activities and would accept his advice, even though it meant giving up prize-fighting. The ball player-fighter declared, however, that he felt certain Mr. Landis would not ask him to abandon the ring until he had fulfilled contracts he has signed for bouts in Chicago and Philadelphia.

He said he had posted forfeits of $1,750 for these bouts, two in the Chicago Stadium and one in Philadelphia. For the Chicago fights, Jan. 24 and Jan. 31, he is to receive a total of $35,000, he said. The date for the bout here has not been fixed.

Shires came here last night to attend the annual dinner of the Philadelphia sporting writers. He plans to leave for Chicago tomorrow.

HAKES IS MEDALIST IN CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 15—(P)—Albert R. Hakes of Dunkirk, N. Y., led a brilliant field of club champions today to stroke a 74, three above par, for the medal in the qualifying round of the annual national amateur championship of club champions.

One stroke behind him came Albert W. Haigh, White Plains, N. Y., Samuel R. Freeth, Hempstead, L. I., and Carl Dann, the youthful defending champion from Rollins college, Winter Park, Fla.

The qualifications were marked by excellent golf with all but four of those composing the championship flight well within the seventies.

Hakes' card follows:

Out—434 544 533—37.

In—455 444 344—37—74.

The pairings for the first two rounds of match play tomorrow:

A. H. Hakes, Dunkirk, N. Y., vs A. A. Manucy, St. Augustine, Fla.

W. D. Owens, Tampa, vs L. H. Jenkins, Edwardsville, Ills.

George Dantzler, St. Petersburg, vs William Connellan, Detroit.

John K. Scott, Philadelphia, vs Carl Dann, Winter Park, Fla.

Samuel R. Freeth, Hempstead, L. I., vs Howard Tryon, Elmira, N. Y.

J. Marshall Reid, Roanoke, Va., vs Arthur Buzby, Fort George, Fla.

Raymond C. Green, Daytona, Fla., vs Robert H. James, Altamont Springs, Fla.

R. C. Garretson, Ashland, O., vs Albert W. Haigh, White Plains, N. Y.

SPEARS WITHHOLDS DECISION ON MINNESOTA POSITION

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Jan. 15.—(P)—Dr. Clarence W. Spears, head football coach at the University of Minnesota, tonight withheld his decision on whether to accept a position as head gridiron coach at the University of Oregon.

This action followed a hastily called meeting late today of the University of Minnesota's senate committee on intercollegiate athletics, governing body of sports at the Gopher school.

The session was secret and Dr. Spears was understood to have outlined conditions under which he might stay at Minnesota. It was not revealed what these conditions were. However, Dr. Spears is known to have been dissatisfied with methods of the athletic department in handling sports. Also, the offer from Oregon carries with it a salary of $10,000 annually, compared with $7,500, he receives at Minnesota.

In addition to coaching at Oregon, Dr. Spears would be permitted to practice medicine in the off-football season. This is not permitted at Minnesota. He has no contract at the Gopher school, to which he came five years ago from the University of West Virginia.

MANDELL AND QUINTERO FIGHT TO FAST DRAW

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 15.—(P)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, and Manuel Quintero, the Cuban Cavalier, battled through ten torrid rounds to a draw decision in their non-title bout at the Miami Beach Kennel club's arena tonight. A late rally by the Cuban enabled him to reach even terms with the champion.

Quintero, weighing 139 1-4, used successfully a left handed attack that frequently caught the champion off his guard. Mandell, unaccustomed to a southpaw delivery, boxed cautiously through the fight but did not hesitate to launch an offensive that frequently drove the Cuban Cavalier to the ropes.

The champion used his right and left hands to advantage to deliver himself from the swinging attacks of Manuel. All through the fight, the Cuban swung with his left, missing his mark on numerous occasions. The champion's defense ability saved him throughout the fight from Quintero's slashing attacks. Mandell carried the offensive through most of the ten rounds, but lost points when he permitted the Cuban to override his guard.

Sammy relied upon his one-two delivery with the right and left to the head and body for many of his counters, but displayed equal favor to right handed jabs in the in-fighting with the Cuban.

Quintero rushed frequently but laid himself open to retaliation.

Mandell fought hard through the bout, bringing his side of the affair to a ten-round climax that looked good.

During the latter part of the fight Mandell rocked the Cuban from the center of the ring to the ropes in successive rushes. The Cuban's earlier advantage was frequently disputed in this part of the fight.

The fight was the curtain raiser for metropolitan Miami's major fight season.

Eleven thousand fight fans, many of them members of exclusive winter colonies of the area, witnessed the fight.

Sailor Tom Sharkey, one of the best of the heavyweights of three decades ago, and Pat Maguire, middleweight fighter of the same era, put on an exhibition four-round bout. Burlesquing through the one-minute rounds, the fighters of another day would not heed the final gong.

Y EMPS WIN EASY GAME FROM LYMAN HIGH TEAM

The Y Emps basketball team won an easy victory 30 to 17, over the Lyman Memorial high quintet at Lebanon last night. The Emps were never in danger taking the lead at the start and holding it throughout. At half time the score stood at 12 to 7 in favor of the Emps. The Norwich team used 12 men in their lineup with Rizzuto and Butler starring for the locals while Bricken was leader for Lyman high. The summary:

Kelly Beats Ubaldo

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15—(P)—Jack Kelly, of Waterbury, tonight won a referee's decision over Primo Ubaldo, of Italy, in a ten round fight held here. Kelly weighed 173 3-4; Ubaldo 174.

Results of other bouts:

Tommy Jarrett, New Haven, 133, awarded referee's decision over Joe Carpino, New York, 136 1-2, eight rounds. Ruby Greenberg, New Haven, 136, awarded referee's decision over Alex Tourain, New Haven, 133 1-2, eight rounds. Ed Skinner, New Haven, 184 3-4, knocked out Jimmy Dwyer, Holyoke, 181 1-2, two rounds. Tommy Graham, New Haven, 123, awarded referee's decision over Kid Rene, Bristol, 127, four rounds.

Yale Hockey Stars Win

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 15—(P)—With two of its regulars out with injuries, the Yale hockey team tonight defeated Boston Hockey club by a score of 11 to 3. Ding Palmer, Eli's scoring ace, accounted for five goals.

Captain Bob Wilson, star defense man, had his arm in a sling tonight and Frankie Farrel, goalie, was reported to be suffering from internal injuries. The extent of their hurts was not made public.

Yale, intercollegiate champions of last year, won its ninth straight in beating Boston.

Battalino Faces Three Bouts

Bat Battalino of Hartford, the featherweight champion, will fight three stiff opponents within the next ten weeks, according to articles signed by his manager, Hy Malley, Monday night Bat faces Lew Massey in Philadelphia, Jan. 31 he meets Al Singer and March 26, Kid Chocolate, the latter two bouts in Madison Square Garden.

Brown Beats Wesleyan

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 15—(P)—Brown defeated Wesleyan in basketball here tonight by a score of 33 to 26. Brown took the lead at the beginning of the second half through the brilliant work of Captain Snyder. The latter was high scorer with 18 points.

Ice Hockey

At New Haven: Yale, 11; Boston Hockey club, 3.

If I may be permitted I would like to make a suggestion to the fire commissioners.

No don't get me wrong. I'm not going to refer to the Plaut-Cadden clock, I promised not to say anything about it in the New Year's resolution.

This is an entirely different matter. I would recommend that the members of Engine Co. No. 3 be put through an intensive course in cooking.

Many, if not all, of the company are married but they seem not to have grasped the fact that food if left in a hot oven long enough will burn.

And when it burns it gives off an odor that is not pleasant to the nose and after it is removed from the fire is not in the least bit palatable. And besides it is an expensive practice.

All of which is to imply that members of Engine Co. No. 3, located on Joseph Perkins road, are much better firemen than they are cooks. A fact which several persons who were at the engine house yesterday noon can verify.

It seems that the members of the company felt the pangs of hunger gnawing at their tummies along about noontime yesterday. It was voted that hamburger steak, smothered in onions and baked potatoes would be about the last word in hunger appeasing viands.

The hamburger, onions and spuds were secured and the culinary ability of the fire laddies was put to a test. The hamberger was salted to taste and onions chopped fine and spread upon the meat. The potatoes were washed and made ready for baking. Yum, Yum, that was going to be some spread.

Anticipating a real satisfying dinner the firemen retired to the rest room and indulged in a game of friendly cards while the dinner was left to cook.

Becoming engrossed in their game the time slipped by very quickly and unnoticed. There was a delicious aroma of onions and cooking pervading the engine house and all was well—apparently.

Some time later one of the firemen sniffed and then sniffed again. "Do you smell anything burning?" says he to the rest. "No" says they, "unless it's that cigar you are smoking."

But in a few minutes all the firemen started sniffing and you know it's mighty hard to fool a fireman when it comes to detecting smoke. They looked at one another and then as if they were prompted by one great thought they made a bee-line for the kitchen.

The sight there was brutal to hungry men. Wisps of smoke were curling from the oven and as they watched the smoke became even more dense. Suddenly realizing that their dinner was fast becoming ashes one of the men pulled open the oven door.

A billow of smoke rolled out of the oven and as soon as it cleared what had once been the makings of a delicious meal was visible. All that was left was a small heap of charred beef, burned onions and potatoes, almost glowing with the heat.

Not a word was spoken until an outsider maliciously asked if Squad A should be called. The inquirer barely escaped with his life.

And that's why I suggest a course in cooking.

CONGER IS BEATEN IN 1,500-METER RACE BY MOORE

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(P)—Falling as he went into one of his sensational sprint finishes, Ray Conger of the Illinois Athletic club tonight finished third in the Myles McHugh Memorial 1,500-meter run over the board track of the 102nd Engineers' armory. Gus Moore, Pittsburgh track ace, won the event with Gus Venzke, Swedish-American club, second. Conger was third, and last.

The event was relieved of its international color when Eino Purje of Finland withdrew on account of illness. Purje's withdrawal was handed to Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the Amateur Athletic union, who said he would investigate the Finnish runner's failure to compete tomorrow.

A doctor's certificate addressed to Ferris said he had tonsilitis and was unable to run.

Running his usual style, Conger trailed his two rivals until they swung into the last lap. With Moore leading the trio by a scant ten yards, the former Iowa star attempted to pass Venzke. In doing so he touched the foot of the Swedish-American runner and fell sprawling on the board track. Moore went on to win easily in 4:04 2-5.

Willie Ritola, veteran New York Finn, found the handicaps too great for him in the two-mile handicap. Starting scratch, Ritola finished in fourth place.

Joe McClusky of Fordham, winner of the freshman intercollegiate cross-country championship, was given a 75-yard handicap and won easily. His time was 9:22.

TRIANGULAR INDOOR MEET AT STATE ARMORY ON SATURDAY NIGHT

The Academy's first indoor track team will open its season Saturday evening at the state armory in a three-cornered meet with Chapman Tech of New London and Suffield prep of Suffield, this state. The first event is scheduled for 7.30 and Coach John P. Murphy of the Academy has lined up a gala list of events.

A feature of the evening will be the mile relay run but this will not be all, as such events as the 600 yard run sprint series, consisting of 30, 40, and 50 yard dashes, 440 yard run, 880 yard run, mile run, 50 yard low hurdles, high jump and medley relay are also on the evening's card.

N. F. A. Entry List.

The Academy's entry list shows Capt. Sam Berkman, Bill Agnew, Johnny Lyons and John Lenkiewicz entered in the mile relay. These boys have been doing great time in the workouts, turning in 3.47 only this week. In the sprints, Sera, Sargent, Lyons, Hogg and Berkman will toe the mark; Goldberg, Sera and Sara are the starters in the 600 yard run; Mahoney, Baronsky and Derosier in the 880 yard run; Yagobosky, Lyons, Navick, Levitsky and Beebe in the mile run; Lazaroff, Berkman and Lienkiewicz in the low hurdles, Lienkiewicz and Root in the high jump and in the medley relay the following have been chosen: 220, Lazaroff; 440, Lienkiewicz; 660, Mahoney; 330, Derosier.

Special Mile Run.

A special mile invitation run, featuring the leading school runners in southern New England has been carded as one of the main events of the evening. Entered are Cotter, of Westerly, the premier cross-country runner; Foster, of Suffield Prep, winner of the Troy, N. Y., cross-country race. Miner, of Chapman Tech, Wetmore, of Bulkeley and Wall, Navick, of the Academy. This may even be classed as a field that is pretty close to the best in the mile runners in New England among the school boys. In this list are the four leading runners of schools in this section and one of the best of the prep school stars.

N. F. A. Band To Play.

Still another feature for the fans Saturday at the inaugural of the new sport will be the first appearance of the new Academy school band, started last fall with money provided by the baseball association. The talented musicians, all students at the school, will play throughout the evening between the events, under the direction of their leader, John M. Swahn.

The squads will taper off their drills today with light work and preparations are being made to handle a packed gallery for the event.

FIRE DESTROYS HARVARD TRACK TEAM EQUIPMENT

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 15—(P)—The Harvard varsity track practice today was postponed because all of the team's equipment was destroyed in a fire, which swept the locker building early today. Harvard A. A. officials said new equipment would be purchased immediately and predicted that the track men could resume practice by Friday at the latest.

The only other Harvard sport team affected by the fire, was the hockey sextet which lost six dozen sticks purchased recently in Canada.

Another blow fell on the track team when it became known that Eddie Farrell, its coach, was confined to his home with a severe attack of tonsilitis. Farrell returned to the squad only a few weeks ago after a long layoff that followed his operation for appendicitis.

Y SENIORS VS. BLAIR'S ALL STARS TONIGHT

Probable Lineups for Tonight

Norwich	Joe Belaire's All Stars
Brown, lf	Taylor, lf
Lynch, rf	Foote, rf
Harris, c	Dittmer, c
Eccleston, lg	Hambach, lg
Pingree, rg	Long, rg

Tonight at the "Y" court Norwich's basketball team will oppose the strongest outfit yet seen at the local floor this season, namely Joe Belair's All Stars. Joe has scouted around considerably and rounded up the best talent in Eastern Conn. in hopes of giving the Demarest coached outfit a setback. From the Sub Base five he has signed up Dittmer and Hambach, two of the best players who have represented the Navy in many years, and Taylor, Foote and Long of the Socony team. These men need no introduction to fans of this vicinity. Belair himself will probably see service and [illegible] as in previous years the defense of Norwich will have to be functioning in first class order.

The starting lineup for Norwich will be Brown and Lynch at forwards, Capt. Harris jumping center, and Eccleston and Pingree doing guard duty. "Gink" Barber of Academy fame and Leffingwell, playing manager, will be ready to step in at any time and take their share of the burden.

Coach Demarest has had his boys practicing the last few nights and reports them all in shape and rearing to go. As this is the only home game this week a large crowd is expected and the management has arranged for a capacity house.

In the preliminary game the Central Baptist outfit will stack up against the fast Gamma club. These two teams are well up in the Church league race and a fast game may be expected.

The main attraction will start at 9 p. m. with Randy Whaples officiating, and the preliminary game commences at 8 p. m. with Ludlow doing the honors.

PLAINFIELD PROS NOSE OUT L. I. TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 15—Playing brilliant basketball in the last half to overcome a one point lead the Plainfield Pros nosed out the Long-Island Pros, claimants of the world's basketball title, 37 to 34 here tonight. The visitors proved to be one of the strongest teams that Plainfield has met this season and but for an injury to Lopchick, Long Island center, the game might have had a different ending. Lopchick turned his ankle early in the game and time was called while he was attended by a doctor and the injured ankle bandaged. He continued in the game but was unable to jump center which gave Jerry Conway of the locals a big advantage.

The first half ended with the Long Island team in the lead 18 to 17. The game during the second half was a close affair with the locals forging to the front in the latter part of the game. McDermott was high scorer for the evening while Bernot and Conway starred for Plainfield.

In the preliminary game the Buddies went back into the winning column again by beating the Putnam Whirlwinds 24 to 19 in a fast game. The summaries:

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that was over the lake region Tuesday night has advanced to the mouth of the St. Lawrence river, and the minor disturbance that was centered over Maryland has moved northeastward to Nova Scotia. Pressure remains lower over the Atlantic states.

The disturbance now over the south Atlantic states will move northeastward, and it will likely cause precipitation Thursday in the Atlantic states. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Thursday and Friday in most sections east of the Mississippi river.

Following the passage of this disturbance much colder weather will overspread the entire Washington forecast district.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh northwest and north winds, possibly strong at times and overcast weather with occasional rain Thursday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate shifting winds becoming fresh northerly and overcast weather with occasional rain Thursday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Cloudy and much colder; probably rain changing to snow Thursday; Friday fair and continued cold.

FUNERAL

Mrs. John Heibel

The funeral of Mrs. John Heibel was held from her late home at 31 Elijha street, Wednesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock with a prayer service, followed by funeral services at the German Lutheran church on Franklin street at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. Carl Storek. Burial was in the family plot in Maplewood cemetery were Rev. Mr. Storek conducted the committal service. The bearers were David Dunn, Roland Wilcox, Joseph Waldron, Johnstone Banfield, Alfred Martin and John Heibel. The services were largely attended. The floral tributes were both numerous and beautiful, speaking a mute testimony of the high esteem in which Mrs. Heibel was held in this vicinity. Undertaker George G. Grant, of Taftville, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Miss Agnes Dunn, of Fifth street, is spending a few days with relatives in Hartford.

A surprise party was held in honor of Mrs. Lena Blackburn at her home on St. Regis avenue Tuesday evening with twenty of her friends attending. During the evening many games were played. Piano and vocal selections were rendered and guests were present from New London, Willimantic and Jewett City. Refreshments of assorted sandwiches, cakes, cookies, fruit, candies, ice cream and wafers and hot chocolate were served by the hostess. The party broke up at a late hour, all voting Miss Blackburn an ideal hostess.

Stephen Shegoda and Richard Seed have returned to their homes, after spending a few days at New Bedford, Mass.

Miss Delia Shea and John O'Shea, of Jewett City, spent a few days recently with Mrs. Michael Shea, their cousin.

The K. B. Sewing circle of No. 18 L. A. A. O. H., held the weekly meeting with Miss Mollie Carroll of Boswell avenue, with a large attendance. The first period of the evening was devoted to sewing of fancy articles, after which a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hostess, consisting of assorted sandwiches, fruit, jello, whipped cream, cake and coffee. Miss Carroll was assisted by Mrs. Margaret Wallace and Mrs. Dennis Donovan. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mary Sullivan at 455 North Main street, this (Thursday) evening.

Mrs. Clara Haywood, of Oneonta, N. Y., is spending a few days with her father, William A. Gordon, on Fifth street.

Mrs. Richard Seed spent Wednesday at Bristol.

NORWICH TOWN

Next Sunday night at the Methodist Episcopal church, the first stereopticon lecture of the new year is to be delivered by the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter. The subject is "Mountains and Human Life." It tells how the home missionaries find the sturdy Highlanders of the south in the coal mines, in lumber camps and on the rocky farms of the mountainside. These folks are responding to the varied ministry of the great Methodist Episcopal church. During the course of the lecture 57 beautifully hand colored pictures will be shown. The machine will be operated by Ralph Smith. The lecture will be given at the evening service of worship at 7:30 and is public. The attendance Sunday evenings since the beginning of the year has been excellent. The first Sunday night there was a congregation of 125 and last Sunday night the attendance exceeded 200.

An article written by Rev. George Warren Potter on "The Minister Renews His Youth As A Scoutmaster," has been printed in five magazines, one of them having a national circulation. Originally the article was prepared and read at a ministers' meeting at Hartford.

LOST $1,600 BY STOPPING SEARCH TOO SOON FOR MISSING AIRPLANE

(Special to The Bulletin)

AMSTON, Jan. 15.—Had he followed the directions of his three-year old daughter Rosie, for 500 feet further, G. Korman of this town would be $1,600 richer today. By just about that distance he missed finding the wreckage of the Fairchild airplane that crashed near his home last Friday morning.

The child was playing in the yard of the Korman home about 10 o'clock Friday morning. She heard the droning of an airplane that hovered somewhere in the fog-sealed skies. Suddenly the motor of the plane died down. Later, hearing her parents discussing the matter of a lost plane, Rosie said to her father, "Papa, that plane is over in our pasture." With this the child pointed in the direction of Amston lake. The pasture in question is one leased by Korman and on the edge of which the plane was actually found. It is probable that Marra, who was at the controls, was maneuvering for a landing on this pasture.

Korman went in search of the plane following his little daughter's direction and came within 500 feet of the wreck before he gave up the search and returned to his home.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE ADOPTS SALARY RETIREMENT PLAN

A plan for retirement allowances which will mean a flat increase of 5 per cent in the salaries paid to all teachers holding the rank of professor, associate professor or assistant professor at Connecticut college at New London has just been adopted by the college, and will go into effect at the beginning of the college year next fall.

Technically the plan is based upon what is known as the deferred annuity policy, teachers' retirement plan. On each regular date for the payment of teachers' salaries, the college withholds 5 per cent of each salary to which the plan applies, and to this adds another 5 per cent, both of which sums it deposits with the Teachers' Insurance association. The annuities begin, unless otherwise provided for, at the age of 65, retirement age, and will be paid in monthly installments, the amount to be determined by the amount and the number of contributions which the teachers have paid in. In case of death the annuities will be paid to the heirs; and in case of transfer to another college where a similar plan is in force, the contract may continue without interruption. If the transfer is made to a non-cooperating college, or if there is a withdrawal from teaching, the annuitant may continue his contributions, may leave the amount already paid to provide for a deferred annuity or may allow the annuity to begin at once.

Teachers at Connecticut college are allowed six months from the date of the adoption of the plan to accept the privisions. The college shall, after that date, be relieved of any further responsibility for providing pensions or retiring allowances for those who have not accepted it. At a meeting of the college faculty Monday night, enthusiasm was expressed for the plan.

STATE FARM WOMEN GET COURSE CERTIFICATES

Certificates issued by the National Red Cross for the completion of courses in home hygiene and care of the sick, were awarded, Tuesday night, to 14 young women at the State Farm for Women, located at Niantic.

This course was conducted by Mrs. Alice Totten of New London, who is on the institution staff.

A program, consisting of appropriate readings and music was rendered by the girls of the class. Dr. Rose Howe Jameson addressed the entire school on the broad meaning of Hygiene in Our Personal and Social Life. Then followed the presentation of certificates by the superintendent, Miss Elizabeth Munger.

As is the custom on these occasions, a prize is awarded by the institution board of health, to the girl who has maintained the highest standard in personal, mental and social hygiene during the quarter.

Two other home hgyiene courses have been organized at the institution in order to keep this work going on continuously. Mrs. Totten and Mrs. Carrie Merwin, both nurses, are in charge.

Struck By Automobile

Hit by an automobile at Burnham square late Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. Christina Messina, about 70, wife of Salvatore Messina of 233 Talman street, suffered numerous contusions and abrasions, but it is believed no bones were broken. She is a patient at the Backus hospital, to which she was taken in the ambulance.

The automobile that hit her was driven by John Kelly, an employe of Yantic Grain and Products Co. The driver of the car claimed he did not see the woman in the street.

Robbed Store in Mohegan Park

A small store located at Mohegan park lake was broken into either Monday evening or early Tuesday morning and a small quantity of gum and candy was removed. The break is believed to have been perpetrated by a small boy. The proprietor, Sterrill M. Chase, reported the matter to the police Wednesday.

TAFTVILLE

The many friends of Philip Muddeman, manager of the Taftville Pharmacy, who is a patient at the William W. Backus hospital, following an operation for appendicitis, are glad to learn that he is making a satisfactory recovery.

A meeting of the members of St. Veronica's society was held Wednesday evening at their rooms on Providence street with a large attendance.

GIVES $6,000 JUDGMENT FOR DEATH OF GIRL

Judge C. L. Avery handed down judgment in the superior court here Wednesday for Noyes Main of Stonington to recover $6,000 damages against George Emin of Fairhaven, Mass., and Clifton H. Whitaker of New Bedford, Mass. The case was tried here Tuesday.

As administrator of the estate of his 8-year-old daughter, Constance, Main sued for damages for her death on June 14, 1929, when she was struck by an automobile owned by Emin and driven by Whitaker. The accident happened when the child was crossing the road to go to her home after getting out of an automobile in which she had been brought home from school.

Judge Avery's memorandum of decision was as follows:

The evidence in this case disclosed that the service brake was in a defective condition, and that the driver, as he approached the child crossing the highway, failed to slacken the speed of his automobile or give any warning of his approach; in fact, the driver never saw the child until after he had run into her and even then did not know what he struck. In consequence the child was struck and killed.

The negligence on the part of the driver was the proximate cause of the accident and the death of the child. Considering her age and all the circumstances there was no contributory negligence upon her part; she was about 8 years old, in good health and bright.

Judgment may be entered in favor of the plaintiff to recover $6,000.

TIFFANY DIVORCE DENIED BECAUSE OF COLLUSION

George F. Tiffany of Waterford lost his divorce action against Nina Barrowe Tiffany of New London when Judge Christopher L. Avery of the superior court gave judgment Wednesday for the defendant on the grounds that collusion had been found in the case. The decision was filed with Clerk John H. Walker.

The couple was married Aug. 10, 1900, and Tiffany alleged desertion since Nov. 24, 1923. The case was tried here Tuesday. In his memorandum of decision, Judge Avery said:

It is uncontroverted that the parties in this case separated as a result of a mutual agreement and they remained separated pursuant to that agreement. There is no evidence of wilful desertion.

Judgment may be entered for the defendant, dismissing the complaint.

MERCHANTS BUREAU IS TO ELECT ITS OFFICERS

The merchants of Norwich, under the auspices of the Merchants bureau of the chamber of commerce will hold its annual election of officers at a dinner meeting to be held at the Wauregan hotel this (Thursday) evening. Following the dinner the election will take place to be followed by an address by John Richardson, secretary of the local chamber, on the subject of "Merchandising and Community Growth." During the course of the evening community singing will be enjoyed and it is expected by those in charge that this meeting will bring out a large number of merchants whereby the merchandising program for Norwich and its trade area will have the full cooperation of all the mercantile interests. The terms of office of the following members of the Merchants bureau expire with the coming election: President, Glenn Merithew; vice president, John P. Lyston; treasurer, James F. Fleming; directors, Herbert B. Cary, Arnold Smith, John Savard, Joseph Pysyk, Sam Ableman, Jacob Bloch and Frank Hempstead.

WEST END COMMUNITY SEWING CIRCLE MET

A meeting of the West End Community Sewing circle was held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George R. Gifford of 198 Mt. Pleasant street, at which a committee for a food sale was appointed as follows: Mrs. Gifford, Mrs. Krause, Mrs. E. Latimer and Mrs. A. E. Patridge. The minutes were read and approved at the business meeting, at which Mrs. Sourbier, the president, presided, and a committee consisting of Mrs. Corey, Mrs. A. Alquist, Mrs. A. Chapman, was named for the evening when Mrs. Albert Clayton is to open her home on Champlin place for a birthday party for some of the members. Candy was served during the evening by the hostess.

TRUCK DRIVER FINED FOR CARRYING OVERLOAD

William Goodman, 24 Elizabeth street, driver of a motor truck for the American Waste & Batting Co., on which there was a load of machinery, was fined $25 and costs in the city court here Wednesday morning on the charge of carrying an overload. Judge A. F. Libby ordered that $10 of the fine be remitted and a second count of failure to carry registration was nolled.

Goodman was arrested at Thames square Tuesday afternoon by State Policeman Murphy. It was charged that his truck rated for 17,000 pounds, was carrying a load of 20,000 pounds.

TELEPHONE COMPANY IS SHOWING GOOD GROWTH

There was an attendance of about 60 in New London Tuesday for the monthly meeting of the New London district conference boards of the Telephone Employes' association, coming from all the exchanges in the district.

Plant, traffic and commercial boards held separate meetings during the morning and, after luncheon, A. A. Goodyer, sales manager of the company from New Haven, addressed a joint meeting of the telephone people.

Mr. Goodyer spoke of the sales activities in the company at the present time. He referred to the fact that the company closed 1929 with a net increase in telephones of more than 20,000, bringing the total number in service in the state up to 320,000, and he complimented the employes of the company on their success as salesmen and saleswomen.

Some time ago the employes of the telephone company began what is known in the business as the everybody selling plan, with each employe urged to make telephone sales. The success of this effort, Mr. Goodyer pointed out, is reflected by the large net increase in telephones during the past year. He expressed the firm conviction that th current year will witness an equally large record of sales with about 6,000 workers about the state doing what they can to sell telephone service.

Meetings For Poultrymen

Under the auspices of the New London County Farm bureau, two poultry meetings were held Tuesday, one at Colchester in the afternoon and the other at the Farm bureau office in the Shannon building in the evening.

The speakers were Prof. R. E. Jones, poultry specialist at Connecticut Agricultural college, Storrs; Sydney Edwards of Hartford, chief of the bureau of markets in the department of agriculture, and Samuel Kostofiesky, agricultural agent of the Jewish Agricultural society of New York. County Club Agent Walter T. Clark showed motion pictures having to do with the brooding and raising of chicks.

LEFFINGWELL BAPTIST CHURCH HELD ANNUAL MEETING

The annual business meeting and roll call of the First Baptist church of Bozrah (Leffingwell), was held at the church Monday evening.

A clam chowder supper was enjoyed by the members, after which the meeting was called to order by the moderator, Rev. G. W. Borden, who offered prayer. As the roll was called, 21 answered "present" and there were 11 responses by letter and telegram. An interesting telegram was received from Rev. Francis Rose and Mrs. Rose, returned missionary from the Philippines, who are now in Chicago, where Mr. Rose is studying.

The business meeting continued with the reading of the minutes of the last meeting, and reports from the different organizations in the church. These included the B. Y. P. U., Sunday school, Woman's union, and Children's World crusade. The treasurer's report shows all bills paid, and a balance on hand to start the new year.

The report of the nominating committee was accepted and the following officers declared elected for the year: Clerk, Alice Leffingwell; treasurer, C. E. Ellis; trustees, John H. Rathbone, S. W. Leffingwell, A. H. Beebe; auditors, Mrs. N. E. Whiting, Alice Leffingwell. The nominating committee for next year was appointed as follows: S. Clinton Rogers, S. W. Leffingwell, John H. Rathbone, Miss Ruth J. Ellis and Miss Linda Mowrey. Delegates were appointed to the midyear meeting of the New London association, and as there was no other business the meeting was declared adjourned.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD RECEIVES NEW CARS

The advance guard of four of the New Haven railroad's hundred new de luxe individual-seat passenger cars have just been delivered and placed on a siding at New Haven for inspection by railroad officials. Additional deliveries are expected within a week, and announcement will be made within a few days of the trains on which they are to be operated. The new cars are the most luxurious day coaches ever to appear in this part of the country and as a matter of fact have no superior anywhere in the United States. With 80 individual seats, each with an extra deep cushion, passengers may sit in comfort not excelled in their own living rooms.

THIEF USED LADDER TO GET INTO BUILDING

About $1 in pennies was secured by a thief in a break at Jacobson's service station at No. 377 West Main street during the night Tuesday. The thief gained entrance to the building through a second story window in the rear of the structure with the assistance of a ladder. After breaking out the window the thief rifled the cash register.

Display of Boy Scouts' Work

In the window of the Bankers Trust bank building on Franklin square is a fine display of leatherwork and model bridge and raft making made by the Norwich Scouts at the recent winter camp at Winsted. While the Scouts were not engaged in this work at camp they played hockey and other winter games. This exhibit does not comprise all of the articles made.

Had to Shoot Police Dog

An obstinate police dog owned by William H. Covey of 43 Freeman avenue had to be killed Monday evening by Dog Warden Chester Bushnell, after it refused for nearly an hour to leave a five-car garage on Oak street in spite of the efforts of several people. It also would not allow the tenants to enter the building to get their machines. So Game Warden Bushnell was appealed to, and he also failed to persuade the dog to leave its post. The canine was then shot and killed.

Long Term of Perfect Attendance

Mrs. C. W. Perkins, entering her 23rd year as president of the Ladies' Aid society of the Versailles Methodist Episcopal church, up to a recent meeting, had not been absent from her official duties as president during the 22 years of service.

AFTERNOON OF CARDS HELD AT THE ARMORY

Fourteen tables were in play at a successful whist, pinochle and bridge party conducted Wednesday afternoon in the company rooms at the state armory on McKinley avenue by Patice Sulon of the 8 and 40. The prizes awarded to the highest scorer at each table went as follows:

Bridge—Mrs. Benjamin Lucas, Mrs. Levine, Mrs. Michael Hourigan, Mrs. M. J. Reardon, Mrs. H. F. Lyons, Mrs. Nola Fletcher, Mrs. Thomas P. Sears, Mrs. Richard Gregson. Pinochle—Mrs. Wunderlich, Mrs. Grace McNally, Mrs. Hoeick, Mrs. Robert Davidson of New London. Whist—Mrs. W. B. Wilcox, Mrs. Iola DeGrasse.

The following acted as hostesses: Mrs. W. B. Wilcox, Mrs. Ben Lucas, Mrs. August Hoeick, Mrs. Lyle Fillmore, Mrs. George Morrow, Mrs. A. J. Sinay, Mrs. Henry Davenport, Mrs. Herman Bruckner, Mrs. M. BULLET WOUNDS FATAL TO GARDNER IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 15—Atwood Gardner, 23, who was shot in the stomach by James Derrico of 88 1-2 Oak St., on Tuesday night, died at the Westerly hospital shortly after ten o'clock tonight. Little hope had been held for Gardner's recovery when he was brought to the hospital suffering from the bullet wound in the stomach. He made a complete statement before his death naming and identifying Derrico as the man who shot him.

Derrico, who was being held on a charge of assault with attempt to kill, will be presented in the third district court on Friday on a charge of murder.

N. Y. FUNERAL SERVICES FOR HARRY R. BOND, JR.

New York papers announced Wednesday that in addition to the funeral services to be held Friday at New London for Harry R. Bond, Jr., formerly of Norwich, services are to be held in New York today (Thursday) at the Madison avenue Presbyterian church.

Mr. Bond's sister, Ruth Huntington Bond, formerly of Norwich, who was the wife of Roebrt Thorne, of 863 Park avenue, New York, died Nov. 16th last.

CHIODAS UNDER ARREST ON LIQUOR VIOLATION CHARGE

A squad of state and local police again swooped down on the alleged speakeasy at No. 68 North Main street, about 8:30 Wednesday evening and arrested Mrs. Rose Chioda of this city and Alphonse Chioda, 21, of Worcester, charged with violation of the liquor laws. The police seized six cases of beer of the home-made variety and it is alleged that they have secured actual sales of liquor at the place.

The two alleged dispensers of contraband liquor were brought to police headquarters, where they were later released under bonds of $1,000 sureties being furnished. They are to be presented in the city court this (Thursday) morning.

The raiding squad comprised State Police Officers Hill, Wallis and Whitmarsh of the Groton barracks and Officer Patrick Sheehan and Sergeant Matthew Delaney of the local police.

A recent gift to Peck library, Slater hall, is William Tyler Olcott's Field Book of the Skies, a work by the Norwich astronomer which has commanded wide attention.

NORWICH COUPLE OBSERVE THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Former Police Officer Charles L. Perry and Mrs. Perry quietly celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday at their home at No. 202 Mt. Pleasant street with a reception in the evening. Throughout the day the couple received hearty congratulations from their many friends in addition to a wealth of gifts including gold pieces, beautiful baskets of flowers and fruit and other tokens of esteem.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry were united in marriage in this city on Jan. 15, 1880, by Rev. Hugh Montgomery and were attended by Mr. Perry's sister, Mrs. James Murray, and brother, Frank Perry, both living. They have two daughters, Mrs. Emmett Richmond of West Boylston, Mass., and Miss Nina E. Perry of this city.

Mr. Perry was born in Norwich, Dec. 1, 1857, the son of Joseph and Emmeline Williams Perry, and has been a resident here all of his life. He was for four and half years, a supernumerary police officer of the local department and on July 2, 1899, was appointed a member of the regular police force, serving as a "regular" for nearly 30 years. The greater part of his long service had been on the West Side night beat. He was retired from active duty on Jan. 4, 1928, after having been transferred to the veteran reserve. Mr. Perry is a member of the Royal Arcanum and of the Order of Odd Fellows. He has a brother, Frank A. Perry, and a sister, Mrs. James Murray, both of this city.

Mrs. Perry was born in Newburyport, Mass., May 15, 1867, and is the daughter of John and Maria Watters. She has been a resident of Norwich for 56 years. She has a sister, Mrs. Abby Holbrook of Providence.

PROHIBITION LAW FLAYED AND PRAISED IN THE HOUSE

Lively Controversy On the Tenth Anniversary Of the 18th Amendment—Motions For the Repeal Of the Amendment Were Made In Both Branches Of Congress—Senate Chamber Was Empty As Senator Sheppard, Co-Author Of the 18th Amendment, Hailed the "Triumphant Trend" Of Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The tenth anniversary of prohibition found the congressional controversy over President Hoover's plans for strengthening Volstead enforcement superseded temporarily today by arguments on the merits of the dry law itself.

Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, offered a resolution for repeal of the 18th amendment. Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, introduced a resolution to declare the amendment inoperative on technical grounds.

Two veteran drys of the memorable contest which brought a ban on the sale and transportation of liquor stood up in the senate and house to pronounce their cause a contributing factor to America's greatness.

Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, co-author of the 18th amendment, hailed the "triumphant trend" of prohibition before an empty senate chamber.

Rep. Cooper, republican, Ohio, contended before an enthusiastic house that a "solid phalanx" of members of the Christian churches would stand for perpetuation of prohibition.

As the congressional wet and dry orators were indulging in their polemics, Prohibition Commissioner Doran [illegible] the day to declare that the large scale liquor operators had been driven to cover and "the lines are tightening with certainty" on smaller violators.

There were other orators, too. Rep. Clancy, republican, Michigan, a wet, bitterly assailed the Anti-Saloon league for holding its present meeting in Detroit, his home city. He described the league as "the most bigoted and most fanatical organization in the world" and termed Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, "a typical league lobbyist who never won his leadership by an over-scrupulous conscience."

Rep. Oliver, democrat, New York, another wet, told the house "we turned a good sermon into a bad law" and it was time for America "to conquer her sense of humor."

"New January 1, 1920, America woke up in church," said Oliver, "took the pledge and resolved to be better than our fathers. We have tried by law to make a tenth-rate heaven out of America but have discovered that our paradise is populated not by angels, but by human beings."

The senate, still in the throes of the tariff struggle, did not evidence so much interest in prohibition. Senator Blaine caused hardly a stir as he offered his repealing amendment with a declaration that prohibition is a "failure." Senator Glass, democrat, Virginia, an ardent dry, inquired as to the purpose of his resolution and then congratulated the Wisconsin senator on a "splendid sense of humor."

Only a handful listened to Senator Sheppard as he extolled prohibition. He insisted that the "coming of federal prohibition has meant the saving of 1,000,000 lives in ten years."

"It is in the federal constitution and it is there to remain," the Texan said. "It is in the enforcement statutes of the nation, and it is there to stay. It is in the hearts and consciences and bank balances, the homes, the comforts, the living facilities, the moral, educational and economical advantages of the people and in all of these it is forever planted."

Taking the occasion to plead for his bill to have buyers of liquor equally guilty with bootleggers, Senator Sheppard described the liquor purchaser as "the most dangerous character in our national life."

Rep. Cooper took the floor in the house in answer to the recent speech of Rep. Schafer, republican, Wisconsin, a wet, in which he said "you must choose between prohibition and the Christian religion."

Cooper was applauded as he replied: "It seems incredible, even to those who have long marked the daring, and unscrupulousness of the liquor interests, that any man should stand on the floor of the house, and make a comparison between the divine Christ, the rum runner and the bootlegger."

PROHIBITION CONDEMNED BY GENERAL EDWARDS

BOSTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Dr. James M. Doran, federal commissioner of prohibition, and Major General Clarence R. Edwards, retired, known in New England as the "daddy of the 26th division," led the opposing factions today as Boston observed the tenth anniversary of prohibition.

The retired soldier attacked prohibition before a wildly cheering crowd of "wets" in historic Faneuil hall at a meeting sponsored by the Liberal Civic league. Dr. Doran upheld the wisdom of the 18th amendment at a luncheon of the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union. Both were assisted by arrays of speakers, all of whom were prominent in religious and civic life.

CALVIN COOLIDGE TO WRITE HISTORY OF UNITED STATES

KEYSTONE, S. D., Jan. 16—(AP)—Calvin Coolidge is to write a history of the United States with an assured popularity for 5,000 centuries.

It is to be as brief and terse as the former president's conversation.

And, although Mr. Coolidge is one of the highest paid writers per word, he will not receive a cent for the narrative.

The former president, according to the Mt. Rushmore National Memorial association, has accepted an invitation to write historical data to be engraved beside the colossal figures of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt upon the granite face of the Black Hills mountain. Mt. Rushmore is near Keystone.

The history will be Mr. Coolidge's contribution to the memorial which he dedicated during his summer vacation in the Black Hills in 1927.

The Coolidge words, 500, or fewer if the author chooses to further condense the life of the country from the Declaration of Independence to his time, will be five or more inches deep, and high enough to be read miles away.

Geologists estimate the rate of erosion on the granite escarpment of Mt. Rushmore is an inch in 100,000 years.

WITHDRAWALS OF GOLD FROM UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The movement of gold to the United States which totaled $250,000,000 in the first ten months of 1929 due to the attraction of a rising stock market was reversed after the decline, and $100,000,000 in gold was taken from the country in the last two months of the year.

The federal reserve board, in making this known today in its monthly bulletin, said liquidation of bank credit continued after the stock market collapse and as a consequence member bank indebtedness to the reserve banks declined. Despite this, however, in December they were $150,000,000 more in debt than at the beginning of November due to currency requirements for the Christmas holiday season.

TILSON DENIES ABUSE OF THE FRANKING PRIVILEGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — Floor Leader Tilson today stoutly denounced on the floor of the house the habit of crying "Wolf! Wolf!" when no danger is in sight. He referred to false attempts at spectacular publicity in depicting events also to accusations that the franking privilege is abused and a major cause of large deficits in the post office department. Tilson expressed belief that the press of the country did not wilfully misrepresent conditions. Yet many statements made were contrary to facts. He cited notable instances of spectacular films and reports.

SEVILLE, Spain, Jan. 16—(AP)—Six villagers are dead and most of the [illegible] other inhabitants of Almaden De La Plata have been made seriously ill from eating pork which was found to be infected with trichinosis.

Since some of the pork was sold in other villages it was feared that oth-

CONVICTED OF EMBEZZLING $2,084 FROM CHURCH FUNDS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 16—(AP)—Albert Nisbet, blind ex-magistrate and former treasurer of the Baptist tabernacle building fund, was convicted of embezzling $2,084 from the church funds by a jury in criminal court here today. He was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary.

The defendant, swathed in blankets and lying on a cot in the court room, showed no emotion when the verdict was read, nor did he even as much change his expression as the pastor and members of the church testified against him during the trial.

Counsel for the defense announced they will introduce a motion for a new trial. In case this is overruled, an appeal is planned.

The embezzlement of $2,084 is one of a series charged to Nisbet. He is alleged to have manipulated $52,048 of church funds in all, and to have involved relatives and friends to the extent of approximately $50,000.

TWO DEATHS FROM FREEZING IN NEVADA

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 16—(AP)—Arctic weather continued in the west tonight with little relief in sight from sub-zero temperatures that have brought acute suffering to the mountain regions and the southwest.

More snow was forecast for sections already covered with the heaviest blanket of white in several years.

Two deaths from freezing in Nevada were added today to the six deaths in Colorado and Montana indirectly attributed to the severe colds.

The bodies of Carl Miller, 35, and Miss Mabel Dennis, 28, were found 80 miles southwest of Pioche, Nev. where they succumbed after their automobile became marooned in deep snow drifts. They were to have been married in a few days.

At Cheyenne, Wyo., this afternoon the mercury stood at 15 below zero.

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF RADIO LAWS QUESTIONED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The constitutionality of the federal radio laws was questioned today in the supreme court.

The highest tribunal was asked to pass on the vested rights of radio broadcasting stations, and determine whether congress has authority to require those operating such stations to abandon all such rights as a condition to the grant of licenses by the Federal Radio commission.

The question reached the supreme court when the seventh circuit court of appeals today asked instructions as to how far congress may go in prescribing the conditions under which federal licenses will be granted.

SCULPTRESS TO EXECUTE BUST OF THOMAS A. EDISON

WINDSOR, Jan. 16—(AP)—Mrs. Evelyn Beatrice Longman Batchelder, sculptress, has been commissioned to execute a bust of Thomas A. Edison in marble, which will be presented to the Deutches museum, Munich, Germany, to be placed beside one of Werner Von Siemens, eminent German scientist.

Mrs. Batchelder will go to Fort Meyer, Fla., March 3, where Mr. Edison is engaged in experimental work to begin modeling.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

HONG KONG, Jan. 16—(AP)—Communist forces control the city of Hoihow, said a radio dispatch from Chinese at the Hainan island port. No ships are allowed to arrive or depart.

COLOGNE, Germany, Jan. 16—(AP)—Fourteen cases of psittacosis have been reported in this city. Dispatches from Duesseldorf say that a nurse in the hospital there died from the disease today.

LONDON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The Express today reports that 40 children were blinded at an eye clinic in Kessarion, near Athens, Greece, because attendants mistook a powerful cauterizing fluid for a medicinal syringe fluid.

GIBRALTAR, Jan. 16—(AP)—The Italian steamer Bn. Richetta, which was in collision with the Swedish steamer Adriatic last night in a dense fog 30 miles west of here, passed here at midnight without calling, bound for Naples.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Jan. 16—(AP)—After a long conversation with a delegation of New South Wales coal miners, Prime Minister James H. Scullin said a serious situation had developed in the New South Wales coal fields where the state government is operating some mines with volunteer workers. Miners there have been on strike for months.

C. E. HUGHES EXPLAINED WORKINGS OF WORLD COURT

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Asserting that American citizens have little knowledge pertaining to its organization, Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state and now a justice of the world court, tonight explained in detail the workings of the world court in an address before the City Bar association.

The talk was broadcast over the National Broadcasting company chain.

A member of the world court, Mr. Hughes stated that it was not his purpose to make a controversial address, but "rather to give you an account of the world court as a going concern," including the impressions he gained from his connection with the tribunal.

He did not comment upon the recent signature of the United States to the protocol of the world court, which yet must be ratified by the senate, saying that the terms will be the "subject of abundant discussion by others."

FOUR DEATHS CAUSED BY LACK OF OXYGEN IN ROOM

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Lack of oxygen in a room in which a gas heater was burning, was declared by physicians to have been the cause of the death of four persons in a residence here today. Two other persons in the room were overcome and may die.

Dr. A. Berger, calling to treat one of the women, discovered the six lying huddled on the floor. He had knocked at the door and receiving no answer, became suspicious and forced his way inside.

All windows and doors in the room in which those stricken were found were closed. A gas heater was burning.

Dr. Berger immediately called an ambulance. All except Mrs. Sorro and Gaspasin were dead on its arrival.

PUBLIC OPEN AIR MEETINGS PROHIBITED IN PRUSSIA

BERLIN, Jan. 16—(AP)—All public open air meetings and demonstrations were prohibited throughout Prussia by an order issued by the ministry of the interior today. The drastic step was aimed at curbing the riotous tendencies of communists and other radicals and was the direct outgrowth of rioting last night in which at least four persons were killed.

The only public assemblies permitted by the order are funerals, weddings and other church processions. The police are empowered to take drastic measures against all violators of the edict.

STAFFORD SPRINGS WOMAN HELD FOR SHOPLIFTING

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Jan. 16—(AP)—Francena Pugliara, 25, of 287 Tayton street, Grace Lazzarrus, 25, of 756 Worthington street, both of Springfield, Mass., Madeline Biardi, 19, of Cooper lane, Stafford Springs, and Domenico Giomini, 40, of 743 Worthington street, Springfield, are being held by the police in connection with an alleged shoplifting expedition to this city yesterday. They will be given a hearing in police court next Tuesday, bonds in each case being fixed at $500.

OFFICIAL DINNER AT THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 — (AP) — President and Mrs. Hoover tonight were hosts to Vice President Curtis and his official hostess, Mrs. Edward E. Gann, his sister.

Invited to the white house for the first of the official dinners given there, the cabinet dinner having been postponed because of the death of Secretary James W. Good, were a group of citizens from widely scattered parts of the United States.

GOV. TRUMBULL WENT ALOFT IN DIRIGIBLE

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 16—(AP)—John H. Trumbull, Connecticut's flying governor, had a new flying experience today.

He went aloft in the baby dirigible Vigilante and piloted the airship for an hour and a half over the Florida keys, watching coast guard units at target practice below him.

Later, he swung the ship over the Gulf of Mexico.

SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT OF BRITISH DIRIGIBLE

CARDINGTON, England, Jan. 16—(AP)—The British dirigible R-100 went through a successful test flight today which lasted more than 12 hours. It left its hangar shortly after 10:30 a. m. and was not again attached to the mooring mast until 10:40 p. m. It was said that the big new dirigible performed well.

FIRE DESTROYED COLLEGE; THREATENED ORPHANAGE

QUEBEC, Que., Jan. 16—(AP)— Fire today destroyed the college of St. Ludger at Riviere Du Loup and threatened the St. Vincent De Paul orphanage at Cote d'Abraham, according to meagre advices received here.

POLICEMAN FATALLY SHOT IN FORESTVILLE BY MAN IN AN AUTO

BRISTOL, Jan. 16—(AP)—Patrolman James McNamee, of the Bristol police department was fatally wounded tonight in Forestville, a suburb, by one of four men believed to be automobile thieves.

A machine answering the description of one reported stolen earlier in the evening in New Britain, stopped at a gasoline station on McNamee's beat. While questioning the driver, a man seated in the rear fired a single shot which penetrated the patrolman's back near his heart.

He collapsed on the pavement, and was rushed to a hospital here where he died about an hour later.

The machine, a sedan, it was reported here, took a northern route out of Forestville. Police all over the state were immediately apprised of the shooting and asked to be on the watch for the four men.

They are believed to be the same men who held up and robbed a gasoline station in Cheshire, escaping with $75. These men were armed with revolvers. Two covered the owner and his assistant while two others rifled the safe.

A report was received from the Hamden police that a touring car had been stolen there about 10 o'clock. The police there said, however, that it was an old model, and they doubted if the four men involved in the Forestville shooting were responsible.

McNamee, it was said, received the report that Dr. W. H. Morrissey's sedan had been stolen in New Britain soon after 8 o'clock. Patrolling his beat, he saw what he believed to be the car at a gasoline station at Washington and Stafford streets.

Crossing the street, he engaged the driver in conversation when a man in the rear fired the one shot into his back. Then the car and the four men put on speed and escaped.

An operation was performed at a Bristol hospital, but failed to save McNamee's life. He was 35 years old, and had been on the Bristol force for 12 years after his return from World war service overseas. He was unmarried, and as far as could be learned tonight, he is survived only by a sister in New York.

Woman Confessed Killing Blackhander

Body Of Victim Was Found On Sidewalk In Front Of Bakery In Brooklyn.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—An alleged blackhand plot which was thwarted by a cool young housewife of 22 was brought to light with the finding in Brooklyn today of a dead man on the sidewalk in front of a bakery.

The body was identified as that of Andrew Ingugia, 32, who police said was a former member of the old Frankie Yale gang.

The police noticed that a window pane in the apartment above the bakery had been shattered, and they questioned the occupants.

Frienze Prancicclo, who made his home there with his step-son, Joseph Ambrosio, the baker, and the latter's 22-year-old wife, Agnes, said he did the shooting.

But when he tried to reconstruct the details Mrs. Ambrosio interrupted.

"I did it," she said. Then she told of the $30,000 that Prancicclo had saved up and of the attempts of blackhanders to get it from him. There were several threatening letters, she said, and last night there was one which threatened death to the entire family unless $5,000 were handed over.

Mrs. Ambrosio told the police that, armed with a pistol owned by her father-in-law, she and Prancicclo waited in the darkened apartment for the assault, while her husband worked unaware in the bakery downstairs.

About 2 a. m., she continued, they heard a noise and saw two men trying to force the door.

She raised the pistol and fired twice, one man fell and the other fled. Then she and Prancicclo went to bed.

Ambrosio said he did not hear the shots.

Mrs. Ambrosio was held for further questioning. Prancicclo was held on a charge of violating the anti-firearms law.

FLEEING ROBBER KILLED ONE OF HIS PURSUERS

BELLEVILLE, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—A young robber fleeing with $34 in one hand and a pistol in the other, turned on a group of pursuers today, killing one and critically wounding another. At bay in a backlot after holding up a chain grocery store, a youth identified by police as William Gimble, 20, long haired and sideburned, slew Edward W. Maurer, 21 and shot Paul Bohrer, 40, through the stomach. Bohrer was taken to St. Michael's hospital, Newark, where his condition was described as "very serious" after a blood transfusion operation.

Gimble was captured in a taxicab, into which he dashed, panting and disheveled, more than a mile from the scene of the killing. Motorcycle Patrolman Leighton, driving to headquarters, took Gimble by surprise and stunned him before he could use his weapon.

COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS ENDS SESSION

GENEVA, Jan. 16—(AP)—The council of the league of nations closed its fifty eighth session today, with the principal delegates in a hurry to get away for the five power naval conference in London, which opens next Tuesday.

League officials consider this session one of the least controversial and most harmonious ever held in the decade of the league's existence.

The incident creating the greatest interest was the private conference between Foreign Minister Briand, of France, and Foreign Minister Grandi, of Italy. Though the results of this talk were kept strictly secret, it is believed that no great progress was made toward settling the Franco-Italian disagreement about naval parity.

STUDENTS DISPERSED IN SEOUL, CAPITAL OF KOREA

TOKYO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Red flags and banners of the old Korean kingdom which was annexed by Japan in 1910 appeared today in the streets of Seoul, Korea's capital. They were carried in a parade of striking students.

The police, said Japanese press dispatches, broke up the demonstration and arrested the leaders.

Five American mission schools were concerned in the spreading student troubles which are estimated to have involved more than 10,000 students in Korea.

INCREASE IN LOANS TO BROKERS AND DEALERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending Jan. 15 were announced by the Federal Reserve board today as $3,365,000,000, representing an increase of $13,000,000 as compared with the preceding week.

Against Increasing The Tariffs On Sugar

Vote In the Senate Was 48 To 38—Action Followed a Week Of Debate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—The senate, by a vote of 48 to 38, today refused to grant higher tariffs on sugar as proposed by the finance committee republicans and approved a democratic proposal to retain existing rates.

The vote was reached after a week of debate on an item regarded as the most important in the tariff bill. It placed the senate on record by a surprisingly comfortable margin in favor of an amendment by Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, to maintain the present duty of 1.76 cents a pound on Cuban raw sugar and 2.20 cents against other countries.

The finance committee majority had recommended a rate of 2.20 cents on Cuban sugar and 2.75 cents on sugar from other nations, while the house bill provides rates of 2.40 and 3 cents, respectively.

The differences between the house rates and those in existing law will have to be ironed out in conference. Whether the house will consent to the senate's action is highly doubtful. Sizeable blocs on each side of that chamber favor a higher sugar duty.

On today's vote 18 republicans, half of them regarded as regulars, joined 29 democrats and the one farmer-labor senator, Shipstead, of Minnesota, in supporting the Harrison amendment.

Four democrats broke away from their party to join 34 republicans against it.

The surprise came in the large number of republican regulars from the east voting for existing levies. All factions were known to have been split and did split on the final roll call, but the Harrison democrats, who were counting on the eastern republicans to win for them, did not expect so many from these ranks to support them.

Also, the republican regulars favoring an increase, had predicted a greater number of democrats to vote with them. Democrats who did support them, were Senators Broussard and Ransdell, Louisiana; Kendrick, Wyoming, and King, Utah.

The republican independents, who have combined with the democrats in opposing increases in all but agricultural tariffs, broke on the issue. Senators Borah, Idaho; Norris, Nebraska, and LaFollette, Wisconsin, looked upon as leaders, voted for present rates and Senators Nye and Frazier, North Dakota, and Howell, Nebraska, opposed them.

APOPLEXY STROKE FATAL TO W. M. BENNETT

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—William M. Bennett, several times candidate for mayor of New York city, died today in Broad Street hospital, where he was taken yesterday after suffering a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Bennett was born in Nashville, Tenn., 60 years ago. He spent most of his life in New York city.

In the 1917 campaign he was nominated by the republican party as a candidate for mayor. Hylan, who was elected, was nominated by the democrats and Mitchell became the fusion candidate.

In several succeeding mayoralty contests Mr. Bennett was an unsuccessful independent candidate.

PRUSSIA PLACES EMBARGO ON IMPORTATION OF PARROTS

BERLIN, Jan. 16—(AP)—The official Gazette today prohibited the importation of parrots into Prussia to guard against spread of the cases of psittacosis, or parrot's disease, discovered in many parts of Germany. The embargo is effective immediately and until further notice.

At a meeting of the Berlin Medical society today, Prof. Fritz Meyer, who recently treated several of the cases, said that his bacteriological examinations had hitherto been negative. He had found streptococci only in the three worst cases, and then only as complications.

He said that one of the dangers of the disease was that parrots to all appearances healthy might be infectious. No specific treatment is known in Germany.

REPARATIONS CONFERENCE NEARING ADJOURNMENT

THE HAGUE, Jan. 16—(AP)— The second Hague conference on reparations, having despaired of settling the southeastern European questions at this time, is delaying its adjournment only for an agreement between the French and Germans as to whether the German government shall bind itself not to make any foreign loans before the first slice of reparation bonds are floated.

FORMER STATE BANK COM'R STURGES STANDS INDICTED

One Of Seven Men Charged With Using the Mails To Defraud—Outcome Of Grand Jury's Inquiry Into the Affairs Of the Bankers Capital Corporation—Seven Defendants Face a Six Count Indictment—No Arrests Have Been Made.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Out of the federal grand jury's inquiry into the jig-saw puzzle affairs of the Bankers Capital corporation and its affiliated companies, came a six count indictment today charging seven defendants with using the mails to defraud and conspiracy.

The company was petitioned into bankruptcy last November 4, with resulting loss to investors estimated at from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. An equity petition for a receivership had been filed in advance.

Those named in the indictment returned today are Howard H. Gunder, chairman of the board of directors of Bankers Capital corporation; Roland J. Randall, president of the concern; Everett J. Sturges, president of the Bankers Capital company, of Connecticut, and former banking commissioner of that state; Philip Gunder, brother of Howard and one of the directors of the Bankers Capital corporation, the company itself and the Eastern Bankers corporation and the American Fiduciary corporation.

Five of the six counts in the indictment charge the mailing of [illegible] containing false representations in an effort to dispose of securities of the defendant companies and various allied concerns.

The investigation was prompted by charges made by the Superior Grain corporation of Worcester, Mass., in its petition to place the parent company into bankruptcy.

The indictment charged that the defendants made sales and trades of stock among the allied concerns to create "fictitious profits and a fictitious market" and that they issued literature purporting to show the companies were earning large sums.

The indictment also accused the defendant corporations of paying dividends that had not been earned, and alleged that the individual defendants falsely represented that the parent company had earned more than [illegible]000 in six months.

None of the individuals has been arrested although all of them appeared before the grand jury during the investigation.

TO DENY ACCUSATIONS OF ALLEGED MURDERESS

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—In one of the five statements read in court today and alleged to have been made by Gladys May Parks, charged with the murder of two children, the woman brought in the name of Joseph A. Corio of Atlantic City, as the slayer of Timothy Rogers, the younger of the two children. It is understood here that Corio is ready to take the stand not only to deny the woman's alleged statement but also to prove a complete alibi.

The office of Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin announced late this afternoon that a subpoena had been issued for Judge Joseph A. Corio of the Atlantic county court, to appear in court tomorrow as a witness in the trial. Judge Corio, according to the prosecutor's office, will go upon the stand and provide so complete a defense to the woman's charge that it will fall of its own weight.

In the statement, Miss Parks also is alleged to have said that Earl Farr of Philadelphia, her sister's husband, had driven her to Absecon, N. J., in his automobile with the body of Timothy and waited while she disposed of it. Farr also is understood to be ready to deny the woman's alleged statements.

TO WELCOME U. S. DELEGATES TO THE NAVAL CONFERENCE

PLYMOUTH, England, Jan. 16—(AP)—This old town, rich in Anglo-American associations and in traditions of British seapower, is ready to accord a warm welcome to Secretary Stimson and the American delegation to the London naval conference. The welcome will start as soon as the liner George Washington can nose her way into the protected reaches of Plymouth harbor.

The George Washington is due at 7 a. m., and the tender with the Americans aboard is expected to reach the dock at 8:15 a. m. Forty-five minutes later a special train will pull out from Plymouth. It is scheduled to reach Paddington station, London, at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

A naval salute from the Plymouth battery will be fired for Secretaries Stimson and Adams. A guard of honor composed of royal marines from the Plymouth naval station will be stationed on the dock when the Americans step ashore.

SHEATH OF ICE PROTECTS VALLEYS FROM FLOODS

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—A sheath of ice formed on winter's coldest anvil protected the flooded valleys of the central states tonight as rivers and streams, still gorged with ice and melted snows, began to slip back into their wonted channels.

Only along the lower reaches of the rivers of Arkansas and Mississippi and down the storied Wabash were the waters still rising, breaking their bonds in the two southern states to overflow several thousand acres of farm lands in Quitman county, Miss., and Green county, Arkansas.

The magic sceptre of winter touched the thousands of lakes and pools left by the receding floods from Ohio to Missouri and transformed them into mirrors of ice where a week ago stood fields of corn.

WOMAN DRIVEN TO DIVORCE BY WAILING SAXOPHONES

DETROIT, Jan. 16—(AP)—Four wailing saxophones in the hands and mouths of persons "afflicted with notions that some day they might be musicians" drove Mrs. Augusta Rebitske, 60, from home, she testified in her divorce suit here today.

Judge Guy A. Miller granted her a decree after hearing her story of the musical aspirations of her two step-sons, a step-daughter and a step-grand daughter, among other acts of cruelty on the part of the husband, John Rebitske, was his failure to stop the wails of the four instruments, Mrs. Reitske said.

OBITUARY

CHARLES ALBERT PERKINS

SUFFERN, N. Y., Jan. 16—(AP)—Charles Albert Perkins, 69, former district attorney of New York county, died at his home here today.

Mr. Perkins was assistant district attorney, in charge of the bureaus of indictment and extradition under Charles S. Whitman, when Whitman became governor of New York. In 1915 he appointed Perkins district attorney. In the election in November, 1915, he was defeated by Judge Edward Swann, democratic candidate.

Mr. Perkins retired to private practice in partnership with Arthur Train, the lawyer-novelist, and later as a member of the firm of Perkins, Malone and Washburn.

CHARGED WITH MISCONDUCT MAN COMMITTED SUICIDE

SOUTH WINDSOR, Jan. 16—(AP)—A few hours before he was to have been presented in South Windsor town court on a charge of misconduct with his housekeeper, Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Hair, Howard Burhans, of Wapping, committed suicide this afternoon by hanging. His body was discovered early this evening by a neighbor, Clarence Johnson. Medical Examiner [illegible] J. Onderdonk, of East Hartford viewed the body and pronounced death due to suicide by hanging.

Mr. Burhans and Mrs. Hair, the wife of Harold Hair, of Wapping, were arrested at the Burhans farm Wednesday night by Deputy Sheriff C. Vinton Benjamin, of South Windsor. Warrants were sworn out by Prosecutor Richard T. Steele, on the complaint of the woman's husband. This morning both were released on $1,500 bond each to apear this evening. Burhans hanged himself at about 4 p. m.

In court tonight the charge against Burhans was nolled. Mrs. Hair pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four months in jail with execution suspended.

TO THOROUGHLY INVESTIGATE COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATION

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 16—(AP)—The attorney general of Mexico announced tonight that a thorough investigation would be made into communist demonstrations in front of the Mexican embassies in Washington and Buenos Aires. He said that if it was found that the incidents were organized from Mexico, all those implicated would be deported.

The announcement was the result of a statement by Mexican communists published in newspapers here in which they said that they responsible for the demonstrations. The statement was issued as a denial of reports that the Russian government had organized the affairs. It came from the Mexican chapter of the International Red Aid society and claimed that the society had instigated the Washington and Buenos Aires demonstrations on its own initiative.

STRIKE CLERK SHOT AND DETECTIVE INJURED

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—A striking vegetable market clerk was shot and a detective was injured in a street battle tonight in the Bronx.

Police said half a dozen striking clerks, standing in front of a vegetable market attacked Patrolman Harry Kiritz, who had ordered them to move on. Detective Donald Carey, [illegible] passed the scene in an automobile, came to the patrolman's rescue.

Carey was struck in the face with Kiritz's night stick, which a striker had wrestled from the patrolman. Kiritz shot one of the clerks, A. [illegible] Cotovan, who was alleged to have attempted to run away.

Cotovan, with a bullet wound in the back, was taken to Lincoln hospital under arrest on a charge of felonious assault. Carey was treated by an ambulance surgeon.

APPEAL TO STOP THE SERVING OF LIQUOR

NORWALK, Jan. 16—(AP)—An appeal to local fraternal organizations to stop serving liquor at their clubhouses was made tonight at a special meeting in observance of the tenth anniversary of prohibition by Rev. Lloyd Worly, pastor of the Methodist church.

He asked further that those members who do not drink use their influence in ending the sale of liquor.

These organizations, he said, are doing a fine work in aiding the poor, but they are "making others poor by receiving this money through the sale of illegal beverages."

Rev. Mr. Worly is a member of the Norwalk Ministerial association which recently offered its services in drying up the city.

FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT IN MOOSUP

MOOSUP, Jan. 16—(AP)—Dr. [illegible] B. Smith, of Washington, R. I., was fatally injured when the machine he was driving left the road and crashed into a tree, here tonight.

WILLIMANTIC

Office 824 Main Street Telephone 1131-8

DR. KEATING NAMED AS SURGEON AT SOLDIERS' HOME

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 16—Dr. William P. S. Keating of this city has been appointed surgeon for Fitch's Soldiers' home at Noroton Heights, according to word received here this afternoon. His appointment was made at a meeting of the veteran's home commission held at Noroton today. The resignation of Major Heman Tyler of New London, to accept a position in Los Angeles, Calif., was accepted to take effect March 1. Dr. Keating has been and is a holder of various town and city offices. He was born in South Manchester, March 31, 1874, a son of the late William M. and Mary J. Stuart Keating. He entered Jefferson Medical college at Philadelphia, graduating in 1899 with an M. D. degree. He served as interne at St. Agnes' hospital in Philadelphia for one year and then returned to South Manchester where he practiced for two years, coming here in 1903 to follow his profession as physician and surgeon.

Dr. Keating has been city health officer since 1905, having been first appointed by the late Mayor Daniel P. Dunn. He has been a member of the town school physician. He was highly town school committee since 1908 and instrumental in the organization of James J. Shea post, No. 13, American Legion and was recently elected its commander for the tenth consecutive year. Dr. Keating is possessor of an honorable military career. He served as an officer in the Medical corps of the old First Connecticut Regiment, C. N. G., from 1913 up to the time it merged into the 102nd Infantry, Twenty-Sixth Division in August, 1917. With the First Regiment he served on the Mexican border in 1916. He was mustered out of the service on October 26, 1916, but was recalled to arms at New Haven as first lieutenant in the Medical corps of the 102nd Infantry.

He has an extensive record of service in France. He was in the battles of the Aisne-Marne and Chateau Thierry and was badly gassed, being forced to spend the remainder of the time overseas at Bordeaux, France, as a sanitary inspector. This disability incurred in the war has caused him considerable suffering but his kindly, genial disposition and willingness to be of help, especially to the former dough-boy, have never failed him.

As a designated medical examiner for the U. S. Veterans' bureau, Dr. Keating has rendered valuable service. He was appointed major of Medical Reserve corps in September, 1923. He is post surgeon for Gold Star post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Fraternally he is a member of Willimantic lodge of Elks; Willimantic lodge Loyal Order of Moose; San Jose Council No. 14, Knights of Columbus. He is also connected with the New England Jefferson Medical College Alumni association, the City Medical society, Windham County Medical society, the Connecticut Medical society and a veteran companion of the Connecticut Commandery Military Order of Foreign Wars. Dr. Keating was married in this city, October [illegible], 1914 to Elsie W. Green of Beacon, N. Y. They have one son, Stuart William Keating. The family will continue to reside here until their son graduates from the Natchaug grammar school.

Dr. Keating's many friends here feel assured that Dr. Keating's services to the veterans at Noroton will be of the highest type and they wish him happiness and success in his new position.

The list of hostess organizations who will receive the public during the inspection of Willimantic's Model home, beginning next Saturday afternoon, was made known today at the offices of the chamber of commerce. The organizations and their assignments are: Saturday, Jan. 18, Violet Rebekah lodge No. 57, I. O. O. F.; Sunday, Catholic Women's Council; Monday, Ladies' Auxiliary Sons of Israel; Tuesday, Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 28; Wednesday, Willimantic Woman's club; Thursday, Eastern Star lodge No. 44, A. F. & A. M.; Friday, Council Ste. Cecile, No. 113; L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique; Saturday, Catholic Daughters of America; Sunday, Windham Girls' club.

President Marjorie Duggan of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps No. 28 has announced the appointment of the committee-chairmen and their selection of assistants as follows: Ways and means; Mary Rush, chairman, Ida Williams, Harriet Barstow; dining room, Minnie Mathieu, chairman, Florence Williams, Amy Anderson, Florence Lewis, Minnie Blackmar; relief, Lucy Champlin, chairman, Lily Fletcher, Mabel Dimock; executive board, Harriet Ladd, chairman, Ethel Larned, [illegible] Keith, Mabel Dimock, Alice Eastbrooks; auditors, Fannie Lamb, chairman, Adelaide Cole, Lucy Blackmar; conference, Hattie Bowen, chairman, Lucy Champlin, Harriet Ladd; Americanization, Amy B. Anderson, chairman, Elinor Ford, Helen Johnstone; child welfare, Fannie Lamb, chairman, Catherine Higgins, Marietta Johnston; flowers, Ida Williams, chairman, Adelaide Cole; cupboard, Etta Larnder, Lily Fletcher; entertainment, Elinor Sherman, chairman, Catherine Higgins, Theresa Manley, Ruth [illegible], Bertha Rivers, Sabra Stoughton, Lily Fletcher, Lucy Blackmar.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Rose D. Grimes

Mrs. Rose Demers Grimes, wife of Joseph J. Grimes of 269 Valley street, died in St. Joseph's hospital late Wednesday night. She had undergone a serious operation a few days ago. The deceased was born in this city, May [illegible], 1904, a daughter of Leonidas and Malvina Desormeau Demers. Besides her husband, who is a member of the Willimantic Fire department, she leaves her parents of 26 Temple street; and one sister, Mrs. Henry Heinold of Stafford Springs. The deceased, who commanded a wide circle of friends, was a member of the auxiliary to James J. Shea post, No. 13, American Legion. Hers was the first loss by death suffered by the auxiliary.

Dr. Lorenzo Gaucher

Dr. Lorenzo Gaucher, 33, died at his home, 196 Newberry street, Hartford, this afternoon after a month's illness with a heart ailment. He was born in Baltic, September 2, 1896, a son of Henry A. and the late Regina Frageau Gaucher. Receiving his elementary education in the Baltic schools, he studied at Assumption college, Worcester, Mass., subsequently entering Valparaiso university and Chicago university medical from which he received his degree as M. D. He practiced in Greenwich for a time, opening an office in Hartford some years ago. Although at the threshold of his career, Dr. Gaucher had already met with a gratifying degree of success and his untimely loss is most regretful. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Joseph L., of Hartford, his father, Henry A., one brother, Attorney Harry Gaucher and three sisters, the Misses Lillian, Camelia and Imelda Gaucher, all of this city.

Mrs. Adelaide O. Scoville

Mrs. Adelaide O. Scoville, widow of Lamberst E. Scoville, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alice D. Stoughton of 459 Pleasant street, shortly after 5 o'clock this morning. Besides her daughter she leaves one son, Lynwood A. Scoville of Columbia and a granddaughter, Miss Sabra A. Stoughton of this city. She was a member of the First Congregational church.

On the theory that Willimantic's growth and success reacts favorably on the entire town of Windham of which the city is a part, an appeal to the residents of the town to take membership and responsibility in the chamber of commerce, has been issued by Executive Secretary John J. O'Rourke. The appeal points out that this favorable reaction is conversely the same in the business interests of the town as related to those in the city.

Fire of unknown origin was discovered shortly before 4 o'clock this afternoon in a blind attic at the residence owned and occupied by Mrs. Daniel A. French at 179 Pleasant street. Damage, caused by water, chemicals and smoke was estimated at $50. The fire was confined to several carton packing cases in which quantities of household ware and dishes were packed in the attic. A bell alarm from Box 42, corner of Pleasant and South streets, was sounded at 3:46 and the regular day platoon and call men responded with the pumper and aerial trucks. Under the direction of Deputy Chief Michael J. English water from the booster tank and chemicals were used in extinguishing the blaze.

Women interested in the success of the Y. M. C. A. are to take part in the raising of a fund for refurnishing the building. The ways and means committee for this drive consists of Mrs. H. C. Murray, chairlady; Mrs. Fred L. Avery, Mrs. E. Frank Bugbee, Mrs. C. C. Case, Mrs. George E. Hinman, Mrs. Roland E. Jordan and Mrs. H. G. Kenney. The same furnishings that were installed after the erection of the building 18 years ago continue in use, but the condition of this furniture is such that an immediate change for new equipment is now necessary. Stanley J. Sumner is chairman of the refurnishing committee of the association.

Under direction of Miss Minnie McCracken, the evening school class in cooking held a dinner at the high school building Wednesday evening, offering a most excellent menu. Taking part in the preparation and serving of the dinner were: Josephine Truska, Stella Truska, Jennie Tabor, Jennie Kosiba, Eva Marceau, Lecia Lynch, Mary Sadeski, Helen Gates, Delphine Foti, Edythe Fittabile, Nellie Foley, Vivian Swol, Yvonne Martineau, Laura Martineau, Grace Valliere, Helen Kansek, Steffa Kosiba, Ethel Nycek, Annie Urbanek and Germaine Martineau. Miss Theresa Foti was guest.

The assessors are now engaged in making out notification forms for increases made in the revaluation of town property, a work recently completed. These notices are to be mailed for consideration by property owners before the calling of the meetings of the board of relief. The assessors feel that the revaluation will prove generally beneficial. It revealed that a small part of the real estate in the town of Windham was listed at more than its fair market value, much of it was listed at about 60 per cent while still other property was listed at less than half its fair market value. Property that was listed fairly will of necessity be taxed a little more than last year owing to an increase in the town expenses.

A new schedule in the motor coach line between Putnam and this city, operated by the New England Transportation company is to go into effect January 22, to meet a request of residents who patronize the line. Under the new schedule there will be a bus leaving here at 11:45 a. m., arriving at Putnam at 1:06 p. m. and a bus leaving Putnam at 5:30 p. m., arriving here at 6:50 p. m.

The recently elected officers of Obwebetuck lodge, No. 16, I. O. O. F., were installed at a meeting held tonight, by District Deputy G. M. Irving M. Thornton and staff of Reliance lodge, No. 29, Jewett City. A supper and entertainment followed.

Stafford Springs

LIBRARY CIRCULATION FOR PAST YEAR WAS 44,153

The annual reports of the officers of the Stafford Library association show the library to be a growing institution which is supplying the public of Stafford Springs and vicinity with high grade reading matter and without cost. The library is endowed and has several funds, the income from which is sufficient to pay for the books and magazines provided. This income, however, cannot be used for maintenance and the time is drawing near when steps must be secured to provide a maintenance fund for the institution. During 1929, 8508 children and 4214 adults visited the reading room. The circulation of books was: Fiction, 23,235; non-fiction, 3625; juvenile fiction, 10,704; non-fiction, 3,615; total number of borrowers, 2,190; total circulation, 44,153. A total of 1893 books was sent to the branch library and 1089 to the school library. The library was open 233 days. The largest daily circulation was 307, the smallest 57 and the daily average 191. There were added during the year, fiction, 243 volumes; non-fiction, 11; juvenile, 361; school library, 100; gifts, 7; total 721. Volumes in the library January 1st, 1930, 9417, divided as follows: Fiction, 3303; non-fiction, 3088; juvenile fiction, 788; non-fiction, 1048; reference, 932; school library, 875. The reading room contains 47 magazines and newspapers including 8 children's magazines. During the year, 100 new books have been added to the school library and these are supplemented by 2680 mounted pictures used in school work; 1089 books and [illegible] pictures were circulated in the town schools during the year. The reference library room is now used to a large extent by the schools. New lights have been installed in the reading room during the year, extra lights in the children's room, new pull changes on the book stack lights and electric heater and a heating economizer on the boiler, all donated by friends of the institution. The trust funds of the library are now as follows: Dennis fund, $15,054.84; Celia Holt fund, $11,500; Johanna B. Holt fund, $8[illegible]; Harriet S. Crane fund, $816.24; Diadema Smith fund, $5[illegible].51; Kate Grant Bliss fund, $822.63; Joseph P. Davis fund, $251.56; reading room fund, $31.55; Smith W. Page fund, $5,577.28; Charles Warren fund, $9 798.26; Cyril Johnson fund, $5,280.59; Ella M. Baker fund, $1496.49; G. A. R. fund, $1,432.24; Hyde fund consisting of 132 shares of Boston & Albany railroad stock in the hands of the trustees. During the year, gifts of books and magazines were received from Mrs. C. B. Pinney, Mrs. C. L. Dennis, Mrs. C. B. Pachummi, Miss Celia Holt, Miss Catherine Smith, Robert Pinney, W. C. T. U. and Knights of Columbus. The principal items of expense during the year were: Library and assistants, $1666.50; heat, $309.44; light, $119.04; water, $20.87; janitor, $175; insurance, $78.34; rebinding and repairing books, $159; replacing books, $67.50; plumbing and heating repairs, $33.95; electrician, $60.75; printing, $16; magazines and newspapers, $107.

Mr. and Mrs. John Introvigne will leave Saturday for a few days' vacation in New York.

J. H. Valentine and daughter, Miss Elinor Valentine, are spending the remainder of the winter in Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Brown, master and lecturer, and Miss Julienne Carlier, secretary of Stafford grange, attended the State grange meeting in Hartford, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

STEPHEN FEDUS WOUNDS LEFT HAND ACCIDENTALLY

Stephen Fedus was painfully injured early Wednesday evening at his home on South Main street when a .38-calibre revolver which he was cleaning accidentally went off, sending a steel-pointed bullet through his left hand, just below the fore-finger. He was taken to the office of Dr. Edward J. Howland, who administered first aid, but the patient had lost a large amount of blood from the wound before reaching the doctor's office. Thursday morning he was taken to a New London hospital for treatment and at a late hour Thursday afternoon was reported in a weakened condition from loss of blood. Mr. Fedus is a presser by trade and makes his home with his mother, Mrs. Michael Fedus, on the former Seth Carver farm. Friends here hope for his quick recovery.

Mrs. Frank H. Browning is visiting for several days with friends and relatives in Norwich.

Abraham Goldstein has returned from a business trip to New York.

Rev. and Mrs. H. Herbert Tompkins attended the conference of the Inter-Seminary Commission on Rural Work, held Wednesday at Hosmer Hall at the Hartford seminary, under direction of Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter and Dr. Malcolm Dana. The principal speaker on the interesting program was A. J. Brundage, state 4-H club leader.

Charles Daniels of North Stonington visited friends and relatives here, Thursday.

I. Cohen, proprietor of the Cohen Bros. dress factory, left town Thursday evening on a business trip to New York.

With the 200-inch telescope now under construction, astronomers expect to peer into spaces of the universe three times as far as those heretofore penetrated.

ANDOVER

The Girls' league met at the home of the Hamilton girls and tendered a shower last Saturday evening to Miss Dorothy Cook in honor of her approaching marriage with Herbert Thompson, Jr., who is employed in Chancellor, Va. Miss Cook received many beautiful gifts. Ice cream and cake were served by the hostess.

The Girls' league plans to serve a supper in the town hall.

George Green, who has been on a trip to Miami, Fla., has just returned, making the trip all the way by motor bus. He is now at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Green. He reports a very pleasant time while away.

Mrs. C. E. White and daughter, Carolyn White, spent the week end in Hartford.

Mr. and Mrs. Royal C. Webster and two children of Southbridge, Mass., were at the home of Mr. Webster's mother, Mrs. Mary L. Webster, Monday.

The Men's club held a meeting in the town hall Monday evening.

The percentage of fatal accidents is higher in the United States than in any other country.

DANIELSON

B. AND L. DRIVE TO BE HELD DURING WEEK OF JAN. 24

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16.—An intensive drive to dispose of 5,000 shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association will be conducted here during the week of Jan. 24-31. This is incident to making available sufficient funds to make the borough's home-building drive a reality. The community has been divided into sections and a sub-committee of workers appointed to conduct the canvass for subscriptions. William Sangster will canvass Brooklyn and employes of the Connecticut Light & Power Co., of which he is the manager in the Danielson division. W. H. G. Herklots will have Main street. J. W. Powdrell, G. Rene Caron and Herbert H. Pepler will canvass among the upwards of 1,600 employes of Powdrell & Alexander. Charles W. Young will have charge in Goodyear and N. Lorne Greig and Harry Brearley in Dayville. Broad street and L'Homme streets will be covered by E. B. Wilbur and Harry Richardson. North Main street and the Davis park region will be solicited by John M. Dowe. Alfred L. Reed will cover Hawkins, Reynolds and a section of Broad street. In the Riverview section the work will be in charge of Thomas A. Beckett, Capt. Harold E. Greene and Andrew E. Meech. On the West Side, John F. Gardner and George Robertson will direct the work.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Timothy Jordan

A death at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam today was that of Mrs. Isabelle Jordan, 60, wife of Timothy Jordan, of Goodyear. Mrs. Jordan was a native of England, but had spent most of her life in this country. Before going to Goodyear with her husband to make her home, over a decade ago, Mrs. Jordan was a resident of Danielson. She leaves her husband, who is a brother of the late Millard Jordan of Danielson, and a son, resident in Massachusetts. The body was brought here this afternoon in charge of Undertaker A. F. Wood.

Providence today picked up Lucien Langwin, who has been sought for six months to answer to a charge of theft in Chaplin, and this evening he was brought here in charge of State Officer Royal W. Scranton. Langwin is wanted to answer to a charge of theft of money from the trousers of Julius Guay of Chaplin, and will be arraigned in court in that town to answer to the charge.

While in Canterbury today on official duty, State Officer Henry Mayo of the Danielson barracks encountered Leodore Maynard of Hampton, operating a model T Ford with 1929 Connecticut registration that was originally issued for a Dodge car. This is the first arrest of this kind hereabouts this year. Maynard will appear in a justice's court in Canterbury Friday evening to answer to a charge of illegally operating a motor vehicle.

An interesting program has been prepared for the 21st quarterly meeting of the County Poultry association, which works in conjunction with the Windham County Farmers' association, to be held at Grange hall in Brooklyn Friday of this week, the morning session opening at 10 o'clock.

One feature will be the demonstration of a fire gun for disinfecting purposes. Use of these guns in brooder houses is increasing. They are especially effective against Coccidiosis, for heat will kill many kinds of bacteria. A. B. Hall of Wallingford will be one of the speakers at the meeting, his subject being Incubation and Battery Brooding.

William Greick, originator of solid buttermilk, known to poultrymen as Greico, a new product on the market, also is to address the poultrymen. He will talk on Principles of Poultry Feeding. Care of Day-Old Chicks will be Roy E. Jones' subject. Mr. Jones is state extension poultry specialist.

There will be a question box, open to all. Thomas Moore of Central Village will have charge of this feature of the meeting.

The January meeting of Sarah Williams Danielson chapter, D. A. R., was held this afternoon at the Westfield Congregational church. A feature of the meeting was the reading of a paper by Mrs. Harriet Paine. The hostesses were Mrs. A. A. Dean, Miss Grace Bacon, Miss Marion D. Chollar, Mrs. J. A. Atwood, Mrs. N. D. Prince, Mrs. C. H. Kingsbury, Mrs. Bertha Snell and Miss Ruth Litch. Members brought articles suitable for use at the Matthew Scott school.

At the annual meeting of the Killingly Rifle club held at the Connecticut Light & Power Co. building last evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, William Sangster; vice-president, Kenneth Buffington; executive officer, Arthur Pradel; treasurer, Homer Browne; secretary, James Blackford. There are 23 members of this club, which meets Wednesday evenings for indoor rifle shooting at the state armory, .22-calibre rifles being used. In the warmer seasons of the year the club members shoot on the state rifle range, south of Danielson, using .30-calibre rifles on such occasions. Arms and ammunition are furnished by the state to the club as an affiliated organization engaged in promotion of civilian rifle practice.

It was stated at the office of the selectmen this afternoon that it is impossible as yet to forecast what Killingly's tax rate will be this year, though the grand list on which the tax will be based was submitted as a tentative document to the voters assembled in annual town meeting last October. It is unlikely that the amount of tax required can be accurately estimated until early March, which will be just prior to the holding of the adjourned annual town meeting at which the rate will be fixed. The tax rate last year was 29 1-2 mills, and a very substantial reduction in the indebtedness of the town was achieved. The town's fiscal year begins on Aug. 1. Five and a half months of the present fiscal year have, therefore, elapsed. Certain items of the town's expenditures each year are so changeable that it cannot be determined this early just how much money must be raised to meet requirements for the current 12-month period.

The government's lease on its local postoffice quarters in the town hall building expires during the coming summer season. This fact, taken with the listing of Danielson as one of the towns in Connecticut due for an appropriation for the construction of a postoffice building, is arousing general public interest, and especially because the growth of the postal business here has made the present quarters inadequate.

Today (Friday) and Saturday, last two days of closing out sale at Field of Dry Goods, Jodoin Block, Main St. Astonishing bargains. Arthur Craft, prop., thanks all for generous patronage.—adv.

A "23" call at ten minutes after noon today was for a chimney fire at 21 Winter street, but it was so quickly extinguished that the firemen did not have to leave their quarters.

A. Putnam Woodward is a member of a party of several men who are guests of Henry E. Church of Hartford, formerly of Danielson, at the Church farm near Phoenixville for a few days.

J. C. Witter contemplates extensive remodeling of the Dr. O. C. Sharpe property which he recently purchased on North Main street and improvement of the surrounding grounds.

Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel's admonition to pedestrians to be more careful in walking in streets and highways and that their chances are not good in a collision with motor vehicles applies with particular force to conditions in Danielson, where people are often observed, even at night, walking as many as five abreast in the streets, though sidewalks parallel the highway.

The Danielson Baptist church will be represented at the mid-year meeting of the Ashford Baptist association to be held on Jan. 28, at the Baptist church in Putnam.

The annual Junior prom, one of the outstanding social events of the school year, is scheduled to be held at Killingly high school Friday evening.

Miss Laura M. Pike, who has served as master of Brooklyn grange, has been elected as Pomona of the Connecticut State grange. Miss Pike is employed here in the office of Attorney Harry E. Back.

Rev. Charles A. Downs of Goodyear has been in Hartford the past two days, acting in an official capacity at the sessions of the State grange.

Motorists here are receiving forms on which they may make application for renewal of their operators' licenses, these to be effective on March 1.

District Deputy Grand Master Albertus C. Chase of Quinebaug lodge of Odd Fellows will install the officers of Israel Putnam lodge at Putnam next Tuesday evening.

Killingly's board of relief will begin its annual sessions with the opening of February. For several years past this board has had comparatively few applications from valuations fixed by the assessors, although there have been some.

There will be a large delegation of physicians from various sections of Windham county, including Danielson, at the funeral services for Dr. James L. Gardner, who is dead at his home in Central Village.

At her home on Academy street, Tuesday, Mrs. Amelia Tillinghast was remembered by her friends on the occasion of her 87th birthday and received a number of gifts.

DAYVILLE

The basketball team of the Congregational church scored a decisive victory over a quintet from the Putnam trade school Wednesday evening.

At the Congregational church Sunday, announcement will be made of the annual roll-call and supper to be held Thursday next.

Friends of John Roy have learned with regret of his painful accident necessitating his removal to the Day Kimball hospital and the amputation of a finger.

Charles Franklin is confined to his home by illness.

Emil Lehrer is spending a few weeks at Wales, Mass.

Mrs. Carrie Bailey was a recent visitor at the home of Shubal Watson, in Putnam.

Miss Lena Brennan spent part of last week visiting Wallingford friends.

A fire, of unknown origin, partially destroyed the large garage owned by John Weaver, Thursday night. An Essex sedan, the property of Francis Quinn, was totally destroyed.

Mrs. John Kilgariff is reported suffering from neuritis.

Patrick Tigue has recently purchased the property, including a parcel of land and a large barn, formerly owned by Mrs. Annie (Mignault) Campbell. Mr. Tigue is repairing the barn.

The Tuesday Night Bridge club met with Mrs. John Parkin. Prizes were won by Mrs Herman Steinbough, Mrs. William Swanson and Mrs. N. Lorne Greig.

The Men's club of the Congregational church will meet Monday evening.

The meeting of the Ladies' Aid society is to be held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Brearley.

A meeting of the roll call supper committee was held at the Congregational parsonage Wednesday evening.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

AMUSING CHILDREN'S PARTY ON GEO. LORING'S BIRTHDAY

Wednesday evening George Loring was pleasantly surprised when several of his friends, dressed as children, paid him a visit to help celebrate his birthday. Mr. Loring was surely surprised. Games of childhood days were played. Late in the evening, the men of the party were blindfolded and were led to the autos for a ride, their destination unknown. They were taken to the home of Mr. Loring's mother, Mrs. Julia Loring, a distance of about half a mile, where a bountiful birthday supper was served. They certainly were living illustrations of "Backward, turn backward, oh Time in thy flight; make me a child again just for tonight."

Mrs. George Loring was in Cranston, R. I. Tuesday.

A member of the press committee for the local chapter of the D. A. R. has received the announcement that the D. A. R. societies will sponsor a radio program Jan. 21st at station WTIC and after that date every Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Nettleton will be the speaker for the program Jan. 21st. The other speakers will be announced.

Mrs. Rae Wood and daughter Elaine, of Danielson, were callers here Thursday.

Miss Bessie Babcock, of Plainfield, a student at the local P. H. S. was cut over the eye during a practice game of basketball here last night. Several stitches were required to close the cut.

Mrs. Harry Dean, injured her leg when she fell down stairs and is confined to her home. Mrs Frank Congdon of Plainfield has been assisting at the home as Mr. Dean is recovering slowly after an illness of several weeks.

The Central fire company was called about 4 o'clock to the home of Edward Ames in Kennedy City, but was not needed when they reached the home.

Stuart Ellsworth has returned from a business trip to New York.

PUTNAM

NO BUYER IN SIGHT FOR LOCAL RHEA PLANT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 16.—There was little authoritative information available today that would give hopes for a sale of the National Rhea Co. Friday when auctioneers and mill executives gather at the plant on Canal street in a third effort to dispose of the properties. The receiver of the bankrupt mill representing the stockholders will ask for a bid of $147,500 decreed by the courts. Unless this figure is voiced by some prospective buyer the sale will be again adjourned, it was understood tonight.

Employes, who have been discharged until the mill has been sold, ardently hope for a transaction tomorrow, which if reached, will result in the reopening of their jobs, after the task of reorganization has been completed. The effort to clinch a sale Friday will be a determined one. The word of the auction has been passed about throughout New England textile circles and a renewed interest is expected to be seen in the auction.

The National Rhea Co. is one of the city's largest industrial concerns. It was organized about five years ago and began the manufacture of rhea. The idea was the product of a German inventive mind. It was not wholly successful in this country and after an experimental period its manufacture was discontinued and the turning out of a rayon product supplanted the rhea. During the summer months the National Rhea Co. filed voluntary bankruptcy petitions in the superior court in Providence. Lewis A. Waterman of Providence was appointed receiver for the stockholders and under his management the plant maintained its operating schedule until a few weeks ago when court orders were obtained in Willimantic and Providence for the sale of the assets at auction at the upset price of $147,500 which was decreed. In the event of the failure of the plant to continue manufacturing activities in Putnam, the city will be greatly affected by its loss since its employment list is large and its wage scale is at par with the average of the city's industrial payrolls.

The members of the Putnam Country club have re-elected Silas M. Wheelock, Putnam mill man, president of the club for another year. Other officers who have been named to serve for the ensuing year are William Litch of Danielson, first vice-president; Charles Dean, Putnam, second vice-president; J. Dyer Potter, Putnam, secretary and treasurer. Otis J. Fox, Putnam; Thomas Hope, Moosup, and Victor Anderson, Danielson, comprise the board of governors elected for three years. There are plans under consideration for the enlarging of the club house. These, however, are not tentative, as no definite decision was reached at the meeting held Monday evening.

Following the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Cargill Trust Co. held yesterday afternoon at the banking rooms on Union street, Byron D. Bugbee, president of the institution since its organization five years ago, was re-elected head of the bank for another year. Other officers elected were: Luther M. Keith, vice-president; J. Dyer Potter, secretary and treasurer; G. Stanley Shaw, assistant secretary and treasurer. Treasurer Potter submitted his annual report in which the bank had experienced a profitable year in the past 12 months. Business was good. Earnings exceeded the mark of the previous year, enabling the directors to place a comfortable amount to the account of undivided profits. For the protection of its depositors the bank has a capital of $100,000 and undivided profits of $100,000 and a reserve for taxes and interest amounting to $23,740.56. The Cargill Trust Co. was the city's first bank to establish the 5 per cent interest payment rate, adopted by large banks in the state earlier in the year. The plan proved attractive and was the means of increasing the accounts of the savings department nearly a half million dollars, according to a statement of the treasurer.

Of interest to the public is the announcement made at this meeting that the company will occupy is new banking house on Main street on or about May 1. The building is ultra modern in its architecture and undoubtedly will be one of the finest buildings of its kind anywhere in the state.

Word was received here today of the death of Mrs. Mabel Wells at the Fannie Allen hospital in Burlington, Vt., which occurred late Wednesday evening. Mrs. Wells is a sister of John H. Bulger, resident of Farrows street.

The funeral of Charles Killam of East Woodstock, who died Tuesday, was held from his home in that village this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The service at the house was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. J. E. Duxbury, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church of this city, assisted by Rev. H. D. Baker, pastor of the Congregational church in East Woodstock, officiated. Burial was in the East Woodstock cemetery. A committal service was conducted at the grave by the officiating pastors.

Little or no attention is being devoted to the city's parking problem which originated a month ago when the numerous infractions of the parking ordinances were aired at a meeting of the common council. With occasional reminders delivered to violators by the police the problem seems to be working out its own solution. The motor public is exercising care in parking its vehicles and other than the current talk of a 60-minute or time limit parking in the business area the parking problem is a forgotten municipal subject.

The need of a teletype machine for the use of the local police was stressed Tuesday by Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson of the city court. The electric typewriter is one of the devices to be employed by police in the apprehending of criminals. The chaining up of the majority of law enforcing bodies throughout the New England states with the teletype machine makes communication between the various departments on the circuit instantaneous. Securing one of these machines for his department had been the paramount objective of the late Captain William J. Jarvis. Attorney Johnson said there is a great need for the teletype machine at the local police headquarters and he expressed hope that the city police commission would see fit to promote a movement to provide for its installation.

Captain A. J. Dubreuil of the local police has been informed by Massachusetts state police headquarters at Boston that a speedy trial will be given Earl A. Sargent, alias Harry Stone of Everett, Mass., swindler arrested here Tuesday in connection with an unlawful solicitation scheme. Massachusetts will press charges at once in hopes of having Sargent sentenced to state prison within the month, Captain Blight of the state constabulary said. A verbatim account of the proceedings will be forwarded to Captain Dubreuil when the case is closed, Captain Blight promised.

WAUREGAN

The Parent-Teacher association held its January meeting Wednesday evening. After a brief business meeting under direction of the president, Mrs. Williams, Principal Leon Rockwell assumed charge of the program. A model school session was held, with the pupils in charge, and the members divided into groups; some visiting Miss Geer's room, others Miss Picard's and Mr. Rockwell's rooms. After the session, refreshments were served to 150 persons by the committee, Mrs. Edward Burns, Mrs. Michael Fitzmaurice, Mrs. Myron Moffitt. Several new members joined the association. Invitations were received to attend a County P. T. A. meeting at Pomfret Center, Wednesday, Jan. 22, and plans were made for a social time within the next two weeks.

In addition to officers reported as elected by the local Congregational church, Charles Robinson, Arthur Mott and Addison Tracy were elected to serve as members of the Scout Troop committee for the ensuing year. Misses Helen Carpenter, Louise Milligan and Nina Williams served refreshments at the church meeting Tuesday evening.

A large number in the village regret the passing of Dr. J. L. Gardner of Central Village. Always ready to accommodate his patients at all hours, he was highly esteemed.

JEWETT CITY

ROSS LETTER BY AIR MAIL COVERS 6,000 M. IN 180 HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 16.—One of G. A. Ross' interesting letters accomplished a double trans-continental record that could hardly be beaten. A letter from him dated in San Diego, arrived in Jewett City in 72 hours from the Pacific coast, by air mail. That same night The Bulletin printed the letter for this column. The next day the letter was clipped and returned to Mr. Ross via air mail, arriving at the Kirkwood, in San Diego, in 72 hours. The letter arriving at Hadley field at 7 p. m. via the Chicago-N. Y. day flight, was in Jewett City the next morning at 6 o'clock. That night it was printed and was back in Jewett City at 6 the next morning. That same night it was back in New York for the western night flight. Including 36 hours on the Atlantic seaboard, the letter was back again on the Pacific coast, printed, and had traveled over 6,000 miles in 180 hours.

Brooks And Ponds Full

The sun has not shown himself in this section since last Saturday forenoon. There has been altogether over 40 hours of fog, with a precipitation of close to 2 inches. Trout brooks, swamps, rivers and ponds are bankfull, with low meadow land flooded, and the Quinebaug showing more water Thursday evening than at any time since March, 1929. Last winter, there was 5-inch ice on the Dorrville fields in the middle of January, and a harvest of 1,500 tons was secured during the last week of that month by E. Chenette and Shea Bros. It was thought here Thursday that if the weather man was waiting for the swamps to fill up before pulling over the winter lever, about now is the time to do his stuff.

Finn's delicious Downy Flake doughnuts, chocolate doughnuts, special today.—adv.

In The Bulletin Thursday morning, a flock of evening grosbeaks were reported from Windham. If this distinguished inhabitant of the far northwest is as near as Windham, it seems altogether likely that a flock may favor this section with a visit. During the winter of 1910-1911, upwards of 30 came to Jewett City where they stayed off and on for a month. In Daniel Phillips' yard, where they were probably attracted by the big Norway spruces, more than two dozen were counted at one time, during a late afternoon in February. Many of the hundreds of local people, who were keeping watch, had a fine view of these beautiful birds, for these handsome strangers are not wanting in color. The head is yellow on top, with black and olive brown below the eyes. The wings and other parts of the body are yellow and black, with touches of gray, white and brown to complete their beauty. Both publications, the Auk and Bird Lore for 1911 spoke of the phenomenal incursion of the evening grosbeaks into the northern states. They always travel in flocks, which by their tameness show their ignorance of man and his ways. The visitors here in 1911 paid not much more attention to those who went to Mr. Phillips' grounds to see and admire them, than do the flocks of pigeons on Boston common.

Some years ago, when egg collecting was a great fad among the local boys, the late A. A. Young sent away to New York and bought twelve rare eggs to add to his wonderful cabinet. Among them was one marked, "very choice and rare," the egg of the evening grosbeak, from Mexico. Greenish in color, blotched with olive brown. Viewed in memory, now it appears that its delicate tinting suggested well the plumage of the bird whose nest it had graced below the Rio Grande.

The Ladies' society of the Congregational church held its annual meeting Thursday afternoon with Mrs. Chester L. Howe, twenty being present. Mrs. Andrew McNicol presided at the opening of the business meeting. The annual report of the treasurer, Mrs. W. A. Richardson, showed $415.56 in the treasury. The report of the sick committee showed flowers, sunshine cards and Trotty Veck booklets sent to many in the parish during the year. The annual report of the secretary was read by Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox, who has served for the last three months, as follows:

The Ladies' society has held its meetings every month excepting July and August. During the year there have been three suppers and the money equivalent for another, a food sale, two entertainments, the conference, annual bazaar and New Year's gathering, which have been arranged by committees from the society. The society contributed $373.38 for the church roof expense, sold 25 boxes of sunshine cards, purchased a stove hot water front and tank for the kitchen, helped pay for stage curtains, distributed dime church calendars, contributed to the Red Cross Christmas bag fund, Salvation Army and ministerial fund and to the Missionary society. It has placed new draperies at the windows in the vestry and parlor, and re-covered the parlor furniture in handsome cretonne. The society is a Chautauqua guarantor. The sale of jello has added to the treasury. In June, the meeting was held at Mrs. Walter Marshall's summer cottage at Groton Long Point. A Christmas party was enjoyed in the church parlor in December.

The efficient president has been Mrs. Andrew McNicol, who after three years' service, retired at her own request. Mrs. F. D. Ballou, on behalf of the society, presented Mrs. McNicol a beautiful basket of potted plants and old fashioned nosegays, to the vice president Mrs. W. H. Payne, the treasurer, Mrs. Richardson, and the secretary, Mrs. Earl S. Hiscox, who held that office nearly all the year. Mrs. McNicol expressed her appreciation of all the support given her during her terms of office. The nominating committee reported the officers for the new year: Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, president, Mrs. W. H. Payne, vice president; Mrs. L. G. Buckingham, secretary; Mrs. W. A. Richardson, treasurer. Mrs. Zegeer conducted the remainder of the meeting. She appointed Mrs. Richardson to have charge of the distribution of the dime church calendars, Mrs. Everett Hiscox and Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst, sick committee, and as directresses, Mrs. W. A. Broadfoot, Mrs. C. L. Howe, Mrs. Everett H. Hiscox, Mrs. N. B. Parkhurst, Mrs. Andrew McNicol, Mrs. C. D. Wolf, Mrs. Walter Marshall, Mrs. F. E. Robinson, Mrs. J. T. Stewart, Mrs. Ellen Paul, Mrs. B. W. Albertine and Mrs. F. D. Ballou. Notice was given that the Missionary society had arranged to have The Bean Town choir appear in Rioux hall soon. Mrs. Fred Whalley, hostess for the refreshments, was assisted by Mrs. Wolf, Mrs. Buckingham and Mrs. Zegeer.

Russell F. Lund Heard

Russell F. Lund, supervisor of nature studies from the state board of education, Hartford, gave an interesting talk at the Glasgo school Thursday afternoon on the subject of Nature Trails. In the evening he addressed the Riverside evening school. His lecture on the Trees of Tomorrow, supplemented with information on the various flies and harmful insects, was illustrated with motion pictures.

STERLING

In spite of the storm Tuesday, twenty-two members of the Woman's Liberty club and three visitors met in the vestry of the United Protestant church and tied three quilts. A delicious dinner was served. At the business meeting, with Mrs. Elmer Phillips, the president, in the chair, a turkey dinner was planned.

Mrs. Ernest Drake is spending this week with Boston relatives.

Mrs. Allison Kenyon is entertaining her sister, Mrs. May Pirie of South Manchester.

A large audience enjoyed the play given by the young people of the Baptist church of Crompton, R. I., in the United Protestant church Saturday evening.

Miss Elsie Harris was the leader of the C. E. society meeting Tuesday evening. Twenty young people were present.

PLAINFIELD

Vernon Royle of Fishers Island spent the week end with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Baxter were in Providence Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gardner and family of Ashaway, R. I., were callers in Plainfield early in the week.

Mrs. Charles Hopkins was in Norwich Wednesday.

Mrs. George Phillips and daughter of Norwich spent Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Phillips.

The following officers were elected by the M. M. club for 1930: President, Mrs. Lloyd Phillips; vice-president, Mrs. Augusta Nolan; secretary, Mrs. Henry Fontaine; treasurer, Mrs. John C. Kingsley.

Miss Edna Baldwin, a student nurse at Backus hospital, spent the week end at her home.

The Friendly Helpers' committee met Wednesday at the parsonage and made plans for their work.

Mrs. Lawrence Baldwin of Fishers Island is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woodmansee.

Mrs. James Royle and son, Alfred, were in Providence recently.

HANOVER

The Y. P. S. C. E. held its meeting earlier last Sunday evening in order to give the members an opportunity of attending the service held at the Norwich Town M. E. church by Rev. and Mrs. Gant and twelve of their people from the African M. E. church, Norwich. Both the singing and the recitations were greatly enjoyed.

The January meeting of the League of Women Voters was held in Hanover Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Webster Standish. Mrs. Annie C. S. Fenner of New London gave a very interesting and instructive address upon Taxation. The address was followed by an enthusiastic and profitable discussion by the good sized assemblage of women in attendance.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' guild of the Congregational church was held in the vestry Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Very satisfactory and encouraging reports were submitted, officers elected and plans made for the year just beginning. Although the afternoon was rainy, and the outlying roads rough and muddy, the attendance was unusually large.

The Woman's Missionary society met Thursday afternoon in the Parish house. Mrs. Webster Standish was leader, and the hostesses were Mrs. Myron Allen and Mrs. Henry B. Hanson.

The library at the Parish house, under direction of the Book committee, Frederick W. Labourveau, Mrs. William G. Park and William [illegible] Jr., is being renovated, placed in order and enlarged by quite a number of interesting and instructive volumes to such an extent that it may be able to serve the purpose of a real library in the community.

THE LOBBY INQUIRY

The lobby committee has been spending much time prying into the methods used by those trying to influence legislation concerning sugar. It has been able to show that much money has been advanced to those who claimed they could accomplish much, that they were busy in putting forth their claims for a higher or a lower tariff on sugar and that they laid claim to having influence in certain circles which would make their work effective.

Evidently certain of the lobbyists were so hard pressed in their endeavor to get a job that they were ready to drag the president's name into their correspondence and to create the belief that they possessed such influence in that direction that they could get desired results. Perhaps some of the committee were disappointed because they could not find any instance in which they might try to throw suspicion upon the president for political effect, but with no opportunity of that kind the committee makes the announcement that the president was in no way involved with the lobbyists. The inquiry simply goes to show how persons intent upon creating a wrong impression of their greatness can involve others in the belief that no one will ever know the difference. The investigation has brought these cases to light in a manner which seems likely to have its effect upon all lobbyists in the future. If they find it more difficult to extract thousands from corporations interested in legislation it will not be surprising. If they are obliged to prove their claims to influence before they start they may be less interested in making extravagant claims. Those who have been backing the professional lobbyists may take a different attitude toward the advisability of their services.

It can be appreciated that for the most part the successful presentation of the views of those interested in legislation might be considered worth all that is paid to the lobbyists, if favorable results are obtained, and worth taking the chance even though the effort is unsuccessful. Whether or not the lobby inquiry is going to be the means of getting legislation that will satisfactorily deal with the lobbyists is the question in which congress may well be interested. It is still apparent that there are good as well as bad lobbyists.

AIDING PORTO RICO

With the report of the Porto Rico hurricane commission in his hands, President Hoover acts promptly in giving his approval to the recommendations for relief measures for the islands. Hard hit by the hurricane over a year ago, the island is still suffering from its effects. This is confirmed by other than reports from the commission and there appears to be no questioning of the need for help.

In aiding the island to get back to normalcy the situation among the agriculturalists cannot be ignored. They received a severe blow in the loss of crops and the purpose in providing a million dollars for loans to individual planters is to give them a chance to restore business activity. It is never possible to accomplish a great deal in the way of reconstruction unless the industry upon which dependence is placed is given encouragement.

In addition to that, there is great need for restoring the school houses which suffered so severely in the disastrous storm. Some of these must be rebuilt, while others are in need of repair. Porto Rico is in no position to provide for such work. It is crippled and without help there is bound to be a serious handicap to education in the islands. The situation is the same regarding the roads and there can be no doubt that Porto Rico can put to the best use the $3,000,000 called for in the resolution that was introduced by Senator Bingham to take care of these three matters.

It isn't that we have not given any thought or attention to the situation in Porto Rico, but that we haven't extended sufficient assistance to remove the additional problems that were caused by the hurricane. The time has come when investigators find further assistance is called for. That being so, it should be provided, and without needless delay.

ABOLISHING BATTLESHIPS

With the approach of the date for the London conference it is inevitable that much importance should be attached to the statement made by Premier MacDonald concerning the effort that is to be made to limit navies.

The premier has been outspoken in regard to his aims. He is unquestionably thoroughly wrapped up in the idea of getting away from the naval competition which prevailed years ago and is continued to an extent now, and is prepared to give his best efforts to make a success of the conference. That he will encounter some opposition at home as well as from other countries is not improbable but that doesn't necessarily interfere with his object.

Mr. MacDonald is quoted as saying that the battleship is of doubtful value and that in due time Great Britain would abolish it by international agreement. That doesn't mean that he expects that any such great stride will be made at the coming conference. It does, nevertheless, put him on record in regard to this type of warships. What he says reflects the sentiments of many others, although there will be found plenty of opposition.

It is too much to expect that any agreement will be made at London to do away with battleships. They have passed the peak of their importance and may well be said to be on the decline. They are even held to be obsolete now, although plenty of experts are ready to defend their denials of that. Nevertheless, inasmuch as there is an agreement among nations to limit the number of battleships, which has worked to the advantage of all, it can be expected that further restrictions will follow. If it is coming eventually it might as well be now. Such a move would be in accord with the recognized value of the Washington agreement. Great Britain is not the only country that realizes the advantage gained by that pact and it is not going to be the only one to keep the movement alive.

Battleships are not going to be wiped out in one fell swoop, but if there can be a gradual approach to that end, with the principle of limitation applied to other classes of warships, it is inevitable that the time will come when they will become a thing of the past and the peace of the world will be further advanced.

CONFORMING TO THE LAW

A hurried reading of the despatch from Lansing, Mich., concerning the commutation of the sentences of five persons who had been sentenced to life as fourth offenders, might give the impression the governor was bent upon taking the teeth out of the law. The fact is, however, that the teeth have already been removed, from the law by the legislature, as far as the life sentence is concerned, and the governor has simply given those who were sentenced before the law was changed, the benefit of the modification.

Impressed by the results being obtained elsewhere in putting away the confirmed criminals where they would not be a menace to the public, Michigan enacted a law whereby those convicted of a fourth felony must be sentenced to life imprisonment. It so happened in Michigan that violation of the prohibition law was rated as a felony, although it was not the intention of the legislature that the fourth offender law should apply to liquor law violations. When the time came that the persistent violators of the dry law went before the bar of justice times enough it was necessary to send them up for life. It was a stiff dose, considering the offense, and not many men and women were given such medicine before there was marked opposition to the law.

It was apparent that the only thing to do was to change the law. The legislature recognized the justice of the plea for a change and so altered the law that life imprisonment for fourth offenses is applied only when the fourth offense is one which would as a first offense call for a five-year sentence.

Having modified the law so that there would be no more life imprisonments for selling liquor, even on a fourth offense, it was apparent that some consideration must be given to those who were sentenced under the law before it was changed. The result is that the governor has commuted the sentences of those lifers so that they have been given terms in accordance with the existing provisions of the liquor rather than the fourth offense law. Under the circumstances there was nothing else to be expected and the unintended penalization for liquor law violations has been corrected.

PROGRESS AT THE HAGUE

There were certain developments at The Hague which gave the impression that the session of the delegates bent upon clearing up the remaining details concerning the Young plan might be prolonged or the outcome not what was expected. Demands and statements of various kinds were made but the threats of a break in the negotiations were quickly removed and the indications are now that the outcome will be anticipated and that there will be a thorough understanding of what is expected.

For a time Dr. Schacht seemed to have thrown a monkey wrench into the machinery, but while it threatened trouble it was extracted without any harm being done. While he declared against participation by the reichsbank in the international bank such a course will not be adopted. Neither did it succeed in extracting a promise that there would be no punitive action in case of a failure to pay, or in having the reparation payments come at the end of the month.

For the most part, Germany has complied with the demands of the Allies and there has been little difficulty in coming to an understanding regarding the various features in dispute. The conference thus far stands out in marked contrast to the length required at the previous session. And what cannot be overlooked is the fact that it appears to have gone ahead without any bitter feeling. The negotiations have been carried on in a commendable spirit, reflecting the changed attitude which has taken place among the countries of Europe. This doesn't mean that there hasn't been plenty of firmness but the disposition appears to be one of greater respect and trust.

While it may be no more than desired it reflects a welcome change for the better.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The receipt of income tax blanks is another reminder of what is to come and what is to go.

The January thaw seems to be one long uninterrupted performance this year.

The man on the corner says: Thus far this week there has been very little damage done by snowballs.

The claim is made that by 1932 three dirigibles carrying 100 persons each will be furnishing transportation across the Pacific. Well, that's something to work for and anticipate.

POLLY ANN TAKES A TUMBLE

It all began when Polly Ann tumbled out of the window. Of course, this was a mistake, a social error, but who can account for the sudden whims and vagaries of a manikin doll? Only a second before she was sitting decorously propped against the window ledge, her round blue eyes staring fixedly across the roof tops, and then—puff—a gust of June breeze, and she was gone!

Carol, sensing catastrophe, dropped her toasting fork and rushed to the window. Polly Ann lay a crumpled heap in the courtyard below, a splash of crimson and black in her little satin Pierrot suit. The poor thing must be rescued at once.

Hurriedly, Carol tugged at the strings of her apron, but she was too late. Already an alert masculine figure was striding down the walk toward the doll, and, as the stranger stooped and grasped Polly Ann by one long arm Carol emitted a gasp of consternation.

"Oh-h!" she cried. The stranger looked up and the girl caught a glimpse of a lean brown face and a pair of twinkling dark eyes. The stranger removed his hat. His mouth widened into a comradely grin.

"Your child?" he queried.

"Yes—that is—she's mine." In spite of herself, Carol smiled back. The young man nodded.

"Let's see, you're third floor, right over my flat," he calculated. "Spare yourself further agitation and heartbeats, madam. Your child shall be returned."

Carol had barely time to smooth her hair before there came a hurried buzzing of her door-bell. The stranger stood on her threshold, and dangling on his arm, with her head nestled coyly against his breast, was Polly Ann. Carol reached forward and retrieved her coquettish manikin.

"Tell the gentleman 'thank you,' Polly Ann," she commanded, extending a limp rag hand toward the young man.

"Polly Ann! So glad to meet you," acknowledged the latter. "May I introduce myself? Jack Barker, struggling attorney. And Miss Polly Ann, would you mind presenting me to your—delectable friend?"

"I'm Carol McAllister," volunteered that young lady, the dimple in her left cheek deepening deliciously. "I'm also struggling—at interior decorating."

"Great! Then we've a common cause," grinned Mr. Barker. "What do you say if we—" But at this moment a whiff of smoke from the kitchenette sent Carol scurrying toward the stove.

"My English muffins!" she wailed. "I scorched them."

"Muffins? English muffins! What a shame," came a bass echo behind her.

"We were just about to have tea when Polly Ann fell out of the window," explained Carol. "Tea and hot muffins and honey." Mr. Barker was instantly alert.

"I say," he begged, "why can't I run over to the bakery and buy a dozen? Then we could make it a threesome. Ple-ease!" Carol hesitated.

"Are you sure you like them?" she asked.

"Like 'em!" declared Mr. Barker enthusiastically. "Why, toasted muffins are my suppressed desire!"

Three minutes later Carol McAllister stood at her window and watched a tall, square-shouldered figure striding away in the direction of the bakery. Then she danced across to the divan and, seizing the manikin in her arms, whirled wildly about the little apartment.

"Do you know, Polly Ann," she whispered, pressing her lips close to that nonchalant one's ear, "do you know that you set me an awful example? I seem to be taking a tumble too."—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—Death of Secretary Good has made Walter Newton a seemingly indispensable unit of the Hoover official family.

He is the only member aside from Mr. Hoover himself ever to have run Mr. Hoover himself ever to have run did it six times, coming back to congress with rising majorities each time.

His biggest victory was his last, a year ago. He resigned to take the secretarial job at the white house. And he did not want to. Personal loyalty to "the chief" moved him.

Yet as a whole, the Hoover cabinet now is not notable for its vote getting experience. Secretary Stimson once ran for governor of New York, and got licked. Secretary Hyde was once governor of Missouri and once mayor of Princeton in that state. Secretary Adams was once mayor of Quincy, Mass. And that is all.

Good had been through the congressional election mill seven times, serving 14 years in the house. His practical understanding of vote getting necessities was large.

He knew just what problems of practical politics face senators and representatives who want to stay on the job. That was what led to his being drafted, rather unwillingly, for cabinet service. He might never have been called for duty if Newton had accepted the first offer made him of the secretarial post.

Country-Wide

Different presidents have viewed from a different angle the essential qualifications for a cabinet officer. All have sought to make their cabinets geographically representative of all sections of the country.

By way of example, however, President Wilson's original cabinet slate showed a painstaking effort to weld discordant elements of the party's large majority "on the hill" into a working machine by giving all factions cabinet representation.

And it seemed to work well at first. The record of the first Wilson administration in speedy enactment of a definite legislative program was rather striking.

Mr. Wilson put the influence "on the hill" first in weighing cabinet qualifications.

Fitness for administrative duties seems to have been the Hoover watchword. And the president has clung to that notion, even in the face of "coalition" developments in the senate.

A Question

War Secretary Pat Hurley's cabinet assignment hardly could have been expected to change values in favor of the administration in congress. Whether any other selection could have accomplished that must always remain an open question.

The Bystander has heard veteran Washington political lookers-on say that a sympathetic understanding by the president and his cabinet of the re-elections problems of senators and representatives is vital to successful cooperation between the executive and legislative branches of government.

And, they add, the best understanding comes from experience in running for office. Which sounds reasonable. Still, a deal depends on the impression cabineteers make "on the hill" in presenting their departmental budgets is now undergoing that test.

NEW BOOKS

The Knight of the Dixie Wilds. By Walter E. Taylor. Cloth, 210 pages. Published by Meador Publishing Co. Boston. Price $2.

This is a Texas reconstruction story written by an octogenarian who passed his early life in Mississippi where virgin nature smiled and magnolia blossoms interspersed with dark green foliage formed one vast bouquet for the wild woods and where the Negro melodies resounded in the cotton fields throughout the day. From that environment, while still a boy, he moved to eastern Texas and there participated in the struggle against free Negro domination and military law oppression during the dark days of the reconstruction. He spent the next 30 years on the thinly settled borders, hunting big game and fighting cattle rustlers and other bands of outlaws. Later he became an acknowledged authority on the unwritten history of reconstruction in the south and a master in hunting and woodcraft.

From these backgrounds, from a wealth of experience and a fullness of life, he wrote The Knight of the Dixie Wilds, an adventure, romantic true story of experiences during a most extraordinary life. It provides a most entertaining story.

World Almanac. By Robert Hunt Lyman. Published by New York World. Paper, 920 pages, indexed. Price 60 cents.

This is the 45th annual issue of the standard reference book of America. It is better than ever. In it are the familiar trustworthy reference tables that in columns of trim figures depict the progress of the United States and all the countries of the world in agriculture, mining, manufacturing, commerce, transportation, finance, politics and sports—an imposing array.

Here too is the full diary of the year 1929—history in the making—its fascinating scientific progress, stirring aviation feats, Byrd's South Pole venture and the marvels of radio development. One finds what has been accomplished in the enforcement of the prohibition law, politics and international affairs.

You may ask a million questions and be astonished and made happy to find how many will be fitted with answers here.

"Manna-hat'n," The Story of New York. Cloth, 269 pages, illustrated, and with chronology. Published by The Manhattan Co., New York.

This is not intended as a history but as the title implies, a story of the development of the city which today is the acknowledged commercial metropolis of the world. The story holds deep interest for every American and for the people of other nations.

The thread of the story of how New York city came to be can be traced not only for 300 years, but back to 1453, when the city of Constantinople fell before the victorious Turks and the trade routes between "The Indies" and western Europe were barred to commerce. That is where the story begins but through the subsequent years its thread is woven into a fabric of adventure, hardships, enterprise, romance, heroism and gigantic achievement unique in the annals of the world. It is a new story that is told by The Manhattan company which was chartered in 1799.

There are 48 chapters in the book, some of which, to indicate the scope of the story, are entitled: Only a River!; Hudson Finds "Manna-hatin"; The Indians Sell "Manna-hatin"; How Wall Street Began; New York Wins Freedom of the Press; British Capture New York; The First Stock Exchange; The Great Fire of '35; The Birth of Greater New York; New York and Tomorrow.

Varicose Veins

H. O. McPheeters, M. D., F. A. C. S.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Of all the afflictions to which the human body may fall heir, that of varicose veins may often be numbered among the most severe. This is not due to the presence of the varicose veins in themselves but to the fact they may totally and permanently cripple those affected.

Normally the blood is carried from the heart through the body by the arteries and then returned to the heart and lungs by way of the veins. Thus normally all the blood in the veins is flowing toward the heart and in the legs this would be upward. In a well developed case of varicose veins the blood is actually stagnant or is flowing in the reverse direction. The large dilated veins are merely sacs of blood which remain filled or empty as the force of gravity may affect them. Since the blood running through the veins carries the products of combustion in the tissues it is clear how these dilated varicosities become a handicap and a detriment to the normal tissue growth.

When the varicose veins are removed, either through operative measures or by means of the more modern injection treatment, no extra load is thrown on the remaining veins, as is commonly supposed, but on the contrary the circulation is markedly improved and the lower legs are relieved from these "Cess Pools" of blood.

If large varicose veins are injured in any way, they readily break down into open ulcers or sores which often take months or years to heal. In addition to the ulcers the legs may become badly swollen and unsightly and be very painful, or may develop extensive eczemas over the parts involved. All these conditions can be cured, if cared for in time, by the drying up or obliteration of the varicose veins and appropriate local treatment.

In the injection or the obliteration treatment any one of several harmless solutions are injected into the varicose veins. These solutions cause an injury to the wall of the vessel which later causes the blood in that particular segment to be absorbed. By the healing process of nature following this injury to the lining of the vein it becomes obliterated and only a thin band of scar tissue remains under the skin where formerly there was a large vein filled with stagnant blood.

The permanency of the results following the injection treatment will depend entirely on the thoroughness of the work. If it has been thorough and complete the case will be cured for all time as to those veins present at the time of the treatment. The fact that all the varicose veins present have been obliterated does not insure the patient that they will never develop varicose veins any more than a visit to a dentist will insure against further tooth decay. But the tendency to develop new varicose veins will be noted in the annual health audit, and can easily be cared for if it occurs.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Painless Traps For Animals

Mr. Editor: Seeing many interesting articles quoted in your paper, I thought the enclosed might prove interesting to many of your readers as we have many in our communities who set traps and make them. This article taken from Christian Herald.

MRS. N. TOMPKINS.

Colchester, Jan. 15, 1930.

The article follows:

Your Uncle Sam believes in kindness to animals; he hates to see them suffer.

One of his men, Vernon Bailey, chief field-naturalist of the Bureau of Biological Survey, has perfected a trap that will catch animals without causing them to suffer so terribly as with the old devices. Instead of toothed steel jaws, which grip into the flesh of the unfortunate animal, causing it unspeakable torture during the long hours before the trapper arrives to kill it, is a wire mesh net, which completely incloses the captive. The plans for making it are given to any one who wishes to save suffering.

Mr. Bailey designed the trap especially for his work among the beavers. By its use he is able to capture these animals alive in considerable numbers and move them long distances absolutely unharmed. He has returned from his commission to help stock the streams of Pennsylvania with beavers. From a small number the beaver population of Pennsylvania has increased by leaps and bounds.

A beaver caught in this humane trap actually will look upon the captor as his friend in a few days, according to Mr. Bailey. When he is released on his new breeding-grounds, he will not make a wild dash for liberty, but come up to his captor to be petted. The human characteristics of the beaver, in many respects the most intelligent of the native animals, make it specially fitting that more mercy be used in trapping it, Mr. Bailey believes.

Slight variations on this trap will make it suitable for the capture of muskrats, minks, and other fur animals which inhabit the banks of streams. It is fully as efficient as any steel trap.

Another of Uncle Sam's devices used by the Biological Survey removes the necessity for the most cruel of all the steel traps, the great bear-trap, which required exceptionally strong jaw springs to hold the great animals that blundered into them. The new device is a form of the old box trap, only much stronger. When the bear grabs the bait, a spring is released, and a door drops down behind him. He is not harmed in the least.

If Uncle Sam has his way about it, the cruel steel trap will soon be a thing of the past. This means much for the thousands of animals that are trapped every year for commercial purposes.

Stories That Recall Others

Permanent Wave.

Frank, age five, was visiting his uncle in the country. In the evening he was permitted to go and watch the milking operations. He climbed the fence and looked long and critically at a large bull whose big head was covered with wavy, curly hair. Then he called: "Uncle Dan, this big cow has got a dandy permanent wave."

In Case.

Betty's aunt came to visit her and brought a little gift with her from a friend. Auntie told Betty to write a letter and thank Miss R. for the dainty gift. Betty wrote the following: "Dear Miss R. Thank you very much for the pretty present. In case you might want to send me something else sometime my address is—"

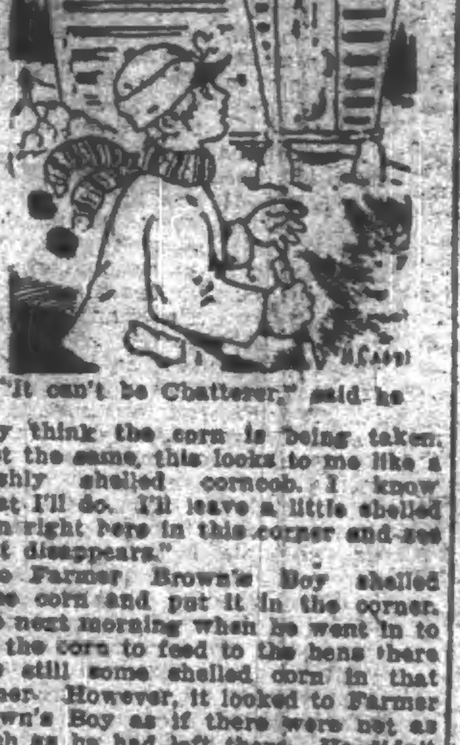
BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Still Loses Corn

To be too sure is tempting fate,
As you'll discover soon or late.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Farmer Brown's Boy was puzzled, as he had been puzzled so often before. He was still losing corn from the corncrib. At first he couldn't believe it. He was sure that now that he had cut off the hanging branch by which Chatterer the Red Squirrel had been getting to the roof of the corncrib, he had put a stop to all visits from Chatterer. But he had thought that once before when he had taken down the clothesline, by means of which Chatterer had reached the corncrib. So now he wasn't prepared to be as positive as he had been in the past.

"Twice Chatterer has been too much for me," said Farmer Brown's Boy, talking to himself. "Twice I have been positive that there was no way for Chatterer to get into this corncrib. Both times Chatterer has fooled me. Both times I have discovered that there was a way. Of course, I may be mistaken. It may be that I only think the corn is being taken. Just the same, this looks to me like a freshly shelled corncob. I know what I'll do. I'll leave a little shelled corn right here in this corner and see if it disappears."



"It can't be Chatterer," said he

So Farmer Brown's Boy shelled some corn and put it in the corner. The next morning when he went in to get the corn to feed to the hens there was still some shelled corn in that corner. However, it looked to Farmer Brown's Boy as if there were not as much as he had left there. He didn't touch it. He didn't add to it. He left the little pile just as it was. The next morning there was no little pile there. Then Farmer Brown's Boy knew some one was getting into that corncrib and taking that corn. He scratched his head thoughtfully. It might be a mouse. It might be a rat. It might be Chatterer the Red Squirrel. The question was, which was it? Having twice been fooled by Chatterer, and having at no time found a trace of a mouse or a rat, Farmer Brown's Boy strongly suspected Chatterer again. Still, he couldn't see for the life of him how it could be possible for Chatterer to be getting into that corncrib again.

He went out and looked the corncrib all over, as he had done so many times before. Certainly, Chatterer could not get into that corncrib from the ground. "He just can't do it," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "He just can't do it and that's all there is to that." Then he looked carefully at the nearest trees and the nearest posts and made up his mind that Chatterer couldn't possibly jump from any of these to the corncrib. "It can't be Chatterer!" said he. "I know it can't as well as I know my own name. I am just as sure of it. And yet—well, that corn is disappearing and that's all there is to it. Nobody can take it; yet somebody is taking it and there you are! I've got to find out about this. I wish there would come another snow. A few tracks might tell me something."

Meanwhile, over in the Green Forest Chatterer was chuckling to himself. Every time he thought of Farmer Brown's Boy he chuckled. He would go up to the old stone wall and sit on the end of it, where he could see Farmer Brown's Boy working about the barn, and he would chuckle. It was just as if he knew exactly what was going on in the mind of Farmer Brown's Boy and was enjoying it. Once in a while he would look over at the corncrib and then he would chuckle more than ever.

"He thinks no one can get that corn," Chatterer would chuckle to himself. "He thinks no one can get into that corncrib. I hope he'll keep right on thinking so. Yet, sir, I do so."

What of That

Tired! Well, what of that?
Didst fancy life was spent on beds of ease,
Fluttering the rose leaves scattered by the breeze,
Come, rouse thee! work while it is called today!
Coward, arise! go forth upon thy way!

Lonely! And what of that?
Some must be lonely! 'tis not given to all
To feel a heart responsive rise and fall,
To blend another life into his own.
Work may be done in loneliness. Work on

Dark! Well, and what of that?
Didst fondly dream the sun would never set?
Dost fear to lose thy way? Take courage yet!
Learn thou to walk by faith and not by sight;
Thy steps will guided be and guided right.

Hard! Well, and what of that?
Didst fancy life one Summer holiday,
With lessons none to learn, and nought but play?
Go, get thee to thy task! Conquer or die!
It must be learned! Learn it then patiently.

No help! Nay, it's not so!
Though human help be far, thy God is nigh,
Who feeds the ravens, hears His children's cry.
He's near thee, wheresoe'er thy footsteps roam.
And He will guide thee, light thee, help thee home.

George H. Woods.

Five building permits at a total valuation of $6,280 were issued during December compared with three permits at a total valuation of $270 issued in December, 1928, of an increase of 2262 per cent. There were 8 real estate transfers during the month valued at $32,500 and 18 in December, 1928, worth $43,150, a decrease of 26 per cent in value. General retail business remained about the same as in December, 1928.

FUNERALS

Mrs. Nathan Congdon

At 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, funeral services for Mary Elizabeth, wife of Nathan Congdon, were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Richard DeMars, Bozrah street, Bozrah. The service was conducted by Rev. George Strouse, pastor of the Bozrah Congregational church, and two hymns, Lead Kindly Light, and Abide With Me, were sung by Mrs. Olive Potter.

Burial was in Linwood cemetery, Colchester, and Rev. Mr. Strouse read the committal service at the grave. The bearers were Edward, George and Charles Congdon, sons of Mrs. Congdon, and Richard DeMars, a son-in-law. The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends and there was a wealth of beautiful floral forms. The funeral arrangements were by Undertaker C. A. Gager.

William Grillo

The funeral of William, five months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Santo Grillo, was held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon at the home of his parents No. 76 Mt. Pleasant street. Included in the attendance were relatives and friends from Westerly and Providence and there were beautiful floral forms. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The child died Wednesday morning at his home. He was born on the thirteenth day of the month at the thirteenth hour and was the thirteenth child in the family.

Mrs. Peter Guly

The funeral of Mary Guly, widow of Peter Guly, was held at 10 o'clock Thursday morning from her home in Montville, where prayers were said by Revs. S. Prokopcuk and W. Nikosky of Colchester, who officiated at requiem high mass at St. Nicholas church at 10:30. The music was by the choir. The bearers were John Lutsou, Marcin Wrobel, Alex Cipychu, Onufry Samcewicz, Daniel Kudlik and K. Wojtkowski. Burial was in the family lot in St. Nicholas cemetery, where the two priests conducted the committal service. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends from this city, New York and other places. J. Wojtkowski was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Guly's death followed that of her husband's by about four months.

MRS. ANTZIS TESTIFIES IN ALIENATION SUIT TO TRAILING HER HUSBAND

Testimony as to the way Mrs. Helen Antzis of this city trailed her husband Samuel to the late hours he kept at the Lincoln avenue home of Mrs. Rose Beckley Frink, wife of Charles W. Frink and as to his general neglect of her after he became connected with Frink Dairy Inc. made up the bulk of the evidence introduced in the superior court here Thursday before Judge C. L. Avery in the $25,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. Antzis against Mrs. Frink for alienation of the affections of Mr. Antzis.

The court room held a standing room attendance all day in the space reserved for spectators who were frequently moved to laughter by the repartee between counsel, Attorneys E. W. Higgins for Mrs. Antzis, C. V. James and G. C. Morgan for Mrs. Frink. Deputy Sheriff M. J. Martin, who is court officer, sharply checked all such demonstrations with a rap of his gavel.

To Continue Next Tuesday

Mrs. Antzis was on the stand when court adjourned to continue trial of the case next Tuesday morning.

Harry L. Lathrop of 271 Washington street, a brother-in-law of Mr. Frink, was first called to the witness stand by Attorney Higgins. He told of being invited by Mr. Frink to a stag party at the Frink home, 20 Lincoln avenue to which Mrs. Antzis came at night looking for her husband and came into the house but didn't find him because he was in the pantry.

Leon F. Pierce of Preston, former manager at the Frink dairy and the one who hired Antzis there in December, 1926, testified that the relations between Mr. and Mrs. Antzis when he first knew them seemed to be harmonious, but after Antzis had been with the dairy about six months Pierce noticed a change in him.

Mrs. Annie Driscoll testified to the friendly relations existing between Antzis and his wife when they first came to her rooming house in the Marguerite building about two years ago, and to the changed manner which she observed in Antzis towards his wife after he went to work in the diary. She said she had heard Mrs. Antzis crying in her room, had heard them talking all night sometimes, heard Mrs. Antzis called vile names by her husband. Sometimes, she said, he did not come home at night, this happening so often that she couldn't keep count of it.

On cross examination, Attorney Morgan inquired about Mrs. Antzis having a man in her house, regarding which Mrs. Driscoll said this happened once and that the man was a friend of an unmarried sister of Mrs. Antzis, from whom he brought a message. The attorney also inquired about automobile rides which Mrs. Antzis took in company with Mrs. Driscoll's daughter, who is a telephone operator. Mrs. Driscoll said she always knew where they went.

Mrs. Lena Mandell of New York city, a sister of Mrs. Antzis, who formerly lived in Montville with Mr. and Mrs. Antzis, gave testimony that the couple were happy and affectionate then and got along nicely together. Later they all lived together on the Preston farm and the Antzis' relations continued harmonious as before.

Watched For Antzis

The witness said Antzis had told her in the court house on Tuesday that he was going to put Mrs. Antzis behind the bars if it was the last thing he did.

They were living on the Preston farm when Antzis went to work at the Frink dairy and after that, the witness said, he didn't care anything about the farm and let everything go. He would get home at all hours at night, this growing increasingly frequent, and he would use profanity towards his wife. The witness told of following Mrs. Frink and Antzis in an automobile with her sister along the Jewett City road until they took a country road. Then Mrs. Mandell and her sister drove back to near Lincoln avenue and watched for Mrs. Frink and Antzis to come home, which they did about 11:30 o'clock and went into the Frink house on Lincoln avenue. The witness told of an occasion when she and her sister went to the Frink house on Lincoln avenue where they asked for Antzis. They saw his cap in the hall but Mrs. Frink denied he was there. They waited outside then, the witness said, and after about an hour Mrs. Frink showed Antzis out of the house.

Didn't Throw Things

On cross-examination the witness was asked about quarrels between Mr. and Mrs. Antzis when they lived on the farm in Montville and she denied that Mrs. Antzis ever threw things at her husband, hit him or scratched him with her nails. She said the trouble between all four of them at the farm was that no money was coming in. When they moved to the Preston farm conditions were better and Antzis gave his wife all the money he made. They left the Preston farm, the witness said, because Antzis neglected the place and left Mandell to do everything on the place. She denied that the real reason they left the Preston farm was because she couldn't get along with her sister.

Defendant's Husband Testifies

Charles W. Frink, now resident in Franklin, formerly of 20 Lincoln avenue, who said he was a World war veteran and was in Colonel Whittlesey's Lost Battalion, and was formerly president of Frink Dairy, Inc., which is now in receivership proceedings, was the next witness. The dairy office, he said, was at 20 Lincoln avenue, the dairy at 40 Town street. He told of a "stag" party at Lincoln avenue when Mrs. Antzis came to the house asking for Antzis, when Mrs. Frink answered the door and presumably told Mrs. Antzis that Sam was not there. Mrs. Antzis came in and looked around and then went away but came back with her sister and stayed practically all the rest of the night at the house until the early morning.

"Where was Mr. Antzis?" Attorney Higgins inquired.

"He was in the china closet," was the answer.

When he came back from the tuberculosis sanatorium, Mr. Frink said he found that Antzis had a room at the Lincoln avenue house, had his clothes there and slept there nights, two or three times a week. He told of an incident where Antzis drove around to Mrs. Frink's father's house, took her into the auto there and drove down town, when Mrs. Frink said she had to go to a certain store. Later, Mr. Frink found she didn't go there. He remonstrated with Antzis for taking Mrs. Frink out riding, and Antzis thanked him for speaking about it. The witness told of Antzis buying toys for the Frink baby and paying the first year premium on a $500 educational policy for the baby. He told of Antzis transferring 32 shares of the dairy stock to Mrs. Frink's name, saying that Antzis stated he did this because his "boss" might make trouble. By "boss" Frink said he understood Antzis meant Mrs. Antzis.

Makes No Criminal Charges

Attorney Morgan took up the cross-examination, in the course of which he brought out the fact that Frink did not dispute the paternity of their child and did not claim to have caught Mrs. Frink in any illicit relations with Antzis. In connection with the time when Antzis presented his resignation, the witness said Mrs. Frink said they needed Antzis and if Antzis left she would leave and Frink asked Antzis to come back. The witness said he couldn't see why it was necessary for Antzis to stay so late at the house in doing his work.

Taking up a line of questioning from Frink's testimony that he found a number of empty liquor bottles, gin and rye, in the house when he came back from the sanatorium, Attorney Morgan asked Frink if he wasn't quite a drinker and bought liquor in large quantities.

The witness replied that the most he ever bought at once was five cases of whiskey.

"Of course we understand this was before Volstead days," said Attorney Morgan. "Did that come from Block Island?"

"Yes, and it was delivered right in this city," was the answer.

On re-direct examination by Attorney Higgins, Frink told of hearing a conversation between Mrs. Frink and Antzis in which the witness told Antzis she had no further "use for Charlie." He also spoke of seeing Mrs. Frink and Antzis dancing at the house in what he called a "clever dance" with shimmying in the corners.

Through a question to Mr. Frink, the attorney learned that Antzis left by the back door and over the fence at the time his wife was looking for him and when he was able to get out of the china closet in the morning.

Told of Telephone Calls

Benjamin I. Mandell of New York husband of a previous witness, who said he and his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Antzis were all married at the same time, gave evidence tending to corroborate that of his wife as to the apparent relations of Mr. and Mrs. Antzis before and after Antzis' employment at the Frink dairy. He told of telephone calls which Antzis would receive at night at his home from Mrs. Frink, after which Antzis would leave the house and not return till late at night.

Alleges Threats Made

William Feinberg, 18, of New York city, a brother of Mrs. Antzis, who lived at one time on the farm with Mr. and Mrs. Antzis and worked at the Frink dairy, testified that Sam was seldom at the dairy but was most of the time at the house.

Feinberg testified that Antzis had told him in the court house Tuesday that a lot of people in this case were going for a ride after the case was over. The witness also testified Antzis said something about people going to the penetentiary. Asked by Attorney Higgins whom Antzis named, Feinberg said it was his sister, Charlie Frink and Mrs. Ulmer.

The witness also said Antzis had told him a doctor had examined Mrs. Antzis and declared her insane. He did not tell the name of the doctor.

Town Clerk Harold S. Burt was brought to the stand by Attorney Higgins to introduce the certificate of incorporation of the Star Dairy company Dec. 30, 1929, in which Antzis is interested, but Judge Avery sustained objection from defense counsel and this was ruled out.

Mrs. Minnie Helen Pierce, wife of Leon Pierce, a previous witness, gave testimony as to seeing Mr. and Mrs. Antzis on their farm in Preston, and was followed on the stand by John H. Perkins, assistant treasurer of the Dime Savings bank, where Mrs. Antzis had an account. Through him, Attorney Higgins put in a copy of her account.

Mr. Mandell, recalled to the stand, testified that Samuel Antzis was born in Russia. He said Antzis had told him this on several occasions. Attorney Higgins said he offered this to attack the credibility of the witness, and Judge Avery said he would admit it provisionally at this time.

Plaintiff On The Stand

Mrs. Antzis was the last witness of the day. She said she was 26 and married to Antzis June 12, 1922, in New York city. She told of coming with Mr. and Mrs. Mandell to a farm in Montville, then moving to a farm in Preston, where they lived together for about a year.

They lived happily for four years, she said. Before his employment with the Frink dairy, Mrs. Antzis said, her husband never wanted to go anywheres without her and was never away from home at night. At first, when he worked at the dairy, he used to get home from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. This lasted for two months but after that he was later, sometimes coming home at 3 o'clock in the morning. The witness said she had seen Mrs. Frink let Antzis out of the Lincoln avenue house at this time in the morning. She said she would call up and ask Mrs. Frink if Sam was there. Mrs. Frink would answer "No," the witness said, but she knew that the automobile Antzis used was back of the Frink house.

When she accused Antzis of being with Mrs. Frink, his reply was, according to the witness, that she could go back to New York to her former sweetheart and that the marriage vows didn't mean anything to him.

She told of trailing Antzis and Mrs. Frink in an automobile to Hartford, but losing them there, and trailing them along the Jewett City road and also to looking through the window at the Lincoln avenue house and seeing her husband there. The witness told of Mrs. Frink telling her she wasn't going to lie for Sam any more. Antzis gradually removed all his clothes to the Frink house, but told her, the witness said, that he had them in an attic at the dairy. She found out there was no attic at the dairy.

Fixing Up The Books

Questioned as to what money she got from Antzis, she said he sometimes gave her $5 a day or more than $40 a week. She said he told her something about fixing the books up so that Mrs. Frink couldn't tell he was getting it.

On Christmas eve, Mrs. Antzis said, she had an attack of appendicitis and had to go to the hospital the next day for an operation. She said her husband spent that Christmas eve at Mrs. Frink's home. While they lived at the Marguerite they had separate rooms, she said, which was at the suggestion of Mr. Antzis.

Threats Made

In the last year, she said, he had threatened a number of times to have her in the crazy house and also in jail.

She related her husband's threat to blackmail her when she told him she was going to sue Mrs. Frink.

No Collusion In Divorce Suit

Through misunderstanding of the import of the judgment by Judge C. L. Avery in which he found for the defendant in the divorce suit of George F. Tiffany of Waterford against Nina Barrows Tiffany of New London, the report that the divorce was denied for collusion was incorrect. Divorce was sought for desertion, but it was shown that the parties had separated by mutual agreement and for this reason Judge Avery found that there could be no wilful desertion and dismissed the complaint.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL YEAR

The past year in the Central Baptist church was characterized as one of fine spirit and high achievement in the church life by Rev. Dr. David A. Pitt in his pastoral letter Thursday night at the 90th annual meeting of the church in which he summarized the activities of the past 12 months and declared that the outlook for the new year is bright.

Preceding the annual meeting, the church supper was held at 6:30 in the assembly room, with an attendance of over 250 to enjoy the fine meat pie supper served by the domestic committee of the Woman's league, Mrs. Henrietta Tefft, chairman. The tables were arranged on the hostess plan and men of the church served as waiters. Mrs. Edward Y. Messinger was chairman of hostesses, who were the following: Mrs. John E. Hawkins, Mrs. James M. Young, Mrs. Henry Geer, Mrs. S. B. Palmer, Mrs. Henry E. Church, Mrs. Allyn L. Brown, Mrs. C. Edward Smith, Mrs. John Kingston, Mrs. James M. Young, Jr., Mrs. John Burnham, Mrs. N. Eugene Smith, Miss Alice M. Dean, Mrs. Chester Warner, Mrs. Henry H. Pettis, Mrs. Frank A. Mitchell, Mrs. C. C. Williams, Mrs. Adams P. Carroll, Mrs. George W. Hamilton, Mrs. David A. Pitt, Mrs. Charles S. Storms, Mrs. C. R. Davey, Mrs. Herbert Hoffman, and Miss Maude E. Allen.

REV. DAVID A. PITT, D. D.

Rev. Dr. Pitt, who was chairman, called the business meeting to order at 7:30, and after the opening devotional services, the minutes of Joseph S. Adams, church clerk, were approved and the annual department reports, which were in printed form, were presented and accepted.

According to the report of the church clerk, the present membership is 863, of which 618 are resident, 245 non-resident.

By the report of the church treasurer, Edward Y. Messinger, the total receipts of the year were shown at over $29,800. A vote of appreciation was passed to the finance committee and especially to Frank L. Arnold and all who assisted him in enabling the church to come to the close of the year with all bills paid and a balance in the treasury.

Over $500 has been raised in the past few weeks for the Judson fund for foreign missions.

Announcement was made that Deacon Joseph P. Holloway had presented to the church the automobile that has been in use as the church car and the clerk was directed to send a note of appreciation to Deacon Holloway, whom recent illness had prevented from attending the meeting.

The centenary of the church is to be celebrated in 1940 and the meeting voted to have a historian appointed for that event. Dr. Pitt named Adams P. Carroll, who is to name a committee to assist him.

Church officers and standing committees, the names of which were presented by the nominating committee, B. H. Palmer, Jr., chairman, were elected as follows:

Treasurer, Edward Y. Messinger; assistant treasurer, Gilbert S. Raymond; clerk, Joseph S. Adams; assistant clerk, Eugenie A. Dean; deacons (six years), Charles S. Storms, Arthur F. Wyman; trustees (five years) Allyn L. Brown, (two years) Henry H. Pettis to fill unexpired term left vacant by resignation of A. Thatcher Otis; board of managers (five years), Charles D. Noyes, Charles S. Storms, Harry Kromer; board of religious education (five years), Miss Constance Raymond; printing committee, Charles F. Whitney, Harrison C. Noyes, Miss Helen B. Moore; nominating committee, N. Eugene Smith, Harry Kromer, Mrs. Charles A. Hagberg, Mrs. Gilbert S. Raymond, Arnold Smith; missionary committee, Miss Alice Dean, Miss Alif Stephens, Harold S. Burt, Nathan Whitely, Mrs. Lucius Brown.

Election of the Sunday school officers was ratified as follows: Superintendent, Emery H. Davis; assistant superintendents, Charles S. Storms, E. Arnold Smith, Edward Y. Messinger; secretary, Arthur Armstrong; assistant secretaries, Floyd Lambert, Henry G. Aurelio; treasurer, N. Eugene Smith; assistant treasurer, Harry Kromer; department superintendents, Mrs. C. Edward Smith, cradle roll and beginners; Miss Alice M. Dean, primary; Arthur F. Wyman, junior; Miss Signe M. Seaberg, intermediate; Miss Ruth Hamilton, young people; C. Edward Smith, adult, and Mrs. Clarence Sholes, home department.

Found Alien With Gun

Presented in the city court Thursday morning for having a gun in his possession, although he is an alien, Cyprian Szceblinski, 45, a Wauwecus Hill farmer, was defended by Attorney T. J. Kelly and the case was nolled on payment of actual costs, with the proviso that he forfeit the shot gun which County Game Warden Watson found in his possession.

The man claimed he had borrowed the weapon to keep away hawks from his chickens and to protect himself from prowlers on his farm, where he claimed he had been shot at twice about two weeks ago.

Attended State Grange Meeting.

Mrs. William S. Murray, lecturer of Norwich grange, Mrs. Robert Woodmansee, Mrs. Thomas Stery and Miss Edith Woodmansee, Pomona of Norwich grange, have arrived home after attending the state grange meeting at Hartford.

TWO YOUTHS ADMIT BURGLARIES IN NORWICH

Two East Great Plain boys, Charles Jordan, 16, and another, 15, who is of the juvenile age which protects his name from publicity, were arrested at 2 o'clock Thursday morning at their homes by Sergeant Matthew Delaney and Officer Eugene Caulkins. They have confessed to taking part in three of the numerous small breaks that have occurred in the city during the past several weeks. The boys, who were taken into custody shortly after having attempted to break into the store of Mrs. Mary M. Clark, East Great Plain, Wednesday evening, admitted to the attempt to enter this store, also breaking into Jacobson's Service station, West Main street, and the East Great Plain school house.

These confessions were made at police headquarters after they were put through a severe grilling. The two boys, however, would not confess to other small breaks in the city, but the method used by them in the Clark store attempted break leads the police to believe they are responsible for other breaks. The boys hurled a stone through a window in the Clark store, but they were scared away before they were able to appropriate anything. In several instances stones have been used to gain entrance to the buildings.

According to the police the younger East Great Plain boy went to the Clark store early Wednesday evening and asked Mrs. Clark what time she intended to close the store. She told him at 9:30 o'clock. After the place was closed Mrs. Clark noticed the boy standing behind a tree from the lights of a passing automobile, as she was sitting at a window. Later she heard the sound of broken glass and investigating found that a front window in the store had been broken with a stone, but the person responsible was nowhere in sight.

Mrs. Clark then called police headquarters and acquainted them with the fact, giving them a description of the boy. Detailed on the case were Sergeant Delaney and Caulkins, who later arrested the boys at their homes after receiving information that led them to believe that they were responsible for the break.

The boys admitted to the police that they cached the loot taken in the breaks in a barn at the home of the younger boy. The police found there a quantity of cigarettes and cigars and a broken stamp machine, taken from the East Great Plain school. A .22 calibre revolver was also uncovered in a barn at the Jordan place in addition to a package of cartridges. The Jordan boy admitted that the revolver was carried by him in the burglaries, and was to be used in a planned holdup. They also said that they intended to rob a store at Bean Hill Wednesday night.

In the city court Thursday morning Jordan was presented on a charge of burglary and the case was continued to Friday. The other boy is to appear in juvenile court at a later date.

EMPLOYED BUREAUS FOUND WORK FOR 3,078 APPLICANTS

Sixty per cent of the persons applying for employment at the free public employment bureau of the state department of labor during December were supplied with situations, according to the monthly report of Harry E. Mackenzie, state commissioner of labor at Hartford. Of the total number of employers applying, 95.9 per cent were furnished with help as compared with 93.4 per cent in the previous month, but despite this fact, the figures show that 1.9 per cent less persons were supplied with work than in the previous month.

The biggest decrease was in the case of the male applicants, 51.4 per cent of whom were supplied with situations as compared with 55.8 per cent supplied during the month of November. A slight increase was noted in the employment of women 71.2 per cent being placed in December as compared with 70 per cent in November.

A total of 2,895 men and 2,231 women applied at the eight state bureaus during December for employment while applications were received for 1,532 men and 1,675 women. Situations were secured for 1,489 men and 1,589 women, a total of 3,078 situations filled.

The Hartford office received 1,075 applications for employment and 716 requests for help, placing 675 persons, of whom 393 were men and 282 woman, leading the state in both number of applications and total places filled.

The Bridgeport office received 728 applications for employment, 611 for help and filled 569 positions; Waterbury, 904 applications for employment, 567 applications for help and 552 situations secured; New Haven, 505 applications for employment, 431 applications for help and 12 situations secured; Danbury, 315 applications for employment, 288 applications for help, 266 positions filled; Norwich, 655 applications for employment, 111 applications for help, 111 positions filled; Stamford, 846 applications for employment, 455 applications for help, 455 situations secured; New Lodon, 98 applications for employment, 48 applications for help, 48 positions filled.

MAL DE TETE

Not a cross-word puzzle — just the quaint French way of saying headache and today we wish to call your attention to the fact that 85% of all headaches are caused by eyestrain. If the eyes are corrected with proper fitting glasses the headaches will disappear also many other symptoms far remote from the eye, such as high blood pressure stomach trouble and nervousness. It is not necessary for the eyes to be sore to indicate the need of glasses. Perfectly healthy eyes oftentimes need glasses to correct the conditions mentioned above on Paris Francais (e).

SPAIN BACKS AIRSHIP LANE TO ARGENTINA

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The old and new worlds may be connected by monthly trans-Atlantic dirigible service.

Out of plans spun several years ago, forward steps have been taken to establish regular air transportation betwen Seville, Spain, and Buenos Aires, Argentina.

A recent Spanish royal decree, according to Charles A. Livengood, department of commerce commercial attache in Madrid, lays the foundation for scheduled flights by lighter-than-air ships.

A government bounty of nearly $2,600,000 has been made available for "Sociedad Colon Transaerea Espanola," to be followed with an additional $2,798,500 if trial flights are successful.

For trial flights, the company must complete a hangar, mooring mast, plants for the manufacture of hydrogen and ethylene, and compressors before July 30, 1931.

Trans-ocean service must be inaugurated within two years after complete installations have been authorized for the airport.

One round trip monthly is prescribed as the minimum and when postal traffic exceeds 10 tons, service every two weeks or every week will be required.

Dirigibles will have a minimum capacity of 40 passengers and 10 metric tons of general cargo. A weekly service between Seville and the Canary Islands is also prescribed.

Should trial flights be unsuccessful the contract will be rescinded and the state will acquire the grounds and installation for appraisal value.

JAY-WAKER POLICY LATEST INSURANCE

LONDON—(AP) Insuring a pedestrian against the damage he may do in a traffic accident is the latest wrinkle in policies here.

The company pioneering in personal liability insurance for jay-walkers charges $1.25 for a policy up to $2,500 toward any judgment against the pedestrian policyholder for an accident due to his negligence.

British magistrates already have held careless pedestrians liable for road crashes and ordered them to pay damages.

SHOW OF SHOWS IS ALL TECHNICOLOR AT PALACE

WHITE SOX MAY PROVE TO BE THE SURPRISE TEAM OF THE AMERICAN LOOP

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Two of the shrewdest minds in baseball, Charles A. Comiskey and Donie Bush, threaten to hand the American league its biggest surprise package in 1930, with their rejuvenated White Sox.

Hitting baseball's comeback trail together, the "Old Roman," who at 70, is planning and spending as never before to realize his dream of another pennant winner, and his new manager have strengthened the 1929 team with a large and exceedingly promising group of youngsters with which they hope to gain at least a first division berth in the coming championship struggle.

Hitters and more of them has been Manager Bush's demand during the winter's raid on the ivory mart. Last year the White Sox finished in seventh place because of a famine of base hits, losing 35 games by the slim margin of one run. This year, Bush believes, he will have that extra punch at the plate, while the pitching and fielding, always good, should be much the same and better if a few rookies deliver.

Smead Jolley, slugging six footer from San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league, who made a big dent in the Comiskey purse, is one recruit almost certain to give the White Sox more offensive power.

Jolley led the Pacific coast circuit batters for five years, even outhitting his former teammates, Earl Averill and Roy Johnson, whose batting in their first American league season last year was outstanding. Two other hard-hitting outfield recruits will get a chance with Jolley—Dave Harris, who batted .303 for Portland last season, and Jimmy Moore, who hit at a .368 clip for Dallas of the Texas league in 1929.

Bush, always a stickler for a fast infield, will have two promising recruits in Irvin Jefferies, who can play either second or third, and who led the Texas league in fielding while batting .308 last year, and Ernest Smith, a shortstop from Birmingham, who was voted the most valuable player in the Southern league in 1929. Willie Kamm, the best fielding third baseman in the American league for the past two seasons, will be back at his old post, while Bill Cissell will be at shortstop or second base, and should be an improved player. Charles Arthur Shires doubtlessly will forget about his boxing ventures and play first base for Bush, who has a knack for getting the best out of players of the "great one's" temperament. Shires hit .312 during his abbreviated 1929 season.

Out of the large group of pitching hopefuls who the White Sox take with them to San Antoinio, Tex., next month, four are outstanding prospects to strengthen the able staff of Thomas, Lyons, Faber, McKain, Adkins and Weiland. They are Pat Caraway, a southpaw, who runs up the unique record of leading the Western league in innings pitched and in the least number of allowed hits with the tail-end Topeka club last year; Vic Frasier, a right hander who won 15 and lost eight for Dallas in 1929; Lou Garland, a right hander speed ball hurler from Joplin, Mo., and "Dutch" Henry, who was obtained from the New York Giants toward the end of last season.

The catching staff is one big worry, however, Moe Berg and "Buck" Crouse should improve but Manager Bush wants another one and is having a hard time getting one at any price. He hopes to acquire an established backstop from some American league club before the race opens.

"We will have a young, fighting club, with a world of possibilities," said Owner Comiskey, who has all but recovered from the illness that kept him away from baseball most of the 1929 season. "I regard Donie Bush as one of the smartest managers in baseball and I stand ready to back him in every way. I want another pennant winner and we're going to surprise you in 1930."

PLENTY OF ACTION AT NEW LONDON BOUTS TONIGHT

All roads will lead to the state armory at New London tonight where the East End A. C. has arranged a banner attraction for boxing fans of Eastern Connecticut.

From the first bout of four rounds to the last eight round bout action will predominate and the club is confident that when the last bout is over the general opinion will be that it was the best action show ever seen in Connecticut.

Joe Genardo of New London, a student of Hughie Devlin and Earnest Gauvin of Norwich will furnish the four round opener.

The next bout of six rounds at 135 pounds between Julio Rossi of Westerly and Ero Peterson of Worcester will be a hummer as both boys believe that to be a fighter one must fight, so they will be in there swinging for all they are worth. And from where we sit it looks like a tough night for Mr. Rossi.

Vic Darr of Norwich versus Young Pearson of New London eight rounds at 146 lbs. is the next bout. Pearson made a hit at Boston recently by his willingness to trade punches and as Darr is of the same type action should be on tap every round.

The return bout between Dynamite Lou Brouillard of Danielson and Joe Russo of Westerly is full of interest and will no doubt be full of fireworks as both boys are out to win by a K. O. In the last meeting of this pair two weeks ago Brouillard put the bee on Russo after a wild fight. Joe is out to show his friends that it was a lucky punch and vows that Friday will see Brouillard's retirement from the ring. This bout is down for eight rounds or less.

Rounding out this all action card is an eight round between two of the toughest boys in the middleweight ranks, Bob Marriot of New London and Patent Leather Kid of New Bedford. Marriot will have to be at his best to win this one as the Kid is no bargain for any middleweight. The Kid is a rough, two-handed slugger with one ambition and that is to rock his opponent to sleep as quickly as possible. As Marriot has the same laudable desire the club will not guarantee that this bout will go the distance. But will guarantee that for pure unadulterated action this bout will have the fans standing on the furniture.

A. E. F. CHAMPION IS GIVEN $100 MONTHLY AWARD

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 16—(AP)—Fighting Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the American Expeditionary Forces in which Gene Tunney fought in France during the World war has been judged permanently disabled by punishment absorbed in 60 fights in the service. As a result, the United States Veterans' Bureau has awarded him compensation of $100 a month for the rest of his life.

Martin, who was considered a better fistic prospect than Tunney at the close of the war, claimed that a traumatic brain tumor from which he has suffered in recent years was caused by blows received while winning 54 service bouts by knockouts, four by decision, drawing once and losing only one match—to Tunney. He was granted a pension of $20 a month two years ago by congress. This he has waived in view of the larger grant.

Martin fought 32 bouts in qualifying for the A. E. F. title, winning 28 by knockouts and four by decisions. In the final match with Fay Kiser for the championship at the Cirque De Paris, April 26, 1919, Captain C. M. Jones, state service officer for West Virginia, reported to the compensation board:

"This was an especially hard fight and the claimant's opponent rendered blow after blow on the claimant's head. It seems to me that it is reasonable to presume that this fight was the beginning of the claimant's disability."

Following the war, Martin, who lives in Nitro, W. Va., fought professionally but was unable to keep the pace he set in the army. He quit the ring several years ago.

DUTKOWSKI'S GOAL GIVES BLACKHAWKS WIN OVER BRUINS

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Duke Dutkowski's solo goal less than two minutes after the start of the third period gave the Chicago Blackhawks a 2 to 1 victory over the world hockey champion Boston Bruins. It was Boston's fourth defeat of the National league season, and was witnessed by a record attendance of 15,000 paying spectators.

Dutkowski's performance duplicated his dash against the New York Rangers last Sunday night which gave the Hawks a 2 to 1 decision for the second place berth in the American group. Mush March and Stewart Adams collaborated for the first Hawk goal, the former snapping the strings just before the first period ended. Dutch Gainor tied it up on a brilliant individual dash through the Hawk defense, early in the second session.

The Hawks were outplayed in the last period, but Chuck Gardiner's great goal tending saved the game. It was the last Blackhawk game under the management of Thomas Shaughnessy, who has resigned. William Tobin succeeds him.

Senators Down Toronto.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 16—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators took advantage of the breaks to beat Toronto tonight, 2 to 1, and replaced the Maple Leafs as third place holders in the international section of the National Hockey league.

Two goals which came within ten seconds of each other in the second period when the Leafs were playing two men short, provided Ottawa with its victory. The game was rough throughout. Toronto drew ten penalties, two of them majors, while the Senators were penalized seven times.

STEWARDS MAKE NEW RULES TO GOVERN 1930 POUGHKEEPSIE ROWING REGATTA

By TED VOSBURGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Making drastic rule changes designed to speed up the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, the stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing association today decided to disqualify any crew not at the starting line on time and to call for a new start only in case of actual breakage of equipment.

Beginning with the 1930 race which was definitely set for Thursday, June 26, the crew in which an over-anxious oarsman "jumps his slide" or "catches a crab" no longer will be able to call for a new start. Each crew must take the consequences of its own errors of watermanship.

For the first time since 1901 when Syracuse was admitted to the original group of Columbia, Cornell and Pennsylvania, a new member was added to the Intercollegiate Rowing association when the application of the United States Naval Academy was unanimously approved.

Regular visitors to the Poughkeepsie course of recent years, the Middie varsity finished first in 1921, 1922 and 1925, second in 1907 their first attempt and in 1913 and 1926, fourth in 1927 and 1929 and fifth in 1928.

Forecasting an entry list as great or greater than the record field of nine colleges and 22 crews which participated in last year's event, the stewards decided to send invitations to all of the institutions which received bids to the 1929 event, this list including Princeton and Stanford as well as those which participated in that memorable race. Princeton declined the invitation last year and Stanford did not have a crew.

Prompted by the experience of last June when the failure of two crews to reach the starting line on time combined with a number of false starts delayed the varsity event so long that the rising wind and water swamped four crews, the stewards announced their stringent new rules as follows:

"Any crew which is not at the starting line and attached to its stakeboat for any race at the time designated by the board of stewards shall be disqualified.

"In case of postponement due to bad weather conditions or other causes the crews will be notified in ample time, and will be given a new starting time by the referee for which the previous rule will not apply.

"No recall of any start will be made except for actual breakage of equipment during the first 20 seconds. Note: Breakage caused by a jump slide or crab will not be considered sufficient cause for recall.

"Any crew ceasing to row for any reason during this period, thereby causing other crews to stop, will be disqualified, and a new start for the remaining crews shall be ordered by the referee."

On many occasions in the past delays have been caused when the sliding seat of an oarsman jumped the track or one of the men dug his oar too deeply or failed to feather correctly, in the stress of the first few seconds of fevered action, a new start having been granted hitherto.

The date selected for this year's event, somewhat later than usual due to tide consideration, is not likely to be changed but was announced as "subject to confirmation of proper tidal conditions by the U. S. department of commerce" and arrangements with the railroad which runs the observation train.

Susie Says

You've all heard that old story about the Irishman carrying the hod of brick up to the tenth floor and carrying them down again because the noon whistle blew when he reached the ninth.

Well right here in Norwich there's a man who lays down his tools when he hears a whistle blow. With him any whistle means quitting time, regardless of what whistle it is.

The other day he was out at East Great Plain working on an automobile. He had been engaged for a few hours overhauling the motor when he heard a whistle blow a long and loud blast.

That whistle meant to him that it was time to knock off from the job. The wrenches clattered to the floor and he crawled out from under the machine, pulled off his overalls and washed up.

He gets into his car and hies himself into town, ready for his noonday meal. As he passes the town clock he glances at it, and finds it read eight minutes after 11 o'clock.

Driving on with the mental comment that the town clock must be wrong he stops at a local store. Here the clock says a little after eleven. He begins to wonder what's the matter with all the clocks in town.

Finally he asks a friend what time is it and the friend looks at his watch and tells him it's quarter past eleven. That's the straw that knocked him for a goal. He asks if the friend is sure and the friend shows him the watch.

"Well," says he, "You may be right, but somebody's wrong. I heard the noon whistle, but the clocks say it's only a little after eleven o'clock."

"What whistle did you hear?" asks his friend. "Why, I don't know?" says he, "I heard the whistle and it blew a long time and came from down that way," and he points down the river.

The friend starts to laugh and says "Why you heard the whistle at the State Hospital, that blows about 11 o'clock every day." "Well," says he, "I'll have to get acquainted with the different voices of these whistles."

And now he's wondering whether the man whose car he was fixing will find it out and take out the extra noon hour that he had.

LOCAL Y SENIORS WIN HEAVY SCORING GAME FROM BLAIR'S MYSTIC ALL STARS

The Norwich Y Seniors added another feather to their cap last night when they decisively defeated Joe Belair's All Stars, 63-47. Joe sure had an all-star lineup but they were not strong enough to take over the Demarest-coached clan.

The first half was a great exhibition of spectacular shooting but passwork was lacking in both teams play. After the second half opened up, with Norwich leading 26 to 24, the local outfit opened up with the cleverest passing game seen this season and soon piled up basket after basket. Brown was the star performer for Norwich, playing a whirlwind of a game, and Gink Barber, playing the last quarter only, held the fast traveling Reaves scoreless, and contributed three points toward the aggregate score. Reaves played the best game for the All-Stars and was closely followed by Huck Taylor, Socony star forward.

Norwich will not be seen in action on the home floor until Saturday, Dec 25th, when the big game of the season occurs, meeting Middletown, as yet undefeated in the State league scramble.

In the preliminary game, the Central Baptist Five took over the Gamma club, 20-18.

CARNERA REFEREES AMATEUR BOUTS AT NEW HAVEN

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 16—(AP)—Primo Carnera, heavyweight champion of Italy, featured the amateur boxing program at the Arena here tonight by refereeing one of the matches. Carnera disregarded Commissioner Donohue's "no draw" decision, unintentionally, by calling the bout a draw. Summaries:

Al Brown, Norwalk, 133 1-2, knocked out Mickey Carr, New Haven, 133—2.

Don Esposito, Derby, 151, defeated Joe Johnstone, New Haven, 150—3.

Bill Taylor, Bristol, 116, defeated Steve Vane, Derby, 114—3.

Frankie Smith, Norwalk, 126, defeated Johnny Bellus, New Haven, 127—3.

Billy O'Brien, Springfield, 128, defeated Frankie Tart, Bristol, 123—3.

Dave Smith, New York, 150, draw with Frankie Wilson, New Haven, 150—3.

Jack Beasley, New Haven, 160, defeated Bill Krathy, Springfield, 164—3.

Jerry LaVane, New York, 135, defeated Ray Cummings, Meriden, 210—3.

Don Knapp, New Haven, 140, technical knockout over Tony LaViero, Bristol, 140—1.

Larry Bock, New Haven, 195 1-2, defeated Emery Scarra, Mount Carmel, 197—3.

Carmen Knapp, New Haven, 138 1-2, defeated Jackie Dillon, New Haven, New Haven, 136—3.

Phil Battick, New Haven, 169 1-2, technical knockout over Walter Krass, Springfield, 170—3.

AGGIE SPRINTERS ENTER LOCAL INDOOR MEET

Coach John P. Murphy of the Academy track team, which is sponsoring the triangular indoor track meet at the state armory here Saturday night between N. F. A., Chapman Tech of New London and Suffield prep, completed his programme for the evening Thursday by signing runners from Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs for special races and also four sprinters from Bulkeley high in New London. As Bulkeley had already entered its star distance man, Wetmore, for the special mile event, in which leading schoolboy runners in southern New England will compete, this gives Bulkeley a fairly good representation against their old rival.

Further importance was added to the meet when, at a meeting of the N club of the school Thursday, track was made a major sport. This means that all students fulfilling the required conditions will receive a large N, the same as is awarded in baseball and football.

Although this is the first venture for this sport in the city, interest is running high and a large crowd is expected. The armory has been put in first-class shape for the event.

LES CANADIENS WIN EASILY FROM DETROIT COUGARS

MONTREAL, Jan. 16—(AP)—Les Canadiens of Montreal completely outclassed the Detroit Cougars, swamping Goalie Beveridge under a flood of shots for a 6 to 1 triumph.

The flying Frenchmen caught the Detroit players at their worst and penetrated their defense almost at will. Only a brilliant display by the youthful Beveridge in the early part of the game kept the score within reasonable proportions. Wildor La Rochelle, substitute right winger, scored twice and had an assist to lead the scorers. Joliat, Lepine and the two Manthas scored the other Canadien goals while Herberts tallied for Detroit.

NEW SYSTEM OF STARTING ROWING RACES THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Bow oarsmen of competing crews in the Poughkeepsie regatta this year will have something to do besides row.

To facilitate starting, the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing association today decided to have each bow man hold a rope, the other end of which is to be attached to a skiff, in order to keep his shell from being blown to one side by the wind while awaiting the starting gun.

The new system will necessitate adding a command to cast off to the time-honored starting call which has been simply "Are you ready all? Row!"

SPECIAL BOWLING MATCH BETWEEN B. H. NURSES

Last night at the Aetna alleys there was a special bowling match between four of the Backus hospital nurses, with Miss Belanger and Miss Smith losing by 10 pins to Miss Pellerin and Miss Haywood. The match was exceptionally close, Miss Belanger and Miss Pellerin getting exactly the same score, while Miss Haywood won from Miss Smith by the margin of 10 pins.

Bowling among women is becoming very popular this winter as a form of indoor recreation and several teams have been organized among the women of the city. The scores:

Miss Belanger	64	74	62	— 200
Miss Smith	72	70	65	— 207
	136	144	127	— 407
Miss Pellerin	68	71	61	— 200
Miss Haywood	78	69	70	— 217
	146	140	131	— 417

MAROONS BEAT AMERICANS IN OVERTIME GAME

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Montreal's husky Maroons kept clean their season National Hockey league record against the New York Americans tonight but it took nearly every second of an overtime struggle for them to gain a 3 to 2 triumph. It was their third straight victory over the New Yorkers.

The Americans nearly had an upset to their credit but in the 71st minute of play Nels Stewart tallied the deciding goal. Only 23 seconds of the overtime period were left when Stewart finally got through the weary defenders to take Seibert's pass and score.

Up to that time the struggle between the first and last place teams had been about even. Each scored once in the first period and again in the third to end the regular playing time in a 2-2 deadlock.

NORWICH GIRLS OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON TONIGHT

The Norwich Girls' basketball team open up their season tonight when they encounter the Woodstock high school girls' team at Woodstock. The local girls have been practicing for the past two months and have an outfit that will compare with any girls' team in the state. Their first home game will be Saturday, Jan. 25th, when they meet the New London Y. W. C. A. as a preliminary to the Norwich-Middletown State league game.

LLOYD WANER MAY HAVE TO HAVE APPENDIX OPERATION

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 16—(AP)—Lloyd Waner, one of the premier outfielders for the Pittsburgh Pirates, may have to submit to an operation for appendicitis. When Waner visited the club physician today to learn the cause of pains in his right side the doctor said "Little Poison" had all the symptoms of appendicitis.

If such is found to be the case, an operation will be performed immediately.

LAMOUREAUX AND FLYDAL NOW ON AGGIE VARSITY

STORRS, Jan. 16—(AP)—Two changes which are regarded as having a strengthening effect, were made on the Connecticut Aggies' basketball team today. Gene Lamoureaux and Oscar Flydal were moved up from the second squad to take the places of Darrow at forward and Wilson at guard, respectively.

These changes were made after Coach Alexander definitely dropped zone defense play in favor of the man-to-man defense.

Captain Ryan, Duffy and Chubbuck, regulars, retain their places. The team will meet the Massachusetts Aggie quintet here Saturday night.

PHILLIES MAY BE CONTENDERS IN RACE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 16—(AP)—The Phillies, who broke National league records last year by making the largest number of total bases, the most long hits and topped all other teams in the league for home runs, are expected to cut a figure in the coming pennant race.

"I do not say we have a pennant winner," said William F. Baker, president of the Phillies, "but I do believe we have a pennant contender."

The team, buttressed by heavy hitters and a nifty infield, needed only capable pitchers last season to force their way up among the teams fighting for the lead.

The team will go south next month under the leadership of Burt Shotton with fourteen pitchers, out of which he hopes to get a winning crew for the pennant campaign.

Scouts dug up Earl Collard, a talented twirler from Shreveport, who won ten and lost two games in 1929; Chet Nichols, of Montreal, with a record of 16 and 12, and Bryan Speece, submarine ball specialist from Indianapolis. Also the best of last year's staff will be reinforced by that veteran of many campaigns, Grover Cleveland Alexander, who comes back to the Phils from the St. Louis Cardinals through a trade. Alec may not win a majority of his games but he is expected to serve as an experienced relief twirler in the pinches.

Other newcomers on the pitching staff are Harold Miller, who was a free agent last year, and John Milligan, of Erie, Pa. Then there are the regulars of last year, Louis Koupal, Ray Benge, Phil Collins, Harold Elliott, Lester Sweetland and Claude Willoughby. Sam Dailey and Harry Smythe, who joined the Phils late last year, will go south with the team.

The death of Walter Lerian, leading catcher in the National league last year, deprived the Phils of an excellent player, but three other backstops will be on hand to help Virgil Davis, a first class receiver, who will get a chance to show his ability. These catchers are Harry McCurdy, formerly of the White Sox, procured from Toledo; Al Cooper from Birmingham, and George Susce, who was with the Phillies last season.

The 1929 infield is intact. Don Hurst will be on first, Fresco Thompson at second, Tom Thevenow at shortstop and Art Whitney at third. This inner cordon compares favorably with any in the league. Barney Friberg will be a substitute who can play an infield position and Jack Sherlock, who batted .338 with the San Francisco Mission team last year, also will be available for work in any of the infield posts.

The same wrecking crew of fence busters will be in the outfield prepared to repeat their great record of last year. Chuck Klein, who topped the four base clouters in the league last year and batted .356, will again guard right field, Danny Southern, a .300 hitter will be in center and Lefty O'Doul, who last year set a new league record of 250 hits for the top average of .398, is to play left. Cy Williams is with the Phils for another year. Cy, who has a penchant for knocking homers, will do utility work and will be assisted by Tripp Sigman, who made 41 home runs with the Canton, Ohio, team last year in 127 games.

In all, 29 players will make the trip to the southland. Manager Shotton has ordered the pitchers and catchers to report at Winter Haven, Fla., the training base, February 28, and the infielders and outfielders on March 7.

Monte Kayoes Allen

BOSTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Joe Monte, Brockton lightheavyweight, knocked out Harry Allen, his home town rival, in the fourth round of what was to have been a ten round bout here tonight. Allen was out in front at the end of each round until he fell victim to a short left hook.

LATZO KAYOES CLARKE IN THE SIXTH ROUND

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 16—(AP)—Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, marked his return to the ring after a lay-off of 15 months following his bout with Jimmy Braddock in which he suffered a broken jaw, by knocking out Eddie Clarke, New York Negro, in the sixth round of a ten round bout tonight. Latzo weighed 177; Clarke 173.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Prof. Farrell's Concert

Again Mr. Frank Farrell has proven his interest in music for music's sake, as well as his interest in Norwich, as a former citizen, by giving his services to the League of Women's Voters, for the concert at Slater hall this (Friday) evening, at 8:15.

The League, in appreciation of Mr. Farrell's generosity, has extended the privilege of free admission to all members of the Academy student musical organizations.

The concert will be given in the large auditorium instead of Slater Annex, where League meetings are regularly held.

Mr. Farrell has selected a programme that will appeal to the expert musician and the layman as well. This is one reason for his success in concert work. Certainly, as an exponent of musical art, Mr. Farrell's musicianship, his technical mastery can always be relied upon to bring out to his listeners, all that the creators of the composition intended to convey.

Well Child Conference.

From 2 to 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 22, there is to be a well child conference at Chatham hall, East Hampton, it has been announced by the state department of health.

WATER POURING THROUGH A 800 FOOT CREVASSE

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 16—(AP)—A major break in the Big lake, Ark., levee late today was reported to the United States engineers' office here tonight. The report said water was pouring through a 800 foot crevasse and that already more than 170,000 acres of extremely valuable lands had been flooded from two to three feet deep.

BANK ROBBERS CAPTURED IN SWAMP IN LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 16—(AP)—With a policeman armed with a machine gun directing the search from an airplane, two of four bank robbers were captured today in a swamp 12 miles below New Orleans two hours after they had held up and robbed the Algiers branch of the Canal Bank and Trust company of [illegible].

The two other robbers still were at liberty despite the search of 48 heavily armed policemen and the airplane observer soaring overhead. It was believed they had fled through the thick undergrowth down the banks of the Mississippi river.

One of the missing bandits apparently was wounded by the officer's fire as the back of the automobile in which they fled was covered with blood. The automobile was abandoned 12 miles down the river after a front tire blew out.

The arrested bandits gave their names as John Ponsetto, 25, and Peter Semons, 21, both of New Orleans.

The same bank was held up on November 27 by three bandits who took $15,000. They now are serving penitentiary sentences.

GRAVE OF HORSE STOPS ROAD WIDENING PROJECT

BALLINGER, Tex.—(AP)—A horse's grave is delaying the widening of one of Texas' principal highways.

Before automobiles became common, Dr. W. W. Fowler made his calls behind Coley, a standard bred horse. Pensioned, Coley died and was buried where he used to watch automobiles pass on the highway.

Just before Dr. Fowler died he asked his heirs to see that Coley's grave be not distrubed. State highway department officials have been unsuccessful in preliminary efforts to obtain permission to move the grave and its painted fence.

"Never!" cried Our Nell, bound to the rails, her eyes blazing with defiance. "Death is preferable to a life with such as you."

"How do you make that out?" he purred.

"A rasping voice such as yours would make life a living hell," she answered him. "Unbind me, change to OLD GOLDS and maybe I'll listen to reason."

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

The Way

Just a little every day,
That's the way!
Seeds in darkness swell and grow
Tiny blades push through the snow
Never any flower of May
Leaps to blossom in a burst
Slowly—slowly—at the first
That's the way!
Just a little every day

Just a little every day,
That's the way!
Children learn to read and write,
Bit by bit and mite by mite;
Never anyone I say,
Leaps to knowledge and its power,
Slowly, slowly, hour by hour,
That's the way!
Just a little every day.

Two Boys

A boy I know,
Whose name is Joe,
Just plays for the sake of teasing;
But another boy,
They call him Roy—
He plays for the sake of pleasing.

Friends by the score
Has Roy and more—
The boy who plays to please you;
But Pure and Bess
And all the rest,
Are sure to run
From poor Joe's fun—
The boy who plays to tease you.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

The hoary marmot, or whistler, is one of the largest of our rodents. It looks much like an overgrown woodchuck of which it is a first cousin. On a quiet day its piercing whistle may be heard for a mile or more and is one of the characteristic sounds of the higher mountains of the northwestern United States.

Comparatively little is known concerning the habits of this interesting little creature. It is diurnal in its habits and likes to take up a lookout from some high rock or other commanding point near its den and there survey the surrounding country, just as an eagle loves to circle on outspread wings over the same spot for hours at a time. Here its extraordinarily keen eyesight and hearing make it most difficult to stalk, and at the first alarm it retires to the mouth of the den. If the danger comes too close it disappears inside and may not reappear for hours. Were it not for this extreme watchfulness the whistler would soon be exterminated by its natural enemies, the eagles, bears and other predatory animals.

In late summer, when the mountain sides are covered with grass and flowers, the whistler gorges itself daily and becomes excessively fat. At the approach of cold weather it retires to its den and begins the long, deathlike sleep known as hibernation, which may last six months or more.

In the spring it is out again even before the snow is gone, and a few weeks later, three or four young are born. These sometimes remain with the mother until almost grown, and may den up for the winter in the home den. The whistler is one of the most characteristic little animals of our northwest, and its passing would leave a void not to be filled by any other.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

An Autobiography of a Shoe

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you for such a long time that I think I should write. This time my story is, An Autobiography of a Shoe.

When I first saw light it was in a large factory in Massachusetts. I was made of good material and was nice and shiny. My twin was also made with me. Of course we looked just alike and was very proud of ourselves. Everyone who saw us would say, "What pretty shoes." This made me feel so happy that I almost fell off of the shelf. Our sad day finally came when we were both put into a separate box. I was unhappy and sad because I could not see my twin. That afternoon we were all put into a big box and put on to a truck. The next thing we knew we were jumping from one end of the box to the other. I cannot tell you what sad days followed.

I was taken to a station and put on a huge train with others. This was terrible and I thought I could not stand it any longer. I was just about to fall asleep when I heard someone shout, "Norwich." I was so happy, I wished I could see my twin. My wish was soon granted for about an hour later my twin and I were put into a huge window. How nice it was to see light once more.

We did not stay long in the window for we were bought by two little twins. We thought we were the happiest pair of shoes in the world. We had a very nice home. During the week we went to school and saw different parts of the city. Saturday we went shopping and Sunday we went to church. On the way from church my twin asked me if I liked Norwich. I told her, "It was one of the most beautiful cities I ever saw." My twin certainly agreed.

We were soon worn out, but were not thrown away. The little twins made us into a pair of doll shoes. Now we have no more sorrows or troubles.

I hope you all have enjoyed my story for if I write too much I am afraid I will wear out.

IDA ARNOLD, Age 13.

A Christmas Surprise

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and the Wide Awakes and I hope they will enjoy reading my story. Christmas morning waking up bright and early I found to my surprise a Christmas tree beautifully decorated. On the tree there were presents for all.

Christmas eve I hung up my stocking and Christmas morning it was filled up to the brim. In my stocking there were a pocketbook with a 1929 penny in it, an apple, an orange, and a number of nuts and a pair of beads. On the tree there were more presents for me. I got a bottle of perfume, an autograph, a painting set, and a box of writing paper, a pair of stockings, silk and wool, and a book, the name of it being "Black Beauty."

After looking my presents over, I believe the book was the best present to me. After putting my presents on the bed we had our Christmas dinner. We had chicken, mashed potatoes, cranberries, mashed turnips and carrots, for dessert we had a fruit cake, a squash pie, jello, nuts, apples, oranges, and Christmas candy. After dinner, mother and I washed the dishes. The dishes done, I took my book and read the whole afternoon. I am eleven years old and in the sixth grade. I hope you and all the Wide Awakes enjoyed your Christmas as well as I did.

My Favorite Story

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you my favorite story. It's about a dog who had no pedigree. His master died and he was sold to a man who kept a place where they sold dogs. Many people came and went but he never was sold.

At last a dog next to him was sold and he was sent by mistake to the buyer. He was frightened all through the long drive. When taken out of the crate he was in, he was a pitiful sight to behold. The buyer was enraged but as it was near Christmas couldn't return him until after Christmas.

On Christmas morn the child of the family was attacked by a bull. The dog was nearby and seeing the danger of the child charged the bull and seized him by the nose. Enraged by this the bull and the dog fought savagely. Finally the bull hurled the dog off and went to nurse his own wounds. The horror-stricken parents ran to the frightened child. Seeing that she was unharmed they turned their attention to the dog. After examining him they sent for a dog doctor. The doctor said by careful treatment the dog would live. After the dog was better he was made the guardian of the child as long as he or she lived.

My Doll's Christmas Tree

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before, so I am going to tell you about my dolls' Christmas tree.

During the summer my sister and I planned to have a dolls' Christmas tree at Christmas eve.

On December 24th we went into the woods and chopped down a small tree about three feet high. We made some colored chains then we broke open some walnuts, hazel nuts and a peanut; took the kernels from the inside and pasted the shells together again. When the paste was dry we painted the nuts different colors. We made a five-pointed star from some silver paper, then we hung it on the top of the tree. My mother gave us some broken ornaments which we put on our tree.

It was a very pretty tree when decorated. I hope all the Wide Awakes like my story and have a dolls' Christmas tree too.

Went Crabbing

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awake circle and I am going to tell you about going crabbing one afternoon last summer. A neighbor's boy came to the house and asked me to go crabbing. We started out about two o'clock and stayed until five. We caught 16 good size crabs. We caught several others but had to throw them back into the water as they were under size.

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and I hope that you and all the girls and boys will like to hear about my pet dog. He is a brown and white fox terrier. I call him Sandy. He sits up when he wants a bite of my lunch, and of course he gets a good bite of it too. He is a little dog but he can run fast. I think he will be a good watch dog. When he hears people walk by he growls and looks so ugly. I have two sisters and a brother. We all hide and make Sandy look for us. I get excited when I think he's going to find me. This is all I can tell you about Sandy. I am nine years old and I am in the fifth grade. I like to go to school very much.

Pet Dog Dies

Uncle Jed: I had a dog. His name was Little Pal. I liked him very much. One day we went to Cape Cod and we left Little Pal home. While we were gone he grabbed a little bone and ate it. Two or three days later he was sick and suffered a lot. So we brought him to the hospital. The doctor gave him all kinds of medicine but he died. I cried for my poor Little Pal.

Pet Cat Playful

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet cat. He is yellow and white. I like him so much that I could hug him to death. I can make him jump very high. He likes to be petted. If he sees anything move he runs after it and bites it. Sometimes he runs round and round after his tail. I will tell you more about him in my next story.

On The Farm

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes how I spent my summer vacation. Last summer we moved out to a farm in the town of North Stonington to spend the summer months. I spent a very happy vacation at the farm playing with my sister and brothers and going berrying. Daddy would get home from work about two-thirty and mother would have a picnic lunch ready. Then we would go for a long drive on the country road to a shady grove of trees for a picnic.

HELEN SAVAGE, Age 10.
Norwich.

Only A Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: It was a wild day. The wind a mad, whimpering uncaged creature swirled about the house. The rain dashed relentlessly against the windowpane and glanced off the roof in noisy torrents. A good day to be indoors with a crackling wood fire, I thought.

But I had to make my trip for the Evening Records. I went to cross the Greeneville bridge, but found that the bridge was over-flooded. There was nothing to do but go by the way of Preston bridge, a distance of three miles. Wondering how I would find that bridge I heard my grandmother calling "Henry! Henry, get up. It is time to go to school." Waking I found that it was only a dream and I would have a clear afternoon to deliver the Records.

HENRY SAVAGE, Age 10.
Norwich.

My Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the seventh time I have written to you but have received only one book. But this story is going to be about my vacation. All during my vacation I went sliding, but some days I could not go because I had to help my mother and there was no more snow. We got out for our vacation December 20th.

I have had a very enjoyable vacation. Now I am ready to go back to school and am willing to work hard. Because I want to pass next year. At Christmas time I got very many presents.

MYSTIC

At a recent meeting of the Woman's auxiliary of St. Mark's Episcopal church, held at the rectory, the following officers were elected: President, Miss M. Josephine Dickinson; secretary, Miss Bertha W. Foote; treasurer, Mrs. Harry A. Prentice; educational secretary, Mrs. W. J. Tucker; delegates to the annual state meeting, Mrs. E. P. S. Spencer and Mrs. W. J. Tucker; delegates to the archdeaconry meeting, Miss Dickinson and Mrs. Tucker. During the evening, an illustrated lecture, "Our Missions," proved very interesting. This showed the work done by the Episcopal church in the United States and around the world. Following this, refreshments were served.

Mrs. Henry Lankee is visiting relatives in Paterson, N. J.

The roads are beginning to break up in places. The state road men have been busy the past week, filling in the small holes. Ruts are being formed in some people's yards and it would seem that spring was just around the corner, but not so. There are still two more months of bad weather.

Lawrence Williams has been busy for several days, carting gravel onto the road into the school yard of Old Mystic school.

Mrs. John H. Thompson, who died in Westerly, was step-mother of J. Edwin Thompson of Mystic.

Walter Beauchamp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Beauchamp of New London road, celebrated his ninth birthday Tuesday afternoon. Games were played and refreshments were served. Those present were: Rose Holt, Thelma Stribl, Lucy Taylor, Gertrude Goulet, Charlotte Appleton, Ada and May Beauchamp, Benny Goulet, William Stanton, Jr., Charles Meuse, Charles Stribl, Charles Holt and Kenneth Beauchamp.

The meeting of St. Mark's Episcopal church is to be held Monday evening in the parish house.

Friends in the village have received cards from Mrs. C. F. Congdon, who with her sister, Miss Callie Chapman of Old Mystic, has been visiting the former's son, William Congdon, and family of West Chester, Pa., saying that the thermometer stayed at 80 degrees all last week. Crocuses and dandelions were in bloom. Mrs. Congdon and Miss Chapman were to leave West Chester last Sunday and return to Yonkers, N. Y., where they were to spend a few days with Miss Maude Congdon, teacher of French in a school there. They are expected to arrive in Mystic soon.

The Ladies' Aid society of Old Mystic Baptist church met with Mrs. Charles H. Burdick Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Maud C. Lawrence was appointed to attend to providing flowers for the church on Sundays. The annual meeting of the Women's Mission circle was also held in connection with the society. This meeting was in charge of the acting president, Mrs. Anna B. Caswell. After scripture reading, prayer and the reading of missionary letters, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Etta Wheeler; vice-president, Mrs. Anna Williams; secretary, Mrs. Anna Caswell; treasurer, Mrs. Emily B. Holmes.

A whist given by the Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters in K. of P. hall Tuesday evening was most enjoyable. There were ten tables in play and prizes were won by Mrs. Catherine Shackley and Charles Maxson, Mrs. Sadie Curlenjik and Leland McGrath. Refreshments were served by the committee, in charge of Mrs. Henry Ritzle.

Mrs. Rilla Lamphere has returned to Westerly, after spending a week with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith in the village.

E. S. Andrews of New London was a business caller in town Wednesday.

John Kennedy of Old Mystic was a business caller in Westerly Wednesday.

Word has been received in the village of the illness of Thomas Caperton, who is spending the winter in Oakland, Fla.

Edward Zollinger of the Sadonia Mills, Inc., has returned, after a short trip to New York.

Andrew Roux of Willimantic was in town Tuesday.

The first meeting of the year of Old Mystic Social Circle, was held in the Methodist Parish house, Monday evening. The business meeting was held in charge of the new president, Charles Tinker. Following this, refreshments and a social time were enjoyed. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Desley, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Tinker, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Tinker, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. L. Main, Mrs. Ida Norman, Mary and Albert Keeney, Amos Gallup, Raymond Smith, Lyle Davis, J. F. Meyer, J. W. Pollard, Orris and James Norman, Loretta Tinker, Junior Pollard, Ruth Keeney and a visitor.

Installation Deferred.

Owing to illness in the family of the installing officer, the officers of Phoebe Packer Ruthbun tnet, Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, were not installed Monday evening, as planned. However, the covered dish supper was served several members of the Sons of Veterans being present, and the regular business meeting was held. The installation will take place at the next meeting.

Members of Williams Woman's Relief corps were in Stonington, Monday evening, to attend the meeting of Trumbul chapter. Prior to the meeting a turkey supper was served. This was followed by the installation, the work being done by Mrs. Eleanor Lucy and staff of Mystic. Mrs. Elsie Thorpe, Mrs. Jessie Goodman, Miss Pauline Reiners, Miss R. Carrie Chapman, color bearers, Mrs. Bertha Pollard, conductor with Mrs. Marjorie Jensen, pianist. The work was done in a very impressive manner and won much praise. After the ceremonies, there were brief addresses of those present and recitations by one of the members. Gifts were presented the installing officer and the color bearers. Besides those mentioned the following were present from Mystic, Mrs. Anna Higbee, Mrs. Sarah Higbee, Mrs. Lillian Barden, Mrs. Alberta Hammond, Mrs. Alice Sherburne, Mrs. Mary Packer, Mrs. Emily Hendrickson, Mrs. Lucy Lewis, Mrs. Sarah Adamson, Mrs. Grace Berry, Mrs. Katherine Allyn, Mrs. Margaret Elderdge, Mrs. Hattie Grimes, Mrs. Grace Murphy, Mrs. Leota Wilcox, Mrs. Alice Lamb, Mrs. Louise Jones and Mrs. Cassie Neff.

LEBANUN

Lebanon Grange, No. 21, held its meeting in the town hall Thursday evening. Miss Vincent, the school nurse, spoke on inoculation of diphtheria. As Worthy Master C. H. Foster could not attend the state grange meeting in Hartford, Rev. A. G. Littlefield, who will be worthy master this year, was chosen delegate. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

Mrs. Ella Foster of Hartford and her son, J. R. Foster of Manchester, spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Foster.

Rev. A. G. Littlefield has been in Hartford attending the state grange meetings. He also attended the Baptist ministers' convention Monday.

Gov. Jonathan Tumbull chapter, D. A. R., met with Mrs. C. S. Goodwin Monday afternoon.

At the Baptist church Sunday morning Rev. A. G. Littlefield took as his text Rev. 7, part of 14 verse: "And have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the lamb." In the evening there was a union service held in the Baptist church where Rev. George H. Strouse of the Bozrah church preached. There was an anthem by the choir and a solo by Miss Beatrice Littlefield. In spite of the bad weather there was a large attendance, some coming from Bozrah, Goshen, Franklin, the First Congregational church in Lebanon and the Baptist church.

The Young Farmers' club met in the auditorium of Lyman Memorial high school Monday evening. Pictures of the corn borer and methods used to exterminate it were shown by Paul Putnam of Storrs. Walter Clark of the farm bureau was present and spoke to the club.

Miss Mary Adams of Hartford was a recent guest of Mrs. H. W. Hewitt.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Taylor spent Tuesday in Hartford.

William Williams council, No. 73, met in grange hall Tuesday evening. The following officers were installed by Patriot council of East Hampton: Vice counsellor, Lee Gardner; recording secretary, Leslie Clark; assistant recording secretary, Charles Perkins; inductor, Rodney Hewitt; examiner, Chauncy Williams; financial secretary, C. C. King; treasurer, O. L. Pults. The supper was in charge of E. F. Morse.

AMSTON

LOCAL PEOPLE FOUND THE LOST MONOPLANE

As told in The Bulletin Wednesday John Johnson, Jr., 15, whose father is employed as overseer on the Ams estate, and Fred Rowley, a game keeper and caretaker for the Amston Lake club, were rewarded in their search for the Fairchild monoplane, by coming upon the missing plane just a little way from what is known as the "stone chimney" and in the direction of the large lake. It was as though the occupants had attempted to alight upon the water. Trees for a distance of 500 feet were bruised before the plane struck a large tree which caused the ship to nose-dive and turn over. The plane evidently took fire immediately and the two occupants, Daniel Marra and William Kirkpatrick were burned so as to make them unrecognizable. Johnny and Mr. Rowley decided to make a search Tuesday morning when it was thought that the plane might have fallen in this locality as it was plainly heard overhead Friday by a number of residents, but the fog was so heavy it was impossible to see it. After the necessary data was obtained the bodies were removed to Willimantic.

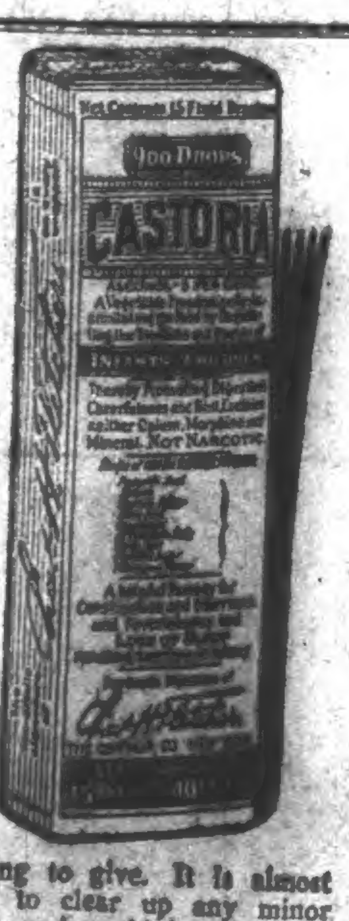
The board of selectmen held their January meeting in the Record building Tuesday afternoon.

The band held their weekly meeting in the town hall Monday night.

The checker season is on. Nightly players are seen concentrating and deliberating over the black and white squares. Horace Porter appears to be in possession of the mythical cup just at present, although the others have high hopes.

Mrs. S. M. Russell, seventy-nine of London, England, who died from injuries received when she fell getting into bed, had a skull more than one inch thick and had twice emerged uninjured after being run over by a taxicab.

When Babies CRY



Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

THE FARMER'S TALK TO FARMERS

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS IN FARMING

(Written specially for The Bulletin)

We all know, in a general way, that the Christmas holiday season is far from being a holiday to the employes of the postal service.

The flood and deluge of letters and cards and gift packages which Uncle Sam's 118,000,000 nephews and nieces take that festive week or so to send back and forth to each other has to be sifted and jammed through the mail chutes, somehow or other, not only without serious mistakes but with accelerated speed.

This means that every postal clerk and carrier, no matter just where his job lies, is all the time up to his chin in the constantly renewed tide of mail matter, and must keep all the time "on his toes" to cope with it. For the men of the postal service the "merry" Christmastide is one of hard labor and incessant worriment. Extra tasks take extra hours of work which no amount of extra but untrained outside help can wholly alleviate. No sooner is one day's Mont Blanc of piled-up mail cleaned away than next day's Mount Everest rises in its place.

The only thing for the tired clerks to do is to keep at it, to keep everlastingly at it, as it seems to them, from stiff-fingered and half-wakened morning to lame-armed and sleepy eve. Christmas is little of a holiday and the very opposite of a merry season to them.

Yet, according to the report of the postmaster of a big city whose force was just getting ready, at last, to grab a full night's sleep, after the Christmas rush had been conquered,—yet, the clerks rather like it. At least, so the postmaster says.

They are tired; they are sleepy; they are lame and sore; their nerves are all on edge and their sinews are all a-tingle with fatigue. But they have been conquering a big adversary; they have been overcoming obstacles which at first glance seemed insuperable; they have been "doing the job" despite the devil and the deep sea; and, when things quiet down to normal they wipe the sweat off their foreheads, roll down their shirt-sleeves, re-tie their disordered cravats, and shake victorious fists at Old Man Christmas. Whether expressed in so many words or not, their attitude is: "Thought we couldn't do it, didn't ye? thought you had us all tied up and snarled up and messed up so we couldn't get out, didn't ye? thought you'd put it over on us, didn't ye? Guess you don't know yet. You put up a big fight but WE LICKED YE, 'nd we're ready to do it again, whenever you're rested and start another ruction."

It isn't that the post office boys really like hard work. It isn't that they hanker after bigger loads to carry. It isn't that they're looking for chances to toil longer hours. But they have what seems to be a rather commendable trait of human nature, viz: a strong aversion to being beaten at their own game.

Having put their hands to the plow they propose to finish the furrow, even "if it takes a leg," according to the slang phrase. They simply refuse to be bluffed or bullied or beaten back till the job is done,—and done right. Bully for them, I say, and I'm taking the liberty to speak for you, dear readers, as well as for myself. We all like that spirit.

It is a spirit which doesn't ask how hard the work is but how necessary it is; a spirit which doesn't seek the easy snap but the useful task; a spirit which sees difficulties simply as things to be overcome; a spirit which doesn't count the costs so long as they produce the gains; a spirit which takes the Slough of Despond as just one bad part of the road to the Delectable Mountains.

We, therefore, all agree that it is a highly praiseworthy spirit in post office people.

How about farmers?

If it is commendable in post office and railway mail clerks and carriers, etc., to go at the extra hard work of Christmas times with a "hip, hip, hurrah," and whoop 'er through triumphantly, wouldn't it be quite as fine for farmers to tackle their hard work just as determinedly and as heartily? No one who has ever had any experience at practical farming will question that its hardest work often comes "all in a heap," and seems to pile itself up in the farmer's path like a mountainous dam. That's exactly the time for him to roll up his sleeves and go at it "hammer and tongs," as the saying is. The harder it looks, the harder he must buck it. That's all. The more impassible it seems, the greater his glory when he digs or blasts a way through it.

But, you may object, farming is a steady grind, not a once-a-year splurge like Christmas-New Years. Well, don't you s'pose that the mail clerks and the carriers are kept busy other times of the year, too? They don't have a fifty week vacation with just two weeks of rush. They have 50 weeks of steady grind, with two weeks of tug and tumult and toil superimposed upon their already sufficiently onerous loads. The farmer may still claim somewhat of a breathing spell "between hay and harvest," and a rather long semi-vacation during the winter. His nose isn't always pressed down on the grindstone. The same spirit of "sporting" cheerfulness which animates the postal people in their sortie against the Christmas siege would be worth more than ducats to farmers, facing the piling tasks of either seed-time and harvest.

There are altogether too many farmers who are scared before they're hurt. They take a peep out of the backdoor, report that there is a lion in the way, and promptly shut and bar themselves in. Generally, the "lion" is nothing more dangerous than a tom-cat or a scavenging dog. But, even if it is a real lion, who is boss? Lion or man? The beast may have longer claws and sharper teeth. But the man has brains and, if he's a properly equipped backroads farmer, a shotgun and a rifle. If he hasn't, he can S. O. S. a neighbor who has. Potting lions isn't a usual form of farming in New England. But if the cows need foddering and the lion is between the house and the barn, clearing the path is an immediate farm need. Whether of lions or of snow-drifts.

Of course, all this talk about lions is carrying things to an unwarranted extreme. It is simply to emphasize the fact that, however difficult the task looks, if it is one which must be done, the only proper thing is to do it, in one way or another.

Not to whimper over it; not to dilly-dally about it; not to fold hands and say "It can't be done," but to DO it. As God is said to temper the winds to the shorn lamb and to fit the back to the burden, it is reasonable to assume that anything which ought to be done is a thing which can be done.

It is up to the farmer as truly as the postal clerk to find out how to do and then to do it.

Right there comes in one of the chief attractions of farming to any man who is fit to be a farmer. Almost every day, certainly every season, he is confronted with new difficulties and faced by new enemies. He is "up against it" as often if not oftener than any other productive worker in the world's vineyard. He no sooner solves one puzzle than another presents itself; he no sooner overcomes one obstacle than another bulges up before him; he no sooner cuts off one dandelion weed than seven others spring up in its place; he no sooner gets the better of Apollyon than Giant Despair snatches at him. "If it isn't one thing, it's another."

Yes, and that's the beauty of it. The real joy of life isn't to be found in eating custards and ice cream. It's to be found in accomplishing things. Confections may be sweet to the palate, but victory is sweet to the soul.

The man who thinks is always happier than the man who doesn't. The man who accomplishes his purpose is always more nearly content than the one who just wishes it. The man who looks up from a good job, well done, at the pessimist who said he couldn't do it, chews a cud of much greater satisfaction than the one who turned away from it and left it undone.

Farming is full of hard jobs, of drudgeries, of apparently unrecompensed labors. It's full of surprises,—mostly disagreeable ones. It's full of jams and jolts. It's full of old bumps to which new ones are constantly being added. It's a rocky road to travel. After many years experience of it, I should be the last to minimize its hardships. But when I had eliminated a quack-bed which had forbidden cultivation for years, or had harvested a 1,200 bushel crop of A No. One onions, despite wireworms and cutworms and maggots, off an acre given over by my predecessor as hopelessly unplowable, or had accomplished some other particularly hard job, I knew what real triumph meant. And I enjoyed the feeling as I have enjoyed few others.

Of course, the farmer doesn't always succeed, even when he plans most shrewdly and works most faithfully. Also, of course, he makes mistakes. Teddy Roosevelt was right when he said the only people who never made a mistake were the ones who never did anything. Human wisdom is fallible and human effort isn't always adequate.

But, when all is admited that its enemies assert, the fact remains that farming calls out and develops a sturdy virility of which the world can't have too much. It tends to eliminate the word "can't" from the rural lexicon. It stimulates inventiveness and fertilizes resource. It keeps its votaries "on their toes" most of the time. It isn't, when rightly considered, a life of mere plodding around a circumscribed circle, but a life calling for alertness and both mental and physical activity.

The one great secret of success in it,—and "success" isn't always synonymous with money-getting,—is to find in it the opportunity for accomplishment.

The sense of hard work bravely done, of difficulties mastered, of obstacles overcome, of adversaries conquered, is one of the biggest joys this world can give.

It offers that joy to grubbing farmers just as truly as to tired postal clerks,—or to Rockefellers or Fords.

THE FARMER.

In the Spotlight

Magistrate Albert H. Vitale, in the spotlight in New York because guests at a dinner in his honor were held up although most of their valuables, including a detective's gun, were later returned, once more takes the center of the stage. U. S. District Attorney Charles H. Tuttle, of New York, discloses that the name and telephone number of the magistrate were found among the personal effects of an alleged leader of a rum ring, following a federal raid. In the last mayoralty campaign it was disclosed that the magistrate had borrowed $19,940 from Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler and financial backer of drug rings.

STOCKS WERE HIGHER IN EARLY HOURS, BUT WERE SOLD OFF IN THE LAST HOUR

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The struggle for control of the price trend on the stock market was intensified today, and sales of more than 3,000,000 shares were piled up for the first time this year. Stocks moved irregularly higher during the early hours of the session, but sold off in the last hour, and the majority of the more active shares closed off 1 to 4 points, a reversal of yesterday's movement.

Bears shifted their point of attack from Montgomery Ward to Radio, depressing this erstwhile bull vehicle 3 1-2 points to 38. Coppers, motors and oils also sagged in response to rather unfavorable trade reports. The utilities, however, were in urgent demand during the major part of the day, and while closing substantially below the day's best levels, generally ended the session moderately higher. Several important industrials were bid substantially higher, only to lose their gains before the close.

Hopes of a lower rediscount rate were dashed for another week. The Bank of England retained its 5 per cent rate, and therefore the New York Reserve bank naturally made no further reduction its rate of 4 1-2 per cent. The weekly statements of central banks both here and abroad, however showed considerable improvement. For the first time in months, the Bank of England's gold reserve was above the minimum set by the Cunliffe commission, and advices from London indicated that a lower rate was only a matter of weeks. The federal reserve system's condition statement disclosed a marked reduction in rediscounting with the passing of the year end demands, lifting its reserve ratio to 75.4 per cent, compared to 67 a year ago.

Money rates continued fairly easy. Call loans renewed at 4 1-2 per cent and again dropped to 4. Time money was dull, but continued to show an easier tone. Improvement in credit conditions is reflected by the fact that bond offerings this week are in excess of $300,000,000, the largest for any peacetime week. Brokers loans showed a nominal increase for the week of $12,000,000. The large bond offerings, however, will tend to jack up the total during the next two weeks.

The day's business news included further crude oil price cuts, believed to reflect efforts to force curtailment of production; a sharp decline in copper production during December, despite the fact that stocks of the metal on hand gained sharply; and the General Motors annual report on sales to dealers and dealers sales to users. Only a slight increase in General Motors sales to users was shown, and an accumulation of approximately 39,000 cars in dealers hands was indicated.

In the utilities, United Corp., Commonwealth and Southern and United Gas Improvement, the Morgan-Bonbright group, were traded in huge volume, accounting for about 10 per cent of the day's trading. United Corp. sold up about a point in response to its favorable annual report, but closed unchanged. Commonwealth and Southern and United Gas Improvement closed about a point higher. Consolidated Gas made a similar gain in heavy trading, in response to the first official intimation of a hook-up with Niagara Hudson Power. Fox Film A was active and strong on announcement of the plan to float an issue of short term notes, to meet pressing obligations, but reacted in the late trading.

The drive on the radio shares was coupled with a report that General Electric and Westinghouse Electric will market radio sets. This need not adversely affect Radio Corp., however, as it has a half interest in R. C. A.-Victor, which is expected to manufacture the sets. Crosley Radio and Zenith fell to new lows. General Electric, on the other hand, rose about 5 points but closed up only 1. A few of the more closely held stocks, such as International Silver, National Lead and Peoples Gas closed about 7 to 8 points higher.

American Tobacco, Anaconda, J. I. Case, Cerro de Pasco, Columbia Graphophone, Du Pont, General American Tank, Magma Copper, Standard of N. J., Texas Corp., U. S. Industrial Alcohol, and U. S. Steel lost about 2 to 4 points. Auburn Auto dropped 7 and Federal Light 9. Several of the motors sagged about a point, General Motors closing off 1 5-8.

In the commodity markets wheat futures again lost about 1 1-2 cents, disturbed by reports of large Argentine shipments. Corn lost nearly as much, and cotton closed barely steady.

Foreign exchanges were largely steady. Sterling cables were 1-16 higher at $4.87 15-16, in response to the unchanged discount rate. Franc cables were firm at 3.93 cents.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The line of least resistance in today's curb market was downward although losses in many of the active issues were held to a point or less. Trading was moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales falling just short of 900,000 shares.

Whereas most of the oil shares were heavy in reflection of an extension of recent crude oil price cuts, the pipe line issues showed conspicuous strength. Cumberland Pipe Line advanced 4 points, Missouri-Kansas 2 5-8, Eureka 3, Illinois 2 and Buckeye 7-8. Humble Oil and Standard Oil of Ohio each dropped 3 points, Gulf Oil 2 1-4 and Indian Territory Standard Oil of Kansas and a few others yielded a point or so.

Utilities generally failed to maintain their early gains, although New England Telephone jumped 5 points on a few odd lot sales and Cities Service showed slight recessions, while American Superpower warrants, United Gas, United Light & Power A and Niagara & Hudson Power recorded small net gains.

Hoover Steel Ball broke 2 1-2 points to a new record low at 12 1-2. Several of the aviation stocks lost a point or so. Radio shares apparently were not affected by the weakness of that group on the "big board." Dubilier and De Forest improving fractionally. Most of the leading investment trust and trading corporation shares showed only narrow fractional changes. One lot of 10 shares of Safeway Stores second warrants changed hands at 270, a jump of 50 points above the previous sale.

WALL STREET BRIEFS

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Structural steel awards during the past week amounted to 27,000 tons, an increase of 20,000 tons over the previous week. Inquiries, however, showed a decrease of 1,000 tons from the 21,000 figure of last week.

Directors of Remington-Rand, Inc., have extended to Nov. 1, 1930, the time for exercising the warrants attached to the 5 1-2 per cent bonds, which give holder rights to purchase common stock at $55 a share in the ratio of 2 1-2 shares for each $500 bond.

Charles F. McKane, president of the Chase National bank, has been elected a director of the National Cash Register Co., succeeding S. W. Howland, who resigned following his becoming associated with Guggenheim Brothers to whose companies he is devoting his entire time.

Iron Age reports that the Southern Pacific has ordered 500 automobile-furniture cars from the Pressed Steel Car Co. and 100 gondola cars from the Ralston Steel Car Co. The Louisville & Nashville R. R. is expected to enter the market soon for 1,800 freight cars, and the Seaboard Air Line to double its recent inquiry for 1,000 cars.

The Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. has placed an additional blast furnace in operation, making 15 furnaces active out of 24 in that district.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 16—(AP)—Apprehension that Canadian wheat is being sold for export ahead of United States wheat received much blame for late downturns in wheat prices here today. Extreme weakness of the Winnipeg wheat market precipitated a flood of selling here toward the last, with consequent breaks in prices dislodging many standing orders to let future delivery holdings go at various fixed limits so as to put a stop to losses. Export purchases of North American wheat today were larger than of late, aggregating 1,000,000 bu., but most of the total consisted of wheat grown in Canada.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat were shaky, 1-2c to 1 7-8c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed 1 1-8c to 1 3-8c down, oats 1-2c to 7-8c off, and provisions varying from 5 to 7c decline to a rise of 25c.

Crashing down of wheat values today in the final hour of trading came after the market here had shown a noticeable upward trend during the greater part of the preceding time. The advances were accompanied by reports that Brazil was asking for offers of wheat from North America, and that an evident reason was the poor quality of the new wheat crop in Argentina, where Brazil ordinarily obtains wheat supplies but where this season it is officially estimated ten million bushels is unmerchantable. Besides, Argentine exports this week showed a deciding falling off in volume both as compared with the week previous and a year ago.

Lowest prices of the day in the Chicago wheat market prevailed at the finish, contrasting with the fact that the Liverpool close today showed 1 penny to 1 3-4 pence gain, an upturn which had not generally been looked for by traders in Chicago. The late downward sweep of the market here was also in the face of the fact that the Farmers National Grain corporation had given orders for purchase of durum wheat in domestic markets northwest.

Another stimulating influence, the effect of which, however, proved to be only transient, was an estimate from a leading authority here that although United States wheat stocks in sight are 40,000,000 bu. more than was the case last year, the invisible supply at present is 20,000,000 bushels less than the corresponding total a year ago.

Corn and oats plunged downgrade acting in sympathy with wheat market weakness. Besides, arrivals of corn in Chicago today showed enlargement, and weather conditions were of a character to promote corn movement.

Provisions averaged higher, with special attention being given to reports showing that notwithstanding this is the height of the winter packing season an increase of only 600,000 pounds in stocks of lard has taken place during the last two weeks, compared with 16,000,000 pounds increase a year ago.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—Bonds held firm today in a market that was busy only in spots. A continuation of Wednesday's heaviness would not have been surprising in view of the fact that all peace-time records for new bond offerings are being broken this week, but the list gave a good account of itself. Closing prices were generally the highest of the day, although net changes held to the smaller fractions.

The strongest point was the foreign division where numerous issues surpassed or equalled their highs for the past year. French governments turned over in large amounts, the 7 1-2s touching 120 and the 7s making 114 1-4. Belgian Stabilization 7s, Greek Government 7s, Japanese 6 1-2s, several French municipals, Norway 6s and Rotterdam 6s were others exceeding their 1929 peaks. German 7s failed to attract attention and the day's sales involved only $2,000 principal amount, with the quotation holding unchanged at 107.

Time money eased a little, which was a favorable factor, but the ability of the list to hold up under the burden of more than $300,000 in new bonds placed so far this week became quickly apparent in the early trading, and sentiment improved as the session progressed.

A few bonds were very active. The new American Telephone 5s changed hands to the extent of nearly $700,000 for a tiny net loss. The Chesapeake & Ohio 4 1-2, another newcomer trading on a when issued basis, squeezed past yesterday's offering price of 94 but returned to the latter figure, showing a good turnover. Chicago & Northwestern convertible 4 3-4s met some selling in a lively market and dropped to 99 1-2, a low for this recently listed bond. Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s showed an exceptionally large volume, closing without net change at 102.

Rails edged up and down within narrow limits. Chesapeake & Ohio 5s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas prior lien 5s, New York Central 3 1-2s, Pennsylvania General 4 1-2s and Southern Railway General 4s eased and a few prime issues, including Union Pacific 4s, Pennsylvania 5s, and Lehigh Valley of Pennsylvania 4 1-2s, lost as much as a point on inconsequential transactions. There was compensating improvement in Southern Pacific 4s, Western Maryland 4s, Erie Convertible 4s, series A, Big Four 4s and Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Series B.

Industrials and utilities steadied noticeably. Fisk Rubber 8s recovered yesterday's decline while International Cement 5s, Liggett & Myers 5s, Utah Power & Light 5s and New York Edison 5s rose 1, to 1 1-2 points.

Aside from a turnover of nearly $750,000 in American Telephone 4 1-2s, there was little to note in the convertibles and net fluctuations were fractional.

United States Governments had another dull day, clinging close to Wednesday's final quotations.

DERICCO TO BE CHARGED WITH MURDER OF GARDNER

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 16.—First degree murder is expected to be the charge lodged Friday, in the Third district court against James Dericco, 32, of 33 1-2 Oak street by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, as the result of a revolver shot from which Atwood Gardner died at the Westerly hospital at 9:50 p. m., Wednesday. Gardner resided at the George Cottrell farm, near the Westerly Town farm, and was the son of Frank Gardner, a wood chopper of Jewett City, and the late Mrs. Victoria Gardner of Westerly. A brother, Levi McKinley Gardner, lives at Gordon's Grand View farm on the Westerly-Norwich road, and an aunt, Mrs. Edith Symons, at Shewville, Conn.

Wednesday, Dr. Joseph O'Connell, specialist, of Providence, came to the Westerly hospital, but upon examination, is understood to have found the wound so serious that nothing could be done for Gardner. An autopsy on Gardner's body was performed at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon by Drs. M. H. Scanlon and C. Grant Savage.

Dericco, who is married and has nine children, has been held at police headquarters since the shooting.

The authorities claim that Gardner made a statement before he died, to Dr. Scanlon, medical examiner, Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Town Solicitor John Ferguson, which named Dericco as his assailant. Dericco was arrested at his home on Oak street a few minutes after the shooting on the railroad tracks of the New Haven road at the foot of Marion avenue, off Oak street. Dericco has denied the shooting and claims that he was home in bed by 7 o'clock Tuesday night.

The members of the Westerly police department again Thursday made a search for the revolver believed to have been used in the assault, but have been unable to locate it.

Win Cup Second Time

A social and dance was tendered the members of the sales department of the South County Public Service Co., Wednesday night, at the Morrone-Castagna hall by other company employes. The salesmen and saleswomen of the company were recently awarded for the second time the silver trophy cup offered by the New England Power association to the sales department making the best showing in the sale of merchandise during the year. A third win will give the stores of the South County company permanent possession of the trophy. There was dancing Wednesday evening to music furnished by Pep's orchestra. Refreshments were served. The committee in charge consisted of H. A. Stockbridge, Robert L. Spargo, A. A. Ziegler, Frank M. Johnson, H. A. Kingsley and Ray Hatfield.

Having given various places as his home address and letters found on him showing a Hartford residence at one time, Albert Hale of Los Angeles, Cal., who was taken into custody by the Westerly and Pawcatuck police, charged with larceny of goods said to be valued at $100 from B. E. Power, traveling salesman, was released Thursday afternoon by Chief Thomas E. Brown and ordered to leave the town. It was claimed he stole boys' clothing out of an automobile parked in front of the P. H. Opie Co. store on High street.

The Westerly Pastors' association at a meeting Wednesday in the Library building, President Rev. Arnt L. Schoning presiding, voted to hold a union service of the churches of Westerly in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the 18th amendment, in the First Baptist church, Sunday evening, Jan. 26, at 7 o'clock.

Stop Bad Breath

Thousands of people afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

Olive Tablets bring no griping pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after 20 years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound; you will know them by their olive color. Take nightly for a week and note the effect. 15c, 30c, 60c.

BRAZILIAN PARROT AT 51 IS A WISE AND CLEVER PET

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Livingstone have a parrot that came from Brazil and is 51 years old. It has been in the family over 40 years. The color of the South American bird is green, with a dash of yellow on its back. It is named Jerry. Miss Frances Livingstone, their daughter, sits for hours training Jerry, which now will crow like a rooster early in the morning to get the family up for breakfast and is better than a Big Ben alarm clock. The parrot has no school to go to, but knows his A, B, C's; can say them as fast as a red-haired school boy. He sings several songs.

Jerry put over a funny one as every one was sitting down to breakfast and rain was falling outside. Jerry started to sing the song, "Singing in the Rain" one of the latest song hits of Broadway; and whistle, Gee! it's as sweet as a bird in a tree. When Miss Marian plays the piano he will do the Harvard Hop and sure can step it off a little faster than the music. Miss Frances will take Jerry on her finger, walk to the post office after the mail, and if any one tries to touch the South American bird he will bite. Not many parrots like candy but when Marian will make fudge and Jerry smells it cooking he will make his mouth go, meaning that he would like to have some. So when the store till fudge is cool, Jerry is given a piece, taking it with his left foot, eating it, then taking a handkerchief and wiping off his beak. He will say "Thank you."

One day as Jerry was left alone in the house a knock came at the door. It was a lace and towel salesman. The parrot said "come in!" but the door was locked. The salesman said "want to buy any lace or towels?" The parrot answered back "give me two towels and a cake of soap! I want to take a bath and then try a little water on your own neck!" The salesman was getting mad thinking some one in the house was talking. Then he looked in the window and saw the parrot giving him the laugh. Man o' boy! how mad he was!

One day George Deveau, a red-shirted smoke eater was passing the house on his way to the dock to go and mend a net. Jerry, the trained parrot, cried out "Fire!" The Smoke Eater listened and the voice came again. So he ran fast as a football player racing to the promised land, for the engine room, jumped on the Red Fire engine bound for the fire, till he was told there was no fire. "Well, I heard a voice on Rogers avenue from a house!" "Well," Smiling Charles Ellis claimed "It was Bert Livingstone's trained parrot." Jerry put over a fast one on Hoseman, George Deveau and the smallest fireman, Charles Ellis enjoyed a laugh till the tears rolled down his vest, while the red shirt fireman was so mad he was biting his nails.

The bird's owner, Bert Livingstone claims he has the oldest parrot in the village and maybe around the state. An old sea captain in a square-rigged ship sailed from Brazil with a load of bananas or cocoanuts and got this parrot and took it on his trip for a long ride across the Atlantic's waves. Capt. Amos Moore said at that time the parrot sure kept the crew laughing and helped pass the long hours on the sea. In those days, where there were no engines to push the boats along it took about 40 days from Brazil to New Bedford, Mass. A day's work on the ship was from sun to sun. When the square-rigged Boo-peep landed in New Bedford bay with the cargo, Mr. Livingstone was about and helped unload. When the ship was empty, ready for another trip, Capt. Moore said "young man, would you like to have a parrot as a playmate?" All smiles, Bert took the bird home and has had him ever since; that was nearly 50 years ago.

Once in a while Jerry will call "all hands on deck! get the brooms for a deck wash!" knowing that he has a good memory for what he learned so long ago. With the windows open in the summer time he will sing so that people stop for 10 minutes to hear his sweet voice. He can count as high as 25. Sometimes Jerry will start to whistle "Over There, the Yank's Are Coming!" he heard all those songs in war-time. Miss Frances is some proud of the parrot "glad to have Jerry around—does not make anybody lonesome when he gets talking a blue streak! It's hard to stop him!"

If anyone tries to pet him on the head, Jerry doesn't like that, he will bite hard, sometimes might mean a stitch or two and if some one shakes hands with the owner Bert, the parrot will get so mad—thinks his master is getting hurt. He will bite his toe-nails until the person sits down. It seems strange that a parrot takes such a liking to his master and to his family.

A stick of chewing gum was given to him and it was fun to see him chew the gum. It seemed as though one part of his mouth would get stuck. Jerry is well trained and takes his Saturday night bath in the middle of the week; ducks his head like a jack-knife diver off a dock. Never seen anything like it ever. Quick as a flash he picks up things and can remember back 50 years, things that happened. Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone are proud of Jerry; they have been offered a large sum for him but would not sell their household pet.

GALES FERRY

The local auxiliary of the Woman's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church met Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. B. Irving Hurlbutt. Seventeen members and three visitors were in attendance. The president, Mrs. John Harold, presided, and announced the program prepared by Mrs. Emil A. Gunuskey. The hymn, The Old Rugged Cross, was the opening number, Miss Alice Satterlee accompanying at the piano. Miss Satterlee also conducted the devotions from the new book, Jesus and Our Pressing Problems.

The recording secretary, Mrs. Morton E. Crawford, read the roll-call and minutes of the last meeting, and Mrs. Courtland E. Colver, treasurer, gave a report. A letter from Mrs. Robert Bitgood, conference president of the W. H. M. S., inviting the auxiliary to a group devotional meeting at the New London M. E. church, January 30, at 2 o'clock, was read by Mrs. Harold. Readings, Contacts with Our Mexican Friends, A Poem, and My Boys at Rose Gregory Houchen Settlement, were given by Mrs. Colver, Mrs. Lucy A. Hurlbutt and Mrs. Marie Cathcart. An article on Enforcement of Prohibition and Violations of the Law, was read by Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins. Mrs. Jerome Greer gave an interesting talk on the national meeting of the W. H. M. S. held at Grand Rapids, Mich., last October, and of the inspiration to be gained by meeting with the leaders of the work. Mrs. Gunuskey conducted the mission enigmas and presented the members new year calendar cards with the selections.

The February meeting is to be held at the church with Mrs. Gunuskey and Mrs. Crawford hostesses. A social hour followed the program. Chicken salad, biscuits, cake and cocoa were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Rufus Hurlbutt and Mrs. Henry W. Hurlbutt.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Parker with Mr. Parker's mother, Mrs. Richard S. Parker, have been in attendance at the annual convention of the Master Painters' association, held at the Stratfield hotel, Bridgeport, Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. William K. Wright, of Sterling, passed the week end here with Mr. Wright and his mother, Mrs. George H. Wright.

Miss Gertrude D. Allen entertained Miss Doris Bryson, of New London, at her home at Long Cove, the first of the week.

The roadway in the western section of the village, leading past the Tale buildings, has been greatly improved by several loads of gravel delivered by Emil Gunuskey for the town of Ledyard.

Mrs. Jerome Greer, corresponding secretary of the New England Southern conference, Woman's Home Missionary society, was a speaker Wednesday at a meeting of the New Bedford district W. H. M. S. in that city. Mrs. Greer also visited her parents Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Sears, at Dighton, Mass., while away.

Mrs. Orville D. Allen and sons Robert and Paul of Long Cove were entertained recently for the day by Mrs. Emil Gunuskey.

Mrs. Allen Shaw Bush entertained at a sewing party for the afternoon recently. Her guests included local friends with Mrs. Colby Morgan of Mystic, and her mother, Mrs. Delphis Fish, of the village, who is her guest for sometime during the winter months. Mrs. Everett Noyes is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Bush.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harold, of the submarine base, entertained their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Maillot, of New York, recently.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood were sorry to learn that Mrs. Margaret Bitgood was in the hospital at Norwich. They hope to hear of her recovery soon.

Mrs. William Bitgood received a telephone call from Mrs. George Gallup on Ekonk Hill Jan. 14. She hadn't spoken to her before since she came from Florida last spring. She had a letter from her just before she and Mr. Gallup came home. They did not go back this fall. Mrs. Bitgood says she doesn't care anything about going to Florida. Old Eastern Voluntown is good enough for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood received the sad news of the death of Maggie Riddell in New Hampshire. She one time worked for Mr. and Mrs. Bitgood. She was with them eight years. She was a very nice girl. She once lived in Oneco. She leaves a father, mother, two sisters and two brothers to mourn her loss besides many friends that knew her.

Thomas Lewis has gone to Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fenner's at Bailey pond to do a little work for them. He then will go and see his daughter and grand children at Coventry, R. I.

Maurice Harrington and William Bitgood were at the store at Beach pond Monday afternoon.

Augustus Sweet of Oneco died at Brewster's Neck hospital Jan. 13.

Augusta Sweet of Oneco died at Brewster's Neck hospital Jan. 19. Her father and uncle live in Oneco. She was brought home for burial. She will be buried in Oneco cemetery.

Mrs. Bitgood is sorry to hear that Dr. Gardner of Central Village remains so sick.

Mrs. Bitgood was glad to hear that Mary Douglas of Sterling is on the gain.

Mrs. Bitgood had a poor spell Sunday. She has a bad stomach. She has been having ulcers break in her stomach of late. She thinks that was what made her feel so bad. She is better at this writing.

Charles Douglass is helping Mrs. Halkman at Beach pond, build a hen house. Mr. Halkman expects 1200 chicks soon. He has lots of hens and chicks now.

Mr. and Mrs. Halkman and daugh-
Mr. and Mrs. Halkman's daughter is home from New York for a while.

James Dixon of Oneco remains about the same.

WILSONVILLE

Four children of Mr. Langeliers are ill with scarlet fever.

A number of others here have bad colds.

Mr. and Mrs. James Welch celebrated their forty-sixth wedding anniversary last Wednesday. Relatives from Worcester and New London, also local friends attended. The event was enjoyed by all.

John Sobesik returned home from New York Sunday morning.

Ella Sobesik of Pascoag spent the week end at her home here.

WINDHAM

Twelve were present at the annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary society held with Miss Gertrude Arnold. The average attendance at the 18 meetings during the year was 10 and the work accomplished included 13 kimonos, layette, three patch work comfortables, 24 napkins, two tablecloths, four roller towels. $231 was raised, of which $80 was given to home missions, $81 to foreign missions and $21 to the Boy Pioneers. The officers were re-elected, President, Mrs. F. E. Guild; vice presidents, Mrs. S. C. Higbie, Mrs. A. E. Harvey; secretary, Miss Dorothy Brown; treasurer, Miss Clara Johnson; sewing committee, Mrs. Gertrude Arnold, Mrs. Edward Phillips. Following the business session the chapter from the study book, World Needs and Christianity, was given by Mrs. Simmons.

A flock of 25 or 30 evening grosbeaks were seen in a crab apple tree at H. C. Lathrop's Monday morning.

The annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held in the chapel Monday afternoon, the president, Mrs. John Webster, in charge. The report of the year's work was given by the secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Eden Cook. The receipts from suppers, plays, food sales, etc., were $788.42 and there is a balance of $162.89. A new Bible has been purchased for the pulpit and a bulletin board.

It was voted to pay the organist's salary of three dollars a Sunday, to give $5 for music and $25 to the Woman's Missionary society. New dishes are to be purchased, etc. The officers elected for 1930 are: President, Mrs. Alfred Harvey; vice president, Mrs. Edward Smiley, Mrs. Daniel Trigger; secretary and treasurer, Miss Gertrude Arnold.

The monthly church night public service will be held Friday. There will be motion pictures of European scenes and refreshments will be served.

The church meeting and roll call will be held Jan. 24. Supper will be at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Annie K. Martin of Willimantic has been caring for Mrs. Alfred Harvey, who has been ill with grip.

Miss Helen Crandall of Norwich has organized a children's dancing class meeting in the school hall Thursday.

George Cook, Miss Marguerite Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Eden Cook were in Providence Sunday to attend the funeral of their sister-in-law and aunt, Mrs. Coombs.

Miss Marie Rizzo went to New York Monday to visit Mr. and Mrs. John Woods who have an apartment there until April.

William B. Elliot who died in Willimantic Saturday was a native of Windham. He is survived by his wife, a son, Donald, of Hartford, and his mother, Mrs. Ann E. Towne of Windham.

Although the weather was unpleasant Sunday about 30 were present at the morning service at the Congregational church to hear Rev. Paul Sanger of Chaplin, who preached an excellent sermon: What Think Ye of Christ. In the evening eleven went to the union service in South Windham, where Rev. Mr. Dorwood gave an interesting account of his experiences as a missionary in Africa.

LIBERTY HILL

There was a large circle around the moon Wednesday evening.

An automobile became stalled on Tobacco street road Wednesday afternoon. Joe De Zadul pulled it out with a pair of horses.

The mercury was 65 Thursday. Toward night there came a sudden change to cooler and the wind veered from southwest to easterly.

Heavy fog prevailed Friday until noon. The wind changed to north and grew colder in the evening and a few flakes of snow fell. The mercury dropped from 38 to 18 in the evening. Saturday morning it was near zero, according to locality. There was a circle around the moon Friday evening.

Sunday morning there was snow, rain and hail, with the mercury at 30. There was rain in the afternoon. The ice had disappeared by Tuesday morning.

Sunday morning, at the Exeter Liberty Hill church, Rev. John H. Knott used for his text, "So is he that layeth up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God." Luke 12:21.

Mrs. John Kinnaird with her sister, Mrs. W. E. Sheldon, of South Salem, N. Y., who is staying with her for a few weeks, spent Sunday with their niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Winsor, in Plainfield.

Monday evening, at the meeting of Liberty Hill Men's club, an alarm clock was presented Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dimon, as a wedding gift. Mr. Dimon is a member of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich were in Hartford Thursday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Foote, Mrs. Annie L. Harver and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Adams were in Hebron Thursday, to attend the funeral of Miss Eunice C. Porter, held at Hebron church.

There are still many ranches of more than 100,000 acres in the south west.

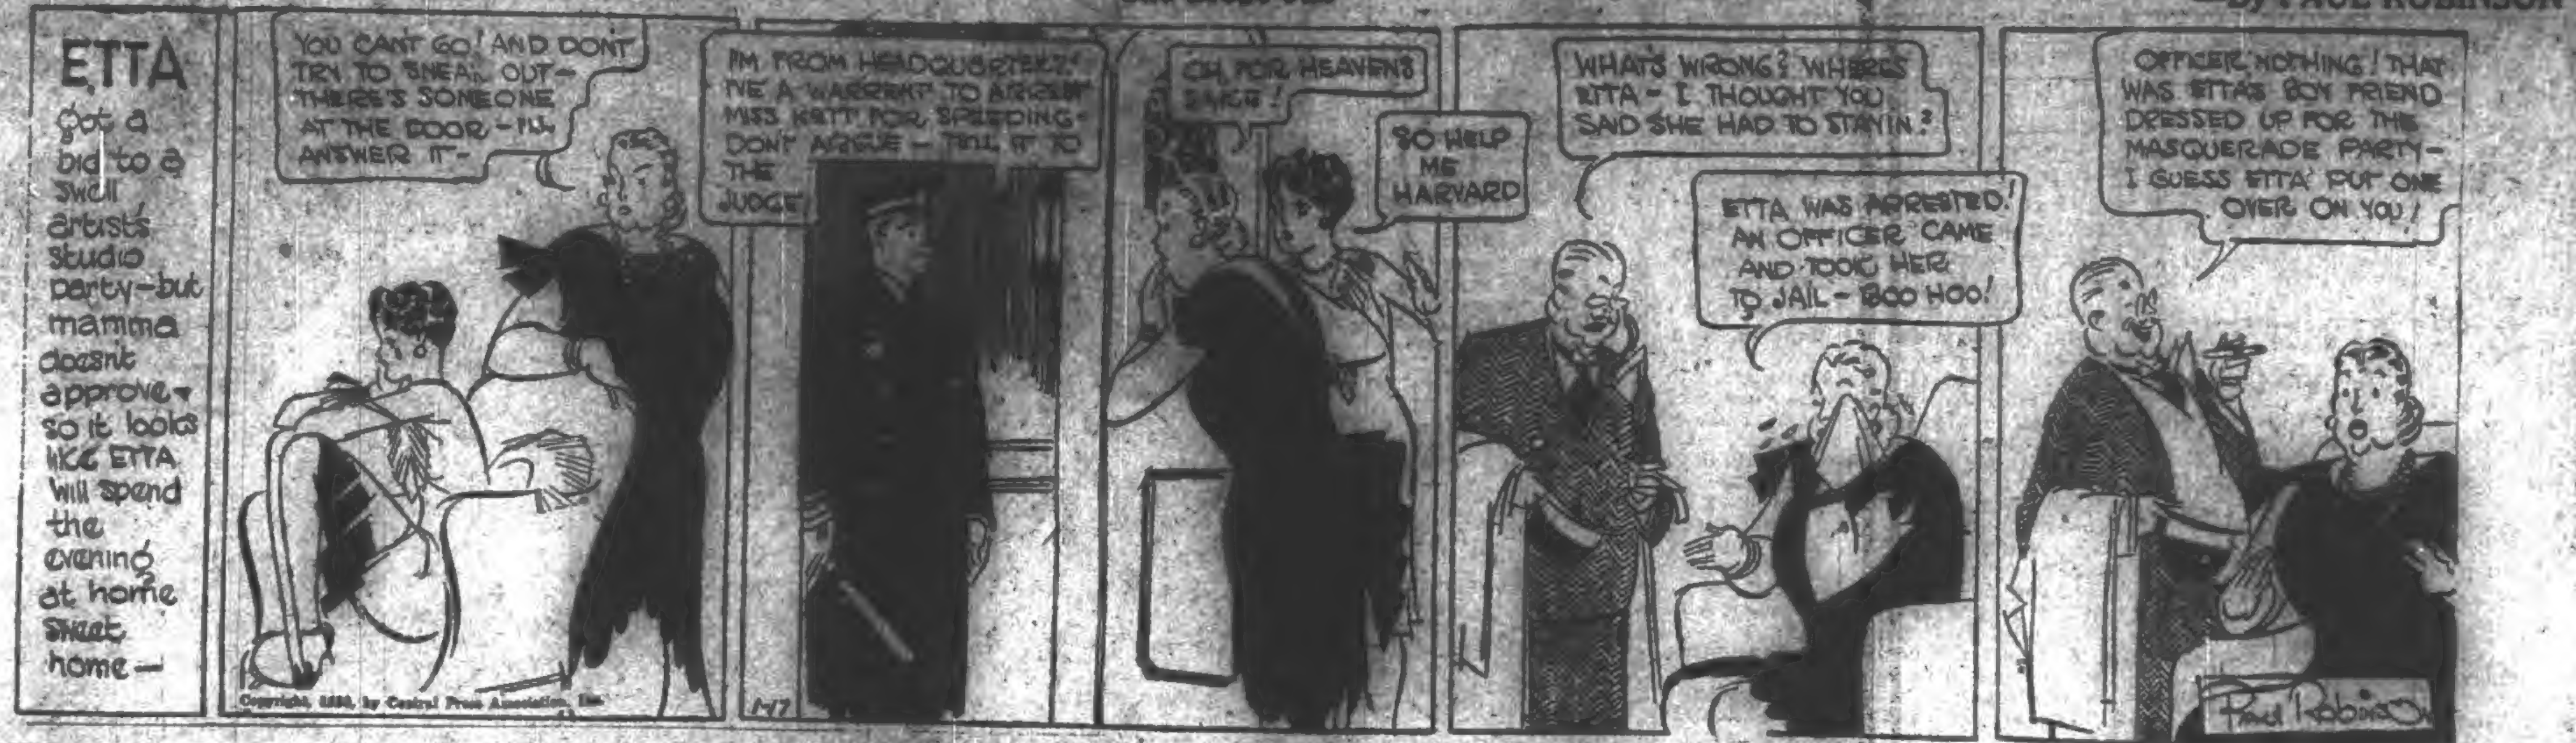
ETTA KETT

She Broke Jail

—By PAUL ROBINSON



ETTA got a bid to a swell artist's studio party—but mamma doesn't approve—so it looks like ETTA will spend the evening at home sweet home—
YOU CAN'T GO! AND DON'T TRY TO SNEAK OUT—THERE'S SOMEONE AT THE DOOR—I'LL ANSWER IT—
I'M FROM HEADQUARTERS! I'VE A WARRANT TO ARREST MISS KETT FOR SPEEDING—DON'T ARGUE—TELL IT TO THE JUDGE
OH, FOR HEAVEN'S SAKE!
SO HELP ME HARVARD
WHAT'S WRONG? WHERE'S ETTA—I THOUGHT YOU SAID SHE HAD TO STAY IN?
ETTA WAS ARRESTED! AN OFFICER CAME AND TOOK HER TO JAIL—BOO HOO!
OFFICER NOTHING! THAT WAS ETTA'S BOY FRIEND DRESSED UP FOR THE MASQUERADE PARTY—I GUESS ETTA PUT ONE OVER ON YOU!

STATE HEALTH DEPARTMENT WARNS OF PARROT FEVER

The recent appearance of psitticosis (parrot fever) in the United States has caused persons to make inquiries at the office of the state department of health. The occurrence of this disease in the United States is simply a reminder that diseases of domestic animals may produce disease among humans. Connecticut is in no danger of having parrot fever spread to the state as the result of the appearance of this disease in Maryland, unless infected parrots are brought here. The disease is one common to parrots, and when human beings get the disease from parrots it is usually limited to the household where the sick pet parrots are kept. The disease in parrots is a severe and fatal enteritis. The disease is easily spread from parrots to humans, the germs causing it being present in the excreta of the parr and in handling the parrot someone material on their hands. [illegible] th mouths resulting in the disea called psittacosis or parrot fever.

This disease produces a fever si lar to typhoid fever in type. The p tient becomes dull and in a stuporc condition. About two-thirds of the p tients recover unless pneumonia se in. If pneumonia occurs the patie usually dies.

The way in which to avoid havi this disease is to wash your hands a er handling parrots or parrot cag and do not handle a sick parrot or t cage but report the fact that your pa rot is sick to your health officer.

Markers describing historical points of interest for the benefit of tourists are to be erected along Massachusetts highways within a year. One hundred such markers are to be put in place as soon as possible, and plans call for the erection of 100 or 200 more later. The markers will be modeled after those now in use throughout Virginia.

Failure to keep on the right side of the road when the motorist's view is obstructed is the principal cause of automobile accidents, at least in Massachusetts. Out of a total of 3,556 accident cases studied, this factor prevailed in 684 instances. Other causes were listed as follows: Speeding, 89; drunken driving, 417; failure to keep right side of road when meeting vehicles, 498; reckless driving 555; unlicensed driving, 282.

To encourage the repopulation of France, the government is considering setting aside five crosses of the Legion of Honor each year to be awarded to veteran Frenchmen and Frenchwomen who can count at least 100 descendants living or dead on the field of honor. Even with those unusual conditions, there are already dozens of French who can qualify. In the two departments of Nord and Pas-de-Calais there are six candidates for recognition, and in the south where large families are the rule there should be many more.

To save wear and tear on your nerves, put shock absorbers on your ash cans, suggests Francis E. Fronczak, Buffalo's health commissioner. The simplest method is to place rubber or hempen mats on the sidewalk where the ash collectors drop the cans. However, that might be a temptation to some economically-minded neighbor to procure his shock absorbers when the owners failed to be on the lookout. Therefore, Fronczak suggests that the mats be nailed, glued, tied or otherwise permanently fastened to the bottoms of the cans.

OBBERY THE MOTIVE OF JACOB WHEMAN MURDER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—In their atempt to capture Charles Williams, olored, a barge cook, whose home is n Norfolk, Va., charged with the murer of Jacob Wheman, of 35 Shapley treet, Linwood Farrell, 17, of 535 Main treet; William P. (Rattlesnake Pete,) ranklin, Hill street; Ernest Johnson, ater, Potter street and Irving Gillian, ill street, all colored, who were arested yesterday and the day before as itnesses, were ordered held today hen Coroner Edward G. McKay, of orwich, came to New London and uestioned the youth and three men. When presented in the police court heir cases were continued to the 27th nst., and bail of $3,000 each, was ordred. The Negroes could not obtain a urety and were committed to jail.

The police have obtained admissions rom the Negroes in custody and from tatements made by them, Williams nd he alone, was responsible for Wheman's death and robbery was the otive. It is known that Wheman was n a Main street restaurant last Satrday midnight and was in a troubleome mood. He displayed a roll of bills t a time when the five Negroes were there and when he left, so did Farrell, Johnson, Franklin and Williams. Farrell accompanied Williams as the latter followed Wheman and near the corner of Shapley street, Wheman was felled by a blow delivered by Williams and landed in the gutter. Either the blow, or Wheman's head striking the curb produced unconsciousness, for Wheman lay in his tracks helpless. While he was unconscious, Wheman's pockets were rifled by Williams, according to the statement made by Farrell. Later Wheman regained consciousness and went to his rooming house. Monday when his condition became worse a physician was called, but by the time one arrived, Wheman had lapsed into unconsciousness, in which condition he remained until he expired at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. Williams returned to his barge, the Northern 35 Sunday, but did not remain aboard, for the captain, John Goetling paid the cook off and that was the last seen of Williams.

GRAY ADMITS CAR THEFTS— HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

William Gray, 18, colored youth of Providence, was in the police court this morning charged with automobile theft. Probable cause was found and the accused was held for trial at the next term of the superior court. In default of a surety on his bond, the Negro was committed to jail.

Gray, a laborer, stole an automobile, owned by John W. Dorsey, also of Providence, in that city last Tuesday night. Gray drove the car, a Ford, to New London and in attempting to drive through Hallam street, Gray was not aware of the existence of a crossing of the New Haven railroad. The gates were down and the car crashed through one of them. Believing that he would be arrested for the theft of the auto if he remained with it, Gray abandoned the machine and on Lee avenue found an Overland auto owned by George Schner, who is visiting Charles Allen, of No. 42. Entering the car, Gray drove away. At Saybrook the Negro was again forced to abandon the auto, the supply of gasoline becoming exhausted. Gray succeeded in reaching New Haven, presumably by obtaining a ride on a truck, but the New London police had obtained a description of the Negro and that got to New Haven ahead of Gray. When Gray was observed on the street he was arrested and returned to New London. Gray admitted the theft of both automobiles.

Carle Nykanen, 680 East 146th street, New York, was charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, having been arrested last night by Sergeant Samuel Hick and Auto Patrol Officer Thomas Cavanugh. The case was continued until tomorrow.

Elmer Allen, 14 Shaw street, a mason, who has been before the court about a score of times, principally for breach of the peace and intoxication, was there again. Allen, who has always been given suspended jail sentences was not treated with such leniency today for he was sentenced to jail to stay 10 days. Allen was arrested at 2:30 o'clock this morning by Patrolmen George Laboue and Albert Iverson, who were summoned to the Allen home at the request of Mrs. Allen.

MT. VERNON AUTO THIEVES FACE 18 MONTHS IN JAIL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—The New London police early today arrested two of the most desperate automobile thieves recorded in the history of the New London department, in apprehending Nicholas Ragnone, 17, a theatre porter and William Rossetti, 37, a painter, both of Mt. Vernon, N. Y. The thieves made every effort to get away and that they did not draw their revolvers on the capturing officers was due to the fact that the gesture of Ragnone to pull his revolver was detected and prevented. After being locked up, Rossetti remarked that he and his pal made a mistake that they did not engage the officers in a gun battle.

The court lost no time in passing sentence on the crooks for when Ragnone and Rossetti were arraigned, Deputy Judge John McGarry gave each six months in jail and imposed a fine of $250, the most severe sentence ever given an automobile thief in the New London court. The penalty will keep Ragnone, who is single and Rossetti, who is married, prisoners at the county jail about 18 months unless friends come to their aid and pay the fines, which is improbable.

Early this morning the Mt. Vernon police notified the New London police that a Pierce-Arrow automobile had been stolen in the former city and that the car had started toward New London. At 2:45 the state police at Westport barracks, communicated with the police, stating that the thieves had stopped at a garage in Westport and had obtained 16 gallons of gasoline, for which they refused to pay, and had speeded away. Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolmen George Laboue and Albert Iverson were sent to the city line to keep a lookout for the stolen car. The police auto was stopped at Willetts avenue extension and headed toward the city. After a long wait the officers observed a large car approaching at a fast rate of speed and suspected that it was the stolen machine. As the auto was about to pass the police auto it was observed that the speeding car was a Pierce-Arrow and that two men occupied it. A signal was given the driver of the car to stop, but he ignored it. Giving chase to the bigger car, the police overtook it near Lee avenue, but Ragnone, who was driving refused to stop, even when the police car crowded the other close to the curb, in danger of overturning. Continuing in its flight, the police auto again overtook the Pierce-Arrow and this time it pulled alongside the latter. Iverson was on the running board of the police machine and jumping to the stolen auto ordered Ragnone to stop. This time the order was heeded for the Pierce-Arrow was drawn up alongside the curb. Corcoran and Laboue leaped from the auto and about the time that they reached the stolen car, Ragnone made a move as though to pull a revolver. He was prevented from doing so, however, for Ragnone and Rossetti were seized. The two men were ordered to the highway and when searched each had a fully loaded .38 calibre revolver. The weapons were taken from the prisoners and they were brought to police headquarters with the assistance of a civilian, whose services were requested to drive the stolen auto. At police headquarters and after being locked up, Rossetti was heard to remark to Ragnone that "we should have bumped the cops off," but the latter replied that such a course was impossible because of the alertness of the officers detecting Ragnone in the latter's attempt to pull his weapon.

This afternoon Morris Schultz, 18 Wales place, Mt. Vernon, came to New London and took charge of the stolen auto.

HANOVER

ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A delicious supper served by the Ladies' Guild, in the parish house, Wednesday, Jan. 8th at 6 o'clock, opened the annual meeting and roll call of Hanover Congregational church. Good fellowship prevailed throughout the program and was enjoyed by some ninety members and friends. This annual event in the life of the church is always open to all in the community, who are interested.

At 7:30 in the church a devotional service was led by the minister, Rev. Dwight C. Stone. The roll called by the clerk, Wm. S. Lee was responded to by a large proportion of the 125 members. These responses year by year give evidence of the fact that the most valuable assets of our lives cannot be reported in figures but must be developed as they are worked out in the experience of daily Christian living.

The reports as given by the officers of the various organizations showed commendable work in several lines of endeavor. The spirit of cooperation for the best good of all has been manifest. The eduational programs in different organizations have been planned with the distnct purpose of better meeting individual needs.

The trustees are always grateful for the plain, everyday loyalty of the majority of the people, who help support the work. This has been evidenced this year as heretofore. The women as usual labored faithfully to cooperate at all times with the men in meeting the needs in Hanover and in supporting the local share in the world service program in all parts of the world. The young people and the children in their organizations, also, have shown a willingness to learn and to serve as well. Financially the church had a good year.

One large item in the trustees' report was the completion of a new water system at the parsonage. A new well has been drilled and a new deep well pump installed. This item has been carried into the budget of the new year but it is the hope of the trustees that it will be cleared off the books early in the year with a little extra help from all the contributors.

COLUMBIA

The funeral of Mrs. Mary J. Randall, 92, widow of John Randall, was held Monday afternoon at the Columbia church, Rev. Mr. Wheelock of the Willimantic Congregational church officiating. Mrs. Randall was born in Columbia, the daughter of Nathan and Jane Holbrook. Mrs. Randall had lived in Willimantic in late years. Burial was in Columbia cemetery.

The annual meeting of the Saxton B. Little Free Library association was held Monday evening in the library building.

The meeting was called to order by the president, William M. Wolff. There were eight members present. Minutes of last meeting were read and accepted. The report of the treasurer showed that he had received $210 from trust funds, which amount to $5347. During the year the library has been open 104 times and the circulation was 2754 volumes. The total number of the volumes in the library is 3023. 60 families from the town and 56 summer visitors have made use of the library during the past year. Officers were elected as follows: President, William M. Wolff; vice president, H. A. Rice; secretary, C. E. Hunt; treasurer, E. P. Lyman; trustee, H. B. Hutchins; associate trustee, E. P. Lyman. Members of library committee for three years, H. P. Collins, Mrs. H. A. Rice. The library committee met at the close of the meeting and re-elected Mrs. H. A. Rice librarian. The committee will soon choose the list of books to be added to the library this year.

The local troop of boy scouts, 100 per cent strong, took a hike Saturday afternoon.

The Columbia Burying Ground association has just received $300 by the will of Mrs. Estelle Hyde Brooks of Willimantic, to be used for the perpetual care of her family plot.

Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Latham of Providence called on relatives in Columbia Saturday afternoon, on their way to Hartford.

This (Thursday) afternoon at one o'clock the third in a series of food demonstrations under the auspices of Tolland County Farm bureau will be held at the home of Mrs. William Wolff. Mrs. Wolff and Mrs. Hubert Collins will be in charge.

Rev. Mr. Howell and Edward P. Lyman were chosen delegates from the Columbia church to the installation Wednesday of the new pastor at Stafford Springs Congregational church.

Tuesday evening the January business meeting of the C. E. society was held at the home of Donald Woodward.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

National Biscuit Officers

Effective immediately, National Biscuit company announces the appointment of Vice President E. Y. Crossmore to take charge of its newly formed operating department, which is made up of the production, engineering and purchasing divisions.

F. K. Montgomery, formerly manager of the purchasing department, has been elected a vice president and will assume charge of the sales department, succeeding Mr. Crossmore.

Palace Theatre

The hit of hits, the review of reviews, the picture of pictures is coming to the Palace theater—coming tomorrow for a four days' stay only—"The Show of Shows," Warner Brothers' classic of the screen, featuring more stars than there are in the Milky Way, and giving more entertainment than anyone ever dreamed possible in one great picture.

Count the stars, you know most of them! John Barrymore, Richard Barthlemess, Noah Beery, Monte Blue, Irene Bordoni, Georges Carpentier, William Collier, Jr., Betty Compson, Dolores Costello, Alice Day, Sally Eilers, Doug Fairbanks, Jr., Frank Fay, Louise Fazenda, Lloyd Hamilton, Lila Lee, Winnie Lightner, Jacqueline Logan, Nick Lucas, Carmel Myers, Patsy Ruth Miller, Bull Montana, Chester Morris, Jack Mulhall, Marion Nixon, Sally O'Neil, Gertrude Olmstead, Rin-Tin-Tin, Ben Turpin, H. B. Warner, Alice White, Lois Wilson, Grant Withers, Loretta Young, Ted Lewis and numerous others that we have not room to name. Think of it, 100 great stars in all. What a show it has to be with every character a star!

To try to describe the beauty, rhythm, music and appeal of this great revue, is impossible. It has singing, talking, dancing, color and millions of girls. Frank Fay is the clever master of ceremonies who keeps things moving and manages to be a perfect show in himself. You will see Georges Carpentier, the man whose battle with Jack Dempsey was a sensation. You will see a dozen famous stars in one minor act. You will hear Winnie Lightner sing as only Winnie can sing, and, wonder of wonders, you will let Bull Montana thrill you with his "exquisite" solo, "You Belong to Me."

John Barrymore

There are so many things to talk about that to touch upon even one of them, the grand, glorious finale, would require more space than can be granted at this time. Here is a picture that must be seen to be appreciated. Never in the history of the screen has such a galaxy of acting talent been gathered into one picture. Probably never again will all your favorite stars be seen in one setting.

Today for the last times the Palace presents Dolores Costello in "Second Choice," and Eddie Buzzell in "Little Johnny Jones."

Broadway Theatre

With today's performances, those six charming Wheater children, who have won everyone's heart with their desperate albeit sometimes ludicrous efforts to "have a real home," despite their much-married and much-divorced parents' decision to the contrary, will close their engagement in the "Marriage Playground" at the Broadway theatre. This delightful domestic drama was filmed from Edith Wharton's famous novel, "The Children." The cast, headed by Mary Brian and Fredric March, and with Huntley Gordon, Kay Francis, William Austin and Seena Owen, are clever, and might have been born into their roles, but the children, Phillippe de Lacey, Ruby Parsely, Little Mitzi, Anita Louise, Billy Seay and Baby Donald (the latter nine months old) carry off all the honors, and you still have opportunity to enjoy the cleverest satire on modern divorce that has ever graced the screen. Starting tomorrow, Ruth Chatterton, famous star of "The Doctor's Secret" and "Madame X," comes to the Broadway in her latest screen success, "The Laughing Lady," her most daring and sophisticated character. Laughing her way through life, laughing at life itself, laughing at imminent death, ridiculing the irony of fate, even at her own breaking heart, Miss Chatterton has a thrilling and exacting character to portray. The cast includes Clive Brook, Raymond Walburn, Dan Healy, Dorothy Hall and a long list of favorites recruited, with the exception of Mr. Brook, from the legitimate stage, in a stirring production. Added attractions include a Metro Colortone Revue, "The Song of the Roses," Henry Burr, heading Eight Victor Recording artists in "The Rubetown Minstrels," Lois Wilson in a smart comedy, "For Love or Money," and the latest Paramount Sound news.

Grange Dance

A very enjoyable occasion was experienced by a large gathering of young people at the last grange dance and the proceeds are to be used to equip and maintain the new grange hall. You will need to come to these dances to appreciate the jovial amusement. Another one tonight, at Grange hall, Norwich Town.

Big Building Program Planned

Approximately three quarters of a million dollars are being raised by the Moose throughout the world for the boys' village, which will be constructed within the child city at Mooseheart, Illinois and will provide thirty cottages as homes for the younger boys. Seven of the cottages have been assured and already the first unit has been begun.

With the growth of the Moose as a fraternity, the child-city also is expanding and a vast building program is under way to meet the needs of this growth. Aside from the boys' village project, a new school system is being planned that will involve $800,000. The more than 700,000 members of the fraternity throughout the world have enthusiastically agreed to support these two vast movements and are at work to raise the necessary funds. In order to raise their quota for this building project Norwich lodge, No. 950, plans to give their Mooseheart Charity Ball on the evening of Jan. 18. Norwich lodge has always held the reputation of excellent host. The committee in charge of arrangements has prepared a special program for the entertainment of its guests.

Professor Farrell's Recital.

The following endorsements of the recital by Professor Farrell have been received by Mrs. Thomas M. Shields:

Mayor L. R. Robbins writes:

"It is a pleasure to comply with your request that I become a patron for the recital to be given by Professor Frank L. Farrell at Slater hall, January 17th, for the benefit of the League of Women Voters.

"Norwich is proud of her native son for his outstanding ability and accomplishment, but loves him for his many years of unselfish service to the community.

"Mr. Farrell is ever ready to devote his time ad strength in furtherance of every cause for civic betterment and his generosity in this particular instance adds emphasis to this truth.

"An appreciation of his continued devotion should be evidenced by a general attendance at the concert Friday evening.

F. R. Murdy, president of the Norwich Rotary club writes:

"It is a pleasure to note that Professor Frank L. Farrell is to give a recital at Slater hall for the benefit of the League of Women Voters, and I think they are to be congratulated in bringing him to Norwich, and having him give his time and services free.

"I know the music lovers of this city look forward to a most enjoyable evening on this occasion."

Charles J. Dyer writes:

We are always glad of the opportunity of hearing Mr. Farrell play. Although not quite old enough to be called the cornerstone he is one of the foundation stones of musical knowledge. His influence is always good and felt by the musically inclined people of Norwich. I am one of those who always enjoy hearing him play.

Norwich, Friday, Jan. 17, 1930

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The northeast disturbance now is centered south of Greenland, Resolution Island, Hudson straits and a trough of low pressure extends from Newfoundland southwestward to Cuba. Pressure is falling rapidly over and west of Hudson bay. Pressure is high elsewhere over North America.

Mostly fair weather will prevail Friday in the Washington forecast district, but a disturbance over southern plateau will likely move eastward and cause quite general precipitation over the states east of the Mississippi during Saturday or Saturday night.

The weather will remain cold during the next two days.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Fresh northwest or north winds and fair weather Friday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh northerly winds Friday; fair weather Friday.

Forecast

For southern New England: Fair and slightly colder Friday; Saturday increasing cloudiness, possibly snow Saturday night.

Observations

The Bulletin's observations show the following changes in temperature and barometric changes Thursday:

	Ther.	Bar.
7 a. m.	36	30.20
12 m.	34	29.80
6 p. m.	30	29.40

Highest, 36; lowest, 30.

Comparisons

Predictions for Thursday: Cloudy and much colder, probably rain changing to snow.

Thursday's weather: Cloudy, colder; northwest wind, clearing at night.

NORWICH TOWN

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Miller, Wightman avenue, Monday evening from 7 until 10, a party on her 12th birthday was given their daughter, Ruth Miller. The 14 guests were Bernice and Carl Fritz, Norman Bellevue, Clorice Cormier, Charles Wheeler, Loretta O'Neil, William and Henry Chabbott, Robert Brown, Walter and Helena Kelly, Marion and Freddie Miller and David Fox. Charles Wheeler played a violin selection, Bernice Fritz playing the piano accompaniment. When the entire company sang a number of popular songs, Miss Miller's sister, Mrs. Augusta Tennant, accompanied at the piano. This was followed by several games. In the peanut hunt the prizes went to Loretta O'Neil, William Chabbott and Helena Kelly. At 9 o'clock the children were invited into the dining room which had been decorated in pink and white. The favors were baskets of candy and each received a souvenir. In the center of the table was a large birthday cake, also carrying out the colors. Mrs. Miller, assisted by her eldest daughter, Mrs. Tennant, served sandwiches, cakes and cocoa. Later other games were played. Miss Miller received many birthday gifts.

When Dorcas Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church held its January meeting at the parsonage Thursday afternoon, Miss Alice Brown was hostess. Mrs. William Weaver, the president, presided, read Psalm 46 and offered prayer. Those present repeated the Lord's Prayer in unison. Faith of Our Fathers and My Soul Be on Thy Guard, were the hymns sung, Mrs. George L. Randall playing the accompaniments. The treasurer, Mrs. George Manning, submitted her report, which showed a balance of $32 in the treasury. Mrs. Manning also read the report of the secretary, Mrs. Stanton W. Brown, in her absence. Both reports were approved. During the business period, it was found that $10 had been earned by members and was brought in at this meeting. This amount is to be deposited in a local bank, to start a fund to paint the parsonage. The Mizpah benediction brought the meeting to a close. Miss Brown served a tempting luncheon of sandwiches, fancy cookies and tea. Mrs. Randall said grace.

Mrs. George Kahn of Franklin was a caller Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Weaver of Huntington avenue.

WOMEN VOTERS BOARD MET TO HEAR REPORTS

The executive board of the New London County League of Women Voters held a business meeting followed by tea Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of Union street. Only routine business and reports occupied the business session.

Those attending were Mrs. D. E. Clark and Miss Edna L. Tyler of New London, Mrs. Edward J. Graham of Lebanon, Mrs. W. E. Turner and Mrs. C. E. Case of Baltic, Mrs. Charles Cavanaugh and Mrs. John E. Hastow of Groton, Miss Effie Haynes and Mrs. Harry Hunt of Niantic, and Mrs. Roderick F. Sullivan, Mrs. Thomas M. Shields, Mrs. Allen Latham and Mrs. Higgins of this city.

Dismissals at Backus Hospital

Patients discharged Thursday at the Backus hospital were: Allen Morgan, 19 Sunnyside avenue; Miss Clarice Lavallee, 22 Terrace avenue, Taftville; and Ernest Peltier, 116 1-2 North Main street.

ADVOCATES "TRY NORWICH FIRST" FOR ADVICE TO NORWICH BUYING PUBLIC

A special publicity committee whose sole duty is to educate the consuming public of Norwich to buy merchandise at home through some sort of advertising campaign was appointed at the annual meeting of the Merchants bureau of the Norwich chamber of commerce at the Wauregan hotel Thursday evening with a good-sized representative of merchants present. The committee, Charles Barker, David Disco and a representative of the American Thermos Bottle company, who are to consider the proposition and report back at a later meeting, was formed as the result of an instructive address by the new secretary of the chamber, John Richardson.

JOHN RICHARDSON

In the business session, which followed the supper at 6:15 o'clock and was presided over by Glenn Merithew, the president, the election of officers was held and resulted as follows: President, James F. Flemming; vice president, John P. Lyston; treasurer, John Savard; executive committee, Frank Hempstead, Herbert B. Carey, John Morley, Charles Barker and Glenn Merithew, the retiring president. The slate of officers, presented by Abner Schwartz, chairman, who, together with J. B. Caron and Herbert J. Ferguson, comprised the nomination committee, was elected by the secretary casting one ballot.

In brief remarks President Flemming thanked the gathering for the honor conferred upon him, saying that he, as president, would do his utmost in making the coming year a successful one. The retiring president, Mr. Merithew, thanked the members for their cooperation and help during his term of office.

The members voted on motion of Mr. Schwartz to close their stores on Armistice day in 1930, which falls on Tuesday, and to remain open on Washington's birthday.

"The automobiles and good roads engineers have upset the equilibrium of the merchants" said Mr. Richardson in his address, explaining that these have tended to cause the local buying public to go elsewhere for their merchandise, which must be overcome. What are we going to do about it? he asked. Are we going to educate them to the commercial interests of the town, the quality of the goods, etc? That's your job. You must tell the tradespeople what you have for sale by means of advertising.

Voicing the fact that the merchants are crying that the local people are going to New London, Hartford and other places to buy their merchandise, he said that he was of the belief that it was the fault of the merchants. If we are going to win the favor of the buying public we must do so by good advertising and begin to win back the spirit of Norwich. We must get together and devise ways and means to bring before them the fact to "Try Norwich First!"

We must begin to drive home to the housewives and people of Norwich that the merchants are the builders of the city that if they don't succeed the city will not. We must bring back some of the thoughtless buying. I believe with the brains of the men in the merchandising field and with cooperation assistance we can devise some plan now, whereby we can win back the favor of our people. We must convince them we have the merchandise.

We do not admit that it is necessary to go outside without giving us some consideration. As merchants you are entitled to it as you are taxpayers of the city and contribute to its progress. Let us try to educate the consuming public to buy at home by means of operative assistance we can devise tive advertising plan, he concluded.

NORWICH TELEPHONES TO HAVE SEMI-SELECTIVE RINGING

Extensive changes have been completed to the equipment in the central office of the telephone company and in the telephones in the homes of party-line subscribers in the Norwich exchange in preparation for the introduction here, with the next directory, of semi-selective ringing in party-line service.

It has taken some time for a corps of telephone men to make the equipment changes necessary for the improvement in this class of service for local subscribers of the telephone company, but when put into operation it doubtless will prove very satisfactory as it has in other of the larger exchanges about the state.

When the telephone directory appears it will be found that party line listings no longer have a ring number suffix. Instead the suffix will be a letter. As in other exchanges the letters W, J, R and M are being used here because they are dissimilar in sound over the telephone and, therefore, are easily understood by the operators, making for swifter and surer service.

In making a party-line call the telephone user will give the line number as at present and also the letter as, for example, 1234-W. An important feature of this service improvement from the subscribers' viewpoint is the fact that each subscriber will hear but one ring other than his own. For example, the subscriber will hear ring one and ring two, but no other for the simple reason that there will be no other calls. Subscribers having the suffix W and J will answer when their bell rings one. Those having R and M will answer the ring two. This simplification of the ringing system will make it easier for the subscriber to distinguish his call and avoid the annoyance of answering by mistake when some other party is called.

This service improvement has met with favor elsewhere about the state and will undoubtedly prove popular in this exchange.

MADE $200 GIFT TO FIRST CONGREGATIONAL PASTOR

Following the prayer service Thursday evening in the First Congregational chapel at Norwich Town the annual church corporation meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by the chairman of the board, Clyde M. Beebe. The clerk, Dwight W. Avery, read the call of the meeting and followed with prayer. After Clerk Avery had read his report the treasurer, Frank S. Avery, submitted his report, which showed that the expenses for 1929 were very heavy, including reshingling the parsonage, and installing a new heating system in the parsonage, also repairs to the church and chapel as well as the removal of the old church shed, re-grading the ground and making a parking place for autos at the rear.

Bordering the grounds at the rear of the chapel, a hedge of hemlock has been set out, besides considerable shrubbery. This is to be added to in future years, to continue making the grounds more attractive. The committee expressed indebtedness to friends who have given shrubbery, also funds, and more has been promised for the coming year.

The total expense for improvement was over $1,300. The financial condition of the church, however, is very good, with a large balance in the treasury. The church has one very large item to cover soon, that of insuring the property for a period of about three years.

When the election of officers took place, Henry T. Frazier was chosen a trustee for three years. Dwight W. Avery was re-elected clerk, and Frank Avery was re-elected treasurer. Upon motion of Herbert L. Yerrington, a special gift of $200 was presented to the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, by the corporation, by a unanimous vote. At the close of the meeting of the corporation the trustees were called together to organize with Rev. Mr. Bailey.

Charles Schwenk, Jr., was elected chairman of the trustees, he being the senior member. James F. Connolly is the other member of the board. A meeting of the trustees was called for next Monday evening at 7.30, at the parsonage on Elm avenue.

STATE HUMANE SOCIETY BUSY IN DECEMBER

Reports of a busy month were made Tuesday at the January meeting of the Connecticut Humane society which was held at the Hartford headquarters:

Mrs. Nellie T. Brent, director of the family department, reported that 112 new complaints were received in December involving the welfare of 401 children and that 254 families were under supervision during this time. Thirty-six children received hospital or medical care, 6 were given temporary shelter and 57 were placed with relatives or other agencies. Living conditions were greatly improved in 75 homes and six were re-established. Eighteen persons, some aged, were benefitted with either hospital or medical care aided by towns or other agencies or placed in town institutions. Twenty-five petitions were filed during the month for commitment to state case and 11 children were committed to county homes, 3 to the selectmen and 2 to the Mansfield State Training school. During the month 19 persons were prosecuted for crimes against children resulting in 32 penalties. Ten persons were sentenced to prison or jail, 5 women were committed to the state farm, 4 paid fines and costs, 4 placed on probation, 6 received jail sentences. Five cases are still pending at the end of the month.

Reed W. Hitchcock, director of animal work, reported a heavy month's work for December with 325 complaints charging neglect and abuse of animals having been investigated. Of these complaints 46 were regarding animals that were without food or shelter, 19 for beating or cruel treatment, 126 that had been injured or were sick and disabled, 83 that had strayed from their homes and two that were being cruelly transported.

First aid, food, relief from work, shelter, veterinary care, harness adjustments, advice, warnings and many other remedial measures were administered according to the needs of each case. The patrol report showed that 401 horses were examined, 13 animal stores inspected, 117 stables visited, 28 slaughter houses inspected and 244 head of live stock examined. During the month 719 sick and unwanted small animals were humanely destroyed. Forty-six dogs and 8 cats were cared for in the shelter and homes were found for 40 dogs and 11 cats while 20 dogs and 2 cats that had been lost were returned to their owners.

POLICE WARNED TO WATCH FOR GUNMEN IN SEDAN

A telephone communication was received by Captain Thomas Murphy about 10:30 o'clock Thursday evening from the state police barracks at Groton asking the local department to be on the lookout for a Franklin sedan, Reg. No. 2878, which had been stolen in New Britain earlier in the evening. According to the message, four men, heavily armed, were riding in the machine and one of them is said to have fatally wounded a police officer at Forestville.

The injured officer was Patrolman James McNamee, who tried to stop the four auto thieves as they passed through the place. He was shot by one of the men and collapsed on the pavement, later dying at a hospital to which he was taken. These men are reported to have robbed a gasoline station at Cheshire.

The machine is reported to be heading toward Springfield, with the men who are said to be armed with revolvers.

TO ENFORCE RESTAURANT AND LUNCH CART REGULATIONS

State health department regulations that call for lunch carts to have running water and sewer connections and for restaurants and other eating places not to display any food on counters or in other ways unless it is covered and protected from flies are to be enforced in this city, following inspection visits this week and last by officials from the state department.

Open sugar bowls on tables are to go, pitchers without covers will not be allowed and all food on display must have covering impervious to flies.

The ruling as to supply of running water and sewer connections will make a problem for George Driscoll, who for many years has had his lunch cart on Shetucket street, but the regulations will be more easily met by Edward F. Price who has a cart at the foot of Rose place. The Wayside lunch is another that comes under the law.

A number of the restaurants that have lunch counters will be affected by the ruling as to covers over food that is displayed.

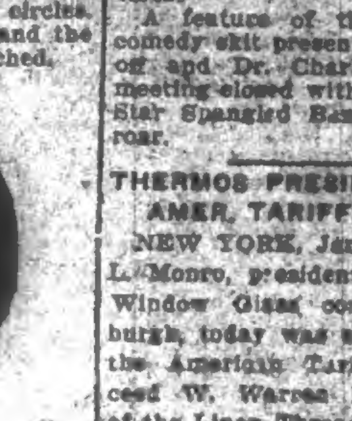
BOY SCOUT CLASS FOR RADIO MERIT BADGE WORK

L. J. Smith of Smith's Radio Store has offered to meet with a class of scouts weekly in his store for the study of the radio merit badge shown below.

As we think of the Boy Scout movement, declares Mr. Smith, many of us are wont to visualize a group of boys, in uniform, and spending a large part of their time in learning discipline and engaging in outdoor activities. While this is, of necessity, a large part of a scout's training, and justly so, still the organization provides many other lines of endeavor among which, one that should hold a high place, is radio.

Almost no other problem with which man has busied himself, has made the rapid advance, occupies such an important place in our every-day life, and offers such untold possibilities as radio. Thirty years ago, our post was crude, our telegraph slow, and at times uncertain, and travel itself limited.

Today, less than half the span of an average person's life, we hurl our voice to the antipodes, America to England, Africa, Australia, Japan, South America, and even to the far-off wastes of the Arctic and Antarctic circles. Truly this is an amazing art, and the surface has been merely scratched.



Radio

What an opportunity for our young scouts of today. Radio receiving and building as a hobby now, in the troop, a little later comes more advanced knowledge and a transmitter is attempted. Oh, the joy of that first night, the key is pressed, and hurtling forth from the little station go your signals, with the speed of light itself, to stop who knows where; then the frantic listening and tuning. Ah, yes, there is your call, and someone 500, 1,000 miles, yes, even across the ocean, is answering your call. Hands clasped across the miles through the ether, and a new friend is made.

Later, at college or radio school, more intensive study, and in just a short time, one more is added to the ranks of engineers and investigators who are ever advancing in knowledge and the use of this greatest triumph of man.

LISBON GRANGE PRESENTS CLEVER THREE-ACT COMEDY

Under the direction of Frank A. Mell, the master, and Miss Helen Hull the three-act comedy, "Bean Town Choir," was presented Monday evening at the Lisbon Community house by members of the Lisbon grange. The presentation, which lasted two hours, was very enthusiastically received by a delighted audience. The costumes were elaborate, dating back to hoop skirts, and the stage setting was in harmony. The cast was:

Widow Wood, Mrs. Albert Rist; Bess Wood, Sadie Goldberg; Hazekiah Doolittle, Frank A. Melle; Mrs. Do Re Me, choir director, Mrs. George Helmboldt; Belinda Sniz, Mrs. Harry L. Hull; Tessie Toombs, pianist, Mrs J. C. Phillips; Sally Etta Pickle, high soprano, Annie Seidel; Mandy, Ham Slinger, Ella Church; Birdie Cackle, Ruth Allen, Grandma Howler, Lena Seidel; Samantha Sniggins, Gussie Thomas; Bashful Bill Boomer, George Helmboldt.

The male quartet comprised G. Curtis Hull, Everett Thornton, George Helmboldt and Harry L. Hull.

Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Sadie Goldberg, Miss Ruth Allen, Curtis Hull and George Helmboldt. A specialty number was provided by Miss Augusta Thomas and Frank A. Mell. Between the second and third acts, Mr. Helmboldt played a novel German instrument, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. C. Phillips.

MADE LIQUOR RAID AT GREENEVILLE BOTTLING WORKS

The Greeneville Bottling Works, located at No. 26 Sixth street, in the Greeneville section of the city, was raided early Thursday evening by a squad of local and state police. As a result of the raid Alexander Kornacki, 17, of this city, was arrested on a charge of violation of liquor law. It is alleged that an actual sale of liquor had previously been made at the place. The accused was given his freedom under bonds of $1,000, which were furnished, for his appearance in city court this (Friday) morning.

Those in the raiding squad were State Police Arthur Whitmarsh and Hill of the Groton barracks and Officer Patrick Shahan of the local police.

According to the city directory, Andrew Zawacki is proprietor of the bottling works.

NORWICH MEN FINED IN PROVIDENCE FOR TRANSPORTING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 16.—Clarence Gardener of Norwich, Conn., has been fined $1 by Judge Ira Lloyd Letts of the United States district court here on a charge of illegal transportation of liquor. Judge Letts imposed the small fine when he was informed that Gardener had been in jail here since Oct. 22, in default of the bail of $1,000 which was asked by the United States commissioner following his arrest and arraignment.

Stephen Perosok, also of Norwich, has been fined $300 on a charge of illegal transportation of whiskey in this city on Sept. 28, last, after the Jones law went into effect.

Omer Peche of Danielson was fined $250 on a similar charge, the offense occurring June 6 last near Chepachet, also after the passage of the Jones act.

Antionio Gomes, Goodyear, Conn., was fined $250 on a similar charge. He was caught on June 9, last, with two five gallon cans of moonshine whiskey, after the passage of the Jones act.

Remembrances From Norwich Friends

Samuel Goldberg of 6 Goldberg avenue, has been receiving many pleasant reminders by mail from Norwich friends while he has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. J. S. Austin, of 1714 72nd street, Brooklyn, N. Y. He will probably be there a short time longer before returning to this city.

GRANTED CONTINUANCE IN CHIODA LIQUOR CASE

At the request of Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for the accused, the cases of Mrs. Rose Chioda of this city and Alphonse Chioda, of Worcester, charged with violation of the liquor law, were continued to Monday, Jan. 20, in the city court Thursday morning. The continuance was granted by Judge Arthur F. Libby after Attorney Shields advised the court that Mrs. Chioda was unable to appear on account of illness. The accused are out on bonds of $1,000 each.

They were arrested early Wednesday evening after a squad of local and state police raided the alleged speakeasy at 63 North Main street, and six cases of home-brew beer were seized. Actual sales of liquor, it is alleged, have been secured by the police at the place.

COMEDY SKIT GAVE ENTERTAINMENT TO LIONS

The weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club was held Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel with the vice president, Abner Schwartz, in charge, and Dr. Kopland K. Markoff acting as song leader. A communication containing greetings from Max Hanover, who is visiting relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y., was read by Vice President Schwartz and it was very enthusiastically received. Mr. Hanover is one of the most active members of the club and during his visit will not only be missed by the Lions club but other organizations in the city, in which he takes an active interest.

A feature of the meeting was a comedy skit presented by Lions Markoff and Dr. Charles Solomon. The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and the Lions roar.

THERMOS PRESIDENT ON AMER. TARIFF LEAGUE BOARD

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—William L. Monro, president of the American Window Glass company, of Pittsburgh, today was elected president of the American Tariff league to succeed W. Warren Barbour, president of the Linen Thread company, of New York, who resigned after holding the office for seven years. Mr. Barbour was elected treasurer.

Horace B. Cheney, South Manchester, Conn., silk manufacturer, was elected first vice president to succeed Senator Joseph R. Grundy, of Pennsylvania, who also resigned from the board of managers. Others elected were J. J. Phoenix, of the Bradley Knitting company, Delavan, Wis., second vice president; Arthur L. Faubel, re-elected secretary; John E. Rousmaniere, of New York, and E. A. Payson, president of the American Thermos Bottle company, Norwich, Conn., members of the board of managers.

ASKS COURT TO DENY PERMISSION TO SUE

In reply to the application made to the supreme court by Charles D. Greenman, trustee for the bondholders of the New London County Agricultural society for permission to sue the receiver, Gilbert S. Raymond, in order to foreclose the mortgage which secures the bondholders, answer has been filed by the receiver's counsels, Perkins and McKay in which the court is asked to deny the application, but if the application be granted that George H. Gilman and Francis Gilman be made party defendants to any action which the trustee might bring against the receiver. The Gilmans are in litigation with the receiver over their bidding in the fairgrounds property at auction for $15,700. The amount of the bonds secured by a mortgage on the fairgrounds property is $25,000.

In the answer made to the application for permission to sue the receiver, it is admitted that since March, 1929, the Agricultural society, which has held the county fair for many years has been in the process of dissolution under the control of the superior court and Gilbert S. Raymond receiver and that on June 1, 1922, the society gave its mortgage note for $25,000 to Charles D. Greenman as trustee and mortgaged the fair grounds at East Great Plain.

The answer denies the allegation of the trustee that the society is involved in litigation, which is of long standing and will not be terminated for a long period of time; that the interest on the bonds are all unpaid and outstanding and is more than a year overdue; that the principal of all the bonds, by reason of default in the payment of interest, has been due and payable for more than ten months; that certain of the holders of the bonds are demanding of Greenman, as trustee, an immediate action for the foreclosure of the mortgage and the sale of the real estate; that the buildings and structures are rapidly deteriorating in value; that great difficulty is had in insuring the buildings and structures and keeping the same insured.

The receiver replies that on and before the appointment of Gilbert S. Raymond as receiver of the New London County Agricultural society, Charles D. Greenman as trustee for the bondholders had received $2,600 on behalf of said bondholders paid to him by certain insurance companies for losses by fire sustained by the New London County Agricultural society, and he now has said sum in his hands, which might be and should be applied by him in payment of the accrued interest upon the mortgage, which Mr. Greenman is now suing to foreclose.

The reply further alleges that to or about May 1, 1929, Gilbert S. Raymond, as receiver of the society, sold the equity of redemption in the property mortgaged to Greenman, trustee, to George H. and Francis Gilman for the sum of $15,750, which sale was subsequently affirmed and confirmed by the superior court in and for New London county. The confirmation of sale has never been appealed from by the said Gilmans and the receiver duly brought suit in the superior court of New London county to enforce the sale by specific performance and said court rendered judgment in favor of the receiver enforcing the sale by specific performance.

The Gilmans appealed from the judgment to the supreme court of errors which appeal is still pending and should be determined at the next session of the court, the answer of the receiver further states.

To allow Charles D. Greenman to foreclose the mortgage would greatly prejudice the creditors of the New London County Agricultural society, whose aggregate claims amount to about $25,000.

"Whereupon the said Gilbert S. Raymond, receiver, prays the court to deny the application of said Charles D. Greenman, and if his petition be granted that it be granted upon condition that he make George H. Gilman and Francis Gilman, Norwich, parties to any action which may be given permission to bring."

Addressed Lebanon Women Voters

Despite the very stormy weather a large number of women, members and friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Frank Rockwood for the January meeting of the Lebanon League of Women Voters.

Miss Edna L. Tyler, county chairman, spoke on county government, the least understood and most useless system. The world court resolution and Jones-Cooper bills were voted signed to be sent to Washington.

WOMEN SHOULD LEARN USES OF MAGNESIA

To women who suffer from nausea, so-called "morning sickness," this simple measure is proving a blessing. Most nurses know it and it is advised by leading specialists.

Prepare a small quantity of finely cracked ice—about a wineglassful. Pour over it a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia. Sip slowly until the mixture is gone or you are entirely relieved. It is seldom necessary to repeat the dose to end sick stomach or any inclination to vomit.

Its anti-acid properties enable Phillips Milk of Magnesia to give immediate relief in heartburn, sour stomach, gas. Its mild, but effective laxative action assures regular bowel movement. Used as a mouthwash it helps prevent acid erosion and tooth decay during expectancy.

With every bottle of Phillips Milk of Magnesia come full directions for its many uses. All drug stores have the 25c and 50c sizes. Demand the genuine, endorsed by doctors for over 50 years.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of the Chas. H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor, Chas. H. Phillips, since 1875.

ALLEGED SLAYER OF PATROLMAN IN BRISTOL SURRENDERED AFTER HE HAD WOUNDED A STATE POLICEMAN

John Brophy Was Captured On Street In Waterville—Had Fired Two Shots, One of Which Struck State Policeman Meade In the Wrist—Police Had Fired Four Shots, None of Which Took Effect—Four Other Men Are Under Arrest, On Suspicion of Having Been In the Murder Car.

WATERBURY, Jan. 17.—(AP)—After two gun battles with police in six hours, in which he shot a state trooper in the wrist and nicked the coat sleeve of a policeman, John Brophy, 19, of this city, was locked up here tonight, a suspect in the murder of Patrolman John McNamee in Forestville last night.

In trying to round up the four youths in the automobile from which McNamee was shot, police have arrested five other suspects besides Brophy. They are:

Bernard Schrager, New Britain, picked up there.

Henry Schrager, his brother, arrested here.

William Slade, New Britain, arrested in that city.

Allan Norton, also of New Britain, and arrested there.

Kenneth Gallagher, of Bristol, arrested in New Britain.

Brophy's arrest came after Patrolman John Christinate, of Waterville, had tonight received a "hot tip," source unrevealed, that the youth had been seen on Cooke street, in Christinate's beat. At the same time, James MacMahon, of 103 Yale street, Waterville, learned of the tip, and remembering McNamee's fate, summoned State Troopers Hugh Meade and D. M. Crossman, of the Canaan barracks, who were nearby. The officers and MacMahon drove their automobile up Cooke street, overtaking Christinate, who also got in the car. Brophy, he said, was coming up the other side of the incline. He was, and when the officers came abreast and Christinate jumped out of the machine, Brophy opened fire on the spot. The troopers piled out and joined the duel at 30 paces. Brophy emptied his gun, wounding Meade in the wrist. Ammunition expended, he surrendered and was taken to the Waterbury police station and locked up.

Brophy's first exchange of shots with police came here this afternoon. Police were looking for another suspect at a local riding club when Brophy suddenly appeared from behind a stable. Sergeant Henry Jeglinski, of Bristol, Officer William Thompson, of New Britain, and Detective Lieutenant William Pollard and Officer Henry Johnson, of this city, parked in a car outside the stable, jumped out to seize him, and as in the second encounter, Brophy was the first to blaze away. A child's entrance into the range of fire forced police to stop shooting and Brophy fled into nearby woods, but not before a bullet had gone through the sleeve of Thompson's coat.

The roundup of the other suspects had been without incident except in the case of Henry Schrager, who is pronouncedly hunchbacked. Schrager was about to enter a New Britain-bound bus here when Traffic Officer Alexander Fossbender saw him. Schrager shied and gave himself away. At headquarters, he admitted being with Brophy last night at 6:30 o'clock and at midnight. He denied being with him in the intervening hours or knowing how Brophy spent them.

Schrager is alleged to be an important link in the murder of Patrolman McNamee, as he is said by police to have been seen running from the scene.

Police in New Britain, Bristol and this city, as well as state troopers, rapidly wove the net which entoiled the suspects. The finding of the automobile stolen from Dr. W. H. Morrissey in New Britain, which McNamee thought he was stopping when he was shot, and which was found abandoned here, the discovery of a gun near the scene of the crime which police say bore Henry Schrager's fingerprints, a tip that the latter had been seen with Brophy last night and that he often frequented a local riding club, all centered the search by 200 police armed with 100 riot guns around this city. Nabbing four of the suspects had been only a matter of picking them up. Luck had played Schrager into police hands and the tip received by Christinate capped the matter.

Whether the actual slayer of Patrolman McNamee is among the suspects has not been definitely confirmed. Police point to the fingerprints of Schrager on the gun, but feel Brophy fired the shot. They also claim positive identification of the quartet in the death car by a Plainville lunch cart owner at whose stand four youths ate about the time of the Cheshire gasoline station robbery. They claim to know that Schrager and Brophy were seen together last night and that Gallagher sold Brophy a gun yesterday. Brophy's quickness on the trigger they say does not help his case.

McNamee, killed doing his duty, knew who shot him, but the very knowledge stopped his mouth forever.

MEN WILL BE ARRAIGNED IN BRISTOL COURT TODAY

BRISTOL, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Word was received tonight of the capture of John Brophy, the chief suspect in the slaying of Officer McNamee and the entire police department breathed a sigh of relief as the anxiety and suspense which had existed all day, was at an end.

The police stated that all the men would be brought here for arraignment in city court tomorrow and the charge was expected to be that of homicide.

All the Bristol officers who could be spared were sent to Waterbury to aid the police there in the hunt for the men, and New Britain gave aid in sending officers as well as in tracing the suspects. Bristol police were early told by New Britain officers that Brophy and his companions were the suspects and that they were sure that the four men separated early this morning, two returning to their homes in New Britain and the other two staying in Waterbury.

Arrangements for the funeral of McNamee were begun during the day, as well as for the inquest.

TWO PERSONS SHOT AFTER HOLD-UP IN BROOKLYN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Two persons were shot, one fatally, as the aftermath of a hold-up today of a Brooklyn barber shop. Two men who staged the robbery escaped.

Two men entered the barber shop of Carmella Martinez. At gunpoint, they herded the barber and three customers into a back room. They escaped after taking a ring valued at $300 and a watch valued at $100 from Martinez and $1 from the cash register.

Martinez slipped from a side door of his shop and followed the two men to the next corner, where they separated. The barber continued on the trail of one of them, who turned and, seeing Martinez, fired two shots. One of the bullets struck Salvatore Famerato, 10, who was on his way home from school. Long Island College hospital physicians said his condition was critical.

Patrolman Frank Sullivan, attracted by the shots, was told by bystanders that a man had run into a house. The policeman followed and found a man in the back yard.

The man fled in fear as the policeman commanded him to stop and when he failed to obey, fired, fatally wounding him.

$16,000 SETTLED GOV'T. CLAIM AGAINST GROTON

HARTFORD, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The claim of the United States government against the town of Groton, arising from tax exemptions granted for the construction of war-time houses by the government, has been settled out of court with the award of $16,000 to the government, it was announced by U. S. District Attorney John Buckley today.

The claim of the government, for which suit was filed in December of 1928, was approximately $30,000. When a settlement of houses was constructed in Groton by the Emergency Fleet Corp., while government shipbuilding was carried on in an extensive scale in 1918, it was agreed by the town of Groton that in return for the construction of sewers and sidewalks by the corporation, $50,000 would be paid by the town.

The means of payment was to be by remittance of taxes on the dwellings. Approximately $29,000 had accrued to the government in this manner when the houses were sold to a private corporation in 1920. It was for the remainder of the $50,000, plus interest, that suit was brought.

OVER $70,000 SHORTAGE IN EAST HAMPTON BANK

EAST HAMPTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Irregularities in the conduct of two officers resulting in a shortage of more than $70,000 in the East Hampton Bank and Trust Co., were disclosed in a statement issued by 16 directors of the institution here today.

The statement also revealed that $70,000 of the shortage has already been made good by Chauncy G. Bevin, president of the bank.

Clarke W. Burnham, who resigned Jan. 8 as executive vice-president, and Earle S. Stevens, also resigned Jan. 8 as treasurer, are charged in the statement with "improper management and conduct" in the loss.

Both men are still in town.

28 COMMUNISTS PLACED UNDER ARREST IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Twenty-eight communists staging here a protest against the fifth conference on the Cause and Cure of War at Washington, were arrested today.

Led by Mrs. Harriet Silverman of the Workers' International association, the women formed two abreast in the street in front of the Women's Trade Union league, at 247 Lexington avenue. They carried banners with communistic inscriptions.

A crowd gathered and had begun to jeer at the women, when police reserves arrived and broke up the demonstration. About half a dozen of the women escaped arrest. The rest were charged with disorderly conduct.

ALCOHOL DIVERTED TO BOOTLEG CHANNELS

DETROIT, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Less than 3,000,000 gallons of alcohol manufactured for industrial purposes was diverted to bootleg channels last year, Dr. James M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, said in an address today before the national convention of the Anti-Saloon league.

This compared to 100,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol manufactured, represents a tremendous advance in this phase of enforcement, Dr. Doran declared. Three years ago, he said, diversion was five times as great. Work of administrators and agents in making further reduction was commended.

13 BENCH WARRANTS IN HARTFORD RUM SCANDAL

HARTFORD, Jan. 17—(AP)—The identity of 13 persons for whom bench warrants were issued this morning, when the grand jury investigating liquor conditions in Hartford, made its first report to Judge Allyn L. Brown, was still a secret guarded by court officials and the investigating staff under State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn tonight.

Distres[illegible]aused By Cold, Snow, Floods

Blizzards In Middle West—Floods In Arkansas and Indiana.

CHICAGO, Jan. 17—(AP)—Winter's cold and reckless band wrote a story of distress across the nation today.

Lands were inundated by swollen streams in Indiana, Illinois and Arkansas. The mercury plunged to 42 degrees below zero at International Falls, Minn. Heavy snow struck all of the middle west and central Rocky Mountain region. Widespread blizzards hampered traffic and paralyzed air service.

Sub-zero and zero temperatures were the rule everywhere, the far southwest, California and southern Florida only escaping. Continuance of the severe cold was forecast for the north central state tonight and Saturday. The north west, however, had a pleasant prediction of sharp rise in temperatures.

The southwest and south portion of the middle west were bearing the brunt of the loosed elements. The former, including the territory south and west of Kansas City, had a raging blizzard added to the protracted siege of snow and cold. The latter, including Arkansas and the southern sections of Illinois, Indiana, and Missouri was watching the ruination of lands by water.

Four new breaks in the levee of the St. Francis river near Bertig, Ark., increased the acreage under flood waters in the lower Mississippi basin by 10,000. A fifteen foot break in the levee of the White river, near Decker, Ind., sent a six-foot wall of water over Decker township. Another break was feared 15 miles south of Vincennes.

At Big Lake, Mississippi county, Arkansas, water was pouring through a 100 foot crevice in the levee and there, as elsewhere, farmers were battling to save their lands.

Some of the low temperatures reported over the country today were: Amarillo, Tex., 2 below; Bismark, N. D., 23 below; Cheyenne, Wyo., 30 below; Concordia, Kas., 12 below; Denver, Colo., 20 below; Helena, Mont., 30 below; Lander, Wyo., 38 below; Miles City, Mont., 32 below; Northfield, Vt., 4 below; North Platte, Nebr., 22 below; Peoria, Ill., 0.

Wants Make the Man.

Babies are born with but one want—food. When men grow old their wants again become few—quiet corners, friendly faces, peace.

But in the years between men and women are living and developing to the full extent of their powers. Then their wants are legion.

People today are wanting and getting more things that make for complete living than ever before. To these common needs of everyone the advertisements in The Bulletin bring invaluable opportunities of satisfaction every day.

It is the function of the advertisements to enable you not only to get what you want—but to get the very best that your money can buy. They assure you that your wants will be more than met—that they will be wisely and completely satisfied, be it auto, furniture, radio or something else.

The minutes you spend reading Bulletin advertisements may bring you years of satisfaction.

FOUND HIS WIFE A WITNESS AGAINST HIM

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 17.—(AP)—When Ray H. Arnold, wealthy broker whose marital difficulties have resulted in several suits, appeared in city court today to press a burglary charge against a former butler, he found his wife, Mrs. Bessie Arnold, among the witnesses for the defense.

Arnold testified he found the former butler, Thomas Berry, 34, Negro, of Greenwich, Conn., coming out of the dooryard of the Arnold home in Yonkers last Sunday and that two doors were broken open. He said two rooms had been ransacked and a watch and chain were missing.

Berry testified he had come to the house in search of a maid there whose name he did not know. Mrs. Arnold supported him in this, saying she had instructed Berry to find the maid, who had formerly worked for her.

Judge Gerald Nolan reserved decision until Tuesday and continued Berry in $1,000 bail.

BILL WOULD BAR SUNDAY MOTION PICTURES OR PLAYS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Sunday motion pictures or plays would be barred throughout the country under a bill introduced today by Representative Lankford, democrat, Georgia.

The law proposed would impose a fine of $1,000 or a sentence to imprisonment at hard labor for a year, or both, on anyone convicted of showing motion pictures or plays for public exhibition between 12 o'clock midnight Saturday and 12 o'clock midnight Sunday.

Lankford previously has made similar proposals.

MAN NEAR DEATH FROM AUTOMOBILE INJURIES

THOMPSONVILLE, Jan. 17—(AP)—A man partly identified by papers found on his person as Jeremiah Cronin, of Vancouver, B. C., is near death in a Springfield, Mass., hospital as the result of injuries received by being struck by an automobile driven by Howard E. Jensen, of East Hartford, here last night. Jensen is being held on a technical manslaughter charge and the authorities are seeking to check up on the identity of the injured man, who is about 50 years old.

FOUR [illegible]Y PLANES COMPLETE FLIGHT

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 17—(AP)—Four planes of the army's Arctic patrol flew over Spokane today, completing their trip from Selfridge Field, Mich.

Soaring across the icy continental divide, three pursuit ships, and one transport plane, the vanguard of the winter flight patrol, landed on the ice at Newman lake near here at 12:32 p. m., after a flight from Kalispell, Mont.

Way Is Clear To Give Effect To Young Plan

France and Germany Have Agreed Upon First Flotation of Reparation Bonds.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 17—(AP)—The last obstable to adoption of the Young plan for reparations by the chief creditors of Germany was overcome tonight when the French and Germans agreed on the conditions under which the first slice of reparations bonds shall be put on the market.

In order to furnish Germany the money required for railroads and other internal needs, it was decided to increase the first issue from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000, with the amount of increase assigned to Germany. The bonds will be issued to bear from five to six per cent interest.

The Germans agreed to abstain from seeking other loans in foreign markets until next October, at which time it was supposed the first issue of the reparation bonds will have been floated. If they have not been, then the Germans have agreed not to seek money abroad before a year from next April.

It was understood that 30 per cent or $60,000,000 of these bonds would be offered American subscribers. France will take 40 per cent and Germany and Great Britain each 20 per cent. The countries subscribing have the right to place part of their allotments in other countries.

The German share in the proceeds of $100,000,000 will replace a loan already contracted for in connection with the Kruger match concession. This may change the proportions of allotments to different countries, since if the match loan had been floated in the United States it would have amounted to more than the 30 per cent of the reparation bonds which had figured as the American allotment in all calculations.

The Germans had resisted the French demand that Germany promise not to seek credit abroad until the reparations bond issue was safely out of the way. The plan agreed upon is therefore a compromise.

There now remains only the necessity of obtaining settlement of the eastern reparations problem between Austria, Bulgaria and Hungary and their creditors to take the reparations question completely off the diplomatic books.

LINK SLAYINGS OF N. Y. AND CHICAGO GANGSTERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The "St. Valentine's day massacre" in Chicago last year and the murder of Frankie Yale, "put on the spot" in Brooklyn in July, 1928, were linked today in a police report which indicated that the bullets fired in both killings came from the same sub-machine gun.

Commissioner Grover A. Whalen made the announcement that he had received "startling information" from Chicago, where he had sent two of the New York police department's firearms experts with the slugs which were taken from Frankie Yale's body.

The experts were to compare these slugs with those which shot down the seven members of "Bugs" Moran's gang while they were lined up in the rear of a Chicago garage on Feb. 14, 1929.

HANGED FOR PARTICIPATING IN FOLSOM PRISON RIOT

FOLSOM PRISON, Calif., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Eugene Crosby, alias James Gleason, was hanged here today for his participation in the Folsom prison riot on Thanksgiving day, 1927. He walked to the gallows smoking a cigarette and refused religious solace. Crosby was the fifth of a group of six alleged ring leaders of the riot to be executed.

Walter Burke, Roy E. Stokes, Anthony Brown and James H. Gregg, all convicts, recently were executed. The case of Albert M. Stewart, the sixth, is before the state supreme court of appeals. Stewart has asked the judge who sentenced him to arrange for him to hang within 15 days as he could not stand the "wracking suspense."

TO CONTEST $16,000,000 ENFORCEMENT PROVISION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—At the request of Representative LaGuardia, republican, New York, a wet, the house today put aside the section of the treasury-postoffice supply bill which would provide $16,000,000 for prohibition enforcement.

LaGuardia has announced that when the section comes before the house tomorrow he will offer a point of order against the appropriation on the ground that the amendment has never been ratified by three-fourths of the states.
